Farm Forum Explains 'Vertical Integration'

During January the series of discussions will be on "vertical integration." Monday's specific discussion was on "Who Controls the Product?"

After listening to the radio broadcast which explained the meaning of the term and gave arguments both for and against the group stated they were not in favor of the program. They believed there would be greater production which would tend to depress the price. In answer to the questions they said: (1) They feared the loss of freedom, the loss of control of production of soil and stock, and they thought the community might disappear. (2) Instead of helping you stay in business, it will put you out of business.

LACE MACHINE

Broker Confirms Shipment of U.S. Steel to Russia

NEW YORK (AP) — A New York export broker confirmed Thurs. that he is shipping 20,000 tons of American automotive steel to Russia in exchange for 80,000 tons of Soviet chromium ore.

Ara Oxtemel, president of Greg-Gary Corporation, said he obtained the wide cold-rolled sheet steel from Republic Steel Corporation of Cleveland. He said this is the first major shipment of American steel to the Soviet Union in several years.

The steel is being shipped via Halifax, the New York broker said, and the chromium ore from Russia will be delivered at Newport News, Va., and Baltimore.

DECLINES IDENTIFY

Ostemel declined to identify the United States firm or firms to whom the ore is being sold. Chromium, used in the manufacture of stainless and other alloy steels, is not at readily available to U.S. plants as other materials.

The Russians intend to use the American steel for the manufacture of automobile bodies, Ostemel said. His firm plans to make further such shipments to the Soviet Union from Republic and other major U.S. company.

No outright barter is involved in the exchange of American steel for Soviet ore, he pointed out. The steel is being sold in the conventional manner and the chromium ore will be obtained in a "counter-purchase" deal.

Ostemel said his firm has been licensed by various U.S. government agencies to ship steel to Russia. Chromium ore would be the only Russian product brought in.

In Washington, commerce department officials said the Greg-Gary shipment was authorized in the July - September quarter of 1958. It is part of 33,000 tons, with a value of $5,578,535, licensed for export to Russia in that period. The officials said no such shipments were licensed in the fourth quarter.

Sunday School Lesson

Accepting Responsibilities

By ROY L. SMITH

This week's Sunday school lesson tells the story of one of the best known, and least understood, young men in all the New Testament. His case has been cited on almost innumerable occasions as the classic illustration of greed, or money madness. And it may be true that his fortune balked more largely on his horizon than it should have. But the basic trouble with the youth lay in the fact that he found it much easier to do something splendid than it was to be something fine.

HAZARD OF INHERITANCE

Stuart Chase, the economist, described in one of his books some years ago 16 ways in which a man might become rich. Interestingly enough, no more than a small percentage of those ways represented actual productivity; most of them represented clever management.

The young man of this lesson had never been a producer. He had, undoubtedly, inherited his wealth. According to the ancient way of life a fortune represented the accumulation of two or three generations. The young man had not lived long enough to save a fortune. He must have come into possession of it on the occasion of the death of his father.

And the total effect of his unearned wealth was a sorry state of confusion about the importance of wealth. His fault did not consist of miserliness, but in the fact that he had not yet developed any dependable scale of values. He could not see that it was much more important to be something than it was to own something.

HE WAS RESPECTABLE

Among the other people of the community the young man was doubtless held in high esteem. It is said of him that Jesus loved him, and he must have been admirable in many ways. It would not have been apt to be the case that Jesus would have fancied him if he had been fast, lusty, or arrogant.

According to the popular standards of the day he was, no doubt, a popular young man who stood well in the neighborhood. Quite probably a good many mothers eyed him wistfully for their daughters.

In spite of all his respects Jesus felt sorry for him. He seemed utterly incapable of rising to any splendid height of manhood, or of life. He was unable to be anything more than respectable.

MAY HAVE BEEN CAUTIOUS

The young man has come down to us wearing the tag of stinginess which is, probably, an injustice. He has borne the stigma of being rich. And for that he could hardly h... been to blame. But one can be stingy without being rich.

The young man's weakness seems to have been that he was never able to rise above the level of caution. He was afraid to set out on a great adventure, in quest of magnificence. He dared not risk his fortune in an effort to become one of the truly great and noble folk. He seems to have been incapable of running a great risk for the sake of becoming magnificent.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 11: "Jesus Demands Complete Commitment", Mark 10:17-31.

The young man chose the way of easy money, and it undoubtedly proved to be a hard life.

No one can know how many times he must have looked back ruefully on "the day I had my big chance."

Someone has invented a fanciful tale in which the young man of this lesson was pictured in his old age, as a beggar on the streets of Jerusalem. Misfortune had robbed him of his wealth, and as he sat begging on the street corner, he was ready to explain to any who would listen that, "there was a time when I had a big chance. That man Jesus made me a great offer, and I wasn't big enough to accept it."

Perhaps the story is no more than an invention, in the case of the young man who went away sorrowful, but it is painfully true of a long list of young men and women who live in our town. Jesus of Nazareth offers them their big chance, and they are not big enough to undertake the responsibilities involved.

Russia Will Not Accept Dictation Says Mikoyan

Has Praise for Molotov But None for Beria

CHICAGO (AP) — Russian deputy premier Anastas I. Mikoyan has predicted a more important ambassador post for deposed leader V. M. Molotov.

Mikoyan Friday night talked with unusual ease and frankness about Molotov, now ambassador to Outer Mongolia, and other shunted Soviet officials.

Through an interpreter, Mikoyan predicted at a meeting of more than 200 lawyers at the Law Club of Chicago that Molotov, ousted as Soviet foreign minister in 1957, may get a more responsible ambassador post. But Mikoyan said Molotov will not be in a policy-making position.

DERIDES BERIA

Mikoyan also described the late Lavrenty Beria as "an adventurer, an intriguer, a man without principles of any sort."

Mikoyan's talk climaxed a busy sightseeing day in Chicago, which included a visit to the premiere performance of the Beryozka Russian dance company in the Civic Opera House.

The Soviet leader arrived from Detroit early Friday. He was scheduled to leave by plane for Washington at 12:30 p.m. today on another leg of his two week cross-country tour.

Asked about Molotov's future, Mikoyan told the group of lawyers:

"We have full confidence in him as an ambassador because he knows a lot of things and can in any country where he is representing us."

Molotov's trouble, Mikoyan said, was that he was a conservative. "He got lost in the battle with the reformers, he indicated.

But then Mikoyan said: "I respect him (Molotov) very much."

Asked about Beria, Mikoyan said:

"I knew Beria well. I did not respect him. He was a bad adventurer, a capable man but an intriguer, a man without principles. You might call him a business man in politics."

This comment evoked a roar of laughter from the audience and Mikoyan joined them.)

Mikoyan gave little ground to the United States in the international field.

"I would like to impress you with the fact that if you want good relations with us, we won't accept dictation."

At one time we were weak," Mikoyan admitted to his audience, including host Adlai E. Stevenson.

"But no one can force us to sign treaties now, and speak as equal to equal."

He said United Nations statesmates on important issues should not go to votes, but be compromised in the Soviet fashion and the Russian way.

"We do not want to make war, but neither do we want to capitulate."

Big Nose Gone But Fingerprints Assist Police

HAMILTON (CP) — Sometime after Jack Hovianesian sawed his way out of Collin's Bay penitentiary November 6, 1957, he hired a plastic surgeon to whittle down his oversize nose to protect his anonymity.

But, he found out Friday, this sort of precaution doesn't help at all if the law gets a look at fingerprints.

Jack, 32, who had been serving four years for possessing burglary tools when he fled Collin's Bay, was arrested with James McGaher, 28, and Isabelle Bilovich, both of Hamilton, by six detectives who moved swiftly in on a parked car that had been under observation.

The police didn't know precisely who Jack was until they took his fingerprints. The surgeon Hovianesian went to somewhere in the United States had done a good job.

The arrests were made outside a downtown bank. Under the dashboard, police found two loaded .38-calibre revolvers. The men carried sky blades and jack picks, the detectives said, and under the back seat they said they found 100 rounds of ammunition for the revolvers.

All three were booked on charges of possessing offensive weapons and burglary tools.

Police said Hovianesian is suspected of robbing a Bank of Montreal branch at St. George, six miles north of Brantford, last December and of engineering the $21,650 robbery last May of a bank messenger in Sarnia.

Hovianesian escaped from Collin's Bay, a medium-security institution, by sawing through the bars of a new cell block.

Ask Government To Promote Sale Canadian Cheese

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association has asked the federal government to promote the sale of Canadian cheese in the United States.

The resolution was passed at the concluding session of the association's 26th annual meeting Friday.

Canadian cold cheddar cheese should be dealt with as a separate item and not considered as an item competitive with U.S. cheese, an association official said.

Another resolution called on the department of agriculture to study ways of exporting square as well as round cheeses to Britain so the square type can be included in the price support program.

The association also passed resolutions calling on the Ontario government to continue enforcing margarine regulations, a request for a 35-cent-a-pound support price for Ontario cheese and a request that farmers be allowed to pay unemployment insurance in order to compete better in the labor market.

If you put off until tomorrow what you should do today, someone may invent a machine to do it for you.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: — Northerly winds, variable skies and occasional light flurries. Some cooling over most of Ontario and there is little significant change in sight. Temperatures will run slightly below normal for this time of year but are nevertheless quite a bit warmer than some of the bitter cold temperatures experienced earlier this year. This is particularly evident in the north country where early morning temperatures of 10 to 20 below centrigrade and with the 16 to 40 below weather experienced a few days ago.

CASTRO HELPER WANTS CHECK ON NEW REGIME

Urrutia Dissolves Present Congress

HAVANA (AP) — A leader of one of the rebel groups today sought to place checks on the power of the provisional government set up by Castro.

Castro publicly criticized him as a troublemaker, ostensibly because his group seized some arms earlier this week.

Chaumont also said the directorate wants free elections within a year instead of the 18 to 24 months that Urrutia and Castro have said would be needed to get Cuba back on an even keel.

Chaumont had maintained earlier that the directorate was not getting a voice in the government equal to its part in overthrowing Batista. Two members of the directorate, which consists mainly of students, resigned in protest of former president Carlos Prio Socarras Cuesta.

In a television speech Friday night, Castro declared Chaumont an agitator "responsible for the problems we have now" in setting up the new government. Castro said:

"I am not optimistic after reading the declarations of Chaumont. They are insincere and his intentions are bad."

Toronto Women To Split $2,050 In 'Stork Derby'

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto women who have had nine children between them in 25 years are expected to share $2,050 in the second "stork derby" to be held in honor of former mayor Tom Foster.

Mrs. was the last day for applications for a share of the $2,500 to be given to mothers of the largest families born since 1949.

The Foster will left $10,000 to be distributed in 1955, 1959, 1963 and 1964 in the name of Dr. Fleming, chief executive for the Foster estate, said Mrs. Margaret Thomson and Mrs. Madeline King answer likely to be the co-winners. Each will receive the first prize and $999 second prize.

Each of the three mothers each with seven children may divide the $100 third prize if no other candidates show up.

U.S. Senate Gives Warm Welcome To Nine Canadian Parliamentarians

WASHINGTON (AP)—A nine-member delegation of Canadian parliamentarians received a warm welcome Friday on the floor of the United States Senate.

Here for a new series of meetings with members of the Senate foreign relations and the House of Representatives foreign affairs committees, they listened to a speech after speech in praise of American-Canadian friendship.

They heard so many, in fact, that Republican Senator Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, opening his own welcome, expressed "my sincere hope that we will not be saying to listen to all this."

The Canadians, headed by their Senate and House of Commons Speakers, arrived Thursday night for meetings Friday and today with senators headed by George D. Aiken (Rep., Vt.) and representatives led by Sam T. Rayburn (Dem., Texas) and Joseph W. Kelley (Dem., N.Y.).

They also called at the White House Friday.

At the conclusion of the first meeting of the delegations it was announced they had made substantial progress toward working out arrangements for further periodic meetings.

They said in a statement:

"For the first time in the post-war history of the United States and Canada, legislators of the two countries have come together to discuss their common interests, areas of co-operation, and problems of mutual concern."

It was signed by Senator Aiken, Representative Kelley, Speaker Mark Drouin of the Canadian Senate and Speaker Roland Michener of the Canadian House of Commons.

The group met again today. Senator Aiken told his colleagues that they are discussing with Canadian colleagues "questions of common concern to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two countries.

"We feel that useful results will flow from more systematic contacts," Aiken said.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (Rep., Ind.) told the Canadians that "we need your co-operation and your support."

Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) called the meeting a wonderful thing and praised the Canadians as ambassadors of goodwill.

"May you have the time of your life while here," Wiley said.

When these and other speeches were concluded, Senator Aiken introduced senators into the office of Vice-President Richard Nixon for a round of handshaking and conversation.

Russia Proposes German Peace Conference Within Two Months, Presents Draft Treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union proposed today a German peace conference in Prague or Warsaw within two months and gave representatives of the Western Big Three drafts of a peace treaty.

The government also expressed a desire to settle the Berlin question," the Soviet News agency Tass said. It gave no details.

The Soviet notes were in reply to Western rejection of an earlier Soviet note. The note of Nov. 27 had proposed that the United States, Britain and France pull their troops out of West Berlin, leaving it an unarmed "free city."

In similar Western rejections the three nations suggested that a Big Four conference be called to consider the whole German problem, including reunification.

There was no immediate indication which nations Russia intended should meet in Warsaw or Prague.

However, Tass said the Soviet draft treaty proposal was given the Western three "for transmission to governments of their states and other states who took part with their armed forces in the war against Germany, as well as to the governments of the German Democratic Republic (Communist East Germany) and the Federal German Republic (West Germany)."

The West has refused repeated Russian suggestions that it sit down with East Germany to discuss a peace treaty or reunification. The West contends that the East German regime is illegal because it does not have popular support and therefore does not deserve a place in discussions.

The Tass statement went on:

"The conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany would have a positive part not only in safeguarding peace in Europe but also in solving the all national tasks of the German people: The unification of Germany."

The envoys of the three Western powers were ordered separately to the Soviet foreign office to receive copies of the 19-page note with the draft treaty enclosed. India's chief of mission and the East German ambassador also got copies.

One envoy said he believed this draft had been circulated in the West previously.

The Soviet embassy spokesman declined comment until the note and draft treaty had been received in Washington.

Ford Employees Jump Gun But Union Sees Early Peace

TORONTO (CP) — Several hundred Ford of Canada employees at the nearby Oakville plant jumped the gun on a Sunday strike deadline Friday but a United Auto Workers (CLC) spokesman said he thought a contract settlement would be reached quickly.

Roy Dymond, president of the UAW's Local 707 of Oakville, 25 miles west of here, said the union backed the Friday walkout although it had not been authorized. He added he thought the men probably quit because they felt Ford was trying to clear most of its stock—2,500 cars and trucks—before the Sunday night deadline.

Workmen in the body line and solder shop quit first around 1 p.m. The action snowballed and the union has been bargaining for some time on behalf of 8,500 workmen in three Ford plants.

There are more than 4,000 at the Windsor works and the rest are in Toronto. Friday's walkout did not affect any but Oakville although all three are scheduled to quit Sunday at 10 p.m. if no agreement has been signed.

The UAW originally demanded a 20-cent hourly wage increase in a two - year contract plus fringe benefits. Ford has offered six cents and an agreement to run for three years.

In the last few weeks, the talks are thought to have brought the parties to the point where there is no real dispute over the six-cent proposal—or 2½-per-cent—whichever is greater.

Reports say an issue even more critical than wages is the union demand that Ford continue paying 100 per cent of the cost of the hospital and medical care plan. Ford contends the employees themselves should pay any increased costs.

Ontario to Develop Seaport At Moosonee Near James Bay

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario has begun a $5,000,000 program to create its first seaport, Premier Frost said Friday.

The sub-Arctic port will open the province's industrial south.

Premier Frost said Friday engineers are already at work on the preliminary plans for port facilities at Moosonee, a small community on the Moose River 15 miles from James Bay.

"I'm not boiling about Moosonee," he said. "This is a natural, and we are starting right now. Great industries can be built up there with a railroad right at the door."

Moosonee, populated mainly by Indians, is the northern terminus of the privately-owned Ontario Northland Railway which runs south to connect with the CNR at Cochrane and the CNR and CPR at North Bay. A handful of white people run railway and shipping facilities.

Mr. Frost said Running Milner Nickle and Health Minister Dymond recently visited the area and fully supported the project.

"Just look at the map of North America," the premier said. "Hudson and James bays are like an arrow pointing down into the heartland of the continent. It is simple to connect the unlimited Arctic resources to industrial Ontario."

He said engineers of the public works department are sounding the bay for a channel and checking on port facilities at Moosonee.

ZAMORA, Spain (AP) — Troops and civil guardsmen searched in the mud and rubble of Riveddosa today for victims of Spain's worst disaster of the century.

The huge mountain village of some 500 inhabitants was flooded and destroyed early Friday after a dam burst in the mountains of the Hydro-electric company which maintained the dam was not in use to find the cause of the break.

Engineers and photographers were hindered by the troops and guardsmen. Official aid in clearing the debris work refused to give an estimate of the number of persons killed.

One official source said there were 200 survivors out of the 500 residents. Another said there were 300. Even the second figure meant there were 200 dead or missing.

The government announced in Madrid early today after a cabinet meeting that "so far" there were 15 dead, and nearly 100 missing. The announcement admitted for the first time, however, that the dam had burst and not overflooded as Friday's newspapers had been directed to say.

Rescue workers said they believed it will be days before the full death toll is known because of the number of bodies being found under the thick coating of mud washed down the mountainside by the raging waters.

Only a few houses of the village from the dam and 1,700 feet lower. This area was the one decimated 230,000,000 cubic feet of water a terrific speed and inundated the town in a matter of a vadelago.

Engineering engineers said privately they believe one of the causes of the break was that the dam was not anchored in the rock. Another cause probably was the heavy rainfall during the last month which filled the dam to overflowing and possibly loosened its foundations.

The dam was dedicated by Generalissimo Francisco Franco Sept. 21, 1955.

Surviving villagers recounted stories of the horror.

The village electrician succeeded in climbing the church steeple. It was the only part left intact and he was rescued eight hours later.

A husband and wife reached high ground but went back to try to rescue their life savings from their home. They were swept away.

Harold Scarlett Will Stand Trial For Slaying Wife

Four Witnesses Testify At Preliminary Hearing

By AL GEORGESON
Trenton Correspondent

The court heard Leonard Webb of Trenton testify that he had found Mrs. Scarlett in the bathroom of her home, bleeding from several wounds, that her husband was standing over her with a knife in his hands, that he had wrestled with Scarlett and the knife had fallen from the accused's hand, that he, Webb, had then attempted to take Mrs. Scarlett to a neighbor's home but had had to let her down and that while he was trying to stop the flow of blood from Mrs. Scarlett's wounds with some Scarlett had come running out of the house with a knife in his hands and had grabbed his wife as she lay on the ground.

Harry Deyman acted for the crown and A. H. Richardson appeared for the defence. It is expected the accused will appear before the spring assizes, with Mr. Justice Gale presiding on January 19 in Cobourg. The last murder trial to be held in Cobourg was in 1927.

Magistrate Baxter opened the hearing by instructing the accused, who had been brought to the prisoner's box under police guard and handcuffed, that this was a preliminary hearing to determine "if you are to be tried or acquitted of the charge of murdering one Julia Nettie Scarlett on the 29th of December, 1958."

In presenting the case yesterday the crown prosecutor called four witnesses. The first to take the stand was Dr. F. L. Lawson of Cobourg, pathologist for the region.

DESCRIBES WOUNDS

Dr. Lawson told the court he had seen Mrs. Scarlett at the Cobourg Hospital on the night in question and had carried out a post-mortem on the body during the early hours of the next morning. He said there were 14 separate wounds on the body, ranging from a "nick" to about three inches in length, which had been made with a sharp cutting instrument. Some, he testified, were on the hands and others quite deep. He said most wounds were on the front of the body and one of these passed between the fifth and sixth ribs, through the covering sac around the heart, and nicked the largest artery in the body. The second was just below the first and cut into and through the liver.

HOG PRODUCERS FORCED TO SELL THROUGH AGENCY

Supreme Court Rules 1949 Law Applies

TORONTO CP) — Ontario hog producers today were faced with a choice of either selling their animals through agencies designated by the farm products marketing board or risking prosecution.

In a unanimous decision Friday, the Supreme Court of Ontario ruled through the controversy encircling the hog marketing plan with a ruling that although the hog - marketing scheme established in 1957 was not valid, regulations of 1949 marketing legislation still apply.

The court's ruling on the 1957 plan was upheld a decision by Mr. Justice R. L. Ferguson, but it also quashed the judge's order prohibiting Chatham magistrate's court from hearing charges against a Blenheim farmer.

Mr. Justice Ferguson issued the prohibition order last July on grounds of illegality of the 1957 legislation.

FARMER PROSECUTION

The new ruling clears the way for the Ontario Hog Producers Association co-operative to proceed with prosecution of the farmer, Clarence Hopkins, on 27 charges involving contraventions of federal and provincial farm products marketing acts.

The original actions were started against Clarence and his brother Gordon, but Gordon died last May 21. Magistrate F. K. Jasperson also heard the brother on 11 charges and dismissed another before defence counsel B. C. Mackinnon of Toronto applied for the prohibition order on 27 charges remaining.

Knights was charged with unscaling and marketing hogs for slaughter at an assembly yard other than one operated by the co-operative.

VOTED FOR PLAN

The charges were laid follow a meeting last December in Clarence Boynton of Chesley, secretary of the hog co-operative. Mr. Mackinnon has been engaged by some 600 farmers to oppose the marketing plan, approved last July by a vote of hog producers.

Mr. Mackinnon said Friday night he will ask the Ontario Supreme Court to rule the July vote invalid. A meeting dealing with this has been before the court for some time but no action has been taken since Friday's decision

Mr. Mackinnon said it is too early to say what appeal if any Knights case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Property Damage Heavy as Two Trucks Collide

Extensive property damage to two vehicles occurred Friday afternoon on No. 14 highway when a half-ton truck skidded across the highway and into the path of a transport tractor-trailer unit.

Heavy front end damage resulted to the half ton pick-up truck while the half ton unit was said to be almost a complete write-off. No one was injured.

Police provincial police said that Robert Skinkle, R.R. 1 Canoeco, was southbound with Frederick Lang, Deseronto, proceeding behind in the half ton pick up. Mr. Skinkle slowed to make a right turn and Mr. Lang was forced to apply his brakes. As he did so his vehicle went into a skid across the highway and into the path of the approaching soft drink truck driven by Francois Clarke of Cobourg.

There was double trouble for the soft drink truck. While it was being towed to the Coca-Cola garage on query by Lang at Belleville, the chain from the towing truck broke at the foot of Bridge Street hill and the stranded vehicle held up traffic until it was removed.

Harold Scarlett Committed For Trial on Murder Charge

The deepest wound had entered what the doctor described as the right chest 4½ inches back from the mid-line of the body. It had passed through the lung and liver and downward from the mid-line of the body. It had passed through the lung and liver and downward through the diaphragm, which could have ruptured death because of the collapsing of one lung, and into the stomach, with heavy bleeding which had continued even after death. It could have been inflicted by a good healthy person using the knife with the force necessary to penetrate the skin and clothing, it was explained in half and half could have been the cause of death.

He testified that in his opinion the wounds could have been caused by a knife with a seven-inch blade, about one inch in width. He said the autopsy also showed the woman had been in good health prior to the stabbing. The doctor was cross-examined briefly by the defence counsel.

VICTIM'S FATHER CALLED

The second witness called by the crown was Harry Loveless, 54 and father of the victim. He told how his daughter left their home, 310 John Street, Cobourg, with his daughter and her children on the day in question, December 6, and had lived there for six weeks prior to that date. He said his daughter and the accused had been married for the past eight years and had four children, three of whom were living in the house with his daughter and himself.

Asked if he had seen the accused on the day of the stabbing he told the court Scarlett had come to the house about 4.30 p.m. and had inquired about his wife. He said he told the accused she was at work at the Beamish Stores and the accused had said he would go down to the store and see her. He had then left the house. Mr. Loveless said he lived in the house with his wife and two children.

Mr. Loveless testified he saw his daughter when she came home from work at about 6.25 and they had supper and fed the children. The accused came back about 7 p.m. He said Scarlett had been drinking and had a cut over his right eye. He said they had all sat around the house talking and after about half an hour the accused and the victim went in the bedroom. Loveless took the children upstairs to bed.

HE HAS KNIFE

He said he had heard no arguing between the two and was upstairs living on the bed with the children when he heard his daughter coming up the stairs with Scarlett saying "Don't do that". He had stepped in the door and said "What's going on?" and he has a knife." He then testified he had grabbed her (she) shoved him and the bathroom door locked. Mr. Loveless said he had tried to open the door but the bathroom door had locked and he was unable to get in. He said he had then followed Webb back to the house and had not gone into the house but had walked around the block and when he went back to the house Scarlett was gone. He said the kitchen curtain was kept in a cupboard and that Scarlett had taken a butcher knives there. He said he had not seen Scarlett in the court when he had last seen his daughter alive she was wearing a dress and a white shirt.

COUPLE HAD SEPARATED

Under questioning by the defence counsel Mr. Loveless said unemployed and had stayed at his home mostly since December his daughter's children. He said she came there to live about six weeks prior to the latter and her husband had separated, but that she had paid board while she was paying for the keep of the children by sending her $10 every two weeks. He said he was not aware of any men calling on his daughter while she was in house. He said he had spent time at the home of his daughter and the accused and always been friendly with him. He had never known the accused to get quarrelsome when he was drinking and had known him to be accused to have slapped his wife on occasions. However his son-in-law and daughter had never indicated she was afraid of her husband.

Leonard Webb, 82 John Street in Trenton, told of his associations with the accused. He said the reason they had gone to Cobourg was to take Scarlett's son back to his mother. He said the accused had been living with his father on John Street for a while since he had been separated from his wife. He said they had left Trenton on the train and had arrived in Cobourg about 6.30. He said they ran in some beer on the train and when they arrived they went to the home of Scarlett's wife on John Street. He said when they found she was not home they had gone to the store where she was working and changed their money and went to the hotel beverage room. While they were there Mrs. Scarlett arrived in the store and gone to another table and had remained only a short time and then left.

Webb said he had gone over to the liquor store and bought a bottle of wine and then returned to the house where they had later gone to the home on John Street where they had talked and the accused had fetched the bottle of wine. He said the drank or most of the wine but had given a small drink to both Mr. Loveless and the victim.

Webb said he left later and went down to the restaurant for a cup of coffee and sandwich and was leaving there and heading back for John Street when he met Mr. Loveless, who had told him what had happened. He said he ran to the house and up the stairs, where he had found the bathroom door open.

HUSBAND HELD KNIFE

He testified that he had seen Mrs. Scarlett lying on the floor and her husband standing over her with the knife in his hand. He said he had asked Scarlett what he had done and had been told, "leave me alone." He said Mrs. Scarlett had asked him to take the knife away from her husband. He testified that the victim was "all cut and bleeding" and that there was blood all over the bathroom and on the coat and trousers of the accused and on his hands.

Webb said he tried to take the knife away from Scarlett but it ended up in a scuffle. He said they wrestled out into the small hallway and the knife had fallen from the hand of the accused and fell down the stairs. He had cut his hand and glove in the fight.

The accused then ran into one of the bedrooms and Webb returned to the bathroom where Mrs.

On Thursday night the Belleville Masonic Temple was the scene of the annual installation of the officers of the Belleville Preceptory of the Religious and Military Order of Knights Templars.

Em. Sir Knight Paul Foster was duly proclaimed Presiding Commander, Sir Knight Bullivant following as officers for the year 1958:

Constable, Sir Kt. Tom Lloyd; marshal, Sir Kt. Frank Rodgers; captain of the lines, Sir Knight registrar, Rt. Em. Kt. H. J. Audrews; treasurer, Rt. Em. Kt. Clarence Burley; sub-marshall, Sir Kt. C. Whittemore; captain of the guard, Sir Kt. Hugh Sullivan; 1st standard bearer, Sir Kt. Ross Wilson; 2nd standard bearer, Sir Kt. James Harvey; sword bearer, Sir Kt. Harvey Young; standard bearer, Sir Knight Langford; sentinel, Sir Kt. Harry Hulp.

The retiring commander, Em Kt. Clarence Burley, was congratulated on his efficient services during the past year and was presented with the appropriate jewel of his office in recognition of his successful leadership.

A social hour followed the ceremonies during which the traditional toasts were honored, and the officers were presented given an opportunity to discuss plans for the future.

Scarlett had asked him to help him get his wife's money over to the next-door neighbors. He said he had just got her outside the house and had left her there and was putting snow on her wounded face in an attempt to stop the bleeding. He said his wife's wife had then came to the house and Scarlett had come running out of the house with a knife in his hand and had attempted to stab her as she lay on the ground.

KNIFE GONE AWAY

The witness said he attempted to take the knife away again and had cut his hand. He said Scarlett had the second time, Mrs. Webb had kicked it away and had run into a bedroom.

He said they took Mrs. Scarlett into the next house and they called the police and doctor. He testified that Mrs. Scarlett was just wearing a bra and a skirt when he came rushing into the home.

He told counsel he knew the accused and his wife had had family arguments but said that Mrs. Scarlett had never left her husband before as far as he could remember. He told counsel that Scarlett had come to Cobourg to bring his young son back after the tot had spent Christmas with his father.

Asked by the magistrate if Mrs. Scarlett had said anything to him while she was stabbing her the witness said all he could remember her saying was "I think I'm going to die."

Sgt. Butler of the Cobourg police force in receiving a call and proceeding at once to the scene. He described the body of the victim as it was lying on the floor and of his actions when he arrived. He said he got a blanket from the cruiser and covered her with it. He said he had the vic'r to the hospital where he had stayed only a minute and then returned.

He said he had found the accused in one of the upstairs bedrooms and had put the handcuffs on him and took him out to the cruiser.

Sgt. Butler said he had searched the accused for a weapon but had found none. He found the knife outside in the yard in the snow. He said there was a lot of blood on the blade of the knife and that there was a dent in bend in the blade near the handle. He said he had kept the knife locked in his locker at the police station and had later turned it over to the Canadian Mounted Police, who now had it.

He said Scarlett had offered no resistance and had later made a statement at the police station which he had signed. After Scarlett had been notified that his wife had died in the hospital, Sgt. Butler said the accused had made another statement. The crown did not ask these statements to be introduced to the court at this time. The police sergeant said Chief Constable Ponton had been present when the statements were written and signed.

He said the accused smelled of liquor and that his clothes were covered with blood. He had a cut over one eye.

Following the policeman's testimony the crown closed their case and the accused be committed for trial on the evidence presented.

When Magistrate Baxter asked the accused if he had anything to say at this time, counsel for the defence answered "no".

Mr. and Mrs. S. Polmanter Happily Wed 63 Years

Age is something which many people do not look forward to and many attempt various ways and means of staving off its inevitable effect.

A visit to Mr. and Mrs. Simon J. Polmanter, of 87 Pinnacle St., would surely convince a person that the acquisition of years also means the acquisition of many experiences, both happy and sad. Into the spirit that shows through and anyone dropping by to wish the Polmanters a happy 63rd wedding anniversary today, will be surely find that age has not diminished the wit or thinking of Simon or the pleasant conversation and recollection of his wife, Edith (Stapley).

Over the passage of time Mr. Polmanter observes that things haven't changed too much. People today "make more money but you pay more." Money is something the Polmanters have never argued over. "Doesn't pay to be too tight with money . . . but it doesn't pay to be too free either — there are places to use it" says Mr. Polmanter in the wisdom of eighty-seven active years.

It was sixty-three years ago today that Mr. Polmanter took the hand of the daughter of his business associate in marriage — without his partner's knowledge, and the happy couple settled at "Stone Lonesome". Since then they have experienced many things and raised quite a family. They have three children, Lorne of Hillcrest, Mary (Mrs. Cornelius Post), of Carlaw, Saskatchewan, and Emma, who is at home. They also have four grandchildren, Roy, George, and Bruce Polmanter, and Harry Post; and eight great grandchildren — as Mrs. Polmanter puts it "four Georges, two Roys, and two Bruces"—all togethers.

The marriage took place at the residence of Charles Bulgin and his wife, who were close friends of the Polmanters, in Thurlow on January 10th, 1896. The Reverend Roberston of Tabernacle Church officiated.

TTC Sick Fund Loss Puzzles Former Chairman

TORONTO (CP)—Allan Lamport Friday whipped up the storm around the Toronto Transit Commission by declaring more than $200,000 of union - management sick benefit funds have "disappeared."

The former TTC chairman said the fund had shrunk from a $216,023 surplus three years ago to an estimated deficit of $ 028 last week. He blamed the situation on improper handling and "errors and omissions."

Mr. Lamport, who resigned last week in a general civic management but stayed on as a commissioner, made the statement at a TTC meeting after an independent actuary reported the fund insolvent.

Opponent W. E. P. Duncan, general manager of the TTC, objected to the inward disappearance.

"It implies dishonesty," said the 68-year-old professional engineer and the commission's representative on the sick benefit association.

"I am not suggesting it disappeared dishonestly but it is gone," Mr. Lamport said.

The commission ordered its lawyers to investigate the funds's operations and report at the next meeting Jan. 25.

Earlier in the day, reeve Marie Curtis of suburban Long Branch and six other members of the commission should resign.

Five o'clock traffic was blocked on Bridge Street East yesterday afternoon when a truck, damaged in a previous accident, was being towed west on Bridge St.

Half-way up the West Bridge hill, the tow chains snapped and the truck rolled backwards. Fortunately the wheels caught and swerved the truck into the curbside before any other collisions occurred. The traffic difficulties were increased by fire trucks and an ambulance requiring quick passage in the midst of the proceedings.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow Opens New Kent Public School

CAMPBELLFORD—An event which marked an important milestone in the educational history of Campbellford, took place December 30th, when a number of people gathered at the new Kent Public School for the official opening ceremonies. Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario and M.P.P. for Northumberland, declared the new school open.

Mr. Forrest Dennis, a member of the new Public School Board, was chairman for the afternoon. The program began with the singing of "O Canada," followed by prayer by Captain Murray of the Salvation Army. Mr. Ron Pierce contributed a solo, accompanied by Miss Irene Stephen.

Paying tribute to his untiring efforts during the building of the school, Mr. Dennis introduced the retiring chairman of the Public School Board, Mr. Hector Macmillan.

Mr. A. Whitfield, principal of Kent school, expressed his pleasure in directing one of the most modern and well equipped schools of the district. He introduced each member of the teaching staff.

Public School Inspector Mr. G. Young of Brighton, addressed the citizens of Campbellford for electing such a far-sighted Board of Education, and erecting and equipping such a beautiful school.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow was then introduced by the chairman and in an informal speech, congratulated all those involved in providing this beautiful building for the children of Campbellford. He contrasted it with the "little red school house" of 100 years ago. Ontario's school children are the greatest asset the province has, and the province recognized this by providing large grants for education, he stated.

The speaker outlined the large expenditures made by Ontario in the field of education. There are over a million public school children in the province of Ontario and each year 70,000 new pupils enter schools, requiring 2,000 new classrooms and 2,000 extra teachers. Provincial grants throughout the province last year amounted to over $150,000,000.

The function of education is not simply to impart facts. The boys and girls must be taught to think for themselves and to get along with other people. The Kent school, he said, was dedicated to the future citizens of Campbellford. He then declared the school officially open.

Mr. Dennis thanked the Minister of Agriculture for his address. He announced the school would be open for inspection till 9 p.m.

Little Current Senior Students Stage Strike

The Ontario Department of Education has been asked to intervene to try to settle the conflict. The request was made following a special board of education meeting Friday night, attended by parents.

Principal H. W. Becking, in his 60s and a former Presbyterian missionary in China, described the students' action as a case of collective "hookey."

He said he has placed all the information on events which appear to have led up to the incident, in the hands of the Ontario Secondary Schools Teachers' Federation.

CAME HERE IN 1957

Mr. Becking and his family moved to this town of some 1,700 two years ago, giving up a post on the staff of the F. P. King Collegiate in Scarborough, a suburb of Toronto.

A few students had entered the school Friday, then walked out. The others simply stayed away. None of the five Grade 13 students appeared at classes. Most of the Grade 12 and 11 students stayed away. Some Grade 10 and 9 pupils also participated in the protests.

Dean Lockyer and Laureen Bousquet, Grade 13 students, were the only pupils to attend Friday night's meeting, which packed the municipal hall.

LIST OF COMPLAINTS

Lockyer asked board chairman Tom Dunn if he had a list of complaints about the principal. He was ignored.

"I guess there wouldn't be time to read it anyway," he said. "It would be so long. It looked as if the board couldn't do anything and our parents couldn't—so we had to do something ourselves."

No formal complaints have been laid against Mr. Becking but one parent at the meeting said her daughter was disturbed by his habit of "coming ranting to and raving into a classroom." Another complained the Grade 13 students were behind in their algebra. One parent said she'd been told the principal regimanded teachers in front of the class.

Special meetings have been held but so far to no avail in the effort to bring peace to the troubled school.

UNDERSTANDING" REACHED

Mr. Becking said "an understanding has been reached with regard to the teachers and myself and I have nothing further to say."

"I don't know why they did not come to school. No one has come to me to explain it."

Most parents at the meeting appeared to be ready to act on the board's suggestion that students be persuaded to return to school Monday and await action on the part of the education department.

But Lockyer said "now that we've gone this far the only thing to do is to stay until they get rid of him."

Mr. Dunn and other members of the board of education declined to comment on the incident. Several parents said they disapproved of the students' action.

Airline Gets Ready to Resume Flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Airlines prepared today to get its planes back in the air as union chiefs gathered to act on an agreement to end the big airline's 22-day pilots' strike.

American began recalling furloughed employees and made preparations to resume operations Sunday.

A settlement in principle of the dispute between American and the Air Line Pilots Association was announced Friday by federal mediators.

The union then summoned its 24-man master executive committee to meet here today to act on the agreement.

No details were announced pending agreement on specific contract language.

The strike was the last of a rash of walkouts that disrupted U.S. airline service in recent months. American's strike was called approximately 1,500 pilots and co-pilots and resulted in the furloughing earlier this week of some 20,000 other employees.

The chief issue was wages. The strike pilots' pay ranged from $400 to $1,600 a month. The new contract was expected to boost them to a top rate of about $2,400 a month for senior pilots on the new jet airliners American hopes to put in service shortly.

Habeas Corpus Petition Fails

OTTAWA (CP)—A petition for habeas corpus in connection with the murder charge committal of John Thomas Brain, 19, was dismissed here Friday by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice McLennan ruled that the preliminary hearing in which youths were charged with murder in the knife-slaying of Robert O'Leary, 30, in a Nov. 22 street fight, was properly conducted. He ruled there was enough evidence to warrant the committal.

Algerian Rebels Considering More Terror Against France

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

TUNIS (AP) — Thwarted in the field by the French Army, the Algerian rebels are considering stepped-up terrorism to support their four-year effort to win independence from France.

The rebels already are intensifying efforts to obtain wider international support for their cause. The Arab nations support them and a rebel delegation recently heard encouraging words in Communist China.

Rebel leaders also use Tunisia as a sanctuary concede that they have been harassed by the Morice line, a French barrier of mines and electrified barbed wire on Algeria's Tunisian border. They call the line a formidable obstacle but deny French claims that it has cut rebel border movements by 95 per cent.

REFORMS HURT CAUSE

The rebels also have suffered from growing French penetration into the Algerian countryside with social and economic programs which French President de Gaulle is counting on to win over the people. The programs already have reduced the rebel appeal to Algeria's 9,000,000 Moslems.

These factors and the dragging on of the rebellion without a end in sight seem to be creating a morale problem within the rebel army.

One highly placed staff officer admitted that several hundred of our men recently refused to go to the front and had to be arrested." They are headed by back up French reports in Algeria of rebellion in rebel ranks.

FRICTION DENIED

Both Tunisian and rebel officials deny French reports of trouble between rebel units in western Tunisia and the civilians living there.

As an answer to their field problems, rebel leaders indicate they are considering more terrorist attacks on important French military and civilian leaders. The rebel campaign opened in 1954 primarily as terrorism and the French have been expecting their army's successes to drive the rebels back to hideings and similar attacks in Algerian cities.

Earlier terrorism caused panic among the approximately 1,500,000 Frenchmen in Algeria, some of whom left for France. A French government commission severely criticized the army's harsh methods of interrogation used on terrorists.

Cold Weather Reduces Market

The cold weather had its usual effect upon the outdoor market today with only three stalls being open and a limited selection of produce available. The indoor market was much more heavily attended by both shoppers and vendors.

Apples were on sale at 50-90 cents a basket, $1.00 to $3.00 a hamper, depending on the variety. Cider was available at $1.00 a gallon, 60 cents a half gallon.

Potatoes were selling at 50 cents a basket and $1.75 and $2.25 per 50 and 75 pound bags respectively. Pears were available at 75 cents a basket. Honey was selling at 30 cents a pound or 50 cents and a dollar for two and four pound cans.

Tracks Blocked, No One Injured In Collision

No one was injured.

Cars on both trains burned fiercely.

The mail train's rear car—the only passenger coach—was demolished. A conductor and a flagman who were riding in the coach escaped almost certain death by riding in the engine because of a defective heater in the coach.

The mail train was No. 95, making a Boston to New York run. It was moving slowly and just about to stop at the station when the freight cars on the next track whipped into it.

All four tracks were blocked completely and officials said it would be 24 hours before the by would be cleared.

Is Your WILL Up to Date?

Many people review their Will at the beginning of each year. Your executor may have moved away or become ill or become unable to give sufficient time and attention to administer your estate. In view of the considerable changes in dollar values your Estate has probably changed in value.

You may have given too many legacies, or too large in amount, under your Will and have deprived your wife and children of sufficient to provide for their care and keep. You may have to adjust some of the shares going to beneficiaries. Births, marriages and deaths in your family may have made your estate plans obsolete. Increased succession duties and income taxes may affect the estate plans made by you for your family.

Your Will is one of the most important documents you will ever be called upon to sign. If you have a Will, we suggest that you review it now — and if not make your Will now and appoint Victoria and Grey Trust Company as Executor.

It costs no more to have group judgment and financial responsibility.

MAN AND HIS HANDS

A short time ago an address was given by the Reverend A. M. Laverty of Queen's University in which he stated that one of the things which parents today should teach their children is a respect for labor done by hand. At first glance this might appear to be a relatively insignificant thought, but, after some contemplation, there actually is much to recommend this attitude as being extremely valuable.

In an age where mechanization and automation make a man's manual contribution to our way of life somewhat meagre in comparison; where the possibility of the annihilation of the human race through atomic warfare makes anything man might do seem somewhat futile; where our way of life appears to be dependent upon hundreds of appliances and gadgets; where money and the "big front" seem so all important, it could well be the most important fact that all of the research, adaptation, development, manufacture, and discovery of these many things was done by man. And in doing this man utilized but three things: his mind and his hands - - which the Creator gave him, and ideas or thoughts - - which other men gave to him.

Basically, then, man needs only two things to make this life worthwhile for both himself and others. First, a mind which can think clearly and assimilate and evaluate whatever knowledge it has access to; second, the hands with which to put the ideas and thoughts into action.

The importance of the hands to some societies might be illustrated by a traditional Middle Eastern custom still in use. When a man is caught stealing he is not imprisoned with the hope that his thoughts may change for the better. His hand is severed from his arm, so that the bad thoughts of his mind may not be put into action in the future.

The symbol we seek, however, is not that of justice but of value. We should not hope that tomorrow's generation will find out this fact for themselves. Too many of today's generation are completely ignorant of it. But the fact is still there, and we should communicate it.

The next time we stand at a busy intersection, view a television program, or read a newspaper, we might remember that there would be a void if it were not for man, his mind and his hands.

EASY THINGS FIRST

The American Health Association, apparently taking cognizance of a new theory that most of man's ills can be blamed on stresses and anxiety to do what he can to alleviate these ills at the earliest possible moment, has come up with a formula to defeat an old nightmare, school examinations.

The Association provides many tips - - most of them excellent though why it should be necessary for doctors to give them we do not know.

Our attention, however, was focused on one admonition, as quoted by the Health League of Canada in a recent release: - - "Allocate your time wisely. By answering the easy questions first you will conserve time and energy for the hard ones."

This is an old bone of contention and the advice, if sound, is applicable to more fields than merely school examinations.

There are two schools of thought about this matter of the order of tackling the easy and the difficult. There are some who, like the learned doctors of the American Medical Association, advise clearing the decks for real action by disposing first of minor problems. There are other people, though, who have nasty names for this type of thing, who speak of procrastination, and evading the issue, and taking the easy paths.

Of course, there is bound to be somebody who will object that examinations and everyday life are different - - - that the student should first make sure that he gets all the marks of which he is certain before tackling those questions which may prove to be a mystery no matter how hard he works at them. That, though, is not quite the same as tackling the easy questions first. There may be a difficult question, which the student is sure he understands and which, with hard work, will yield him a good mark. Should he leave this question until after the simpler, ascertainable, questions have been answered?

Some would answer in the affirmative and there is much to be said for this method. There is even more to be said for it on the job, where there may be a number of simple things which have to be done, even though they are not in themselves important. The writer confesses to a predilection for this course - - the easy things first, getting them out of the way and clearing the desk for the major problem, so that once it is solved one can lean back and relax, without the necessity of doing a lot of routine work on simpler matters.

We have, however, never been able to rid ourselves of an uneasy feeling that this system is rooted in laziness. There is always the possibility that somebody else will come along and tackle the big problem, or that the building may catch fire, or that one will be taken suddenly ill and have to go home, or that the world will end.

Now the American Medical Association tells us that this is the right way to handle our affairs. We are thankful for the discovery that the experts are on our side. But we shall still harbor a grudging admiration for the man who, upon his arrival in the morning, hunts out the biggest, most difficult problem and proceeds to solve it before the morning coffee break.

Push-Button Church

By James McCrea in the Ottawa Journal

Six miles out of Drumheller, Alta., on what a publicity release calls "the fossil-fragment highway" stands Dinosaur Trail," in the push - button church.

It is seven feet by 11 by 12 and has a steeple 17 feet high and carries a brass bell donated by the CPR.

It has six one-man pews, large enough for a family of moderate size.

There are other small churches in the world but this is unique in that by pushing a button at Dinosaur Trail the type of religious service he desires.

Pushing a button floods the chapel with the music of hymns followed by a three-minute sermon, all recorded.

United, Presbyterian, Greek Orthodox, Baptist and Pentecostal "services" can be obtained now and others may be added.

The Drumheller area of the Red Deer Valley has had more than its share of difficult times. The Journal's man in Drumheller said that any provincial government would be interested in the problems created by the possession of both natural gas and coal. Drumheller's conversion of natural gas became available for home fuel more than offset the importance of the Drumheller coal fields declined.

Provincial and other governments gave what help they could to a district which had a few of the mines could survive. Today only six of 48 Drumheller mines are in operation and many of the men who dug coal now tour Badlands.

They went unwillingly. They had become accustomed to attendance at the theatre, formations with toastcoast-like hoardings rising above the main floor. The passersby may think such sights interesting but hardly conducive to thrift.

Drumheller in good times or bad, when its business was shattered by drought in the thirties or when mine strikes halted work, always has had brave spirits.

This spirit remains undiminished.

In a letter to The Journal, Mayor E. A. Toshach has this to say:

"We are a coal-mining community and the volunteers work done to encourage tourists to replace our declining revenues, has made me very proud to be a Drumhellerite . . .

"If ever you are near Drumheller, I would welcome the opportunity to show you around our Badlands.

They became the "Badlands" when the first pioneer, following the Red Deer Valley, came on the stretches of stony land with the eroded formations. There was no promise of good farming here and the Indians pitched their camps and lingered in the narrow cuts of the valley.

The pioneers saw strange

"By gosh, it is the kitchen they have electrically"

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 10th., 1939

Mayor Jamieson Bone is going to put into action an endeavor to obtain a suitable and qualified city manager.

From our file copy at this time in 1859: Yesterday afternoon rain fell heavily and towards evening the wind began to blow from the west, steadily increasing until by six o'clock in the evening a violent gale had developed. People who had occasion to be on the streets found it difficult to travel. The storm continued at night and towards morning snow succeeded the rain and fell in vast quantities and was piled high in drifts. It is impossible to estimate the damage done by the storm but it is considerable. The Grand Trunk Railway was just getting over the severe ice storm damage when the storm of last night commenced and more embarrassments in every direction.

January 10th., 1929

Messrs. Quick and Robertson have purchased from Dr. Joseph Caldwell, the block on Front Street in which is located their extensive clothing and men's furnishing business. The block has been known for over 70 years as the Caldwell Block. Years ago a popular restaurant, conducted by Lieutenant Col. Philip Hambly occupied the ground floor of the building.

The municipal elections in the Village of Madoc resulted as follows: reeve, Walter Whytock; councillors, Bristol, Barry and F. Smith; public school trustees, C. West, Wellman and R. C. Riordan.

40 YEARS AGO

January 10th., 1919

The first OHA game to be played here took place last night when the Belleville Juniors defeated the Kingston Ville Juniors by a score of 6 to 5. The game was a fine exhibition of hockey. For Belleville Beach and Weir were very effective and Sawyer at centre was always on the job as were also Hollway and Hagerman on the wings. Hulin is a goal stopped a number of difficult shots and his goal. Substitutes W. Holway and Coon relieved Beach and Weir late and played to good advantage. The following composed the Belleville team: Hulin, Weir, Beach, Hagerman, A. Holway and Sawyer. Subs., W. Holway and Coon. The referee was Lou. Marsh of Toronto. The band was in attendance and every seat in the arena was filled.

Mr. Buchanan, the new boys' secretary at the YMCA has arrived here to assume his duties.

How to Make A Million

Brantford Expositor

While most people are struggling to keep up with the Joneses, and the average investor is having an even tougher time trying to keep up with the Dow-Joneses, a few lucky--or foresighted--persons are piling up dazzling deals with little more effort than the scratch of a ballpoint.

Toronto has just supplied two more instances to add to the long list of recent years. An eight-acre disused estate on Bloor at the viaduct, where Governor Simcoe once had his summer cottage, has brought an offer by an apartment builder of $1 million, or $125,000 an acre. Of course, the value to the prospective buyer of a modest home is the sale of 96 acres on Highway 27 near Malton for $1,150,000 by a man who bought the land only a few years ago for $32,000. Since the seller is not steadily in the real estate business, his 3,500 per cent profit of $1,068,000 will be tax free. All he has to do is pocket this sum was to sit tight while the law of supply and demand by an ever-growing and expanding of the community jacked up land values.

The buyer plans to erect on this acre 450 houses. Each of these, one would hope, will be set aside for roads, playgrounds and other purposes now required by law, will occupy not more than a quarter acre. So they will sell from 1,800 homes, and whatever price is charged must include over and above the land a neat profit. Yet just eight years ago a quarter acre was worth only $80. This does infinite hit the home buyer before a sod is turned or a brick is laid.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BACKGROUND

More and more, background stands out as all important as we grow in years. In a picture, background is what makes the picture — be it ever so delicate or artfully placed. And in a room, background is what gives a setting for everything placed in it.

You don't have to talk long with a person before you see his background. Whether he has had a rich, full life, or a barren one, is always tells. Education should be a background before it is born.

The thoroughbred horse always gives a full account of its caliber. So does the thoroughbred man or woman. Not that mistakes are not made by the thoroughbred. Mistakes are natural. But you can't keep a thoroughbred down!

I recently talked with a most modest and unassuming lady. She seemed to have read the literature of the world, as versed was he in the thought of the years. We one could spend an evening with him without becoming enriched and inspired. What a background to hold within one's mind — the great thoughts and histories of peoples and nations.

There always — once a time when the growing boy or girl begins to appreciate what an enriched background of service and experience found by a devoted and wise woman learns that with each added year.

Background is really too unimportant to pay attention to — if it adds to your background.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

CHOLESTEROL OCCURS NATURALLY IN THE BODY

"Dear Dr. Molner: As a postscript to your article on heart attack you wrote that a dietic chart could be obtained. Do you also have a chart listing food cholesterol levels? Is it true that although some foods may be low in cholesterol the fat content is high? — Mrs. R. P."

Yes, I've distributed a great many thousand copies of my "Calorie Counter," which is available in return for a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in coin to cover handling costs.

But a list of low cholesterol foods? No, I don't think it would be useful. Generally speaking you will avoid harmful amounts of cholesterol if you avoid fats which are solid at room temperature.

I've dropped comments from time to time on cholesterol, and sometimes written at length about it. Still, in my mind, the cholesterol matter boils down to this:

1—Cholesterol occurs naturally in the body. It belongs there. As proof, look at this fact: If you eat a diet which contains no cholesterol at all, the body will take those foods and create cholesterol.

2—The presence of cholesterol in the body is related to age. The damage comes when the cholesterol is deposited on the walls of the arteries. We don't know why that happens. Some people have a high level of in cholesterol seemingly have little trouble; some with a moderate low in cholesterol have a lot of trouble. Probably hereditary and doubtless other little factors that we don't understand, are at work.

3—But even though we don't have the whole answer, I think we are justified, in the case we do no harm, if we keep the cholesterol level at moderate levels when people have had significant signs. Most significant sign of all, of course, is heart attack.

AVOID MEAT FAT, BUTTER

The best way to lower is this: Avoid the fat of meat — as it is solid at room temperature. Be sparing of butter, as it answers the same description.

You can still eat meat, especially the lean. Eat fish—any seafood is acceptable. Use vegetable oils, which are fats, of different type. Here the solid cited above is useful. Vegetable oils, which are liquid, rather than solid, at room temperature, are much preferable, since they keep the cholesterol level low.

But calories! Let us look the facts in the face. There are no calories in fish. Fats of any kind are high in calories.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am ill and dizzy most of the time. I lie down and then get up and get very dizzy and feel like a wobble. I can't see straight for a few minutes and then all is right. Also my eyes roll. I am scared to go to the doctor's because I'm scared. — C.M."

That's the best explanation I've ever read for being scared to go to the doctor. Seriously, speaking you will avoid harmful amounts of cholesterol if you avoid fats which are solid at room temperature.

Electric Car Seen Possible

Christian Science Monitor

The possibility of an electric car, one that could replace the internal combustion engine in automobiles is cited by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation in its discussion of the development of a fuel cell that converts chemical energy directly into electrical energy.

The development, reported by Lockheed, is said to be significant, that time after time the cell has produced electricity with a high energy conversion factor of about 70 per cent, with a fuel utilization of 100 per cent. This high conversion factor compares with a mere 35 per cent for present engines and even less for internal combustion engines, the company reports.

Key to the fuel cell is a silicon-base material developed by Lockheed called Lockapoly a ceramic-type material that picks up the energy released in the reaction of chemicals" fed into the cell. This process "converts its own electrical energy without itself being consumed."

The cell can be made in almost any size, depending on how much power is needed. It makes no noise and is odorless. There are no moving parts requiring maintenance, and the material is apparently entirely immune to the disintegration process of the lead-plate storage battery.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REAL LIFE

There were multitudes of Christian believers for whom religion is little more than going to church, going to bed, dying, having a brief but earnest prayer when in deep trouble, and hoping that death will not end all.

How different such a concept from that which Jesus set forth in the New Testament! How artificial such a religion would be! Is it Jesus Christ did not come into the world to improve human life but to redeem it.

When people really get religion, all things become new for them; Stanley Jones is one of the great saints of the Christian church. In one of his books he writes: "When I walked out into the world the morning after I made self-surrender, I thought I had never before seen the world; the trees shimmered with and all nature was a dingle with joy and beauty. For the first time I knew that the earth was mine. I had inherited it. The gospel begins with a demand for self-surrender and ends in a self-affirmation."

Jesus declared to Nicodemus that he must be born again. Sometimes we think this Nicodemus must have been an unusual person who required unusual treatment. He was precisely like you and me. What he needed, and what I need, was the spirit of Jesus. "Ye must be born again," was meant for you and me as much as for that ancient figure.

Religion is something vastly more significant than going through a few motions. It is life — conferred, infused.

FUTURE JOYS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

There are always glad years waiting
For a baby's doting dad;
Joys that he's anticipating
That surpass the joys he's had,
And I reckon every daddy,
Bending o'er a crib, can see
In that wonderous little laddie
Splendid things that are to be.

"Oh, when he's a little older,"
Every father mutters low,
"And when he's a little bolder,
What a lot of fun we'll know!
When his feet begin to patter
And he takes me by the hand,
Nothing else, I'm sure, will matter,
He and I will rule the land."

Though the fates may be berating,
And the present hours be sad,
There are always glad years waiting
For the taller who's a dad.
There are joys beyond all telling
That he'll some day make his own;
In the future years he's dwelling,
When his baby shall have grown.

A Lift for Living

Good Means and Good Ends

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Several weeks ago we discussed good motives for winning success. There is a second criterion of success, that of good methods. The Bible doesn't give warrant to the oft-heard saying that the ends justifies the means. The means we use are bound to affect the ends we seek. Mahatma Gandhi said that the means are the ends in preliminary stages. And Aldous Huxley asserts that as long as we go on trying to realize our ideals by bad means, our good intentions will come to bad ends.

For instance, a nation may profess to be fighting for the noble ideals of freedom and justice, but if he uses poison gas or germ warfare she poisons the springs of life within her own borders.

And the principle runs through all life. We cannot win genuine success by cheap methods. In every line of work there are what we call "tricks of the trade", that is, methods which may fool the public but which are not quite worthy. A lawyer may be so shrewd and clever that he wins his cases in court and comes to be in great demand, especially by clients with weak cases; but his fellow lawyer do not rate him as one of the ornaments of the bar. A doctor may build up a big practice by methods which do not give him standing in his profession.

DEFINITION OF FAME

Some years ago Henry Van Dyke was unveiling a bust in New York at the Hall of Fame for Great Americans. He gave a memorable definition of fame. He said, "Fame is durable, good renown, won by service, approved by the wise and applauded by the common voice." One's work and life must meet the approval of the wise, of those who know.

In "The Bridge of San Luis Rey", Thorton Wilder tells how a kindly and understanding musician tried to develop a gifted, but temperamental singer. She had been a popular entertainer and was content to remain on that musical level. When she gave her pageant, she would cater to the crowd's taste and was quite satisfied with the savor of applause, even when her work was mediocre. But always when she turned to leave the stage, her mentor and teacher stood in the wings, and she had to face his critical appraisal. He demanded her best.

So Christ stands in the wings of life's stage. He tolerates no tricks of the trade, no cheapness of method.

Furthermore, only ideals grow dim unless supported by worthy standards of daily action. But when we do our best day by day, we develop stamina. In the words of Saint Paul: "Suffering produces endurance, endurance produces character, and character produces hope."

Turn from this first century spiritual fighter to a very different modern setting. A few years ago two men, Primo Carnera and Max Baer, were fighting for the heavyweight title of the world. I am not an attendant at prizefights but this incident was told by a bishop, and bishops are supposed to be authorities on everything, including prizefights. In the midst of the bout, each fighter swung at the other and missed, both fell to the canvas, and the crowd witnessed the rather ridiculous spectacle of two prizefighters lying in the ring, facing each other. Before they could rise, Max Baer, who was given to bright remarks, grinned at Carnera and said, "The last one up is a sissy." The setting of that remark should not blind us to the truth of it.

TEST OF SUCCESS

How to pick oneself up from a defeat when "one is too old to cry and when it hurts too much to laugh" — that is a very real test of success.

But to survive victories is even harder. We have a common saying that nothing succeeds like success. That seems true in the short view. Business begets business, crowds draw crowds, prosperity brings friends gathering around. But when we take the long perspective of history and look at the things of this world, we see that nothing fails like success. Worldly men and worldly things cannot stand success. Only godly men and godly things can survive victories.

Why so? Because victors so often become too smugly self-confident, let down their standards and lean their moral barness. We struggle upward, believing the old adage that there is room at the top. And then all too often the very roominess at the top ruins our humility of spirit, our power of production and even our peace of mind.

Six-Year-Old On 14,000-Mile Flight Alone

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—Six-year-old Fiona Margaret Brown, clutching a doll and a little plastic shopping bag, set off alone by air Friday on a 14,000-mile journey to Scotland.

She was put in charge of air stewardess, who will hand her over to others on the flight via Fiji, Honolulu, Vancouver, Amsterdam and London.

Fiona's mother died two years ago and since then she has been living with maternal relatives.

Turkish Nurse Likes Canada

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization indirectly influenced a Turkish nurse to come to Canada to work.

Naciye Yavas' brother was a NATO student pilot in Canada from 1954 to 1956, and when he returned to Turkey his descriptions of life in Canada tempted his sister to see for herself.

Miss Yavas, who arrived in December, says that getting accustomed to the language is her toughest task although she studied English for two years at night school in Turkey.

Speaking English slowly but clearly, she said: "I like very much the people and the hospital in Canada, and I will be here a long, long time."

Bridal Beauty

By ALICE ALDEN

Trends in wedding dress fabrics wax and wane, save for luxurious, gleaming satin, whose appeal to the bride continues undiminished through the years.

Distinguished thoughtfully, the fabric in cotton satin version captures soft, satiny highlights and drapes with the unexcelled grace that is that of satin alone.

Shaped into a snug bodice re-embroidered with Alencon lace, the dress has a flattering neckline, short sheltered sleeves and a full skirt that flows into a chapel train.

Abnormal Births Signalled By Changes in Mother's Blood

A team of McGill University researchers say maybe. With the aid of a recent $20,000 grant from the federal government, they're tracking clues that some of all infant abnormal births are signalled by changes in a mother's blood.

Dr. George Maughan, chief of obstetrics at the Royal Victoria Hospital and leader of the McGill team, said it is likely the answer won't be known for three or five years.

STARTED IN HOLLAND

The research actually began several years ago in Holland when Dr. Jan Langman, now associate professor of anatomy at McGill, did a number of blood tests on women whose family or personal history suggested the likelihood of abnormal births.

Either the women or close members of their families had had such troubles.

Dr. Langman found that 78 per cent of the women showed a change in blood composition not found in normal pregnancies. He had not done enough tests, however, to reach a conclusive result.

In the meantime other research work had suggested that excessive amounts of cortisone in experimental animals led to higher incidence of abnormalities, including one that there might be other agents in the body that could damage offspring.

There was also some evidence that, in animals, dosing with certain vitamins during pregnancy can offset the effects from chemical agents in the body.

The McGill team hopes to coordinate all this work.

SEEK CONFIRMATION

"We hope," Dr. Maughan said, "to confirm Dr. Langman's findings in a larger series. We want to provide the scientific basis for using vitamin protection for mothers with such blood peculiarities.

"We also hope to show why and how the damaging agents work, and whether the mother is deficient in the protective substances that seem to work in research animals."

It is already known, Dr. Maughan said, that whatever damages the embryo does so sometime in the first two or three months of preenancy—among animals, at least.

If the theory behind the project is confirmed, all pregnant women could start taking the protective vitamins.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Recently your reporter talked with members of the Home and School Associations of BCIAVS and Quinte Secondary School. It is fortunate that we did, because we might have otherwise missed an item of news that is important to every parent with children attending our two-way bus schools. The education of the youth of the land is demanding and deserving of the vital interest of all citizens, but especially the parents.

The Home and School Associations are medium by close liaison between the home and the school, between the parent and the teacher. One of the best methods of bringing the parent and the teacher together is by sponsored "open houses" once each year.

With the tremendous increase in the student population in each of our schools, it has been decided to hold the Open House night, on Monday, and on Monday, Nov. 17, at BCI and VS and Quinte Secondary each are holding their open-house at the same night. Parents are invited to pay attention to the time to avoid confusion and to attend the school their children go to for "open - house night."

If you have children in Grades IX and/or X, you are invited to attend on Monday night, January 12. If your children are in Grade XI, XII and XIII, then parents should attend the second open house night on January 19. The teachers will be ready to receive you from 7:30 p.m. on.

Parents will appreciate and understand the reason for making special visits on Monday night affair. The teachers and the home and school associations are anxious to see that as many parents have an opportunity of meeting and talking with their children's teachers as possible. The teachers are expecting that term approximately 300 pupils. This gives some idea how great the task is.

If each parent adheres to that five-minute limit for interviews, all one teacher will be able to interview twenty-four parents in each of the two-hour evenings. Our informants are most sincere in emphasizing that every parent should make a note to attend open-house at BCI or VS or Quinte Secondary according to the schedule in order to be present on the correct Monday night. Don't attempt to tell by our talk with the two members of the school, about both the teachers and the H & S Associations are putting a great deal of time and effort in the interest of the parent and the student. Everything is being done to make each open-house evening in both schools a rewarding and beneficial evening for the school, the teachers, the parents, and, above all, the boys and girls.

A few rambling notes on education might provide food for a weekend thought. Forty - five per cent of all the adults in the world are unable to read or write. Over two hundred and fifty million children have no schooling at all. Imagine!

UNESCO's Department of Education concentrates on two types of work. First is known as the "Fundamental Education" and the second is the "Free and Compulsory Education." A quotation from the Courier illustrates the first. "It is designed to help uneducated people, often living in abject poverty, to solve the problems of their immediate environment by giving them the knowledge, skills and attitudes for good use of their natural resources, for health, for home making, for literacy, and for the development of their community life, and so helping them to improve their standard of living and to realize their potentialities more fully as individuals and as members of society.

A concrete example of challenge and aspiration is shown by the effort being made in primary education in Latin America. It is hoped that every Latin American child will be put into a school in ten years. "At present there are about seventeen million children in that area who do not attend school and it is estimated that four hundred thousand more teachers will be required if school buildings are made available."

Periodically we read or hear things condemning the UN, lock, stock and barrel. We wonder if they consider themselves realists. Certainly it is reality to acknowledge shells exploding in Quemoy, rebellion in Cuba, and unrest in the world. It is also real that the UN, through its various agencies, is laying the groundwork for better human rights than ever visualized before.

UNESCO began in a small flat in Grosvenor Square and, two houses on Belgrade Square, London, just thirteen years ago. Today eighty-one flags fly over its headquarters, the new building in Paris. UNESCO seeks "to contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science and culture, in order to further universal respect for justice, for the rule of law and for the human rights and fundamental freedoms which are affirmed for the peoples of the world, without distinction of race, sex, language or religion, by the Charter of the UN." Fine words indeed — better to have been written and aimed at than never to have been penned at all.

Open house at Dartmoor ranch, where the British-born politician now lives in retirement with her son and daughter-in-law, marked the occasion.

It was at the same site 30 years ago that she and the late Mr. Parlby began married life.

Mrs. Parlby was named minister without portfolio in the United Farmers of Alberta government in 1921, missing by a few months the honor of being the first woman cabinet minister in the Commonwealth. The Hon. Ellen Smith had been appointed earlier to the cabinet of British Columbia.

Mrs. Parlby served 14 years in cabinet and as a member of the legislature.

She and four other Alberta women got the Privy Council to rule that women are "persons."

In 1929 that the Privy Council ruled that women had the right to sit in the Canadian Senate. The right had been denied by the Supreme Court of Canada which ruled that women were not "persons."

Florida Resort Area Favored As Travel Heart of Americas

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

A few weeks ago we flew from Miami to New York aboard a Boeing 707 jet in the ridiculous time of two hours and six minutes, or about one-forty-eighth the time we used to take to drive the same distance.

Of course the four hours it takes by DC-7 is just about as ridiculous for comparison. But by cutting even that time nearly in half and multiplying the comfort several fold, the jet drove home to us the fact that a whole new world of travel experience is ready to open up for the North American tourist.

For Easterners, Florida is now a feasible place to go for a long weekend or a few day stopover on way to Latin America. And South Americans will soon be near enough by jet for even a week's vacation. For Westerners, new airline routes now link it directly and speedily with California, the Northwest, and even western Canada, as well as many new cities in the Midwest and Southwest.

Once far enough away so that other resorts were more attractive, these places even now are sending more tourists to Florida than ever before. When jet service becomes commonplace within the next two years, Florida — end particularly Miami — is bound to fulfill its long-awaited destiny as the travel heart of the two Americas.

JET PLANES

None of this should cause any complaint on the part of resort owners who will be drawing business from previously undreamed of sources. For years they have been installed by their view of Florida in the population and geographic heart of the Western Hemisphere. It remained only for jet travel to put it within hailing distance.

Fortunately for them, that happened at a time when more and more Americans were discovering that one of the world's most rewarding travel bargains lay in Florida's front yard.

The string of islands stretching from Mexico's Yucatan peninsula to the coast of Venezuela, and known since the Renaissance as the West Indies, was generally inaccessible except by ship until the advent of dependable air transportation in the postwar era. Toasted by a year-round sun and soothed by the Gulf Stream, these islands, in the most compact such area on earth, harbor the greatest variety of cultures on earth.

Little touched or changed by the colossus that had sprung up behind them to influence the whole rest of the world, the islands continued to nurse civilizations born in the clanking days of conquistadores. Their natural wealth had been a key to world politics for more years than the United States has been in existence; the British, French, Dutch, and Spanish fought over them from the time Columbus stumbled upon them until this century.

Pirates who buried their stolen treasures on tropical beaches made into story-book romances the names of the Spanish Main — Nassau, Jamaica, Hispaniola, Barbados, Martinique, Trinidad, Antigua.

And until a few years ago the Americans couldn't get them for you within half a hemisphere.

NEW RESORTS

But the airplane and the ever-restless American character changed all that. It no longer took any significant time to get anywhere. Now if an hours flying time of each other, and beginning only hours from New York or minutes from Miami, lay a collection of civilizations from every corner of the world, all unaware by time, television, or each other, each living in a world of its own.

Only a cabin cruiser jaunt from Florida was Nassau, perhaps the most typically British colonial of all British colonies to the south, Cuba and the spirited pixie of Jamaica; to the east, the world's strangest geographic bedfellows, bustling, modern Dominican republic sharing an island with exotic Haiti; Puerto Rico, crazy mixed up Yanqui — Spanish, and the quiet, sometimes lonely, often haunting little tropical islands that make up the rest of the chain until you reach the fantasy of Trinidad, the epitome of it all where even the East Indies get involved in the act.

And now Miami, the logical jumping off place to this world within a world, is only an executive's lunch hour away from New York. Anyone have a pleasanter travel thought for the new year?

Comfortable Cruise Coat

Live As If No Tomorrow Was Ever Going To Come

By Alma Mason

Someone has said if each of us were to live each day as if it were the last day to dwell on earth, this world of ours would soon become a glorious Paradise.

This thought was being discussed recently among a group of friends when each person present was asked what he or she would do if given one more day to live.

The answers to the question "what would you do with your last day on earth?" were spontaneous and amusing, until a serious-faced dark-eyed girl thoughtfully said, "I would spend the day on my knees, asking God to forgive my faults and misdeeds, and imploring Him to rectify my mistakes."

The room pulsated with an embarrassed silence, and one sensed that a mental stock-taking of misdeeds was in progress among those present.

If each of us were to say upon arising each morning, "This may be my last day on earth. I must make the most of it," how sharp and clear each small event of the day would become.

Not a single minute would be wasted. No evil thought would possess the mind. No criticism or envy or selfishness or greed would darken the windows and doorways of the precious hours.

All the kindly, thoughtful deeds placed on a convenient shelf to rest until another day, would be hurriedly gathered and distributed. The thanks not expressed, the praise not uttered, the love not shown would suddenly be assembled into a giant heap, too huge to be fenced into the confines of a few priceless minutes.

Someone said to Pasteur that he lived as if each day might be his last on earth. He replied, that believing so made no goal unattainable; no wall of endeavor insurmountable.

Zeal filled each waking hour to capacity and overflowing. He slept infrequently and ate sparingly. His unfailing concern was the happiness of mankind. Each day became a day of great price, more costly than his predecessor.

I recently read a poignant story written by a woman dying of cancer, and published after her death by her family.

She told of how each second of her day gathered momentum in value, how each hour added another ruby or diamond or emerald to the slender chain of her ebbing life.

She daily thanked God for sheltering her with a cloak of opportunity to set her life aright with earth and heaven. She saw her children and husband as she had never before seen them.

Each small consideration and sacrifice performed in her behalf rang a million silver bells of gratitude in her valiant heart. A failing leaf, a green summer field, a lonely star, a white-seamed wave became a promised ecstasy in the world to come.

Let us rise each morning aware of a gift swalling to beyond compare — a new day.

Heartache, illness and disappointment are measured into the heaped-up chest of many of our days, but if we say as we reach out to greet a new dawning, "God is giving me a new day; I will live it as if tomorrow may never come; I will fill it with beauty and love and kindliness," life will take on a magnificent new lustre and become rich and full and happy beyond our most exalted dreams.

Tomorrow, dear, may never come
But if, perchance, it should dawn clear and bright
With promise of long hours,
'Twill soon slip into night.
Today is here—each hour a jewel
Priceless, to cherish on a slender chain;
Polish each gleaming pearl,
Today won't come again.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

"A great part of courage is the courage of having done the thing before."—An Old Saying.

Quiz question—What have several Belleville, Kingston and Toronto (the King Edward Hotel) shop windows in common?

And the answer—They share the same window-decorator, namely Miss Pearl Jean Vintner, of Belleville and formerly of London, England, who does "selling windows."

When a Belleville lady commented: "I could just stand in front of her windows and gaze for hours; they're that pretty. Makes me want to buy everything in them . . ." a second glance was taken, not only of the local "eye-catching" window displays, but of the whole stylish, green-grey eyed, redhead, their creator who insists: "I'm just lucky, that's all."

Had Miss Vintner always had a "gift" for dress windows? It seems not.

"However, I've attempted to do so, because I once helped a friend with shop windows in London. She seemed to think I had a flair for it and hoped to help me pass the time while I was convalescing from a car accident."

An accident which eventually made it impossible to continue with her first love the theatre.

"I was a dancer — and have been ever since I was sixteen," explained Miss Vintner as she gave a gold belt with twin clasps that set the brown handbag in the window she was changing. (Her windows are dressed weekly.)

HAD OWN DANCING SCHOOL

"I had my own dancing school. About 70 pupils. I love choreography. Nothing gave me greater pleasure than to work out dance steps to music especially arranged for an act; to design the costumes for it; to do the stage setting.

"Yes — I've done some English pantomime; danced in The White Lion Hall, that played at the London Coliseum; assembled variety acts for the provinces, and took an act of my own to Germany where we played the Palladium.

"Upon our return to England, we were offered an engagement in India, but the doctors were right; the injury from my accident made it impossible to continue with a dancing career.

NEW LIFE, NOW

"So, the act was broken up, and I came to Canada, instead, to visit my sister. But, I have to keep busy, so happily, I determined to try my hand at window decorating, and make good at it, if possible."

APPRENTICESHIP ADVICE

Had she any "tips" to offer would-be window decorators?

Here are some — given gladly but modestly: "I've never had any courses, nor anything like that, though I'd like to study in New York some time; so I can only speak about what I, myself, have learned by experience."

WORK REQUIRES PATIENCE

"First, love the work. It is very demanding. Requires infinite patience and endless attention to detail.

"Rely on ideas of your own—never try to copy."

"Make much — of little. Let me explain: In London, there is a very exclusive display window, dramatically comprised of little else than mirrors . . . floor, wall and ceiling. All that is ever shown is a hat or a gown draped perhaps over an elegant stool or chair. Now, imagine any one could drape a dress over a chair. No — the test of skill in this work is to make with a limited background, merchandise and space, a window that draws the shoppers' attention. Such a window is a 'selling window', at least for me, only by practice, using the trial-and-error method can such a window be attained.

DO, BY DOING

"Lastly, this sort of work is of a creative nature. And creative people must face the fact that creative work demands a certain dedication. They must work and slave for it; refuse to be discouraged and keep on learning — by doing."

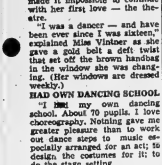
BELLEVIGNETTE

Scene: Corner of Bridge and Church Street . . . Two little girls waiting to cross the busy street.

One says: "My aunt dyes her hair yellow."

The other: "She does? I didn't know that."

The other: "Yes — she dyes it yellow, but there are great big black streaks running through it."



The other: "But—why? Why does she want it yellow?"

The other: "I don't know. But she dyes it yellow and now there are big black streaks running through it."

The other: "Ah, Well, I know! It's 'cause gentlemans 'purfur' blondes!"

Handsome Fur Coat

By TRACY ADRIAN

These chilly days and nights, a girl's best friend is a fine fur coat. Here is one that will make her feel both luxurious and warm.

Made of Southwest African Persian lamb, it is a distinguished example of the new full silhouette. It features a wide Puritan collar, full sleeves and shirring under the bust to give a slightly Empire line.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The family Council consists of...a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Lucille — I am disgusted with him.

John G. — My part isn't lurid as all that.

Lucille — I am 26 years old and recently became engaged to a young man I've known for about four years. John used to go out with my cousin, who is about my age, and that's how I got to know him.

The day after we announced the engagement, my cousin Pearl came to me and begged me to reconsider the whole thing. She said she knew John very well and that he is just no good. I was furious with her for saying a thing like that and told her so. Then she told me she had had a affair with him three years ago and that he had written me to her. Later she learned that he was involved with other women at the same time.

When I confronted John with this he admitted the part about his involvement with Pearl but said the rest was untrue. I don't know what to believe, but in any case I feel that I ought to call off this thing off. Right—now I am disgusted with John.

John B. — I am 30 years old and I never presented to my future. Lucille should recognize she is asking a little too much if she ever expected that she could I should have told her before, but I didn't feel it was necessary to go into any details.

I have tried to make Lucille understand that I have no desire having like a jealous woman. She has never really given us a chance as far as I am concerned. She pursued me from the beginning. She is not used to not getting what she did.

The way I look at it, Lucille probably wouldn't take this thing so very seriously if some other, unknown woman were involved. Why should she get into a dither just because it happens to be her cousin?

I am truly in love with Lucille and I was very much in settle down. My "past" hasn't been so lurid that I should be disqualified as a husband.

The Council: We know of no rule or pat formula to help Lucille in making her decision in this very delicate matter, but we believe that she has a lot of thinking to do and will have to make time until she understands her own feelings and attitudes.

From long acquaintance with John and (we hope) his family, she should have a reasonable understanding of his character and standards. If she feels satisfied about these things and about the sincerity of John's feeling for her, she should decide whether she is willing to forgive John's past lapse or lapses.

The fact that a member of her family has been involved with John would naturally make a difference to any young woman who has some ordinary feeling about John ought to recognize this and Lucille shouldn't let him poohpooh it away. It is seriously bothers her. Lucille would probably be the final main eater in her gones be bygones if an unknown woman were involved. It is certainly more difficult to put the whole thing out of her mind if she must continue to think of a woman" throughout her life.

It would take a lot of love and understanding to overcome the feeling of distrust Lucille is now experiencing. But since she does know John for several years and did not contract the engagement on the spur of the moment decision, she owes it to herself to know her feelings sincerely before reversing that decision.

German Food Cooked German Style

by Mary Moore

Before I left Canada for Germany I had requests from readers who knew of my trip, for German cooking. I promised to send this recipe when I had bought German products and made it up as Germans would do.

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

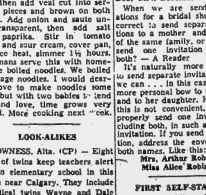
SATURDAY

Melton Mowbray Veal Pie; French Fried Parsnips; Cole Slaw; Dessert Fresh Fruit Salad with Cottage Cheese; Cheese Wafers; Coffee.

One of the things we made for a office party Marianne gave during Christmas week, was Stollen — a traditional German Christmas fruit bread, instead of saving this yeast bread within and fresh as we Canadians would, this yeast loaf should be wrapped and stored for two days before slicing. A good feature for you girls who like to have fruit bread on hand for your husband's and children's lunch boxes. An excellent richly fruited bread from which to slice as needed. Herbie and Marianne spread it thinly with butter. Whether the native Germans would butter it I do not know.

HOLIDAY STOLLEN

(A yeast fruit bread). Two packages of granular yeast, ½ cup luke-warm water, 1 teaspoon sugar; ¾ cup milk, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, flour; 2 eggs, ¾ cup soft butter, 3 cups (additional) sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ cup each mixed candied peel, chopped washed and dried currants, sliced glace cherries; 1 cup each chopped walnuts and almonds, raisins and the juice of half a lemon. Add and 1 teaspoon sugar to the ½ cup luke-warm water, then sprinkle over it the yeast and let stand for 10 minutes, then stir it a little. Scald the ¾ cup milk and to it add the salt and sugar and cook to lukewarm, then stir the liquid yeast mixture into it and the flour and beat until smooth. Cover and let this sponge rise until double in bulk. Then the eggs and add them and the soft butter to the sponge by beating, then stir in 5 cups flour and nutmeg, then get your clean hands into the dough as Marianne did and mix in all of the fruits, nuts and lemon juice. Scrape down your mixing bowl. Turn out the dough onto a floured board and knead vigorously for 5 minutes, at least. This is very tiring on call on husband, mother or strong son to help knead. Butter the bowl lightly, put dough in and cover and let rise until light and doubled. Punch down and divide into two loaf shapes or roll into two rectangles, about 9x12-inch thick and spread with butter and roll these lengthwise and roll like a jelly roll. Place on a baking sheet or in a tube pan. Cover and let rise until doubled. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes for loaf shapes or 2 collet shapes or 45 minutes for tube pan. While hot brush generously with icing sugar. When cold wrap and store for one or two days before slicing.



I would have given a lot to have had you watching me buy "Schinkel" in a German innercer shop. Happily all of the words are alike and had a grand sense of humor. Anyway what I made for dinner for Marianne and Herbie along with Gary and me (Davey still not old enough to chew meat), was lovely:—

CREAM SCHNITZEL

One and one-half lbs. of veal cutlets pounded until very thin, 2 slices chopped side bacon, 1 finely chopped onion, ½ cup thick cream, 1 tomato pulp, 2 teaspoons paprika, 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 cup consomme, sour cream. Saute bacon til pale gold and then add veal cut into serving pieces and brown on both sides. Add onion and saute until transparent, add salt and paprika. Stir in tomato pulp and sour cream, cover pan, reduce heat, simmer 1½ hours. Germans serve this with homemade boiled noodles. We boiled package noodles. I would dearly love to make noodles some day but with two babies to chase to and love, time grows very short. More cooking next "cok.

WIFE ACCEPTS INVITATION; HUSBAND REGRETS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have just received a wedding invitation, accompanied with the church-ceremony invitation is an invitation to the "reception immediately following the ceremony." I can accept the invitation, but on this day my husband will be on a business trip. Would it be proper for me to accept the invitation, even if my husband cannot? He is willing that I do, if it is correct. If so, how should I answer the R.s.v.p." on the reception invitation? — F.

Yes, you may properly accept this invitation, even though your husband will not be able to accept. On your personal note-paper or on white double-sheet letter-paper, write on the first page (spacing the lines carefully):

Mrs. Edward Hill
accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Lane to the wedding reception of their daughter on Tuesday, the third of February at five o'clock
but regrets that Mr. Hill will be unable to attend

USING INFORMALS FOR BIRTH-ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be correct for me to use our "Mr. and Mrs." informals as our birth-announcements? They have our names engraved in the center of the front cover, our address in the lower right corner, and I'd like to write little notes on the inside pages telling of the baby's arrival and the date of birth (it's to arrive in about two weeks). — Mrs. Edward Hill

Entirely correct, your idea of using your informals for writing the announcements. They are delightfully more personal than the usually printed birth-announcements.

SEATING ARRANGEMENTS AT PARTY FOR ONE-YEAR-OLD

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When our son has his first birthday, my husband and I are planning to have a dinner party, for about a couple with two children of ages approximately the ages of our children. Would you please give me the proper table-placing for this party? I am a guest myself since the baby is only one year old, his 3-year-old sister, my husband and myself? — Mrs. Edward Hill Reader

An interesting problem in seating arrangements. The seating would suggest as making the best bow to guest-courtesy, and the hostess-duties convenience and practicality, is: you at the head of the table: your husband, the host, opposite you; the two children "guests of honor," the birthday-boy at his father's left, his 3-year-old sister at his right, your husband. At your husband's right, the grandparents; at your left, the 1½ year-old daughter; at her father's right, the 3-year-old son; and at his right, his father. This means that your children are separated conveniently for "over-seeing care," between you and your husband, the younger child, naturally, next to you and the older daughter, the younger one, naturally, next to her mother.

ONE INVITATION TO MOTHER AND DAUGHTER?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When we are sending invitations for a bridal shower, is it correct to send separate invitations to a mother and daughter at the same family, or should we send one invitation including both? — A Reader

It is naturally more courteous to send separate invitations when we can . . . in this case makes a more personal bow to the mother and to her daughter. However, if it is not convenient, you may properly send one invitation including both, in the informal invitation. If you send one invitation, address the envelope with both names. Like this:

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"IN CHRIST THERE IS NO EAST OR WEST"

In Christ there is no East or West,
In Him no South or North;
But one great fellowship of love
Throughout the whole wide earth.

In Him shall true hearts everywhere
Their high communion find;
His service is the golden cord
Close binding all mankind.

Join hands, then, brothers of the faith,
Whate'er your race may be;
Who serves my Father as a son
Is surely kin to me.

In Christ now meet both East and West,
In Him meet South and North:
All Christly souls are one in Him
Throughout the whole wide earth.

Here is a great hymn of Christian fellowship and brotherhood.

It was written in 1908 by John Oxenham, the English poet, and its familiar tune, "St. Peter" was composed in 1836 by Alexander R. Reinagle, an English musician and composer.

Mr. Oxenham was both a poet and a novelist. He travelled widely in Europe and in Africa, and a number of years before he gave over his life to the writing of his first works, "God's Prisoner", was published in 1898 and was followed by several novels and collections of verse. "Selected Poems", which made its appearance in 1925, was well received.

During the first World War, Mr. Oxenham wrote an impressive little hymn which expressed the spiritual courage from the pressures of the hour:

"Mid all the traffic of the ways,
Turmoil without, within —
Make in my heart a quiet place,
And come and dwell there-in.

A little shrine of quietness
All sacred unto Thyself.
There Thou shalt all my soul possess,
And I may find myself."

Mr. Reinagle, the composer, came from a prominent musical family. His uncle was a well-known violinist and his father was a violoncellist. John Wesley once told of having attended a concert where the father performed.

The History of the Cardinals

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

The recent appointment of new Cardinals, involving the enlargement of the College of Cardinals from 70 to 75 members, has aroused some questions among our readers. What is a Cardinal? What are his duties? Is there any Biblical precedent for the office? Who elected the Pope before there were Cardinals? Perhaps I will do what we can with these queries.

The story must of necessity be a long story. We are talking about something that must have begun right after Constantine ended in 325, and developed over the next few centuries.

To start at the beginning — basically and literally, a cardinal is a hinge. The word comes from the Latin word "cardo" means. A hinge is what something turns and hangs on, and therefore depends on. It was only natural that in a secondary and special sense the word should come to mean an important person or institution — a "chief" or "principal" person or place. We still see this use of the word "cardinal" in such familiar expressions as cardinal virtues, cardinal features, cardinal points of the compass, and so on. Whatever is important is "cardinal."

In the Roman Catholic Church this use of the word grew up very early in the city of Rome, where it was applied first to the leading priests of the city and then to the head priests of the two churches. Cardinal churches had cardinal priests. What could be more likely than that the Bishop of Rome, the universal father, should his most important clergy around him as a sort of council?

BEGINNING OF TERM

Nowadays there was a "cardinal church," in Rome, Constantinople, Alexandria, or elsewhere, the chief priest there was known, perhaps by a sort of slangy derivation, as a "cardinal." At this point in history, any priest with a top parish was a "cardinal." This did not last, but it was the beginning of the term "cardinal", and it was the beginning of the idea that the Pope, the Bishop of Rome, should have an advisory group to help him deal with him.

In the early days, the 25 or so cardinal clergy around Rome were a council of advice for their Bishop, the Pope. They met weekly with him. The early existence of such a group was apparently almost completely informal. It just happened, in the same way any executive today would almost inevitably turn to the most influential of his subordinates for advices and support.

And thus it went, developing steadily in importance but still without any really defined status, for many centuries. Not until 1059 did the office of Cardinal begin to have the official importance it has today. In that year Pope Nicholas II gave this informal group the power to elect a new Pope whenever the Papacy fell vacant. With this power officially in their hands, the Cardinals soon took over the power, quite logically, the power to govern the church when there was no Pope. And so they grew in position and power.

By 1514, when Leo X declared that they ranked immediately after the Pope himself, the practice of applying the term Cardinal to all heads of important parishes had died out. The term was confined to those appointed to this special office.

INSPIRED SCHOLARS

In 1567, Pius V set the number of Cardinals at 70, and whether he intended to or not he inspired some scholars to see in the College of Cardinals a parallel to the group of 70 elders who served as advisers to Moses, as mentioned in Numbers, chapter 11, verse 16, and elsewhere. As a result, the practice grew that the College of Cardinals this reference is rarely forfeited, but is often referred.

The number of Cardinals remained at 70 until recent months, when the new Pope, John XXIII, raised the membership to 75. The College is seldom full for more than a few weeks at a time. One Cardinal has died since the recent appointments were made.

As to the question of how a Pope was elected before the Cardinals took over, history is almost completely obscure. All one can do is guess, and one good guess would be that the local clergy around Rome, predecessors of the Cardinals, did the electing. Another safe guess would be that sometimes the new Bishop of Rome was elected by acclamation — of both clergy and people.

There are two Cardinals outside the Roman Catholic Church. At St. Paul's Cathedral (Anglican) in London, two clergymen on the staff are designated as senior and junior Cardinals. Their duty is "continually to visit the sick and minister unto them as often as shall be needful."

Naturalists Had 'Field Day' In Year-End Bird Count

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian naturalists who took part in the Audubon Society's annual year-end bird count had a "field day" in the West, but cold weather kept down the count in the East.

The count made during the Christmas holidays is part of a North American bird census. The final figures will be published later by the National Audubon Society of the United States.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that bird-watchers in Vancouver, blessed with mild temperatures when they took area counts on Dec. 21 and 26, identified 90 species and estimated a total of 40,000 birds in the first survey, 104 species and 100,000 birds in the second.

LARGE TOTAL

The second Vancouver outing was one of the best counts ever recorded in Canada and compared with 85 species and 60,000 birds in 1957, and 43,500 birds in the same number of species the year before.

The counts are taken in areas not more than 15 miles in diameter. The watchers must be out not less than two hours, preferably six hours. Birds are identified through experience. Weather conditions also are recorded.

Observers in the Toronto district sighted 28,241 birds of 78 species, a record count for birds and a better-than-average number for species. Most common were greater scaups, starlings, herring gulls, old-squaws, house sparrows and American goldfinches.

The Edmonton bird club mustered 19 members in chilly weather to count 2,762 birds of 27 species. Most common was the Bohemian waxwing, of which there were 1,655.

QUEBEC COLD

A count conducted by le Club des Ornithologues in Quebec City turned up 20 species and 1,215 birds, down from 1957 when 24 species and 1,30 birds were sighted. Weather was near zero.

Two Christmas counts were made in the Halifax area. In the Cole Harbor-Chezzetcook section 46 species were tallied, compared with 63 in 197. In Halifax proper, 39 species were seen compared with 48 the year before.

Dr. Lloyd MacPherson, editor of the Nova Scotia bird society, said it was "a very poor year." It was a hard winter and there was a lack of strays.

The Newfoundland Natural History Society reported spotters in the St. John's area saw 3,107 birds of 22 species. A spokesman said an "unusually large" number of finches and robins were counted, probably because of "the extra large dogberry crop last year."

AREA ODDITIES

Oddities included a handful of snow bunings spotted in Vancouver. The species, which nests in the Arctci, seldom ventures so far south. An Edmonton watcher saw a crow, which seldom ventures so far north, and two brown creepers, strangers to the area.

Six varieties of owls were seen in Toronto, including one each of the snowy owl and short-eared owl. About 250 pine grosbeaks, a northern bird, were counted in the Quebec City area where spotters saw no gulls because the St. Lawrence River was almost completely iced over.

Eighteen black-headed gulls, a European species, were identified in Halifax along with one mockingbird.

The Christmas census was started in 1900 by Dr. Frank M. Chapman, late of the American Museum of Natural History, when 27 persons sent him lists from 25 localities.

Now, nearly 10,000 observers in the United States and Canada, from Alaska to the Rio Grande, take part in the annual count. In Canada it's mainly of "esoteric interest," an Audubon Society official in Toronto said, but especially significant in the southern States because of the duck and wild fowl wintering there.

Angling for Arctic Char Soon May Be More Available

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA CP) — The angling charms of the Arctic char soon may be more readily available.

The northern affairs department hopes to decide shortly on the establishment of a tourist fishing camp at Cape Dorset, near the southwesterly tip of Baffin Island which lies like a jagged crescent across the eastern flank of the Arctic archipelago.

Department officials are to decide whether the camp should be operated by the government or by a private company, with the department maintaining an interest as guardian of the Eskimos who would be used as guides.

TROUT'S COUSIN

The char is a close cousin of the speckled, brook or Dolly Varden trouts of southern Canada. It averages two to six pounds in weight, develops slowly because of food supplies and water temperatures rise is known to exist less than 600 miles from the North Pole.

It occurs both as a land-locked and sea-run fish. It probably is common to northern Russia too, and prefers lures to flies. Streams and rivers are the best places to catch char, say anglers who have tried.

Its admirers call it Canada's tastiest fish. It stands as the most expensive in southern commercial markets. Canadian scientists aren't sure yet how far north it goes.

One place where char fishing has been going on for several years is Frobisher Bay, almost due east of Cape Dorset and a thriving community containing Canadian and United States Air Force personnel, radar station international airport and other developments including a good-sized Eskimo community.

Everybody has been taking char from the Sylvia Grinnell River, where there has been some influx of sportsmen. The round - trip fare by scheduled flight from Montreal is $370. But the most important aspect is getting accommodation lined up before leaving. Frobisher Bay has none to spare.

The licence is nominal. Government employees pay nothing. Residents pay $1 and non-residents $2.50.

Dr. V. E. F. Solman of the Canadian Wildlife Service, who has fished for char at various spots, has tried sea trolling with no success and got his best catch on plugs, till the lures available at the time.

Fishing is one aspect of a tourist industry that the northern affairs department has hopes of building up, utilizing Eskimo handicrafts and scenery.

"It isn't too far fetched to foresee summer cruises to the Arctic," suggested one official. "After all, Argentine liners are loading vessels with hundreds of people for voyages to the Antarctic."

Game, particularly in the eastern Arctic, is tricky. Much thought would have to go into any move which might deprive the Eskimos of food. This applies to seal, walrus and polar bear. Caribou drastically down, appear out for years.

However, queries are coming in from the western area of the Yukon and Northwest Territories about possible camps there for moose, elk and the like. The government shortly hopes to disclose details of a limited kill of buffalo.

Engine Trouble May Stem From Oil Dilution

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Some abnormal engine conditions may be traced to nothing more complicated than oil dilution. Main or rod bearing knocks, increased oil consumption, low pressure — any or-all of these troubles can result when water or gas has thinned out engine oil. Water in the oil can also cause it to bubble and foam, bringing on noisy hydraulic valve lifters.

How does the oil become diluted by water? Condensation within the crankcase is the usual way. Another is leakage due to a cylinder head gasket defect. Fuel gets into crankcase oil via overchoking and or misfiring spark plugs. In cold weather, frequent starts and short trips are notorious causes of excessive oil dilution.

From J. T.: "When the distributor points go bad, what effect will this have on the spark plugs, if any?"

(A) Defective points can cause spark plug firing ends to become fouled by gas.

H. R. asks: "My engine developed a metallic knock and my dealer calls it either pre-ignition or a spark plug. Please explain the nature of each of these troubles and the cause."

(A) What we call a ping is a metallic knock caused by fuel mixtures which burns much too rapidly. Pre-ignition causes a similar knock, but it occurs because the fuel is ignited by an overheated spark plug, for instance) before the spark plug actually fires. Each condition has several cause possibilities. Some, such as overheating and heavy carbon deposits, are common to both.

R. V. writes: "I've had steering, tires, shock absorbers, wheel balance and front alignment checked on my 1951 sedan in order to cure a high speed shimmy. No mechanic has found the answer yet — the shimmy is still there. Any suggestions?"

(A) That shimmy sensation could be a propeller shaft vibration caused by worn universal joints.

(A) Temperatures between 175 and 190 degrees enable your engine to work easier, help vaporize raw gas and eliminate harmful fuel by-products.

Ontario on February First Will Adopt Demerit Plan to Root Out Dangerous Drivers

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ontario follows the lead of three other provinces Feb. 1, introducing a plan to root out dangerous drivers and bar them from the road unless they reform.

The scheme, known as the demerit system, is similar to plans in Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and 17 states of the U.S.

When Ontario, with 2,800,000 drivers, starts its plan, more than half of Canada's 5,500,000 licensed motorists will be under demerit systems.

GOOD RESULTS

The three provinces with plans now in effect report satisfaction with the arrangement for assessing demerits against traffic violators and suspending their licences after they reach a specified total.

Ontario, which suspended the licences of more than 10,000 drivers in 1958, expects a small increase in suspensions under the new system.

More important, however, it hopes the demerits and threat of suspension will prompt motorists to drive more carefully.

It also hopes the plan will have an effect similar to that in Manitoba, credited by many with the first demerit system in 1951. R. B. Baillie, Manitoba motor vehicles commissioner who originated the plan, says: "In each year since the system was adopted there have been fewer fatalities than in 1950."

PIONEER IN CANADA

Mr. Baillie, native of Belfast who became interested in traffic accidents while working for an insurance firm in the 1930s, was registrar of motor vehicles and director of highway safety when he pioneered Canada's first demerit plan.

He got the idea from Connecticut where the first scheme in North America went into operation in 1949.

"I was trying to find a system of anticipating bad drivers, the ones most likely to become involved in serious accidents, and curing them or taking them off the roads," he says.

Almost 10,000 of Manitoba's 327,000 drivers had their licences suspended in 1957 although only one-quarter were as a result of the demerit system.

SIGNIFICANT TREND

In Nova Scotia, with 182,000 drivers, J. C. Douglas, director of highway safety, says it is significant that there have been only 98 licence suspensions after 18,000 convictions since the system went into effect in 1956.

"A great many of the drivers mended their ways to a point where they didn't get further convictions," he says.

New Brunswick has also had few suspensions among its 160,000 drivers. The total to mid-November, 1958, was a record 86 compared with 90 in 1957 and 27 in 1956, the first year of the plan.

British Columbia — which like Alberta, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island has no such plan and no intention of introducing one — record about 12,000 licence suspensions in 1958 among 800,000 drivers.

Quebec, studying other demerit systems, but not committed to a similar scheme, suspended more than 4,000 driving permits among 1,225,000 drivers in 1958.

RISE IN ACCIDENTS

Introduction of the system in Ontario was prompted by the rising accident rate. Some 534 persons lost their lives in traffic in the first six months of 1958 compared with 467 in the same period of 1957.

Ontario's plan calls for automatic three-month suspension for drivers who collect 12 demerits in any two-year period. Warning letters will be sent to those with six demerits and a driver with nine points will be interviewed and asked to show why his licence should not be lifted.

The maximum 12 points will be assessed for such offences as impaired driving, criminal negligence or obtaining a licence by fraud. Nine demerits will be given for such offences as leaving an accident scene, careless driving or exceeding the speed limit by more than 30 m.p.h. Failing to obey a stop sign or traffic light and travelling more than 10 m.p.h. over the speed limit will result in three demerits. Other speeding convictions and all other "moving" violations will be given two demerits.

A motorist will start with a clean slate after serving a suspension but if he collects another 12 demerits within the next year his suspension will be for six months instead of three.

GRADE LICENCES

Saskatchewan has a scheme similar to the demerit system although it doesn't involve points. Licences of different colors are issued after minor offences. When a driver is convicted once, he gets a blue licence. A second conviction results in a red licence. The third time he may lose his right to drive. It takes a year free of convictions to get from red to blue and from blue to normal licence. The plan has been in operation since 1940. Of the province's 350,000 drivers, 1,975 were suspended in 1957.

In New Brunswick, Lawrence F. Hasey, provincial registrar of motor vehicles, says the main objective is to educate the average driver in highway safety.

"In that I think we are succeeding. . . . Most of the drivers take a sober look at their driving habits when they lose their first points."

Gordon Taylor, Alberta's highways minister, disapproves the demerit plan because, he says, it does not differentiate between the driver who has three accidents in 8,000 miles and the one who has the same number of accidents in only 500 miles.

Alberta has a drivers' board of review which keeps the accident record of each motorist and can order a new test, put him on probation or suspend his licence.

B.C. OPPOSED

In British Columbia, which has a board of review dealing with cases of repeated violations, officials say the demerit system is "more trouble than it's worth."

While the point system differs from province to province, all have generally similar arrangements.

In Manitoba, where a driver must undergo a new driving test after collecting six points in 18 months, he is assessed two points for an accident in which he is at fault and an additional point when a minor offence, is connected with the accident. Two points are given for each lesser infraction when no accident occurs. More serious offences have a rating of demerits with a maximum of 10 for drunken driving, leaving an accident, driving with licence under suspension and manslaughter.

In Nova Scotia, accumulation of 10 points in 24 months results in six-month suspension. Six points are assessed for careless driving and failing to stop at an accident and give assistance; four for speeding and improper passing; three for failing to report an accident; two for other offences involving a vehicle in motion, driving with a defective car or parking where view is obscured, and one for inadequate muffler or prohibited equipment or failing to keep a car in good order.

In New Brunswick, a licence is suspended three months for 10 demerits in a two-year period. Convictions for criminal offences such as negligence or drunken driving mean automatic suspension. The schedule of demerits is two points for having faulty equipment after being warned or for illegal parking; "three for "moving" violations such as going through a light or exceeding the speed limit by less than 15 m.p.h., and five for exceeding the limit by more than 15 m.p.h.

After the first suspension, a driver gets a probationary licence which can be lifted for 30 days for the next minor infraction. One more conviction within the year means an eight-month suspension.

SAFETY PIONEER

R. B. (Bob) Baillie, Manitoba's commissioner of motor vehicles in 1951 inaugurated the province's driver - improvement program — the first such system in Canada to use a method of demerits for erring drivers. A native of Ireland, Mr. Baillie took the motor vehicles post in 1934 after various other posts in the civil service. Other innovations under his leadership include a written test for beginning drivers and a drivers' handbook, acclaimed by traffic authorities throughout North America as one of the best published. THE GOLDEN YEARS

Doing Research on Year of Birth Fascinating Retirement Project

By THOMAS COLLINS

With two box tops and $180,000, you of course are able to get the kind of retirement you want.

But while you're waiting to get your hands on the box tops, and while you're sitting around looking at the daytime television programs, why don't you research the year you were born?

You won't get a medal for it. And you can't sell it. But it is a retirement project you may find fascinating. And one with which you may stumble into a second career in life.

Say you are now 65 years old and were born in 1894. Do you have any idea what momentous events, besides your birth, were going on?

Well, 1894 wasn't one of the better years in human history, except for your advent, and yet —

Oliver Wendell Homes died in 1894.

The French took over Timbuktu in Africa.

The Republicans won a smashing Congressional victory.

The British, with empire building in swing, beat the daylights out of a force of slave traders at Lake Nyasa, and got cut to pieces by the Zulus in the Battle of Matabeland.

There was a great railroad strike, beginning at Pullman, Ill., and paralyzing most of the lines west of the Mississippi. Federal troops fought it.

Remember the Dreyfus case? It was part of your birth year because it was in 1894 that France convicted and sentenced to life Capt. Alfred Dreyfus.

FIGHTING FOR LAND

Portugal, Italy, France and England were fighting all over the globe in 1894, trying to pick up real estate. The Japanese were slapping the Chinese around. They took over Seoul, Korea, in 1894. Their navy and the Chinese navy staged the first full-scale battle of ironsides in 1894.

And there was a guy named Coxey. Remember? He whipped up an army bearing his name and marched from Massillon, Ohio, to Washington. And got a bloody nose. That was in 1894.

This is just a smattering of the Front Page news of 1894. Why don't you search out the rest of it? And dig up more personal things, like the dirt on the street where you were born? What the rent was on the house. What the midwife charged. How much cabbage cost.

Most cities, and many towns, have in their public libraries and historical societies files of the newspapers dating back to 1894. You may find your birth recorded in those files in the form of "Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Smith this week announced the birth of seven-pound Willie. . ." What school did you start in? And what did they tear it down for what filling station?

MAKE NEW FRIENDS

The boys you knew who went forth in 1917 to be heroes and "Go West" if need be . . . the bathtub gin of the Twenties . . . the rich boys who went broke in 1929. All this is part of your 1894 heritage. In old newspaper files, from old citizens, or somewhere. you can dig it up: And in digging you can get a perspective of yourself in history. You can make a host of new friends who will be intrigued by what you are doing — particularly if you go back to your old home town for an job. You may discover that you are building up a treasure of data that will open a conversation for you with strangers almost anywhere.

Once you research your birth year, though your rewards will be in the researching — you can file the data in the Family Bible under a simple title of "What Happened the Year Willie Smith Did." Or you can be clever, have your story typed and framed — or bound as a book — and present it to your heirs under a title like "The Year Grandpa Squalled."

It is by such things as this that many intelligent people are finding their key to retirement. In the process of the work they capture an idea — it could be such a thing as those slave traders the British whipped at Lake Nyasa. And with enough study of the subject of slave traders, they are able to write a book, a play, or become a visiting college lecturer.

How do you know you couldn't?

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Some old pros pestering in senior amateur hockey leagues should, like little boys, be seen and not heard. At times, that is, by referees either homebrew or imported.

A short time ago, the Eastern Ontario senior "A" circuit in a cut-the-cost move, decided to use homebrew referees instead of the imported brand. This, the eastern moguls said, would eliminate the high costs of mileage for out-of-town officials.

Up to this time there had been little or no complaint on officiating, with the exception of the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens who were using Ottawa officials anyway. On one occasion the Canadiens' coach took his team off the ice for some length of time in protest of officialdom. In other centres everything seemed hunkey-dory.

So they inaugurated the new system of hometown referee and linesmen with the exception of the Whitby Dunlops, who would use Toronto officials anyway.

Then it happened. On "inaugural night" the Whitby Dunlops played the Macs here, and a local referee, Vern Coyer, was assigned to work by the OAHA's Bill Hanley, as is the custom.

A night or so later the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens played the Dunlops in Whitby, with Bill Balmer of Toronto, in the referee role.

Coincidental or not, the chullient manager of the Dunlops, M'sieu Wren Blair, mildly flipped his lid over the officiating on both occasions. And him being one of the greatest "build-orators" in homebrew officiating at the loop conclave. Tsk. Tsk.

Blair, who did not see the Belleville game, was well-filled in with the Dunlopian side of the story. Wrote he in part: ". . . The league's new ruling to use local referees got off to a bad start, with Whitby taking more than twice as many penalties as the Macs. Vern Goyer had the dubious honor of handing playing coach Sid Smith his first misconduct in eight years. Yes, Vern, we know Belleville is desperate for a win over the Dunlops, but . . . ."

Blair should have consulted the official records. His statement that the Dunlops got "more than twice the penalties" is grossly exaggerated. The figures drew five minors and Smith's misconduct and the McFarlands four minors, none of them on the borderline.

As far as Smith's misconduct is concerned he had it coming, according to Goyer.

"Smith is just another hockey player to me. Reputations or records don't mean a thing. It is what they do when they are on the ice and I am refereeing what counts."

"After I gave Smith the minor penalty," Goyer said, "he said something to me that I thought warranted the misconduct. He did not use profane language, but what he said was far from complimentary. Any other player would have got the same treatment."

"We were told at the OHA referees' clinic to enforce the rules to the limit, regardless of player or team. I play no favorites. A Belleville player will get the gate as quickly as a member of any other club in the league if he commits a breach of the rules. Names mean nothing—it is the player that counts," Goyer said.

Goyer was recommended to the OHA by one of-ils past presidents as one of three good refereeing prospects in Eastern Ontario. He has had plenty of experience as a referee in the lower brackets and as linesman in senior "A" circles. Nobody around these parts, at least, can accuse him of being a "homer".

Blair charged Bill Balmer, who refereed the Whitby-Hull game with having "rabbit ears." The official tabbed Hull's Connie Broden with a double misconduct for talking out of turn, apparently twice. Blair said the official could have dealt out of earshot and thus avoided the double dose.

"While going by the book may be justified, it probably does the distraction from a spectator's point of view more harm than good," he said.

"By seeing Broden removed from the game," Blair went on, "the fans were deprived from seeing a popular player perform a full contest. It is unsportsmanlike when the record book shows that Broden in all his career has never picked up a misconduct."

Well, bub, there is always a first time and like Goyer, Balmer saw and heard a hockey player commit a breach of the rules, and served due punishment with no regard to pearl halos or records. Besides we were under the impression the loyal Whitby burghers went to see their beloved Dunlops perform and not a named player on an opposition team, regardless of past performances.

Scores Four In Guelph Win Over Barrie

GUELPH (CP)—Guelph Billmores are still battling along in the wake of the OHA Junior A leaders.

Friday night fourth-place Tuesday came within six points of second-place Peterborough Petes and Toronto St. Michael's Majors as Rod Gilbelt scored four goals to spearpoint a 7-3 win over Barrie Flyers.

Fifth-place Barrie now have 39 points and trail the Biltmores by seven.

Gilbert's four-goal display was the best single-game score by a Guelph player this season. He fired his first in the opening period as Guelph ran up a 3-0 lead, added the net twice in the second and scored his fourth in the final minutes.

Bob Ertel, Ron Brain and Leon Rochefort rounded out Biltz' scoring. Former Guelph player Larry Jones scored one for Barrie and Wayne Haight four goals to spearpoint a 7-3 win over Barrie Flyers.

Hawks Hassle Habs In National Battle Tonight

Gun for Fifth Straight Win, 9th Link in Unbeaten Chain; Leafs Host Desperate Bruins

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the National Hockey League fan's minor pleasures at mid-season is record-guessing.

To play it, the amateur statistician lists current performances of teams and individuals and projects them to see what all-time records may be broken during the course of the schedule.

This season for example, Montreal Canadiens are within sight of three club records, but they'll have to pull up their socks to break them.

The record for most points compiled during a 70-game schedule is held by Detroit Red Wings —101 points in 1950-51.

COULD BREAK RECORDS

Canadiens have 61 points after 59 games and with a little extra effort and a little bit of luck might set a new mark.

The same is true of the record for most wins during a 70-game schedule. Montreal had one set already; they won 45 games back in 1955-56. This year their performance includes 23 wins and once again a little push might send Habs over the top.

And another of their own records seems ripe for the taking. Canadiens' grasp That's the record for most goals by a team in one season which they set last season when they scored 250—an average of 3.57 a game.

Earlier this season it looked as if Montreal defenceman Doug Harrison were taking a dead-set on the all-time assists records; set by former Habs Elmer Lach and when he collected 56 in 1953-54.

HITS SLUMP

Geoffrion can run up 30 in less than 25 games but he hasn't had that one since and will have to take a sustained spurt to put him over the top.

The Boomer does have an excellent chance of breaking a more coveted record—most assists by a right wing.

To get back to the real action, Canadiens are host to Chicago Black Hawks tonight and though they're last in the loop, Hawks are looking like a team that could give Canadiens a tussle.

They've won their last four games and haven't been defeated in eight as they climbed from fifth to second in the standings.

Other games tonight see fifth-place Boston Bruins fighting to keep host Toronto Maple Leafs in the cellar and Detroit and New York Rangers tangling in New York.

Score Signs, Hopeful for Better Season

CLEVELAND (AP)—Southpaw Herb Score signed his 1956 contract with the Cleveland Indians Friday, figuring on a healthy year and earn a raise in pay.

"I'm tired of signing the same contract," he said.

He accepted the same pay—an estimated $20,000—he received the last two seasons, when he was plagued by injuries and arm trouble.

His salary was boosted to $25,000 following the 1956 season, his sophomore year in the majors, when he had a 20-9 record and led the American League in strikeouts with 263.

"This had to be a better year for me," the 25 - year - old lefthander said. "Things can't get any worse."

Score had a 2-1 record in the first three weeks of the 1957 season, but was hit in the eye with a batted ball in a game May 4 and was sidelined for the remainder of the year.

Last season he hurled but 41 innings in 12 games, winning two decisions and losing three. He suffered a pulled tendon in his arm in a game at Washington April 30, and was never able to make a successful comeback.

Score said he felt that his arm had healed and he'll make no predictions for the coming season.

Nova Scotia Tuna Tourney Called Off

NEW YORK (CP)—Nova Scotia's annual tuna-fishing contest won't be held this year. The number of tuna off the coast of Il Marillmes has been declined in recent years, and the hope is that by 1960 the fish run will be on the increase again.

The decision was made Friday by directors of the International Tuna Cup match and announced by Howell Rees, the Nova Scotia government's representative in N ..w York.

Rees said the directors agreed that the cup remain in the custody of E. A. Mattson, trade and industry minister for Nova Scotia who is chairman of directors for the event.

"The directors felt it was unfair to encourage anglers coming half way round the world when there is little to catch," Rees said.

"The experts are confident that the bluefin tuna will soon be back."

The international match has been held at Wedgeport, N.S., since 1937, when a Boston sportsman, Alton B. Sharp, donated the cup.

Nineteen forty - nine was the best year for the anglers—landing 1,774 of the fish that summer in the Jubilee-Yarmouth season but only 48 were caught in the match.

Last summer only one tuna was caught with a rod and reel—and that before the competition began.

Dodgers Will Shorten Fence In Right Field

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's a belated but welcome Christmas gift for lefthanded hitters of the National League, the Brooklyn Dodgers plan to shorten the Coliseum's right-field fence.

No longer will the power hitters blast one about 440 feet into right centre and then, as they round first base, hear the small voice of the fielder from those immense pastures: "I got it."

Reduce the distance from home plate to dead centre to 410 from 425 feet.

Dodger president Walter O'Malley said: "This will correct our mistake of last year and give us playing dimensions for which we will not have to make excuses."

Translated, this means: Maybe now Duke Snider, Norm Larker, Wally Moon and our lefthanded hitters can get some home runs.

The great Snider, who had his best season in 1953 with 42 consecutive years, but only 15 last year—six in the Coliseum.

Quebec Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals disposed of Quebec Aces 5-2 Friday night in a Quebec Hockey League game, then started looking for another substitute goalie.

The Royals lost their substitute goalkeeper, Claude Pronovost, in the third period when he suffered a dislocated shoulder in a collision with Quebec's Jean-Marie Cosselin. There was no penalty on the play.

Regular goalie Charlie Hodge, who suffered a double fracture of the jaw Dec. 4, replaced Pronovost for the balance of the game. A club spokesman said Pronovost is out of action definitely.

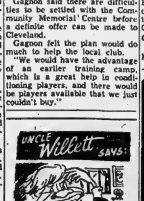
Barons Consider Kingston as Training Camp



KINGSTON (CP)—Bus Gagnon, coach of the Cleveland Barons, said Friday night Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League are interested in setting up training camp here.

Gagnon said a move took place Merchants, in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A eastern series, would become Barons' farm team.

Gagnon said there are difficulties to be settled with the Community Memorial Centre before definite offer can be made to Cleveland.

Gagnon felt the plan would do much to help the local club.

"We would have the advantage of an earlier training camp which is a great help in conditioning players, and there would be players available that we just couldn't buy."

There Is Hope for Survival In Okanagan Senior League

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — The Okanagan Senior Hockey League has shaken off a series of crises which led it to the brink of collapse and today looks forward to the future with a trace of optimism.

A change of ownership, stunts, promotion gimmicks, improved public relations and a determination of the players involved to keep the league going all have been credited with turning a bleak outlook to one with a faint rose-colored hue.

Attendance at the four league centres — Kamloops, Penticton, Vernon and Kelowna — has declined from the start of the current season, leaving operators facing large season-end deficits. Some blamed television, others the weather.

Vernon Canadians saw average attendance dip to 700, compared with 1,250 last season. Kelowna Packers reported the gate averaging 900, down 500 from the previous season and Penticton Vs drew about 1,000, a game, down 30 per cent.

FORM LOOP

In Kamloops, where a week ago Chiefs' owner Kenny Mackenzie returned the franchise to the original community group that had sold it to him and turned its operation over to the players, attendance averaged about 750, compared with 2,100 last season.

Vernon took steps. The team was taken over by coach-manager George Agar and some of his players and is being run on a co-operative basis.

"My players have practically been playing for nothing in order to keep hockey alive here," Agar says. "We've had some good ones including the masked marvel gimmick in the Penticton game and wore a black hood but nothing brought the fans out."

Packers, with 14 players—largest roster of any of the clubs—have struggled financially without too many economy measures because, manager Bert Gordanier says, the team is "the best the city has ever had" and this time "we'll win it," Merchants, The Vs, 1955 world amateur champions, made several economy moves—cutting the roster to 12 from 15 and then salaries by 20 per cent, a move made voluntarily by the players.

In Kamloops, the players took a salary cut, too, but the situation went from bad to worse. Bob Dawes and Buddy Gibson quit in mid-December, refusing to take the 25-per-cent cut. Ali Ousman asked for his release.

GOALIE QUIT

Just before the new year, goalie Ken Kuntz left because the team's attendance was down.

Canucks Dump Spokane 4-0

Vancouver Canucks swept into second place in the Western Hockey League's Coast division Friday night with a 4-0 win over Spokane Flyers.

Seattle Totems picked up their 1st win of a current Prairie tour and Saskatoon Quakers defeated Edmonton Flyers 4-2 in other games.

Leftwinger Ron Howell, star halfback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union, made his league debut with Canucks. He gave a good account of himself. Spokane goalie Under Ernie Fyander fanned into the crowd, one hard shot fired by Howell.

The Saskatoon victory moved Quakers four points ahead of last - place Winnipeg in the Prairie division.

Bob Kabel led Quakers with two goals and Ron Lebesiere and Dave Balon got the others. Edmonton's goals were scored by Rex Kirasewich and Don Polic.

In Winnipeg, Warrior centre Terry Ross failed to report to camp or an assist, stopping his consecutive games - scoring mark at 23, a league record.

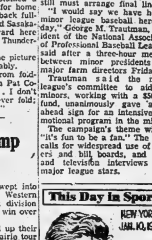
Minor Leagues Assured of Major Backing

CHICAGO (AP) — Minor baseball leagues have been assured major league backing in 20 loops for 1958 and also promised a campaign by the big leagues to bolster lagging attendance.



Twenty-four minor loops operated last season. At least 23 may continue this year although three still must arrange final lineups.

"I would say we have helped minor league baseball here today," George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, said after a three-hour meeting between minor leaders and major farm directors Friday.

Trautman said the major league's committee to aid the minors, working with a $500,000 fund, unanimously gave a go-ahead sign for an intensive promotional program in the minors.

The campaign's theme will be "It's fun to be a fan." The drive calls for widespread use of players and bill boards, and radio and television interviews with major league stars.

Macs Turn Back Hull-Ottawa Threat With 4-1 Win

Played Championship Hockey In Wide-Open Second Period To Salt Away Clean Victory

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands mushroomed their scoring potential in a wide-open second period here last night, slamming home four goals to a single return to defeat the fast-skating Hull-Ottawa Canadiens by a 4-1 score.

All five goals were sandwiched between the first and third scoreless frames with the Macs almost complete masters in the middle session. They outshot the Pollock-managed crew 32-25 on the night's play, blasting 19 shots to ten returns in the goal-producing second heat.

The Canadiens were minus the services of Connie Broden, their playing coach and Leo Gravelle, a newly-acquired pro. They used Gerry Brassard from the Quebec League in goal, and he, like Claude Dufour in the McFarland net, came up with a highly creditable performance.

The Macs played one of their better games, with their passing plays clicking generally. On not a few occasions they fired their way to the Canadiens goalmouth, but some shot-target shooting robbed them of higher scores.

They scored two goals in less than two minutes in the early stage of the second period, and added the other pair in a little over a minute towards the end of the frame. The Canadiens lone goal resulted on a clean breakaway while the Macs power-play was on after an Ottawan got the gate.

Minnie Menard was the main target hitter last night, accounting for two goals albeit one was deflected off a foeman's stick. Wiener Brown and Floyd Crawford got the others with Bradley, Dewsbury, Hildebrand, McLellan and Lamirande getting assists.

Bob Boucher was the Canadiens' biggest gun, skating in alone on Dufour with seconds to go in the first period and Annable and Begin were given assists.

While the checking was rugged at times, Referee Vern Dwyer had a comparatively easy time. Only eight penalties, all minors were assessed the Canadiens during five, two of which proved costly.

Dufour kicked out but Canadiens' drives in the first minute of the game before the McFarlands found their sea legs. From then on the scoreless period was a hard-driving, close-checking affair with the Ottawans edging the McFarlands 7-6 in the shots-on-goal.

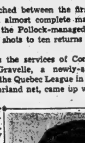
There was a lot of centre ice play with neither club getting anywhere. At 15:39 when Sarrazin drew the first penalty of the game, the Macs passed to their power play and Gerry Brassard the new Hull-Ottawa goalie was on the spot. Chicoutimi, kicked out three McFarland drives. Hildebrand and Lamirande went in twice for clean goals, but both missed the net.

Crawford was credited for elbowing at 18.30 and the Canadiens again got the trip-ticket for but it was shortlived as Boucher got the gate for elbowing with but a minute to go.

The Macs took every in the second period, targeting 19 shots to the Ottawans ten and being the masters of the margin.

They loosed their offensive power at the start and Wiener Brown broke the scoring ice at 1.07 after Crawford had carried out drives by Bradley and Dewsbury.

Begin was chased after crashing Hildebrand into the boards and the Macs power play paid off, Menard sinking Johnny McLellan's perfect pass from a spot near the Ottawa net.



Midway through the period Menard was heaved for high sticking and at 17.25. The same player was credited with the Macs' third goal when his pass to McLellan in front of the Ottawa goalmouth was deflected into the net off Longarini's stick.

The Macs held the balance of play and again their power play paid off after McNiff went off. Crawford's hard blast from just inside the blueline beat Brassard's mitt with Hildebrand and Lamirande assisting.

The goalmen bounced back with seconds to go when Boucher got into the clear on a clean breakaway only not a Mac in sight. He raced in on Dufour and beat the young goalie for the egg-breaker.

Mayor Gerald Hyde presented Gordie Bell with the Carlings Player of the Week trophy prior to the start of the third period.

The fast-skating Canadiens held the margin of territorial play in the third period although they only outshot the Macs 8-7. The Ikemen were brown on the defensive continuously as the goal-hungry Pollock pucksters drove in on unsuccessful forays.

Crawford and Dumouchel starred a private boxing match in one end of the rink while play swung to the other, and Ikeman Bill Hurst raced in to separate the pugnacious pair. Referee Vern Goyer tabbed the cuffers with minors for the only sentences of the period.

The Macs matched the speedy Hullsters with stubborn baseline checking and Dufour handled everything they hurled his way. The Ottawans took over in the last minutes of the game but Brassard and the tight Hull defence kept them off the scoring sheet.

Canada Faces Stiff Test In Basketball

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER CP)—Canada's world tournament basketball team faces no major and essentil task between departure from here Sunday and the opening of the competitions in Santi ago, Chile, Jan. 15.

It must quickly weld itself into a smooth-working unit.

"We picked this team as best we could to get fellows who could get along well together," says coach Fred Collen, 29, who in five years of coaching has had a junior and senior Canadian champion.

"We are hoping that in the time we take making the trip and in the two days we'll have there before the tournament starts that the boys will weld into a smooth-working unit.

"If they don't," he added, "then we'll probably do about what the Canadian team did at the 1956 Olympics."

BAD FINISH

That team, with four of the same players who are making the trip to Chile, finished in ninth place, after practising and playing together for six weeks before the games.

Collen, coach of Vancouver Elers who won the Canadian championship here and therefore became the nucleus of the world-tournament team, has had to plan his strategy from the workout or game with the entire squad on hand.

Ed Luchi, a six - feet - seven inch centre from Montreal, will join the club in Puerto Rico en route to Santiago, and three Alberni athletics players will not be available to join the all-star unit until now for exhibition games.

Regarding the Collen coach says he is quite confident the team will fare better than the 1956 Olympic-squad — "and we might surprise a lot of people."

Canada finished in the top three preliminary rounds, having been drawn against the established basketball powers of Russia and Brazil and Mexico.

In three exhibition appearances here in which they were billed as Canada's allstars, but in which they played without Luchi and the three Alberni players, the team has lost twice and won once.

Fighting Cop Back on Beat, Drops Decision to Armstrong

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Dixon, the fighting cop, is due back on the beat Monday in Newark, N.J. If he takes the advice of Gene (Ace) Armstrong, he'll stay there.

Armstrong, a unanimous 10-round decision winner over Dixon Friday night, wasn't talking about his opponent's ability as a fighter. His advice was strictly financial. "I hope this guy doesn't get any more fights than I do," he said, "unless people tell him to stay in cop. At least you get a regular pay day."

FEW FIGHTS

Although Armstrong has won 16 straight and still is unbeaten, he had only four fights in all last year. He gets by because he has a side job stacking bottles for a liquor company.

Dixon is due back on the job tonight. He worked the 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. trick Thursday night.

"In a couple of days, I'll know better," said Dixon after the fight when asked if he made up his mind between fighting or a police career. "A week needs a couple of days to think."

"It has to be one or the other," said his manager, Bobby Nelson. The police director of Newark, Joseph F. Weldon, couldn't agree more.

Weldon advised Dixon last week that department regulations bar a cop from moonlighting for jobs. Dixon first told Weldon he wanted to be a cop when he was said he felt he had an obligation to live up to his contract for the fight.

Weldon watched the fight on television at home. Afterwards he told a reporter, "I don't want to comment on that fight." He has refused to say what disciplinary action, if any, might follow.

Dixon gave it a good try but wasn't fast enough or clever enough to handle Armstrong. Dixon, 160½, had a weight edge on Armstrong, 155½. He got about $5,000 for the fight ($1,000 from TV and $1,000 from the gate) compared to his police annual salary of $4,600.

All three officials had Armstrong an easy winner. Referee Ruby Goldstein scored it 7-1-2, Judge Tony Castellano 8-1-1 and Judge Joe Agnello 7-3.

TIJUANA, Mex. (AP) — The $25,000 Tijuana Open was underway for the second round today with a couple of Yankees leading a field likely to be packed with international golf professionals.

Veteran Jerry Barber of Los Angeles and Dave Ragan — old John McMullin of Alameda, Calif., with matching rounds of 71 — one-stroke lead over their nearest challengers as the field of about 150 tees off on the par 36-36—72 Tijuana Country Club course.

Immediately behind the United States open champion Tommy Bell, Doug Ford and George Bayer are a quartet of pros who went into the second 18 holes boasting scores under par.

Adding international flavor to this event were contestants from England, Scotland, Canada as well as the bulk of the field from the United States.

Among the pro, Oswaldo di Vicenzo, a transplanted Argentine, had a first round 71. Amaldo Martinez of Pueblo 73 and Juan Neri of Mexico City 76.

Tom Bolt, Ed Oliver and Nell Coles, with even par. Harry Fox of Scotland had a 74.

The Canadian contingent included Al Balding of Toronto with 76-32—72 and Jerry Magee of Angeles and Moe Norman of Kitchener with 37-36—71 and 35-37—71 respectively.

Two strong contenders bowed early Friday. Billy Casper of Apple Valley had to quit after playing 13 holes complaining of a pain around the heart.

Britons Can Still Find Plenty Of Things to Argue About

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—At the beginning of 1958, Britain's outstanding professional golfer was under suspension for being impolite to his team captain. The year ended as amateur authorities forced a world-record swimmer into premature retirement because she wanted to be a film star.

The war between athletes and officials usually hits its peak in Olympic years when the issues are complicated by the current state of international politics.

But the Britons who play games and the Britons who tell them how they should be played have offered ample proof that, left to themselves, they can still find plenty of things to quarrel about.

COSTLY REMARK

Harry Weetman, power-hitting member of Britain's Ryder Cup team, lost six months' earning as a professional golfer as a result of the ill-judged remark that he would never play again under his team captain, Dai Rees.

Weetman had barely finished paying his debt to society when an even more acrimonious dispute arose in the world of cricket.

The centre of the storm was Johnny Wardle, a crafty Yorkshire spin-bowler who found himself simultaneously selected to play for England and notified that his county no longer required his services. The bowler promptly wrote an article for a London newspaper expressing forthright opinions of the merits of the Yorkshire management.

The Marylebone Cricket Club, ruling body of the sport, declared Wardle's talents for creating havoc among opposing batsmen were outweighed by his potential as a trouble-maker among his teammates and his invitation to tour Australia was withdrawn. The grateful newspaper hired Wardle as a cricket reporter and England embarked on a crucial five-test series involving a key deficiency in top-class spin bowling.

The perennial issue of amateur status was in the news recently although a face-saving solution literally covered the career of Christine Truman, the white hope of English tennis.

On the eve of the All-England championships at Wimbledon, a shocked British Lawn Tennis Federation discovered that photographs of Christine were to appear in a newspaper to illustrate a series of columns on how to play better tennis. Although no question of money was involved, the federation firmly ruled that publication of the photos would violate her amateur standing.

The newspaper blandly met the difficulty by backing out the page on top of Christine's unmistakably husky figure and identifying the subject as "Miss X." Honor was satisfied.

A similar dilemma confronted Judy Grinham, the world's fastest backstroke swimmer, when she was offered a contract by a British film company.

Disregarding the company's assurances that it wouldn't ask photograph Judy in a bathing suit, the Amateur Swimming Association scheduled an emergency meeting to discuss the dire consequences to almost-pure athletics of cashing in on their achievements.

Judy didn't wait to hear the sermon. She signed her contract and announced her retirement from competitive swimming.

"I think it's about time I started to earn a living," she said.

Juniors Fire 3 in Third Period To Hang 7-5 Defeat on Kingston

KINGSTON (Special) — Kingston's Junior B hockey team made a bid to regain their lead in the Central Ontario Junior B league at the Community Centre last night. They were foiled by a cool young netminder for the Belleville Lambert – Rollins who wound up on the right end of a 7-5 score to take over sole possession of third place in the league.

Four times the locals took the lead and four times the winners came back to tie the score and finally late in the final frame they rapped three unanswered counters past a shaky Wayne Nichols between the Kingston pipes.

Paced by Jim Zills, who earned a "hat-trick", the visitors weathered a flood of rubber in the first two periods and then, with a visibly lightened defence went on to win the somewhat dull contest.

The 302 fans were forced to endure two periods of sloppy hockey before the third period when the final outcome of the game was in doubt until 27 seconds before the final siren when Larry Mavety pumped the disc into an open Kingston net for the insurance marker.

Although Belleville outshot Kingston in every frame, Moxam was forced to come up with some remarkable saves and in the he was ably assisted by a rock-like defence when Kingston started to press in the dying minutes of the game. His counterpart in the opposite end of the rink had more rubber tossed at his cage but blew two goals. Nichols also had the misfortune of playing behind only three defencemen who at times were of little help except to screen him on shots. Belleville had a safety lead, scoring 22 seconds after the opening whistle on a neat counter by Roger Moxam.

The Mootomen tied the score 34 seconds later when representative John Myles deflected a shot that caught Moxam unawares. Buddy Aylesworth put the visitors a 2-1 lead a few minutes later.

The middle session ended in a 4-4 draw as the visitors battled back on three occasions to earn the draw. Ellis picked up two counters and assisted Gregory Goyer on the third. Dennis O'Donnell, a standout for Kingston, and Reg Mulholland accounted the losers' goals.

In the final it was Belleville all the way as the faltering Johnston's Motors squad blew another lead early in the first period by Doug Senior, Jack Elliott got the counter, and Ellis the winner. Ken Matthews attempted strategy in pulling Nichols with a two minutes 23 seconds left in the game backfired when Mavety fired into the open net.

Playoff Race Tightens in American League

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battle for one of the four playoff positions in the American Hockey League was a little tighter tonight with victories by Cleveland and Rochester.

Cleveland Barons moved within one-point of second place Hershey by defeating Springfield Indians 6-1, and Rochester Americans, capitalizing on Springfield's setback, climbed out of the cellar and into a tie for fourth with the Indians on a 6-2 victory over Providence. The Reds dropped into last place, a point back of Rochester and Springfield.

In chasing their third straight victory, the Barons tallied one goal in the first period, two in the second and one in the third. Jim Anderson spoiled goalie Gerry McNamara's shutout with a goal at 15:04 of the final period, Cleveland scorers were Gordon Gwozdz, Ryan Hogan, Mike Labadie and Bob Ballantyne.

The Americans ran up a 4-0 lead over the Reds before Paul Andrea tallied at 9:22 of the final period. Rochester's final period goal was Connie Dion's 31st of the campaign. Other Rochester marksmen were Cec Hoekstra, Bruce Major, Ray Hannah and rookie star Bill Hicke, with two. Ray Ross also tallied for the Reds.

Hunting the Cottontail Rabbit

Very few children grow to maturity these days for, for that matter, any days within the last sixty years without being familiar with Uncle Remus and his stories about the animals. From there it is not difficult to discover the high respect which is accorded the cottontail rabbit by the American negro.

According to Uncle Remus, Br'er Rabbit was by far the most intelligent, resourceful, and wily of all the creatures of our outdoors, surpassing even the fox. He exploits have been featured in print, radio and television for more than half a century, to the delight of countless thousands of children.

But fondness and respect for the cottontail is not confined to citizens of color. Joel Chandler Harris, creator of Uncle Remus, was a white man and, beyond all question, a hunter — a rabbit hunter. People in fact, today by many millions of hunters follow in his footsteps in the annual pursuit of the cottontail rabbit.

In addition to being the most popular of our game animals, the cottontail is the most put-upon of the creatures of the wild. Every predator — foxes, hawks, owls, weasels, cats, etc. — picks on the cottontail's supply of tasty meat. Fortunately, nature has equipped the rabbit with two sure-fire means of survival — speed of foot and an extremely gifted

Contrary to popular misconception, rabbits do not nest in holes, nor do they dig holes for safety purposes. So long as woodchucks, groundhogs, etc., are willing to do the digging, the Cottontail is content to use these sanctuaries as havens of refuge when occasion demands. No need to exert himself with laborious burrowing when others will do it for him.

A cottontail's nest is an informal affair at best. It consists merely of a shallow scooped-out place in the earth, usually on sloping ground to provide drainage. Generally there is overhead protection of sorts, such as grass clumps, bushes, etc., and the nest is lined with leaves, grass and fur from the coat of the mother.

The families that rabbits raise vary in number according to the geographical area. In the north with as many as eight or nine youngsters, packed like sardines. Conversely, the two nests that were in one of our flower beds under the cabin each held only four babies.

Rabbits are born, of course, without fur. They look like so many little pink grubs. However, they mature rapidly. The mother feeds them usually at night. During the day the little things huddle in the nest, digesting, sleeping and growing. They leave the nest when they are quite young, not more than four inches long from nose to tail. Once out of the nest, each bunny is on his own with no help from his mother.

Hunting rabbits can be as simple as pastime as strolling through the fields and woods, trusting to luck for an occasional shot. However, the real sport lies in hunting them with a well-trained beagle or pack of beagles. Those little vacuum cleaners will locate and chase just about every bunny in any patch of cover.

Once flushed from his hiding place by a beagle, a rabbit would be perfectly safe if he were content to place distance between himself and the dog, running in a straight line. However, once a rabbit has selected a certain area as his personal stamping ground, he is reluctant to leave that area. So he runs in a circle, taking the dog for a nice long journey through the countryside but eventually circling back to his original point of departure. Therein lies his undoing. All the hunter need do is to seat himself comfortably somewhere near the starting point of the chase, limit a crazed, and keep his eyes peeled for action by listening to the baying of the little dog. Sooner or later the rabbit will show up and offer him the chance of a shot.

Some states in America produce more rabbits than others although not a few of them boast annual "harvests" of one million or more. Missouri, an outstanding rabbit state, reports kills of more than six million rabbits in 1956 and again in 1957. That, as they you look at it, is a lot of hasenpfeffer and rabbit stew.

TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER

Damp, rainy weather — followed by frigid temperatures would be a good time to freeze a tennis rotor which will not budge in either direction. If this should happen to you, don't try to turn the aerial — you could burn out the transformer or damage the gears in the rotor. All you can do is to be contented with the channel to which the aerial happens to be turned.

The only cure for this trouble is to have the antenna dismantled and the rotor taken inside and thoroughly dried — a relatively simple operation.

Don't let a faulty aerial rotor spoil your television enjoyment! The technicians at CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St. are experts on antenna and rotor repairs, and installations. Phone WO 8-7711 (or Trenton EX 2-7669) for fast, expert service!

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A duel between Calumet Farm's Bardstown and Claiborne Farm's Nadir looms in the $50,000-added Tropical Pary Handicap today.

Fifteen horses are entered.

Bardstown, who urged his seven-year-old frame to a track record for a mile and 1-16 in winning the $75,000 Orange Bowl Handicap a week ago, has the problem of carrying two pounds more a sixteenth of a mile farther today.

That there is a general idea he can do it is indicated by the fact he is rated favorite at 2-1.

Nadir, which passed up the Orange Bowl challenge, is 5-2. He will carry four pounds less than Bardstown's 126 and will be ridden by Willie Hartack. Steve Brooks again will be up on Bardstown.

Russians Bury Colorado Under 11-5 Avalanche

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Sixty seconds were all the Russian All-Stars required to convince Colorado College and a capacity crowd of 3,200 fans of their hockey prowess . Friday night.

The visitors scored twice in the first minute of the second period and added another to an 11-5 victory over the collegians.

So easy was the conquest, their fourth in five games against U.S. opposition, that the Russians rate as heavy favorites over second Denver University tonight. Like Colorado College, Denver's team is composed entirely of Canadian talent. But the Pioneers have back many of the veterans who last year captured the NCAA title.

The Soviets' two goals at the start of the second period, in an 11-second span, broke a 2-2 tie and left the doubt as to the outcome.

After the Tigers struck early for their two goals in the first period, Russia tallied 10 straight goals and then slowed the pace in an apparent effort to hold down the score.

Benjamin Aleksandrov, a 21-year-old centre, had a hand in each of the winners' first five goals. He scored their first three and assisted on the next two. Constantine Loktev, 25, a Red Army lieutenant, then punched three goals through CC goalie Bob Southwood.

The Russians were called for five penalties, Colorado College only once.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The comics are in full rout.

Friday night, a western called Rawhide took over in the spot occupied by Jackie Gleason. After a lackluster return to the home screen, Gleason gave up his mid-season victim of poor ratings.

Word also came that George Gobel will lose half an hour of his show. George Burns has been fighting for survival as a single, doing some of his shows live as a stimulus to tired ratings. Ed Wynn's show already is a casualty.

The decline of comedy is all the more puzzling when you consider the history of TV's predecessor, radio. Back in those days of unseen entertainment, the comics were the undisputed kings of the air waves. The top shows were generally those of Jack Benny, Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen, Fibber McGee and Molly, Red Skelton, etc. Not a cowpoke among them.

MUST HAVE HORSE

Now in TV, it's tough to get a rating unless you ride a horse. Discounting the situation comedy shows, which require a story line to sustain interest, about the only surviving weekly practioner of the fine art of belly funny is Milton Berle and Red Skelton.

Some of my choicest memories of the early days of TV concern comedy. The elaborate spoofery of Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca, the suave pantomime of Alan Young and Donald O'Connor, Ed Wynn's wonderful nonsense and the early Jimmy Durante shows.

So what happened to comedy on TV?

You could theorize for days. I offer this thesis: Humor becomes less funny when it becomes more intrusive. Radio was a perfect medium for comedy because the listener could use his own imagination. When the visual image is added, humor declines. Red Skelton has survived because he is essentially a visual clown whereas his colleagues are largely gag comics.

Intrusion is compounded by weekly exposure to the funnyman. Nobody can come into your home that often and be funny every time.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Sunday, January 11

Aries (March 21 to March 19) — An unkind remark by some hasty individual could easily cause you to retaliate in kind and thereby get into an unfortunate quarrel. Exercise control and steer clear of such individual, male or female, and retain our dignity. Laugh.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — An associate now keeps you from plunging into some new venture, so you had better not get angry over it. Hide your true feelings and bide your time. Coolness at this point saves partner you need and gives time for more study.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Instead of stewing about something for which you cannot seem to find the right solution, seek the advice of some famous advisor and follow his or her recommendations for early and best results.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Following that peculiar hunch you have today could really get you in quite a pickle. Be content with matters as they are and work diligently along established lines. Stick to those persons and pleasures that have proven merit.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Are you still plodding along in that antiquated fashion and being satisfied with yourself? Give an ear to wise persons who have a more modern slant and are dynamic, less detrimentally pedantic. Wake up!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — You want to hold fast to some work that is fast getting you down. Respect the Sabbath instead and attend services of your choice where you will be inspired and get the peace of soul so important to you right now.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — You are assailed by the wrong intuitions right now and want to fly off the handle with almost everyone. Think instead and be the soul of gentility. True satisfaction comes from harmony.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Stop to consider that the other members of your family have worries of their own before you get angry if they do not give their undivided attention to yours. Do not criticize but learn to co-operate by helping them with their problems.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Do only the most necessary work today. Be sure to attend services and also listen to the comments and suggestions of others. Spend quite some time reading your books on religious philosophy, etc., that will enrich your life.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Try to use real understanding today instead of endeavoring to impress others with highfalutin talk. Also, learn to be more economical. The simple, wholesome, inexpensive pleasures are the best in the long run.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You have an almost uncontrollable impulse to do something quite radical in the world of affairs, which would be most detrimental to you and startle others out of their wits. Think of safeguarding present security instead.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — If you but study the life of truly famous people, you will know that the degree of achievement has been proportionate to their spiritual understanding. Study more along this all-important line and increase your success in life. Be broadminded.

If your child is born today ... The remarkable child born today will accomplish most in life in professions where straightening out disputes, either between two people or large groups, is concerned. Fine for the lawyer, judge, labor leader, etc. Hence, he is fine an edueation as possible, not neglecting the spiritual and human attributes of living, and begin to save now for college tuition. It will be your greatest investment, joy.

San Angelo barracks Tuesday by Chaumont's group, a rebel lieutenant has been assigned to discuss the future of the island with the directorate.

Chaumont said that if his group was given the choice of returning the arms or fighting "we will not make war."

Another group which has been causing some concern here is the Communist party. There is evidence it is trying to gain control of the labor movement.

However, Major Camilo Cienfuegos, Havana province commander, said:

"We cannot consider communism a crime when there is freedom and freedom exist in this Cuban democracy.

In Ciudad Trujillo, capital of dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo's Dominican Republic, Batista's prime minister-in-exile fled because his military men told him it was impossible to maintain order.

Gonzalo Guell added:

"Since it was impossible to reorganize the Batista forces by changes in command, and owing to the shortage of armaments and a sound desire not to shed more blood, President Batista resigned . . ."

Belgium Sends Nine to Probe Riots in Congo

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—A nine-man parliamentary delegation today prepared to leave for the Belgian Congo where 42 Africans were killed and 206 injured in anti-European riots earlier this week.

The investigating body was voted Thursday by the House of Representatives in a special session called by Premier Gaston Eyskens. The all-party delegation will stay in the Congo three months.

In two days of violence starting last Sunday, 49 Europeans were injured and 300 Africans arrested, seven public schools and seven Roman Catholic mission schools were sacked and several million dollars damage done in the Coorte capital of Leopoldville. All but 96 Africans have been released.

ARREST LEADER

The arrest was announced of Joseph Kasabuvu, leader of the Abako African political movement who was blamed by Belgians as having organized the rioting in outbreaks of violent fight for independence.

Congo Minister Arthur Maurice Van Hemelryck told parliament Thursday:

"We are all responsible for these events. The germs of liberty which governs in the hearts of all men has been ignored."

He added that the African nationalism in Leopoldville "has been wailing for a long time to hear from the Belgian government what attitude its African policy is going to take. This attitude ought to have been defined sooner."

Van Hemelryck said African troops commanded by Belgian officers had fired at demonstrators only in the last extremity.

Abako leader Kasabuvu was charged with inciting racial hatred and attending an unauthorized meeting. the Belgian news agency reported. It added Congo authorities are considering banning his political movement.

According to van Hemelryck, a major cause of the riots was unemployment in the Leopoldville's Negro population.

Vegetable Garden Improvements

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Do you want more vitamins in your vegetables, or do you want them larger? Perhaps you would like smaller ones for your small family, or do you want kinds that keep better?

I find a dozen new vegetables offered in the seed catalogues last promise better returns for your time and money.

The All American Award went to a new bean called Garden Green Shepherd. It is a gorgeous bush type which produced straight round pods five and a half inches long, stringless, crisp and smooth. The pods are easily pulled from the vine and held well above the ground. The flavor is good and it has disease resistant. Pick pods when plants are dry.

Jade Green Brussels Sprouts is the other winner. It is a hybrid bred to stem firmly packed with solid sprouts of a blue-green color. Plants are nearly two feet tall and while it produces all summer the sprouts are more crisp in cool weather. Mildew and black-jet resistant.

Baby Cabbage is new. Each head weighs approximately one pound. Another advantage of this is a succession of heads two months. Another cabbage Danish Resistant also is hybrid is round firm and medium size and good color. This is an early cabbage and is resistant to yellow virus.

FOR SALAD BOWL

For the salad bowl here are two tomatoes and a new head lettuce. Lakeland, a cross between dwelgbyed at Belleville, Maryland, and looks like a good type for northern areas. It is medium green with medium size heads. Resistant to rib discoloration and tip burn. Sprinkle lime or coal ashes around plants to discourage slugs. Another special-ital Tomato is fine for canning or table, has a low acid content, few seeds. The shape is a flattened globe, color deep red. Caro-Red Tomato is high in Vitamin A, a daily necessity to our health. The color is orange-red, good flavor, fine for table, juice or canning. Fertilize tomatoes with plenty of potash and phosphorus.

Two new table corns are offered, Gold Cup and Gold Crest. Gold Cup Cobs are about eight inches long with tiny kernels close packed with luscious flavor. Most stocks yield two cobs. Gold Crest is an early corn about 67 days. Stalks five feet tall, kernels tender, sweet, cobs filled to the tip. Good for freezing.

For dessert three melons are offered. Spartan Rock Muskmelon was developed in Michigan. It is an early, small melon averaging two-to three pounds each. Very sweet and a high yielder.

Sushi King Watermelon is unusual in that the plant is bush form and will take up approximately only six square feet. Old type take three to four times this space per plant.

Early Jumbo Watermelon matures early, has a deep green rind and red flesh with white seeds. The sugar content is high and the fruits weigh 20 to 25 pounds.

All melons need plenty of water, full sun and rich soil.

The Week's News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fidel Castro received a delirious welcome when he made his victory march into Havana—in a jeep, with a helicopter hovering overhead.

The 32-year-old hero of the Cuban revolution entered the capital just a week from the day that dictator Fulgencio Batista fled to exile, capitulating after facing two bitter years of guerrilla fighting.

Some 5,000 rebel troops on tanks and other vehicles escorted Castro to the presidential palace, where he was greeted by provisional President Manuel Urrutia.

Many countries extended recognition to the new Cuban government, including the United States and Britain. The external affairs department in Ottawa said Canada also is extending recognition.

Meanwhile, grim retribution had started in Cuba in the form of "war crimes" trials by revolutionary courts. At least 15 military men were executed and more than 1,000 others were held.

PRESIDENT DE GAULLE

Gen. Charles de Gaulle began the second day of his bloodless French revolution when he was proclaimed leader of the Fifth Republic and the French overseas community.

De Gaulle's first official act as president was to name Michel Debre, 46, former minister of justice and one of his strongest supporters, as premier in his place.

Debre's government — announced shortly afterward — included most of the ministers who have served de Gaulle since his return to power June 1, except the Socialists who rejected the general's authority program.

ART TREASURES

The external affairs department announced that part of the Polish art treasure held in Canada since the Second World War will be returned to its homeland.

Poland sought haven for the historic treasure in Canada at the time of the Hitler invasion, then the whole thing became an issue of diplomatic wrangling when the Communists came to power in Poland after the Second World War.

Stored in Ottawa are the crown jewels of ancient Polish kings along with priceless scrolls and Chopin's original manuscripts. These will be returned.

Still to be decided is another part of the collection, including 132 rare tapestries, stored in the Quebec Provincial Museum under the watchful eye of Premier Maurice Duplessis.

STORM SIGNALS

Old Man Winter laid siege to much of Canada and the United States, with freezing temperatures, heavy snowfall and roaring gales. Here are a few highlights:

In Quebec, rescue crews punched through 20-foot snowdrifts and rode their snowplows into Napierville Wednesday to free most of the 300 motorists stranded since Sunday by a snowstorm.

In Nova Scotia, the fishing vessel Robert and Brian struck a reef and broke up in bitter cold and thunder-whipped winds near Isaac's Harbor, 30 miles east of Antigonish.

Captain Stewart Demone of Lunenburg, N.S., said later that he and his three-man crew were within an hour of drowning—after being exposed to the cold for four hours—when they were rescued by another fishing vessel.

In Newfoundland, two trains carrying 700 passengers arrived in St. John's Thursday night—just 36 hours late and the other 64—after being stuck in snowdrifts.

ECONOMIC TALKS

Canada and the United States held cabinet-rank talks in Ottawa on trade-and-tariff matters at a joint committee set up in 1953 to iron out economic problems between the two countries.

The meeting decided, among other things, that wheat exports in the two countries will be brought together every three months in attempts to resolve Canadian complaints over the impact of American wheat sales always on Canada's commercial markets.

Finance Minister Fleming said the "utmost harmony" prevailed at the two-day conference, which called on European countries to speed up elimination of import curbs against North American goods.

CONGO RIOTS

The Belgians have done much for the economic welfare of the Africans but have withheld any significant degree of independence, and this is blamed for the riots which resulted in 42 deaths, 208 injuries and 596 arrests.

In Brussels, Congo Affairs Minister Maurice van Hemelrijck told a special parliament session: "We are all responsible for these events. The price of liberty will generates in the heart of all men who been ignored."

Parliament ordered a nine-man delegation to investigate the riots in the Belgian Congo.

LUNAR ORBIT?

Soviet scientists calculated that the cosmic rocket Mechta (Dream) will swung itself into orbit around the sun and is edging up toward its top speed of about 72,000 miles an hour (20 miles a second).

These late reports on the Lunik were based strictly on calculation, since radio contact was lost Jan. 4 and Soviet scientists say it may come close enough to the earth in 1960 for another look for observation.

The scientists maintain the manmade "planet" will continue in its egg-shaped orbit, perhaps 'always.'

HERE AND THERE

Three men and a woman, all British, who tried a transatlantic balloon trip, reached their goal as shipwrecked mariners—arriving in Barbados weary but unhurt in their 15-foot lifeboat-gondola. . . . Howard Rudy, 44, and his three young children were killed when their half-ton pickup truck was struck by a freight train near Klickitat, Wash. . . . Police Release Michigan Man In Bond Case

DETROIT (AP)—A man held for questioning in obtaining money under false pretences in connection with the small-until Hum-dollar robbery of a Brockville, Ont., bank was released Friday when police said they had no charges against him.

Ivan Batten, 45, of suburban Birmingham, was picked up Thursday by state police on information from Ontario police that he had cashed two $1,000 bearer bonds Dec. 20 in Essex, Ont. Detective Sgt. Stan Smith said the bonds were part of the loot taken last May from the Brockville bank.

Batten said he did not know the bonds were part of the Brockville bank loot.

Smith said some $9,000,000 of the $11,000,000 in stocks and securities taken from the bank have since been recovered. He also said about $2,000,000 in loot still is in circulation.

The Brockville Trust and Savings Company was robbed last May 3. Two large vaults and a number of safety deposit boxes were emptied. Officials of the company at Montreal said at the time the loot totalled "at least $3,350,000."

FRISCO BAY

Sitting on the stairway in her home near Los Angeles, Mrs. Cecil Whitman watches the new car her grand plano to see if it can still be played. Covering the floor to a depth of two feet is a layer of mud deposited in the living room by a flood caused by a torrential downpour which also inundated streets in this city. The Whitman home is located in the Benedict Canyon area where two weeks ago a fire burned many houses and scorched hundreds of acres of ground.

AYLMER Ont. (CP) — The 1960 international plowing match will be held on the farms of Thomas J. Hume and Sons and Charles Clarke and some adjoining lands three miles north of here.

The Hume farm covers about 200 acres and the Clarke farm 400 acres.

Duplessis Says Polish Treasure Stand Is Same

QUEBEC . (CP)—Premier Duplessis says nothing has come up to change his provincial government's stand on the Polish treasures kept in the Quebec Provincial Museum.

During a press conference Friday Mr. Duplessis was asked to comment on an announcement in Ottawa Thursday that two trunks of Polish treasures at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal in the capital city will be returned to Poland.

Asked about his reaction to the announcement, Mr. Duplessis said: "My reaction is simple. Ottawa has federal powers, we have provincial powers. Federal matters are settled by Ottawa, provincial questions by Quebec. Nothing has come up to modify our stand."

Mr. Duplessis did not repeat previous statements that his government would never turn over the treasures to the Polish Communist regime. But his statement was taken as an indication the situation remains unchanged. Value of the array of jewels, tapestries, solid gold imperial ornamentation and coronation robes has been estimated at $50,000,000.

IRON ORE AT HAND

He noted that the Belcher Islands, 400 miles to the north in Hudson Bay are said to contain millions of tons of ore running 30 to 45 per cent iron. Moosonee would become a refining and shipping site for the ore.

There was a possibility of developing local traffic in the southern portion of Hudson Bay which was warmer than the north.

Col. C. E. Reynolds, chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission which runs the ONR, reported last summer that a seaport at Moosonee would open up great mineral opportunities in the region. He said the Hudson Bay route to the Atlantic was open three months each year.

Moosonee was first named more than 300 years ago by an English explorer, Captain James, who formed a temporary settlement at the site. It was little more than an Indian stopping place until July of 1932 when the ONR line from Cochrane was completed. Officials revived the old name for the railway station.

Deer Herd Will Be Reduced By One Half

RONDEAU PARK, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario deer season is closed now but half a dozen hunters expect to rack up a kill of 100 head this week in the 5,000-acre Rondeau Provincial Park on Lake Erie some 16 miles southwest of Chatham. And it's all quite legal.

The hunters are employees of the Ontario department of lands and forests, members of the park's winter staff assigned to reduce by one half the park's herd of 200 deer.

District Forester J. K. Reynolds, whose office is at Aylmer, says the aim is to preserve the natural wooded beauty of the park, one of the most popular in Ontario, where rare species of trees are threatened with extinction from browsing deer.

The hunted deer contribute nothing to the park, says Mr. Raynolds. They are rarely seen by visitors since they are wild and remain hidden in the woods.

Mr. Reynolds said the park's forests may not recover from the damage in the present century.

The park once conjoined one of Ontario's finest stands of sassafras trees, a southern species. But the deer herd has wiped out all but the largest and oldest trees. Basswood, ironwood, tulip-trees and white pine are among others suffering a similar fate.

The six hunters killed 50 in the first three days of the season. The deer killed in the hunt are being given to charitable institutions.

Kidnapped Baby Found Alive, Well In Brooklyn Apt.

Woman With 7 Children Booked on Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—The kidnapped Chinook baby has been found alive and healthy in a Brooklyn apartment, police said today.

The infant was located Sunday night in the Brooklyn apartment of Mrs. Jean Iavarone, a 43-year-old widow with seven living children.

Chief of detectives James B. Leggett said the child "certainly" is the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chiochio.

She was 24½ hours old when she was taken.

Leggett's statement came after the FBI announced the father had identified the child on the basis of a "general family resemblance" and a small scar over the left eye which Chiochio had noticed the night the baby was born.

"I feel very happy," Chiochio said at St. Peter's Hospital, where the infant was taken Sunday night. He left the hospital to carry the news to his wife.

He said she knew only that he was going to the hospital to look at "a baby."

Mrs. Iavarone denied kidnapping the baby girl said.

After a long period of questioning through the night, Mrs. Iavarone was booked on charge of kidnapping. An official at the district attorney's office said "there is no doubt on the basis of scientific evidence, that she took the child."

YOUNGEST EVER

The youngest baby ever kidnapped here, the child was taken before her parents had had the chance to leave her baptized Lisa Rose.

Power house excavation for the 20,000 - kilowatt nuclear power demonstration project has been completed and first concrete will be poured shortly, the commission said in its year-end review.

Construction of the plant near the Des Joachims generating station on the Ottawa River was resumed in July 1957 after being suspended for more than a year to incorporate design changes.

The commission is also participating in the design and development of a full - size nuclear plant. Site of the plant has not yet been established but present plans envisage the first unit of the proposed heavy-water, natural-uranium type plant in the 350,000-kilowatt range.

The commission said one oil four units will be added to the Richard L. Hearn steam plant in Toronto is scheduled for service early this year. All units were expected to be in operation by 1960 and will give the plant a capacity of 200,000 kilowatts.

Other expansion programs by the commission call for two coal-fired plants in the Toronto-Hamilton area; construction of a coal-fired plant to be known as Lakeview generating station in Northwestern Ontario; completion in 1961 of the 38,000-kilowatt project at Red Rock Falls development in the Mississagi River, 12 miles northeast of Thessalon.

MORE EXECUTIONS AS REBEL LEADER HURRIES TRIALS

Batista Followers Feel Castro's Wrath

HAVANA (AP) — Executions of the followers of former Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista are mounting as the forces of rebel leader Fidel Castro continue hurry-up military trials.

Thus far about 50 Batista supporters have been executed. Nearly 3,000 are awaiting trial.

Asked on a U.S. television program Sunday why the Batista followers were being executed without open trials, Castro said: "There were not so many . . . I don't believe they were criminals."

"They were judged," he said, adding that "if anyone killed or ate people, he has no right to live."

The interview was recorded in Havana Saturday.

BODIES MUTILATED

Correspondent Jules Dubois of the Chicago Tribune reported that the mutilated bodies of 160 anti-Batista rebels were found Sunday in a mass grave on the outskirts of San Cristobal, 60 miles west of Havana.

Military authorities announced Sunday that 56 soldiers will be allowed to witness the firing squad executions of 56 rebels on Monday. But they will be allowed to see the bodies afterward.

He said his country now is and will remain a democracy.

POSITION SECURE

Castro also said his "26th of July movement" is in a secure position. He said, however, that within the disciplined rebel revolutionary directorate, another anti-Batista group, are "three or four" persons trying to play with fire, but they won't go far because no one will pay attention to them."

All public and private schools closed since before Christmas were ordered to reopen today.

The U.S. Embassy diplomatic sources said a career diplomat probably will replace E. T. Smith as U.S. ambassador to Cuba. Smith, who resigned Saturday, is a wealthy Florida investment banker who lives in Palm Beach, Fla. He has been criticized by Castro supporters, of having been pro-Batista.

17 Persons Die in Mishaps Across Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventeen persons died in accidental mishaps across Canada during the weekend, a Canadian Press survey showed today.

The total comprised 11 deaths in traffic, one in a fire and another by drowning. In Manitoba a man was accidentally shooting and an infant died from smothering in a snowdrift. Escaping gas caused a fatality in Alberta and there was an asphyxiation in Ontario.

This is the total by provinces: Ontario, four; Alberta 2, Manitoba 2, Ontario 3, Quebec 7, Nova Scotia 2, Saskatchewan 1.

The Ontario dead:

Bernard Cocholo, 49f of Windsor, fatally injured Friday night when he was struck by a car on a street.

Joseph Zupancic, 22, of Burlington, killed when his motorcycle collided head-on with a car on Hamilton Saturday night. Witnesses said he was hurled over the handlebars and crashed through the car windshield.

Report of Committee Proceedings Shows How Khrushchev Operates

A rare insight into how the people's Soviet parliament conducts such a meeting was disclosed here with publication of the proceedings of the Dec. 15-19 sessions.

T. A. Yurkin, deputy minister of the Russian federated republic, wanted to know what to do with the unwanted factories were unable to process.

Khrushchev interrupted: "Feed them to your pigs. You will get good fat pigs."

Yurkin recalled that the Soviet farm plan already sets aside potatoes for pigs.

"If your refineries can't process sugar beets then let the pigs eat them and convert them into fat," Khrushchev replied.

Eisenhower to Tell Mikoyan Allies Have No Intention Of Abandoning West Berlin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is expected to impress upon Russia's Anastas Mikoyan this week that the West-ern allies have no intention of abandoning West Berlin or creating a neutralized Germany.

Eisenhower and Premier Nikita Khrushchev's deputy will meet in the White House late this week.

Interest in the forthcoming discussions was sharpened at Cabinet the weekend by two surprise Moscow moves. These were:

1. In notes to the 27 countries which fought Nazi forces during the war, the Soviet government proposed a 28-country conference to meet at a "high level" within two months to write a German peace treaty. The 12-page Russian note also contained a 23-page detailed outline for a treaty, including provisions for withdrawal of Western and Soviet troops from Germany and a ban on German participation in any military alliance. Truckers Denounce Accord, Want President to Resign

TORONTO (CP) — A working agreement for 7,000 Ontario truck drivers appeared to be headed for trouble today after a stormy meeting of union officials announced the agreement and the vote in which it was approved.

Rebellious members of Local 938 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (CLC) Sunday demanded the resignation of their president and decided to hold a new vote on the controversial contract, which involves some 65 Ontario trucking firms.

President Kenneth McDougall of Oshawa said he would step down only if more than half the members were upheld by a union investigating committee.

The agreement in question was drawn up in negotiations last November between 65 employers and the motor transport industrial relations branch of the Automotive Transport Association. It covers 39 months with five wage increases totalling 30 cents by Jan. 1, 1961. These would bring the minimum rate for truckers in Toronto and other large Ontario centres to $1.75 an hour.

A membership vote on the proposals was held in December.

Union members announced Sunday that the contract was for too long a period and the wage boost too small. They asked for the president's resignation after a two-man committee told of investigating Teamsters Local 938 in a manner in which the vote was taken.

Gordon Newman and Harper Lazier said there was no voter list and members were not required to show their union cards before they could vote. Shouting members demanded to know how Mr. Hoffa could be elected without a copy of the investigation report.

Mr. McDougall said the new agreement with the motor transport bureau had not yet been signed and that the union offered if other locals at Windsor and Hamilton should refuse to sign, Toronto local takes in Cornwall, Ottawa and Northern Ontario.

E. W. Murray, bureau manager, said in an interview Sunday night that it was assumed he had a collective agreement with the three locals. He said the bureau had advised that the contract was ratified by members and that a memorandum of agreement was signed by bureau and union officials.

Africans Flee On Way to Court

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Seventeen African prisoners alleged to be members of the notorious Msomi gang escaped from a prison van today while on the way to court.

The men were being taken to court from Pretoria Central jail for preparatory examination on charges of murder, attempted murder, robbery with violence and arson.

Seventeen prisoners jumped out and mingled with people standing by. Police said the driver an African constable guard pushed the door closed and prevented the rest of the prisoners from escaping.

Hydro and Union To Resume Talks On Wage Dispute

TORONTO (CP)—The possibility of a province-wide strike by 10,000-member Hydro Electric employees Union remained today as negotiations resumed between union negotiators for the union and the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

No strike date has been set by the union, which has membership authority to call one if necessary. The parties were reported to be far apart in talks which were adjourned Thursday.

Negotiations were to have taken place during the weekend however, and both sides have agreed to meet Prime Minister Daley for conciliation if current talks fail.

The major split is understood to be over wage increases for a two-year contract. The union has scaled down wage demands to 10 cents per hour per year, down for the first year, but under their conditions wants the second year left open for further discussion.

Hydro has stood firm on a 15-cent offer, for the term with the conciliation board report. The old contract expired last April.

FORD EMPLOYEES WIN 18-CENT HIKE OVER 39 MONTHS

Chrysler Workers Yet to Settle

TORONTO (CP)—It's two down and one to go for George Burt's United Auto Workers union (CLC).

Sunday night, four hours before a 10 p.m. strike deadline would have closed Ford of Canada plants at Windsor, Oakville and Toronto, the UAW's Canadian director and the company agreed on a 39-month contract containing three six-cent hourly wage increases.

Today, the 8,500 Ford workers are to vote on the package won by their chiefs. The Windsor vote will be held at 9 a.m. and those at Toronto and Oakville at 2 p.m.

The Ford pact is almost identical to the one the UAW reached with General Motors Dec. 5. GM has 15,000 Canadian employees at Oshawa, London, Ont., and St. Catharines.

STRIKE NEXT

Next on the list is the Chrysler Corporation of Canada whose 6,000 hourly workers have voted 96 per cent for a strike although no deadline has been set.

Sunday night, dog-tired after a mutually-exhausting, 32-hour bargaining session, Burt said simply: "It's been a long, hard, grueling one." The final meeting of the protracted talks lasted from 10 p.m. Saturday to 4 a.m. Sunday.

Ford men at Oakville, 25 miles west of Toronto, jumped the gun and quit at 1 p.m. Friday before Burt called off the walkout ing to clear its stock of 2,500 vehicles before the Sunday deadline.

The UAW said it supported the 39-day walkout although it had not authorized it. The Windsor and Toronto plants finished the day normally.

The UAW originally wanted a seven-hourly increase in a two-year contract but had to settle for three cents over 39 months.

LOSE ON INSURANCE

Ford, on the other hand, lost the day in its insistence that the UAW foot over 50 per cent of the medical health insurance costs—currently paid for by the now-pay $1.00 per cent. Neither did Burt go for the alternative proposal of "opting" with the UAW membership absorb any further increases in future premiums.

The wage increases at Ford are effective Monday, Dec. 1, 1958 and Dec. 1, 1960. These will be applied to the average hourly rate of $2.40 in effect Dec. 1.

Effective also is an eight-cent additional payment on the $1.17 night shift premium — cutter-grinders and small-tool repairmen at Windsor.

The company's pension contributions were increased from 85 cents per hour for each year of employment to $2.40 prior to Jan. 1, 1959 and $2.50 after.

Pravda Sees Time Near When Men Will Explore Whole Solar System

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia today discussed details of the journey of her cosmic rocket to its orbit around the sun and said space travel is "not far off."

The Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda published a detailed report on the rocket and the first "sun Spaceship" is carried the report was quoted by the official Soviet news agency Tass, which followed up with its own account of how the rocket blazed its trail into the moon and beyond. Pravda said:

"The next stage on this road must be the creation of an artificial cosmic space, of planets in the solar system and a manned flight to other planets.

"The time when spaceships will be travelling to the most remote corners of the solar system is not far off."

Tass, in its description of the cosmic flight, said the rocket was accompanied by a special group of scientists and the date — January, 1959.

Murderer Hangs Himself In Cell At Kingston 'Pen'

Man Saved From Gallows Fashions His Own Noose

KINGSTON (CP)—Robert Carroll, 20, whose death sentence for the Mr. Catharines slaying of Lynn Redman, 16, was commuted to life imprisonment Nov. 28 last year, was found dead in his cell in Kingston penitentiary Saturday night.

It was learned today he tore material from his trousers to fashion a rope and hanged himself. He was awaiting transportation to hospital after he had been found mentally ill.

Coroner F. M. Macdonnell has ordered an inquest.

MINISTER'S COMMENT

In St. Catharines, Rev. Christopher J. Lane, who had spent a long time with Carroll instructing him for confirmation in the Anglican Church said: "When he left St. Catharines five weeks ago he was in sound mental condition, his whole personality had changed. Only after five weeks did his illness."

Mr. Lost said he did demand a full explanation" and if not satisfactory, he will take the matter to the appropriate heads of prison institutions, George C. Wardrope.

Hector Pothier, Carroll's lawyer said in St. Catharines the boy's relatives "were always" him that Carroll was not happy. They told of rumors of other murders giving Carroll a "hard time," he said.

It was reported prisoners feared at Carroll and called him a "mad killer."

SENTENCE REDUCED

He was sentenced to death last Sept. 19 for the murder of the 16-year-old girl May 8. The sentence was reduced to life a few days before he was to be hung.

Mr. Justice H. R. Ayles said at Carroll's trial the verdict of guilty was "fully justified."

The girl was slain with a knife on a lonely country road after she and a couple had attended a drive-in movie and quarrelled. Police said they found the girl's body in a car parked in front of her St. Catharines home.

The defence had entered a plea of insanity.

F. G. Gary, a Toronto psychiatrist, said he found Carroll "in a state of mental illness" but "not to the mental ability of a 11-year-old child.

Actress Found Slain in Bedroom

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Claire Mohr, an actress who appeared with Rudolph Valentino, Al Jolson and Ronald Colman, was found slain Sunday night in the bedroom of her fashionable suburban home.

Neighbors said Mrs. Mohr starred in the movies as Claire Lamarr.

Under the bed were two small white Maltese terriers. They apparently had left their mistress' bed. Lying at the foot of the 57-year-old woman's bed.

Henry Mohr, county pathologist, said he was unable to say whether the victim died from multiple stab wounds or a head beating.

Union Members Advised to Work

MONTREAL (CP) — The 800 Montreal members of the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (Arte) have been advised by their union executive to return to work at the strike-bound CBC studios today, even if they have to cross picket lines.

The advice came Sunday night in the form of an announcement made jointly by national president Omer C. Higgins and Montreal local president Paul Hongeau.

The announcement followed CBC rejection of a strike-settlement proposal sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress and submitted by the 74 striking radio and television producers who walked off their jobs Dec. 29 to back demands for CBC recognition of the Association as bargaining agent.

The strike announcement said Artec, which covers clerical and program employees, "continues to believe in the right of the producers association to be recognized for collective bargaining . . ."

MUST PROTECT JOBS

"However, it is now clear that Artec must act to protect the jobs and backpay of Artec members and safeguard against further loss of income.

"We advise to return to work is required to protect the membership of the Artec and the Artec constitution and local bylaw."

The CBC announced last week that any employees who did not return to work would be considered to have absent without permission and would receive no pay.

Meanwhile, officials of two other Artec locals said Sunday night that their union members would continue to respect the picket lines of the producers.

Rene Lessard, president of the Montreal local of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (CLC), said his local's 600 members were "definitely backing the producers."

However, he said Nabet would make a "final decision" at a mass union meeting today as to whether the union would continue to ask its members to respect the picket lines.

Yvon Dauzier, president of the Montreal Council of Radio and Television Unions and business representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, CLC, said the 700-member alliance would "definitely stay out with the producers."

The CBC said that after detailed study of the basic change in the approach of the producers nor any offer of a new basis without permission of the dispute."

Raymond Qurion, president of the producers' association, said earlier that the proposal called for termination of the strike of association pending re-definition of the producers' status and formal recognition.

Want Canadian, U.S. Legislators To Meet in June

By GEORGE RITCHIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian and American parliamentarians recommended Saturday that members of the Canadian Parliament and the United States Congress consult together at least twice yearly in a move to strengthen relationships between the two countries.

They suggested that the first meeting take place in June, and listed a broad range of issues, including co-ordination of the foreign policies of the two countries, for possible study at that time.

The recommendations were made at the two delegations appointed by Parliament and Congress to set up the machinery for periodic meetings between Canadian and American legislators in the hope that better understanding might eliminate some of the problems that hamper Canada-U.S. relations. The Canadian group flew back to Ottawa Sunday.

WANT CONTINUED

Winding up two days of meetings, the delegates — nine from Canada and four from the U.S.— said they would recommend to their respective parliamentary bodies the continuation of their committees and that collectively as the Canada-United States inter - parliamentary group. They suggested that future meetings be held alternately in Canada and the United States.

Besides the dovetailing of foreign policy, they listed these as some of the topics that might be discussed in June: Defence relationships; defence production questions; fish eries problems, boundary waters issues, trade problems, investment policies, wheat surplus disposal and revival of the wartime Hyde Park agreement for economic co-operation.

Both sides said at a press conference they were "well satisfied" with their discussions.

SENATE SPEAKER

Senate Speaker Mark Drouin leading a committee from the Canadian Senate, said it is hoped as many as five members from each of the two parliamentary bodies will take part in future meetings.

George Aiken (Rep. Vt.), chairman of the U.S. congressional delee, said the group was important because of the close trade, economic and defence relations between Canada and the U.S but it had also a special role for the U.S. to work out similar liaisons with the other 80 countries with which it was allied.

Hon. Lionel Chevrier, former Canadian transport minister and now Liberal member for Laurier, thought revival of the Hyde Park agreement would open the way for Canadian manufacturers to bid on U.S. defence contracts. It would be a good thing if the U.S. would purchase the Canadian-developed Arrow defence fighter, the Arrow.

WANT TO LEARN

Representative Walter H. Judd (Rep. Minn) said Americans are just as anxious to learn what was "irritating" Canadians as the Canadians are to learn what irritates them.

The June meeting is expected to take place in the capital of the month and to be held in the Cornwall, Ont., area.

Coincidental to the weekend meetings here: State Secretary Dulles Thursday in a statement taking note of the 50th anniversary today of the boundary - waters treaty between the U.S. and Canada. It established the international joint commission.

Mrs. J. Blakely Guest of Honor On 85th Birthday

TRENTON — Mrs. J. Blakely was the guest of honor at a surprise party held in Trenton by her family over the weekend.

The occasion was Mrs. Blakely's 85th birthday and the party was a complete surprise to the elderly woman. Living at 13 Everett Street in Belleville she was brought to Trenton on Saturday night, where she was feted by her children and grandchildren of Mrs. Blakely.

The banquet was served at around 7:30 p.m. and other than the family there were only three others present who helped with the preparation and the serving.

'Cap' W. Bowen Named Interim Centre Manager

TRENTON — Captain Walter M. Bowen, 241 Dundas Street, was named temporary manager of the Community Centre following the dismissal of former manager, Len Gaudette, it was announced by the board of directors last night.

"Cap" Bowen was named to the post less than an hour after the meeting of the Community Centre Board Thursday afternoon when they passed the motion to fire Mr. Gaudette.

Mr. Bowen will be temporary manager until another suitable person has been engaged. It was indicated that the board may be considering to hire someone living in Trenton to take over the top post at the Centre and also engage an engineer to look after the compressor room and the general maintenance of the building. In this way the manager could be left free to do promotional work and also in attendance during the winter months which would help out the account books for the black figures.

"Cap" Bowen is well suited for the job as a temporary manager for several reasons. Last year he took over the manager-ship for three months, from January until March and gained considerable knowledge about this type of work then. He also has a personality which enables him to meet the public in a friendly manner and visitors to the Centre and most youngsters who visit the rink will do as he asks.

His position as sea captain also qualifies him as an engineer and quite capable to look after the proper running of the compressors and other important machinery in the Community Centre.

It is not known how long he will be required to keep this job but it is expected that the board will discuss it at their next meeting.

Trenton's Board of Education plan to meet on this subject in a special meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in room with the caretakers will hold their gathering.

The issue comes under the Management Committee of the school board and chairman of this committee is board member Pete Ash.

Three Breakins Reported But Little Taken

TRENTON — Three breakins have been reported in Trenton since last Thursday but the police say nothing of value is nothing in all three breaks. Two of the breakins were discovered by Trenton police officers on patrol and the third one was discovered by a man who came to work.

The first break, January 8 and during the early hours of the morning, the Robinson Wholesale Grocery Store was entered by breaking a door window in the rear of the building. A cash drawer containing about 78 cents in coppers was broken open and the contents smashed open.

Police found what remained of the drawer near Mount Pellon and behind the Trent Theatre. The cash drawer was error was completely smashed by using something like a pinch bar.

On Friday, and also during the early hours of the morning, the entrance to the Riverside Dairy on Front Street was gained by the thief or thieves by smashing a window. However they failed to get any further than the boiler room and the washing room. A heavy door separating the assembly room was barred them from entering the main offices and the safe.

The breakin was also discovered by the night patrol of the Trenton Police Department.

On Sunday morning the Texaco Service Station on Front Street was also the victim of night prowlers and the broken window was discovered by the by the proprietor when he opened the station on Sunday morning.

More details of the theft were not known last night but it is known if any money or other valuables were taken from the premises.

All three thefts are under investigation by Detective Rutherford of the Trenton Police.

Chief of Police Jack Taylor and Inspector Rutherford will also be attending a trip in Toronto this week in a further investigation of the silver thefts from Canadian Parker Company last fall.

NEW JOB TO OPEN

The three men at present employed by the Trenton Harbour Board and working under the government of Canada Harbours Engineer may be shifted to the Mount Pellon area after they have finished work in Hyde Park. In the park they have cleared out many acres of old trees and cleared out much of the brush as well as to remove the old bridge. It is expected that they will be required to do much the same work there and they are now doing it. It is expected further plans towards this will be made at the next meeting of the parks board which is slated for tomorrow night.

NEW RINK OPENED

The new outdoor rink at the Trenton Memorial Park on the Champlain Heights area, is now being used by the children and adults. The rink was recently given its first flooding by the Trenton Fire Department. The rink is the same as the one established by the Parks Board in Hyde Park. Lights will be placed along the edge to form the boundary of the rink next year. These have been made so that in the spring they can be taken down, stored and used again next year.

Committee Meets Fire and Police Depts. on Needs

TRENTON — Mayor Ross Burtt and members of the Property Committee met with the Fire and Police Departments in separate meetings Saturday night to outline some of the needs of the departments for the coming year.

The meeting will give the committee and its chairman, Councillor Claude Graham, some idea of what requests there they will require to run the police and fire departments during 1958.

In meeting with Fire Chief Cecil Ellis, the question plan for the men of the department was discussed. Requests are expected to be brought up at the next council meeting. Mayor Burtt met with the police department under the Mutual Aid Agreement and also talked to the committee by Chief Ellis. This includes chiefly the dues of the police association and other things the fire department will have to pay for and budgetted for will be replacements of hose, clothing, parts for the Scout Aerial and various other smaller items.

Fire Chief Ellis informed the councillors that no further word had been received on when the consolidation letter order and pumper truck will be ready for delivery but the latest he heard was that the chassis is now on the way to the factory in Orrerville and the finishing truck will be delivered as soon as it is assembled.

(Mr. Ellis will go to the factory before it is delivered to receive instructions in the operating and care of the new machine). It is understood it has been the delay of the delivery of the chassis which has held up the final work on the new truck but that all other phases of the machine's construction have been completed.

In meeting with Police Chief Jack Taylor the proposed new police station was the highlight of the discussion. Chief Taylor said he felt the building should have a total of 4,400 square feet of floor space to be an efficient station with enough room to present working scale requires by the department.

Other matters of items which will be needed during the year were also discussed.

Socialists Quit French Cabinet

PARIS (Reuters) — France's Socialist party decided on Wednesday to withdraw from the new French cabinet official Sunday and voted to go into "constructive opposition" to the government of Gaullist Premier Michel Debre.

The decision was approved unanimously at a national party congress after party leader Guy Mollet told delegates it was the duty of the Socialists to turn opinion away from "narrow nationalism."

THINGS ARE NOT THIS BAD

"Industry," the organ of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, from time to time seeks to impress on its readers that ours is a "profit and loss" economy and that the phrase "profit system," often used as an epithet, is not quite correct.

This is an admirable objective. Unfortunately roads paved with good intentions often lead to unpleasant destinations and we think the reader will be able to guess what kind of a fix we believe "Industry" found itself in after trying to make some deductions from figures published by the Department of National Revenue.

The Department reported than in 1956, of 79,797 taxable companies, 52,517 reported a profit and 27,280 reported a loss. From these figures "Industry" drew the deduction that "The capitalist - - is really hundreds of thousands of ordinary men who risk their savings at the small odds of 52 to 27."

Now statements like that may serve to impress on readers that our economic system involves risk as well as profits, but we doubt whether they would encourage investment by Canadians in the development of Canada's natural resources, something we are constantly being told is highly desirable.

Of course, if the picture presented were accurate, "Industry" could defend its presentation.

We do not think, though, that the Canadian economy is so sick that a person who invests his savings in Canada's future growth has only two chances out of three of avoiding financial loss.

To determine the odds in favor of the investor sharing in Canada's future prosperity, several factors besides the number of companies reporting profits and losses would have to be considered.

For the odds in the investor's favor to be only 52 to 27, on the basis of 1956 figures, the following conditions would have to be met:

1—The average amount invested in those companies reporting a profit would have to be the same as the average amount invested in those companies reporting a loss.

2—The ratio of loss to capital invested would have to be the same as the ratio of profit to capital invested.

It is possible that the second condition was met, that for every two companies which realized profits of five per cent on capital invested there was one company which in 1956 reported a loss which was 5 per cent of the capital invested in it. We doubt, though, whether the amount of capital invested in the 27,280 companies reporting losses was half the amount of capital invested in the 52,517 companies reporting profits. We feel certain that many of the profit-making companies are amongst the biggest and most important in Canada, and we suspect that many of the companies reporting losses were small with some recently organized. Many of these small companies may grow and later return to those who invested in them not only satisfactory dividends, but capital gains as well.

If the odds favoring investors were actually as small as 52 to 27, our economy would be in a very bad way indeed.

All this, of course, does not alter the fact that our system is, indeed, a "profit and loss" economy and that it is most desirable people keep this fact in mind. It just pictures roads paved with good intentions as sometimes lead to misinterpretations, a destination which may be defined as a prosperous suburb of that other well-known terminus of such roads.

Building Empire by Magic

By Erwin P. Rogers in the Milwaukee Journal

Would a great nation today answer a call to herald the approach of Jesus Christ and accept his gospel?

The man employed was Jean Robert-Houdin, the famous magician. (It was his success that inspired Harry Houdini (Wis.) man to call himself by the same name.) Robert-Houdin was asked by Napoleon III to go to Algeria where French colonists and Bedouins were trying to get along with the North Africans.

A small group of natives called Marabouts dominated the North Africans by pretending to possess supernatural powers. It was Robert-Houdin's mission to duplicate the various marvels before native audiences, proving that Europeans could outdo the sorcery of the Marabouts. He was then to explain how sorcery was done, and to produce these illusions by mechanical means.

Robert-Houdin was the first magician to make use of electro-magnetism in his tricks. As this scientific principle would be unfamiliar to the average person of that time, it enabled him to perform many a puzzling trick. A good example was his "limit and heavy chest," a heavily bound box with a handle on the top. The bottom of the chest was an iron plate. The pedestal upon which it was placed upon appeared ordinary, but it contained wires leading to a metal stage in an iron plated top. When electricity was sent through this wire only two chances out of three of avoiding financial loss.

One day the showman was displaying his wizardry before a large crowd of unfriendly natives. He called upon one young Arab, vibrant with self-confidence, to try the chest. And so Robert-Houdin's words — is the rest of the story.

"Are you very strong?" I enquired quietly.

"Yes", he replied, carelessly.

"Are you certain that you shall always remain so?"

"Perfectly."

"You are mistaken; for in one moment I will take away all your strength, and leave you as weak as a child."

The Arab smiled scornfully in disbelief.

"Here', I said, 'lift up this chest'."

"The Arab stooped, lifted the chest, and said disdainfully, 'Is that all?'

"Wait a bit', I replied. Then with a few passes and words of my assumed character, I made a gesture of command, and gravely said:

"'You are weaker than an old man, you can lift but a feeble load.'

"The strong man, indifferent to my magic spell, again catches hold of the box by the handle, and gives a vigorous pull to lift it. This time, however, the chest resists and, in spite of the most determined efforts, remains absolutely immoveable.

"The Arab wastes in vain over the unlucky chest an amount of energy which could have lifted an enormous weight; till, at last, exhausted, panting and burning with shame, he ceases, looks dumbfounded and regards me as a special the power of the sorcerer. He has half a mind to give up the struggle. But his pride would be to acknowledge himself conquered, and to admit his weakness. The fight is becoming furious. Gathering new strength, he makes a last effort, during which his friends offer him by word and look, he casts toward them a glance of defiance to say, 'You shall see what this son of the desert can do.

"Once more he bends over the chest, his nervous hands grip the handle, his knees are wide apart, his arms are bent, his fingers open each side of the chest like two claws of prey. Slowly, he uses a fulcrum for the mighty effort which he is about to make. It seems almost impossible that the box doesn't fly to pieces under such a strain. Straight this Hercules, a minute ago so strong and arrogant, now drops his head; his arms, riveted to the box, are drawn by a violent contraction against his body, his legs quiver, and he falls on his knees with a cry of pain.

"An electric shock, produced by an induction coil and just been communicated from behind the scenes to the metal stage, because him agony. 'Would have been injurious,' I quietly responded the secret agent. And at once the current was cut off. My athletic fellow, crushed, stunned by the bondage, raised his head above his head. 'Allah, Allah!' he shouted, shaking with fright. Then wrapping himself hastily in the folds of his burnous, as though to hide his disgrace, he rushed through the spectators, going and made his way to the door of the hall."

Doctors Hold Hobby Show

BBC London Letter

Doctors are probably the busiest people in Britain, yet they indulge in a surprising number of hobbies for what spare time they have, judging by an exhibition of their amateur activities held recently at the British Medical Association House in London. The 75 exhibits ranged from a home-made glider counter to home-made violins. One doctor had made a highly secret and apparently highly illegal device for tapping telephone conversations, made an imitation Egyptian mummy.

There was a new mountain rescue stretcher, and a new oxygen tent. There was a pair of chinchillas and a pair of tigers; the tigers were shot at courses, the doctor one with a long shot, the skins.

After spending all day looking down people's throats, most doctors prefer an outdoor recreation. One showed a fine Jersey herd of Friesian cows. Another popular exhibit was a collection of seascapes in the sunset.

Embroidery was a popular hobby and one doctor showed his seven methods for darning socks. Woodwork was a favorite, either for making drug cabinets or for pieces of furniture. Two doctors had made violins and another an electronic organ. There were model railway engines and boats, a puppet theatre and a very realistic selection of home-made wine.

World Parley On Sardines

Oshawa Times

The sardines have come into their own. A lowly fish that manage to get into small cans in such orderly manner will be subject of a first world scientific meeting in Rome, Italy, next year. Meeting is being organized by the Food and Agriculture Organization. Importance of the sardine to the world at large is reflected by the fact that 20 international organizations have been invited to send observers.

The world sardine catch is worth about $50,000,000 a year and represents about 6 fourth of the total world commercial catch of fish, crustaceans, molluscs, etc. Sardine stocks are, however, subject to considerable fluctuations often leading to disastrous economic consequences for fishermen and the fishing industry.

"These fluctuations, which, so far are unpredictable, sometimes affect entire stocks", explained our Horacio Hoas, Jr., secretary of the world meeting, speaking at FOA headquarters. "Fishery biologists have not been able to devise methods of work they have done in various parts of the world, on research experience and ideas and discuss the further research needed to solve this problem."

The forthcoming meeting will enable them to do these things and will also be the first world wide collaboration in probing the mystery of fluctuations. Countries and territories are directly concerned in sardine fishing.

"The genus Cardina and the related genera Sardinops and Sandinella are considered together, in view of their biological affinities, under the common name of sardines, which is used in many countries.

"Many governments concerned have been invited to send representatives to the meeting. Private organizations interested in the biology of sardines or the fishing industry on sardine stocks are also invited to participate.

"Some 15 international organizations have been invited to send observers."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CONTINUOUS REVELATIONS

We indeed are a lucky people in this generation. Something new and inspiring is forever smiling back at us as a free people. William Allen White said this is the introduction to a little book of these Talks: "Big realists, unconquerable optimists that is the heart of all Americans is one thing that makes great and broken class lines in America and thus distinguished it from every other race or people on the globe."

It is a wonderful thing that God has created in the free nations of the world. Thus it has been that continuous revelation has been presented to us that have inspired men and women with ideas in literature, science and the way of life, in which the humblest of this land may aspire and dream without interference. Everything, in nature has revelations that can be of interest to us all. Pick up a stone anywhere. Break it carefully. There is a story in every one examined.

How many times I have gathered the shells on the ocean shore. Literally thousands of varieties, with designs that have interested people of the world. I am not may be picked up by the handful along the shore. What a study! Why all the different shapes and colors? I would not be surprised at this if there are less number of these shells have been the inspiration for many a work of art. Every shell has a story of its own.

No matter how active our span of life may be, there will be millions of revelations awaiting those who will follow us. Nature doesn't argue. It simply looks and surprises and then it "scatters". I love the exotic, colorful flowers that climb out of the jungle. They are symbols of purity. I wonder why such flowers do not grow in the tropics. Those matchless birds appear to us as though they were messengers from Heaven.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A chilly fog covered the wintry airport and all planes were cancelled and the airport waiting rooms were solid writhing masses of humanity.

For you must know that once your flight is cancelled, they politely whip it over some place to accommodate you. No sir, you're on your own. You have to start all over again to make your reservations. And if you are going to Florida or California or Mexico, with some very fancy connections en route at cities you have heard of all your life and never expected to see, it is pretty humiliating to pull that beautiful envelope out of your pocket, with all those tickets, carbon copies and mysterious scrawls, and realize that now, all of a sudden, they are obsolete.

Besides, you can't get near the desks where the reservations are handled. They are ten deep with indignant looking tycoons and tycoonesses, all with that facial congestion characteristic of airports on a fogbound day.

Finally, the loudspeaker suggests that you take the bus back into the city, and all the city reservations office and they will later get in touch with you.

"Fog!" she snorts. "They're talking about going to the moon and we can't get to Mexico!"

Yep. The moon is farther than we think.

SYMPATHY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The dictionary's full of words
That ring with hope and cheer,
They're printed there in flocks and herds,
And droves, in type that's clear
For any sympathetic chap
To dig right in and borrow,
And pour 'em in the ear and lap
Of neighbors who're in sorrow.
And yet, when grief has journeyed on
And all the words are spoken,
One little deed in kindness done

Beats every other token.
The pretty phrases you may speak,
The words that you may utter
Are valueless unto the weak
Who perish for a crust and butter.

This talking sorry for a man,
And saying so, is hollow
Unless in every way you can
You let your kind deeds follow.

Stretch out your hand and show to him
Your sympathy is living,
And not a jot of phrase grim;
For sympathy is giving

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

FLU IS FLU, REGARDLESS OF NATIONALITY

Today's billet doux is one I prefer from the tail end of last winter. You'll see why.

Dr. Molner: I gals gripe. Print it in your column or send it along where it will do the most good, as long as it makes no never mind. Recently we had illness in the whole family, namely a type of flu and its complications. I can't get right to the point whether it is Asian, oldtime, or some new type After paying $6 per visit, here's a prescription for pills, 8-6 dollars, of some very kind to choose and it's been my experience there's usually 50 cents difference in price, from four different drug stores all on the same order. Still another drug, after listening intently to the druggist, is usually penicillin — no matter how dramatic form. What gives? C.H.M.

Tells, you have a gripe, and I'll gripe right along with you. This flu business is nothing new, and when it hits, it does just about what you describe. Hits the whole family and at times fingers and and his complications.

From the patient's standpoint (and the doctor's, too) it is getting around to nationality, old-or new-fashioned. You feel lousy and you want to, and you have some fever.

From the public health standpoint (which I consider highly important, although somebody with the idea that the public is the most important, and I can see his point), the type of flu going around is important. If you can find what variety of flu is been prevalent in your city time and place, you may be able to use a vaccine as was done last year with Asian Flu.

VACCINE DOESN'T CURE

But after you already have the flu, vaccine is of no use. It's late late. Vaccine prevents. It doesn't cure. So after you have the flu, there's nothing to do. Anyway, it can take up to 10 days or longer for the best flu vaccine to get into full effect. Even case is Asian, Spanish or garden-variety in any flu time, you're back at work.

Now as to your cash outlay. Regardless of nationality or dispute over what an office call is house call, knock out because doctors vary. Just remember the cost of receptionists, nurses, clinical laboratory and phone-answering services and such.

As to the drugs, most (possibly all) virus infections are not affected by penicillin or its other anubiotics. Rest, aspirin, hot gargles and drinking of fluids (not usually hot) get you through, and penicillin, etc., is merely a precaution against a bacterial infection getting a foothold while your nose and throat are influenced by the virus infection.

So there you are given as a prescription — and also because the public demands (but can't ever get) some drug that will work as a cure in a hurry.

Yes, there are new varieties of penicillin, and they represent real pharmaceutical progress — respect.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOR THOSE WHO CARE

A student in his first month away from home at college wrote to his parents: "Already two or more boys whom I have met have failed. And there are at least twenty more here on my floor who haven't lost heart. Through the semester, thanks to spending their time drinking and failing when they should be studying. But don't worry about me. I'm all right. I'm not the type to be better, myself, than some of these other fellows, but I just couldn't let you two down — no matter what."

One of the wonderful things in every one examined. Songbird is another is the strength and courage that come from love. Of course, most of us will do a great deal for those we truly care for. But unselfish often forget how much influence we have by our example. With or without 'em you recover from the flu in the same length of time, your aches sometimes, avoid further complications by using these drugs. Personally, I recommend them only when there are signs of complications.

Am I speaking of viruses, have you had yours, about it not, friend, why not?

Dear Dr. Molner: Can freckles on hands be bleached with hydrogen peroxide? — Mrs. C.B.V.

I am not familiar with such a method and doubt if it would be successful.

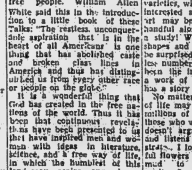
Mrs. M.E.: Certainly go to your doctor for your bursitis. Don't expect either patent medicines or liniment to help. The trouble is in the bursa — a little sac-over which tendons usually slide.

What about constipation? Mary can be relieved of it, both Mrs. and Mr.? If you have been reading my booklet "The Way to Stop Constipation" you can copy write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, 211 E. Ohio Street, Chicago, Illinois, enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents, to cover handling.

Crab Around Before Man

Chicago Tribune

It is all very well for people to get some fun out of the horseshoe or king crab, as our Miss Moran did the other day. He quoted with relish a Florida State university biologist who with his how scientists there have, by judicious application of electrical currents, taught the "slow learning" horseshoe crabs to raise their tails "like friendly cats."



This so-called crab is related to scorpions and spiders, but is not a true crustacean. Its leading edge, shaped like a horseshoe, rises to a turtle-like shell, from which a spine protrudes. Under its purse are five pairs of legs, fire for lifting itself as on stilts and one for pushing food into its mouth. It moves as a lever with which to right itself if it gets tipped on its back.

Horseshoe crabs are found on the eastern coast of America and the Spice Islands of the eastern Indian ocean. This divided distribution poses quite a problem, as this creature is no traveler—it moves only a few miles in its lifetime. The fact that its fossil remains are common in the Solnhofen area, a region which a long time ago was under water, suggests that it made its way to a solution.

The horseshoe crab may be also learning, but it has known enough to last a good deal longer than some of us can be sure to do. This "living fossil" has been around, with its shape substantially unaltered by time, for some 300 million years. This is a record for mankind to view with considerable respect.

The toast to "The Visitors" was proposed by senior warden Bro. E. J. Hall, while that to the Queen was proposed by Wor. Bro. Dr. Paul.

Summer working comfort for winter construction work is the idea behind (and under) this huge plastic balloon which appeared on Stanley Park Drive, in the newly annexed area of the city on Saturday. The big plastic bag is placed over the foundation of a new house, the bag is filled with heated air and workmen go about in shirt sleeves. Bungalow at left shows comparative size of plastic balloon being demonstrated by a Trenton construction firm. It is the first appearance of such plastic domes in Belleville area.

Juniors Meet Port Hope Here Tonight

The Port Hope Ontarios will make their initial appearance of the season at Memorial Arena here today when they clash with Belleville Lambert-Rollins in a Central Ontario Junior "B" fixture at 8.30 p.m.

The Ontarios replaced Trenton when the latter club was forced to fold several weeks ago. Port Hope has yet to win a game but has held both Kingston and Peterborough to one-goal victories in a couple of outings.

Meanwhile the greatly improved Belleville squad will be gunning for its third consecutive win tonight after downing Prince Edward 11-4 and Kingston 7-3 last week. The local club stands alone in third place with six victories and nine defeats.

Following tonight's game Belleville will take to the road with a return game in Port Hope Wednesday and another battle with the scrappy Prince Edward crew in Picton next Saturday night.

Albert College W.G. Hears Talk On 'Belleville'

The New Year meeting of Albert College Guild was held at the Manor on January 8, with the president, Mrs. Hyde, presiding.

Mrs. Helen Sulman conducted the devotional service, reminding her listeners that with the close of 1958 each one had finished the writing of a book that had many blotted pages, but that the new year is a fresh beginning in which one should begin each day with a prayer and look out in our backyard.

Mrs. Taylor Franklin introduced the speaker, Mrs. Boyce, president of the Hastings County Historical Society, who spoke on the history of Belleville.

"An historian can be described as a prophet looking backward. Historians get their information from many sources — diaries, letters, newspapers, special events, calendars photographs, painting, narratives." The speaker also read interesting extracts from copies dating back to 1800.

"From a study of these, we learn how our ancestors lived and gain an appreciation of what we have today."

Mrs. Hickey expressed to Mr. Boyce the thanks of the group for his informative address.

A social half hour followed.

Christ Church A.B.W.A. Elects Officers for 1959

The Afternoon Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church held its first meeting of the year in the parish hall on January 6th.

The meeting opened with a devotional period conducted by Mrs. Godden, Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. Pitt, with Mrs. H. Wright as pianist.

Mrs. Godden, the president, called for reports from the secretary and treasurer, which were most gratifying. The school hats had been sent to Gordon School, Punichy, Saskatchewan, and others to missionary dioceses. Financial and material aid had been given to various appeals not only in the parish and diocese, but also to foreign missions.

Mrs. Godden, upon retiring as president, thanked the members warmly for their co-operation and expressed how happy she had been in her office for the past four years.

Mrs. Godden called on Archdeacon J. B. Creegan to introduce the new officers which are as follows:

Honorary president, Mrs. J. B. Creegan; president, Mrs. H. Clare; secretary, Mrs. L. Watson; treasurer, Mrs. G. Dinent; literature secretary, Mrs. Hayes; educational secretary, Mrs. H. Wright; "Living Message" secretary, Mrs. W Kempston; extra - cent - a - day secretary, Mrs. Chapman; prayer partner, Mrs. C. Hayes; quilts, Mrs. H. Wright; refreshments, Mrs. W. D. McLaughlin; vestry council representative, Mrs. A. Clare; press reporter, Mrs. Roy Woodcock; flower fund, Mrs. H. Wright; U.C.W. representative, Mrs. W. D. McLaughlin.

Archdeacon Creegan thanked Mrs. Godden for her stewardship in the past and congratulated and welcomed Mrs. Pitt as president.

Outlining interesting work in the church, Archdeacon Creegan gave some information on the financial interests of church extension in the diocese and the responsibilities of the church in the diocesan apportionment.

He also mentioned a forthcoming visit to the parish of Miss Ruth Scott, principal of the Anglican Women's Training College, Toronto, which is scheduled for February 22nd. The Archdeacon closed his address with blessings and best wishes for 1959.

BUSINESS SESSION

President, Mrs. H. Pitt, presided for the business at hand after thanking the branch on behalf of herself and family for the memorial to her mother, the late Mrs. John Bowyer.

Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Hayes, read the list of work, sewing and special appeals, with a recommendation to concentrate on the bale with valuation to be kept as low as possible.

Mrs. G. G. Whitely, who will commence the study book, "He Cared," at the next meeting, asked the members to be alerted to helpful information on social service work.

Mrs. R. Godden will help to organize the World Day of Prayer, to be held in Christ Church the first Friday in Lent.

It was arranged to have "Forwards" placed in the County Home.

A tea was planned for early February, with Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Huddleston convening.

In bringing the meeting to a close, Mrs. Pitt expressed her happiness in being chosen president and asked for the prayers and co-operation of the members.

Archdeacon Creegan closed the meeting with prayer.

After the closing benediction, given by Mrs. Godden, a delightful social period was enjoyed by Mrs. Cook and Miss Gerow serving refreshments.

FERGUSON — MacLAURIN

A lovely winter wedding was solemnized on Saturday, December 13, when Margaret Evelyn MacLaurin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. MacLaurin, of Point Anne, became the bride of Ian Ferguson, son of Mrs. R. G. Kippe and the late Mr. John Ferguson, of Dundee, Scotland. The Reverend Alexander McDowell, pastor of Eastminster United, Belleville, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of white velvet fashioned with fitted bodice having a curved, Sweetheart neckline and long sheath-like sleeves. The graceful, floor-length skirt swept into a chapel train. Her elbow-length veil was held in place by a flat white velvet bow, and she carried a bouquet of white gardenias.

Mrs. William Thomas attended the bride wearing a waltz - length gown of ivory velvet with matching velvet bow headdress, and carried a bouquet of bronze and gold chrysanthemums.

Mr. William Thomas attended the bridegroom, while Mr. John MacLaurin and Mr. Douglas MacLaurin, ushered the guests.

At the Hotel Quinte, the bride's mother received, gowned in hunter's green with matching green and gold hat.

Following the reception the young couple left for a wedding trip to the Laurentians, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will reside in Bermuda.

Full Time Physiotherapist For CARS Unit

The regular meeting of the C.A.R.S. Women's Auxiliary was held recently with the president, Mrs. Enos David, in the chair. It was reported that the Christmas dinner had been much enjoyed by the patients who had telephoned and written their thanks; that cards had been sent to shut-ins and a rose to hospitalized patients; that a Christmas basket had been sent to the family of a patient outside the city; and that cards were available for anyone wishing to donate money in memory of a deceased friend or relative.

The best news of all was that Miss Philipa Meldowie, of New Zealand, a full-time physiotherapist, was coming to take over the work of the mobile unit which has been operating on a part - time basis since Miss Williams' return to England.

After discussing various ways and means of replenishing finances, it was decided to ask the permission of the board to hold an auction and rummage sale in the spring.

As part of the public education service, arrangements for a speaker for the Women's Institute at Foxboro and Chatterton were made.

After a number of games, introduced by Miss Barbara Brown, Carrol was presented with crystal and other gifts to be used in her married life.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the serving of delicious refreshments, fancy sandwiches and cookies.

DIED YOUNG

Marjorie Pickthall, Canadian author, was only 39 years old at her death in Vancouver in 1922.

Secretaries Work Toward Fine Professional Standards

Ever since the invention of the typewriter, girls and women have worked in offices in steadily increasing numbers, and although many of them have been content to improve their status — and their contribution to the business world — facilities for improving themselves have not always been available.

Secretaries have watched bookkeepers become chartered accountants through a high level educational program, and have watched nurses become registered nurses with a professional status.

The Association of Administrative Assistants or Private Secretaries is tackling the problem of providing ways and means by which the many thousands of secretaries across Canada can help themselves to become more proficient and work toward professional status. In so doing they will also benefit employers by "right arm of management" and functioning as administrative assistants, will be able to relieve management of administrative details which take up valuable portion of time and energy, greatly increase the efficiency of the executives concerned in the execution of the function for which they were specially trained and had been appointed to discharge.

CONSCIENTIOUS GROUP

Professional status for secretaries is the objective of the association to mean the standing in the public eye equal to that occupied by professional people. It implies recognition as one of a group of conscientious, trained people who are concerned with the quality of their work, the moral standing of their group as a whole, and the contribution they, as individuals and as a group, are making to the general good of the community and nation.

This Canadian association was licensed in 1952. It is administered by Letters Patent under the statutes of the Province of Ontario in 1952. It is an entirely educational organization, non-profit, non-political and non-sectarian. After several years of solid groundwork it now has a membership of over 2000 men and women across the Dominion.

The main educational project of the Association is its three-year correspondence course which is conducted for the Association by the Extension department of the University of Toronto. This course, which is written by experts in their fields and with the needs and functions of the secretary in mind, offers the following subjects: First year —English Communication and Psychology; second year — English Literature and Economics; third year — choice of any two of Business Law, Accounting, Business Organization, Human Relations in Business.

Membership in the Association offers other ways in which secretaries can improve themselves. The branches hold monthly meetings where members hear speakers, not only on subjects concerned with their day-to-day work, but also on topics of general interest. These meetings also provide a forum for the exchange of views and an opportunity for the members to become better acquainted with their fellow workers. Seminars are held in various cities each year at which prominent speakers talk on various subjects, and interesting and informative panel sessions are held.

GENERAL IMPROVEMENT

Members, through service in the Association, learn to work with others; through working on the Association's executive and committees, they improve their skill at organizing and directing others; through participation in the activities of the Association they improve their techniques—taking minutes, writing reports, organizing seminars, dinner meetings, workshops, etc.

By all these means, the members of the Association of Administrative Assistants are endeavoring to increase their value to management and to raise the standards of secretarial work in the present and in the future.

At the present time the Association has five branches in Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, Sarnia and Toronto, and Members-at-Large throughout the Dominion. The Association's headquarters are at 745 Merton Street, Toronto 7, Ontario.

Mother Honors Daughter With Trousseau Tea

Mrs. Ray Poste, Mill St., Stirling, recently entertained at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter, Carrol.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. T. Clements, Mrs. Poste and the bride-to-be.

Miss Jane Clements, Harold R.R. 1, was in charge of the guest book, and Miss Marilyn Brickman, Belleville, invited the guests to view the bride's trousseau and gifts which were shown by Mrs. Charles Fenton, and Miss Bonnie Gowsell, of Belleville, cousin of the bride.

The tea room was decorated with pink and white streamers and the traditional white wedding bell. A beautifully decorated Christmas tree added a sensonal touch.

The tea table was daintily appointed with a hand-made cutwork linen cloth edged with fine brand made lace — a family heirloom used at all family wedding occasions, silver services, pink candles in silver holders and a beautiful pink and silver centre piece.

Those who poured during the afternoon were: Mrs. E. Gowsell, aunt of the bride to be; Mrs. K. Mumby, aunt of bridegroom to be; Mrs. R. Poste, grandmother of the bride-elect and Mrs. L. Tanner, a family friend.

Mrs. E. Luck, Deseronto, aunt and godmother of the bride-elect was in charge of the daintily arranged tea plates and making of the tea, which was served by the Misses Beverley Wilson and Barbara Woodcock, of Stirling, and Pauline Lully, of Belleville.

Sermons at 2 o'clock, starting this month.

The meeting was brought to a close with penny bingo enjoyed by the members.

Holloway St WMS Holds January Meet

The January meeting of the Holloway St. W.M.S. was convened on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors. Despite the cold weather, a goodly number of ladies turned out, to make the first meeting of the new year a decided success.

The president, Mrs. T. F. Townsend, welcomed and opened with meeting with words of welcome and appropriate New Year message and prayer.

Mrs. Fred Scott read a message from Mrs. M. B. Weese, who also gave a full report of the work done by the Community Friendship Department. She reported 372 calls were made during the year in the hospital and homes of the ill and shutins. Mrs. F. Scott also reported having sent 24 cards to these same people at Christmas. Many "thank-you" notes were read and others expressed their appreciation verbally.

Mrs. W. Johns, Christian Stewardship Secretary, read a Christian Join letter from the missionary for prayer, Miss Ruth Tillman, stationed in Labrador and Newfoundland and Miss Nancy Edwards, radio, T-V, and film director from Toronto.

Mrs. W. Phillips, treasurer, gave a gratifying report on finances. The ladies with the junior organizations connected with W.M.S. work, raised a total of $1,284.42.

The Mission Band, under the leadership of Mrs. J. Ketcheson, assisted by Mrs. D. Cooke and Mrs. Shaw, raised over $100 of the above amount. The Mission Band also visited the County Home, sang carols and gave home-made candy at the festive season to the older citizens.

Mrs. Austin consented to take charge of the stamp collection which has been done by Mrs. J. Ketcheson.

The program and social time were under the direction of Mrs. H. Grills and her group.

The subject, "Growing Magnanimity," was explained by Mrs. C. Holmes as "greatness of mind, elevation of soul and nobility, free from pettiness." This is shown by our loving kindness, concern for others, justice and tenderness.

The Bible readings, taken by Mrs. W. Phillips, Mrs. L. Reid, Mrs. Elgie, Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Walters, all stressed the value of human life, the sacredness of brotherhood, the right of persons to justice, the shame of the plundered poor and the sense of obligations to our neighbors of all races.

Mrs. J. Ketcheson sang a beautiful solo.

Rev. C. W. Coleman with a few words of commendation and inspiration installed the officers for the year 1959 as follows: honorary president, Mrs. C. W. Coleman; past president, Mrs. R. G. Coulter; president, Mrs. T. F. Townsend; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Bertrand; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. E. Kilbank; treasurer, Mrs. W. Phillips; recording secretary, Mrs. O. Denyes; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Scott; Christian citizenship secretary, Mrs. S. Westover; Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. W. Johns; community friendship secretary, Mrs. M. B. Weese and Mrs. F. Harrison, literature secretary, Mrs. A. H. Johnston; Miss Monthly and World Friends, Mrs. F. Cooke; press, Mrs. R. G. Coulter; pianist, Mrs. E. Hubbs; supply, Mrs. N. Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Coleman and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

NUMBER OF USHERS DEPENDS ON NUMBER OF GUESTS . . . NOT ON NUMBER OF BRIDESMAIDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What determines the number of ushers at a wedding —the number of guests or the number of bridesmaids?

Bride's Mother.

The number of guests needed at a church wedding depends on the number of guests. As a general estimate there should be at least one usher to seat every fifty guests invited. But the important point is that there should surely be enough ushers to make the wedding run smoothly, and to seat the guests promptly. I would like to warn every bride and groom that it is far better to have too many ushers than too few. And I would emphasize that there should always be a definitely-designated "head usher" to be in charge of the seating procedure. (The head usher is generally, and wisely, a brother or cousin, someone who knows the families.)

The number of ushers does not depend on the number of bridesmaids . . . and, as a matter of fact, too many brides make too much of a point of having an equal number of ushers and bridesmaids. Insisting (unnecessarily) on that "coming-off" procedure in the processional.

IN THIS CASE ALWAYS USE "MISS"

I have just joined an organization which is partly professional, partly social. We receive many letters which are unanswer by short notes or forms. When a letter is, for example, signed "Mary Brown," with no information as to whether she is married or single, what salutation should I use in the letter and what form of name on the envelope? — Secretary.

"Miss" is always used when you don't know whether the woman signing a letter is married or single. So begin the letter "Dear Miss Brown," and address to "Miss Mary Brown."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. E. S. — Brenda's half-hurt Harriet.

Brenda P. — They want nothing to do with us now that they don't need us.

Mrs. E. S. — I am the mother of two fine daughters. Both are married and have children and it seems to me that they should be far above quarrels and pettiness. But I'm afraid that isn't the case.

Brenda happens to be married to a well-off businessman, and Harriet is married to a very fine actor who has a hard time making ends meet. There was one period in which he made nothing at all and Brenda took Harriet and her family into her home. She had plenty of room so it was no great problem to her.

During the past year Harriet's husband has been quite successful and Brenda has been hinting that they ought to pay back some of the money they owe. This hurt Harriet very much. She feels Brenda ought to understand that their situation is very uncertain. I told Brenda how wrong she is in view of the fact that she does not need the money.

Brenda P. — My mother has always sided with Harriet, no matter what the issue. For years she has been sighing to me about poor Harriet and her hardships, but I don't like that sister of mine going out and rustling up the family bacon on her own so do the wives of many actors. My mother looked horrified when I even suggested the idea.

We had room for my sister and her family in our home, but that doesn't mean it was just nothing to us. We went out of our way to make them comfortable. Now that they are out on their own, they don't even bother to get in touch with us or to invite us to their parties.

When I mentioned this last fact to my mother, she said that after all, my husband and I wouldn't fit in with their friends!" Well, I've seen some of their friends and I wouldn't want to fit in with them.

The Council: Brenda expresses her resentment a bit crudely, but we think she is justified in feeling it. Her hints that the money Harriet and her husband owe ought to be repaid may be just a way of saying she'd appreciate a reasonable amount of respect from her sister and brother-in-law.

We get the impression that Mrs. E. S. is responsible for fostering the ill-feeling that exists between the sisters.

Apparently she is pleased with Brenda's convenient marriage to a well-off businessman, but she takes real pride in Harriet's marriage. She is awed by the glamour of the acting world and sees no reason why a sister who lives in that rarified atmosphere should show consideration to a sister who belongs to the humdrum world of money grubbing. Harriet may have good sex on this view out of a need to build up her own and her husband's ego during the early lean years.

However, it is a view of things that is wrong from a human point of view, and Mrs. E. S. needs to un-sell herself on it. Instead of accusing Brenda of lack of understanding of her sister's problem, she ought to let Harriet know that being married to an artist does not exempt her from the ordinary human decencies — such as sisterly thoughtfulness and acknowledgement of favors.

SEEKS HOMES

An Oven Dish In Absentia For Three

by Mary Moore

Three and one-half years ago there was a great flurry in this column over a release entitled "Automatic Oven Dishes for Two" contributed by Kay B. I sent out hundreds of copies of that release to grateful career girls with automatic oven controls, who wanted casserole dishes they could prepare the night before. Then came morning, before leaving the house for work, they would set the controls, put the casserole in the oven, and carelessly leave the house. At homecoming time they opened the front door to the welcome aroma of their main per baking — a heart-warming substitute for "someone nice to come home to."

I have another such dish for you to add to your file. The tricky bit about this one is that it calls for half of a package of Spaghetti Sauce dry mix. (You may be familiar with this — a foil package containing 1½ oz. of a dry-mix containing dehydrated vegetables, sugar, salt, skim milk powder, cornstarch and herbs.)

CHICKEN AND RICE CASSEROLE

One-half cup long grain rice, ½ cup each tomato juice and hot water, 2 tablespoons dry mix from spaghetti sauce mix, 3 chicken legs and thighs. Mix together in a saucepan, tomato juice, water and dry mix and heat until mixture boils. Sprinkle rice in medium casserole, arrange chicken pieces on top and pour over all the hot sauce. Cover. If your casserole has no lid use aluminum foil. Bake at 325 deg. F. for 2½ hours. If you are in a hurry raise the temperature to 375 deg. and bake 50 or 60 minutes.

Variation: Using exactly the same proportions of rice and sauce you could substitute: 1) 3 thick loin or shoulder pork chops or 2) 3 thick loin or shoulder lamb chops or 3) 1 lb. ground beef cutlet cut into 3 serving pieces or 4) 1 lb. stewing lamb cut into 1½" cubes or 5) 1 lb. flat fillets cut into 3 or 3 serving pieces or 6) 6 small beef cakes or balls to which you have added an egg and some crumbs and seasonings. Baking time would be the same for all of these as for the chicken legs except the stewing lamb. The lamb would require the long slow cooking for 3½ hours, but the higher temperature for a shorter time.

Mikita Sparks Teepees 6-2 Win Over Irish

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A broken leg might put St. Catharines TeePees star forward Stan Mikita out of OHA Junior A hockey. But a fractured wrist seems to improve him.

A doubtful starter for the weekend schedule, the 18-year - old centre, playing with his right wrist in a cast, fired two goals Saturday to lead St. Catharines to a 6-2 win over Toronto St. Michael's Majors and scored a single in Sunday's return game in Toronto as TeePees downed Majors 4-2.

In other weekend action Peterborough Petes clinched a hold on second place Saturday with a 3-2 win over Hamilton Cubs and the tail-end Cubs lost out again Sunday as Toronto Marlboros edged them 5-3.

St. Catharines' two wins moved them nine points ahead of Peterborough and 10 ahead of St. Michael's. Marlboros' win put them in a tie with fifth Barrie Flyers at 26 points each.

BOMBARD GOALIE

St. Catharines forwards poured 55 shots at goaltender at Majors' goalie Jeffy Cheevers, a native of St. Catharines. Jim Hayward, Don Grosso, Fred Hills and Chico Maki added to Militia's pain. St. Michael's marksmen were Jack Costello and Don Kennan.

Fred Hills led the St. Catharines attack in Sunday's game with a pair, and Mikita and Maki rounded out the scoring. TeePees outshot St. Michael's 24-21. Bruce Draper and Jack Costello scored for Majors.

In Hamilton Peterborough came from behind to defeat the luckless Cubs. Centre Bob Dillabough and right winger Stu McNeill gave Hamilton a first-period lead but Gary Darling and Bill Mahoney tied it up.

DASH CUBS' HOPES

Wayne Boddy fired the lone middle - period goal for Peterborough with Chuck Hamilton and Tom Thurlby wiping out Hamilton's hopes in the third.

Hamilton fought a hard-checking contest with Marlboros but despite a two-goal third period blast by Mac McNeill they couldn't grab any points.

Jim Wilcox got a pair for Marlboros and Jack Mills added a single. Len Broderick kept 36 shots out of the hosts' net. 16 of them in a roaring third-period. Marlboros' defencemen Roger Cote drew a major for fighting after he knocked Cubs' Bob Dillabough unconscious with a hard thump into the boards.

GAS SUPPLY DIRECTOR

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Harry O. Lawson, 73, director of army supplies and transport, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, from 1936 to 1942, died Thursday. C.I. Lawson graduated from the Royal Military Academy in Kingston in 1906. He served overseas in the Second World War.

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm's Bardstown won his second straight big race of the year in the $67,600 Tropical Park handicap before 14,382 fans Saturday, taking the richest feature of the season by 1½ lengths.

The dark bay gelding ran the 1 1/16 miles in 1:42 and whipped Ricci Tavi, a 114-to-1 shot.

Claiborne's farms Nadir was third, a neck behind Ricci Tavi. A Dragon Kller finished fourth in a field of 14.

Bardstown, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, led most of the way but had to beat off challenges from Air Pilot and Meeting before they turned for home. There, jockey Steve Brooks left him out and the seven-year old campaigner had plenty left to stave off threats from Ricci Tavi and Nadir.

Bardstown was the 3-to-2 favorite and paid $5, $3.50 and $2.50. Ricci Tavi paid $6.20 and $3.80. Nadir's price on Nadir, second choice at 3 to 2, was $3.10.

Eddystown, who won the Orange Bowl handicap last Saturday at 1-16 miles, added $39,460 to the ball roll of his owner, Mrs. Gene Markey of Lexington, Ky., with his win. He has earned $82,200 in 1959.

WINS THIRD IN ROW

At Arcadia, Calif., Hillsdale won the $25,000-added San Fernando Stakes at Santa Anita, beating Jewel's Reward after collaring him at the head of the stretch.

Hillsdale's victory was an unprecedented third in a row on successive Saturdays at Santa Anita. The Indiana-bred speedster's time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1:42 3-5.

Gleeman was third.

In the back stretch, Jewel's Reward, under Willie Shoemaker's guidance, took the lead and held it into the far turn. Then Hillsdale, under guidance of Tommy Barrow, moved to the front.

Two weeks ago, Hillsdale won the $30,350 Malibu and last week outdistanced the celebrated Round Table in the stretch and won the $56,400 San Carlos.

CHARLES TOWN, W.Va. (AP) Four jockeys were hurt Saturday in the second major spill of the week at Charles Town's race track officials to suspend operations on the uneven strip.

Injured when two horses fell and two other veered sharply during the third race were Clarence C. Smith, Willie Clark, Nick Fernicola and Thomas Lee.

They were taken to hospital where they were reported in good condition. Smith with injuries to both legs, Lee and Fernicola with injured left hips, and Clark with a sore left elbow.

However, track officials said racing would continue today.

Bolt, Vossler Lead Way in Tia Juana Open

TIJUANA, Mex. (AP) — Golf pressers mounted today as United States open champion Tommy Bolt and unheralded Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., led the way into the final round of the $20,000 Tijuana open.

Tempestuous Tommy and the 30-year-old Texan, all even after 36 holes, were still deadlocked after 54 holes with scores of 206.

No less than 17 professionals were packed within a margin of four strokes, including the co-leaders, as play resumed today at the par 36-36-72 Tijuana Country Club course.

One stroke behind the leaders were Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., with rounds of 69-67-70—206, and 29-year-old John McMullin of Alameda, Calif., with 66-69-71—206.

Moe Norman of Kitchener had a 71-71-75—217 at the end of the third round while Al Balding of Toronto had a 72-72-72—216. Jerry Magee, also of Toronto, was 71-71-75—217.

Two other Toronto golfers, Bob Cunningham and George Knudson, failed Saturday to qualify for the final two rounds. Cunningham's score was 75-73—148 and Knudson's 74-77—151.

Kingston Ties Varsity in Bruising Clash

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston Meredith and the University of Toronto Blues literally fought their way to a 3-3 draw in an exhibition hockey game here Saturday night.

After a scoreless first period t.e Blues took a 1-0 lead on a goal by Ron Casey while Bud Gagnon of the OHA Eastern Senior A Merchants was trying to clear the puck.

Kingston soon enjoyed a two-man advantage but were unable to score the equalizer until the teams were back at full strength. Then Gagnon, Nobby Clark and Moe Savard scored all three Kingston counters within five minutes.

It started when Ted Toppazzini and Doug Williams tangled after a series of clumsy moves by both teams. Before the officials could part the pair, Bep Guidolin and Neil Munro started a real fist-swinging duel that took five minutes to break up. This was the main event of the evening and most observers called the battle a draw.

The remainder of the game featured a rough bruising style of hockey with the Merchants throwing their weight around to all within reach. However the visitors scored the goals. Casey picked up his goal early in the evening and Bill Kennedy counted the equalizer.

American Papa Might Spank Tennis Younker

By WILL GRIMSLEY

PERTH Australia (AP)—Perry Jones, America's 70 -year - old Davis Cup captain, wouldn't say so publicly, but it's a safe bet today that young Earl Buchholz is in for some fatherly advice.

The gangling St. Louis teenager has been showing too much temperament to suit Jones.

His latest display came Sunday when he was beaten in the finals of the Western Australia championships by Spain's Andres Gimeno, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Previously Buchholz had won the tournament Junior title.

LOST TEMPER

After getting off to a bad start, Buchholz' temper got the better of him. He glared at the linesmen, tossed his racket to turf several times and stormed off the court after the match ended.

"I was naturally disappointed over Earl's behavior," said Jones. "But it was just a case of a very bad temper which he has had for years."

The fact that Western Australian governor Sir Charles Gairdner was leaving the stands to make the presentation when the 18-yearold Buchholz walked off media matters even worse. However, the unstable Earl returned when he was told he was wanted back on the courts.

OFFERS TA K

Even United States consul-general Robert Backe, who watched the final, was disturbed. He offered to have a talk with Buchholz.

"I realize Earl is quite young and impetuous," he observed. "But I feel that such explosions as this are bad for both Earl and for his country."

Buchholz was upset over his loss to Gimeno, said "My mother could have played better."

MARTIN COACHES SHARLINS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—John (Pepper) Martin, former member of the St. Louis Cardinals' "gas house gang," has been signed as field manager of Miami Marlins of the International League. He succeeds Kerby Farrell who was fired after the Marlins finished fifth. Martin, while playing for the Cardinals in 1931, got 12 hits in the world series—a record still unequalled.

Cornwall Nips Dunnies 4-3 After Dropping First Tilt 4-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They may be floundering in last place but Cornwall Cheries are no pushovers for Eastern OHA Senior A division.

That was proven Sunday when the cellar-dwellers took one of their best performances of the season in upsetting Whitby Dunlops 4-3.

Whitby, leaders all season, had taken the lowly Cornwall club 4-1 in Whitby Saturday night and the game at Cornwall should have been a place of cake for the power-packed world champions. But they ran out of steam in the last period.

The only other scheduled game of the weekend saw Belleville McFarlands spoil a home stand by Hull-Ottawa Canadiens with a 6-3 victory.

PACE CORNWALL ATTACK

Saturday it was a different situation when Whitby held a decisive edge in the pifky. Babando scored two seconds apart in the second period with O'Connor and Bob Hassard getting the others.

Bryan McLay was the Cornwall scorer.

GOALIE ILL

RE-ELECT PRESIDENT

HAMILTON (CP)—Bob J. Macdonald, of Hamilton was re-elected for his seventh term as president of the Southern Ontario Soccer League at the annual meeting Sunday. Also re-elected were vice - president William Bowie, Guelph, and Secretary Treasurer James Blake, Kitchener. Dick Mathysen, Galt, and Ron Robertson, Fort Erie, were named directors.

Minor Hockey

Saturday morning action at Memorial Arena saw a number of team teams in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association take part in regular scheduled games.

The Canadiens downed the Bruins 5-0 with seven goalie Bobby Moon, filling in his Canadien nets, registering a shutout. Ken Hopping and Dave Hannah each scored two goals with B. Poole getting the other. Larry Brant, York and L. Fitzpatrick gathered assists.

Barons squeezed out a 4-3 victory over the Red Wings with Bruce Simmons and George Tanner each scoring 2 goals for the winners. Walter Clare, Wilfred Hall and Lyn Cormack had helpers. Ari Alyea potted two for Red Wings while Billy Hunter scored once. Tim Buckley had the lone assist.

The Maroons blanked Quinte 4-0 as goalie Bill Fisher turned in the whitewash job. Stan Woodcock scored once and with Allan Mott and Allen Stapley getting the others. Carl Cambridge, D. Woodcock, Richard Eves and H. Thibault divided the assists.

Browns edged Canucks 3-2 in a close one with Billy Moffatt scoring two of the victors goals. Conlsey had the other with Moffatt and Fraser drawing assists. Jack Dempster and Neil Bennett scored for Rangers while Bill Leslie helped on one.

The 2nd All-Stars collected their second consecutive win over the 1st All-Star team, shading them 1-0. Art Lucas was the marksman on a play with Brien Skinner.

You Can Have Pro Hockey Says Russian

BOSTON (AP) — Antoli Tarasow, coach of the touring Russian hockey team, is enthusiastic about his own stick - handling masters and the United States Nationals. As for professional hockey—we can have it.

The well-drilled Russians make their seventh appearance of an eight - game U.S. tour tonight against Harvard. Unbeaten so far, the Russians planned a morning workout in preparation for the engagement.

"We think the U.S. Nationals team we have played several times is very good," Tarasov said in an interview. "They could win the world title. All they need is a little more work."

Tarasov said he feels his Russian group is potentially better than the one of a year ago but that it has not yet matched the performance of that unit that took part in the world amateur competition in Norway last winter.

"We do more passing than you Americans," Tarasov said. "We like our style of play better, too. We wouldn't care to play your professional game in its rules."

The Russians were held to a 4-4 tie Saturday at Colorado Springs, Colo., Saturday night by an inspired Denver University team made up largely of Canadians. The Russians have won four and tied two of their six games.

Americans Whip Fort William

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—A four-goal burst in the third period sealed a 7-3 victory for the U.S. national hockey team over Fort William Beavers Sunday and gave the Americans possession of the Governor's Cup.

The trophy, donated by Governor Orville Freeman of Minnesota, went to the nationals on the basis of their 7-5 edge in goals over the teams' two-game series.

The victory snapped a three-game national league streak that included two losses to the touring Russian team.

Ron Rondeau gave the Americans a 1-0 lead in the first period and Dick Meredith and Tom Williams scored on identical blocked pass patterns in the second period, sandwiched around a goal by Fort Williams' Pete Gvora.

Turk and Rurg hit for the nationals early in the third period before Tom Compon and Bruce Cornese brought the Canadians to 4-3. Then Turk counted again and Paulie Johnson scored into an open net when Fort William pulled goalie Bert Brooks in the final half minute.

Could Win Kentucky Derby Says Canadian

BRAMPTON (CP) — Elgin Amstrong figures he has a good chance of winning the Kentucky Derby by 1963.

As the boast? Well Armstrong's ABC Farms near this town 25 miles west of Toronto have picked up $1,000,000 in winnings in the last six years. One of his horses won the famed Hambletonian harness racing's top event.

"It's all in the blood lines," Armstrong said in an interview. "And we have the best blood lines in the world right here." That means we should produce a lot of fine horses."

A few years ago Armstrong applied his blood line theory to harness racing. He bought the best studs and mares available.

He paid $7,900 for Hellcopter, a mare which won the Hambletonian in 1953. Dottie's Pick, a very little filly that cost $8,200 won some $264,000, the most money ever won by a Canadian-owned horse, and set 11 world records.

BOUGHT THOROUGHBREDS

Armstrong concentrated mainly on trotters and pacers in the past. Now he is showing more interest in thoroughbreds.

Last year he went to England and bought five stallions, descendants of Nearco and Hyperion, sires that have fathered many scions there.

The first offspring of these stallions will be ready for racing in 1960, Armstrong figures by 1963 he will have his derby horse.

"If we don't do it then we never will. And if the blood is there, and we have it, I think we'll do it."

Meanwhile, Armstrong thinks he has another possible winner of the Hambletonian in Armbro Aristocrat, two-year-old son of Hellcopter. His sire was Bill Gallon, a former winner of the classic as was the sire of Hellcopter.

London, Cooper Fight Draws Boxing Brass

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP)—The fight men with money and influence have moved in on London—the scene of tonight's title fight between British and Empire heavyweight champion Brian London and challenger Henry Cooper.

Truman Gibson, president of the International Boxing Club, is here.

America's promoter Bill Rosenson is expected.

Lew Burston, foreign representative of the IBC, also has a date at Earl's Court, scene of the battle.

All want to see just how good London, second-ranked challenger for Floyd Patterson's world title, and Cooper, seventh-rated challenger, really are. London is a slight favorite.

Lurking in the background will be Britain's promoters Jack Solomons and Harry Levene — businessmen who know the winner will gold in his fists.

It's the first time in years that two British heavyweights have gone into the ring in a British title fight for ranked challengers for the world championship.

The talk in London is that the winner will make a crack at Patterson.

Cooper, 24-year-old with the classic left lead and eyebrows that look likely to cut under heavy blows, has said he would prefer to tackle Johansson.

London has his eyes on Patterson — for London is a man after the money. He's formed himself into "London Enterprises" with father Jack as brother Jack as directors.

Harness Racing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Harness racing in the United States split up $27,572,830.48 in purses in 1958, President Walter F. Michael of the U.S. Trotting Association told his board of directors a three-day convention opened Saturday.

Michael, of Smyrna, Ohio, said the year's purses were 19.7 per cent over the 1957 figure of $23,249,942.63.

Attendance and betting at parimutuel tracks also showed an upward trend as 12,760,494 customers poured $712,872,993 through the windows. The 1957 report showed 11,807,547 fans wagering $614,890,402.

Adventure in Music Offers Live, Hour-Long Program

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"The American television audience has good taste," says Henry Jaffe. "But it has to understand what it's serving. Good commercials enables it to understand."

He is the head of Henry Jaffe Enterprises which tonight (Monday) presents the first Bell Telephone Hour on NBC-TV (6:30 p.m. EST). The live, hour-long program casts Adventures in Music offers Harry Belafonte, Renata Tabaldi, Maurice Evans, the piano team of Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale, the New York City Ballet and the Bil Baird marionettes.

This will be the first of four programs of music—and Jaffe said the other day that he hopes there will be more.

"Attracting a client to do a great music show in the face of the facts of life is a fantastic tribute to his own good taste," said Jaffe.

By facts of life he meant audience ratings, which are universally low on TV programs of serious music.

WILL INTRIGUE

Nevertheless, Jaffe believes that the show will have a large audience because it has an interesting theme — "adventure, a sizable threat, note book, that will intrigue and carry the audience."

Incidentally, Jaffe narrowly misses competing with himself for the TV audience tonight. At 7:30 p.m. EST on ABC-TV begins the first re-run of Shirley Temple's Storybook, which Jaffe produced in conjunction with Screen Gems and was seen on NBC last other season. The premiere is The Sleeping Beauty.

Bold Venture, a new action series starring Dane Clark, is launched on nearly 200 television stations this week.

In this one Clark plays the role of a guy who is the skipper of his own trading sloop with his only cargo a beautiful companion played by Joan Marshall. Their problems include pirates, smuggling, native idols—and each other.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

Not the least of the Russian missile-launching successes to date is the rocket-booting fifteen-year package of solo skating satellites, which to date has orbited several American teams and caused some Canadian eyebrows to lift in questioning wonderment.

The big question is—are the Russians that good or are the American teams of mediocre calibre, an easy prey for the sharp-shooting, perfect-passing Muscovites?

If you are a dopester and rely on what the facts should predict, you'll bet a hundred to one the Reds will take the McFarlands in Prague next month, like Ole Ulysses grabbed Richmond, nuh.

Finistance. The Whitby Dunlops swept through international competition at the world tournament last year, climaxing their phenomenal success with a 4-2 victory over the Russians to annex the world title.

According to the line-ups and members of the Dunlops who played against the Reds last year, the Red army colonels, majors and boozys, not to mention a few ruble privates who go to make up the current Red squad, constitute, with a few additions, the same club that bowed to the Dunnies in Oslo.

Assuming this is so, let's look at the "dope" on the situation. Whitby whipped the Russians. The Varsity Blues whomped the Dunlops. American college teams, such as Colorado and Denver, gave the Blues hockey lessons on an intercollegiate safari. The Russians toyed with Colorado and at this writing the Denver-Russ game had not been played.

Where does that leave the McFarlands? A few weeping willies, affected by the more or less outstanding successes of the Red puckists south of the border, will have you believe ours is a lost cause, unless we recruit Rocket Richard, the Pocket, Jacques Plante and toss Gordie Howe in for good measure.

A lot more saner-thinking fans believe the proof of the pudding is in the eating. They point out the speedy Muscovites with their blue-print plays and puttierpoof passing looked good against the American amateurs, but as one puts it, "The Russ were not up against the hard-bitten, battle-scarred senior "A" and ex-pro players they will meet in world competition."

The cold-water toasters haven't made any noticeable impression on the McFarlands. Ike Hildebrand and Jean Paul Lamirande, while they realize they have a tough job on their hands, are confident that a couple of wins will restore them with the championship burning fluttering in the Quinte breeze. The rest of the gang sooze the same confidence.

"Lammy," who junkeried with the Dunnies to Oslo in the land of the fjords last year, says the Russian's passing and shooting. "They can do wonders with that puck both with the stick and their feet. But break up their plays and they have to reorganize and start all over again."

Jean Paul said the Russian goaltending is good but he believed one of the best western weaknesses of defence is blazing slap-shot from the point or closer in. "Wiener, blazing slap-shot from the point or closer in. "Wiener. Crawford, Benoit and other guys who can blast that puck her hard off should do all right providing they get their shots dead on target."

Antioll Tarasov, the Russian coach, charts his plays like a Canadian gridiron mentor. He uses diagrams like football charts. He then places his players in position, and if they follow his instructions he says nothing but victory can follow.

Each play is the result of planning and all the players have to do is to use their talents accordingly in following his system. An example of how diligently they carry out instructions was shown in their two games in Minnesota where only two offsides were called against them in the two contests.

After one offside call, a minor argument resulted, but not with the officials. The three Russian forwards had to go into a conference to talk over how such a "bad mistake" could be made by them. They accused themselves of an error.

As one observer puts it: "There appears to be a different outlook and emphasis on the ways and means of winning for the Russians. Individual achievements are not encouraged and they believe that in unity there is strength. A victory belonged to the team and the country."

OHA NOHA Drops Pool Plan

SUDBURY (CP) — Teams in the OHA-NOHA Senior A series met here Saturday and decided to drop a plan to pool travelling costs and referees fees.

The pool, established last year, has been in financial difficulties since the start of this season. League convener Lloyd Pollock of Windsor told the meeting the pool was almost $5,000 in the red at Dec. 31.

Under the plan each team contributed 19 per cent of gate receipts to the pool, which in turn paid off travelling costs and fees to referees and linesmen.

Teams in the league are Windsor Bulldogs, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Chatham Maroons and in the south and North Bay Trappers, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds and Sudbury Wolves in the north.

OFFICIATING COSTLY

Northern teams were critical of the cost of officiating. Sudbury coach John O'Flaherty said the league paid referees $13,000 last season. Pollock said officials had cost $3,600 in the first three months of this season.

Referees are paid $30 a game plus 10 cents a mile to travel. Two linesmen each get $10 a game. Northern teams complained started using hometown referees to cut travelling costs.

Sudbury president Tod Hill said the pool was no longer useful because attendance was about the same in each city.

Sudbury was the top contributor to the pool last year, paying an average of $380 a game, with Sault Ste. Marie second. The two teams contributed more than $20,000, Pollock said.

STRIKE CUT ATTENDANCE

Attendance was down in Sudbury because of a 1958 strike in the city's major industry, the International Nickel Company. The Wolves' average contribution to the pool has dropped to $180 from $380.

Teams discussed the coming playoffs, but no final decision was reached. The clubs also discussed the financial plight of the Trappers, in last place in the league race.

North Bay president Pete Palangio said the team now is $9,000 in th.. red and faces a $13,000 deficit this year. Palangio

National League Righted Itself Over The Weekend

Hawks Lose to Habs, Rangers To End Win String at Eight; Red Wings Tie Blues, Leafs

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winning streaks were ended and losing slumps broken during weekend National Hockey League action which saw three of six games end in ties.

The upstart Hawks hadn't been beaten in eight games when they made the mistake of invading Montreal Saturday and despite goalie Glenn Hall's magnificent work dropped down 1-0 before the league-leading Canadiens.

Still shaken the Hawks returned to Chicago Sunday and got nosed out 4-3 by New York Rangers before 14,000 fans, their best crowd in some time.

FIXTURES CHANGE

That victory in Chicago was part of a successful weekend that saw a change in Ranger fortunes. New York had just three consecutive games before Saturday when they broke out a draw with Detroit Red Wings in Madison Square Garden.

Boston Bruins lost their third straight Saturday—4-1 to Toronto Maple Leafs—but came back Sunday at home to hold Montreal to a 3-3 tie.

The results left the teams' positions unchanged. Montreal widened its first-place margin to 13 points; Chicago hung onto second despite the two losses and has a three-point bulge over New York, in third with 40 points. Detroit is fifth, Boston sixth and last place Boston holds a narrow six-point edge over last-place Toronto.

MOORE SETTLES IT

The deciding goal in Montreal's 3-2 win over Chicago Saturday didn't come until 12:45 of the third period when left winger Dickie Moore took a pass from centre Henri Richard and threw a high shot that beat Hall cold. The knee-high shot caught the corner of the net.

Except for that one the Chicago netminder was invincible despite a weak defence and his display in stopping 37 shots took some of the shine from Jacques Plante's seventh shutout this season. The Hawk offence could muster only 16 shots.

Sunday in Chicago New York took a 15-2-1 first-period lead on rookie Jim Barlett's goal but the Hawks roared back with three goals in the second and seemed to be home free. Lorne Ferguson, Ted Lindsay and Eddie Litzenberger did the Chicago scoring.

But New York kept chipping away at the Black Hawk lead and third period goals by Andy Hebenton and Barlett knotted it up. Then at 14:12 rookie Les Colwill took Hank Ciesla's pass and beat Hall for the winner.

REGAINS LEAD

Baldagno's goal was his 22rd this season and gave him back the league goal scoring lead.

He was a New York hero Saturday too as he scored the tying goal in the Rangers' draw with Detroit.

Earlier he set up Rangers' first goal by forechecking and keeping them a 1-0 lead in the first. Detroit tied it and Rangers moved ahead again 2-1 on Dean Prentice's marker before the period ended. Detroit Wings scored second and third period goals to set the stage for Baldagno's conversion of a Bill Gadsby shot. Scorers for the Wings were Nick Mickoski, Gadsby, Alex Delvecchio and Godfrey.

Sunday's free-scoring spree in Detroit saw Leafs leading 3-1 at the end of the first; 5-4 after the second and 6-4 early in the third, but all their efforts were nullified by Gordie Howe's hat trick of the season at 17:08. The great Wing also collected three assists in the game.

ONE FOR REGAN

Captain George Armstrong, newcomer Gerry Ehman and defenceman Frank Mahovlich scored for Toronto in the first; Dick Duff and Bob Pulford added second period goals and Ron Stewart scored to open the third.

For Detroit it was defence star Red Kelly with an unassisted goal in the first, Howe twice, Wooder, Charlie Burns and Ullman in the second and Wilson again in the third for the Detroit ends.

In Toronto Saturday, Armstrong, the big Leafs' captain from Brantford who is having one of his best seasons in the NHL, got goals and Harry Lumley in the 4-1 win over Boston. Centre Billy Harris and Bert Olmstead ended the others while Bronco Horvath scored for Boston. The goal was Harris' 16th this season.

In Boston Sunday the Bruins scored like a fifteen-team league together. They went ahead 2-0 early in the first on goals by Johnny Bucyk and Jerry Toppazzini before Beliveau got Canadiens' single marker before the period ended.

In the second Bronco Horvath made it 3-1 and Bruin fans thought they were in the win but last period with Boston shorthanded Don Marshall made it 3-2 and at 8:32 Claude Provost got the tying goal.

Easterners Beat West's Best In Annual Pro Bowl Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Billy Wade, who missed the most valuable player award by a fourth quarter pass interception, still took the blame for the West's 21-28 loss in the annual pro bowl football game.

But West coach Weeb Ewbank said his fellow players don't consider the lanky Los Angeles Ram quarterback the goat of Sunday's rough-and-tumble battle before 72,250 Memorial Coliseum fans.

"We beat ourselves through mistakes," said Ewbank, coach of the unbeaten Baltimore Colts.

"It was my fault," insisted Wade after the East turned the interception into a field goal and later scored a game - winning touchdown.

BLAMES SELF

"I knew it was risky to pass from my own 13, but I wanted to pick up some yardage and then stay on the ground," said despite the sole owner of the team that received his share of gate receipts at a recent game of but keen only $743 and the arena's share was $195.

North Bay arena manager Monty Selder said the rink was making from $4,000 to $6,000 more from bingo nights than it was from hockey.

It was understood some of the teams agreed to let the Trappers but no financial details were revealed.

Russians Held To 4-4 Tie By Denver U

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP)—As inspired Denver University Pioneers made no entirety of Canadians battled Russia's touring hockey team to a 4-4 tie Saturday night.

The university squad, held up by goalie Rod Schaack of Wetaskiwin, Alta., led the undefeated Russian team three times. Russia scored the tying goal at 12:48 of the third period.

Schneck stopped 41 shots as the Russians poured on the pressure to try to defeat Denver, defending champions of the National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey championships. Eugene Erkin made 26 saves for the Russians.

Defenceman Marty Howe of Regina suffered a possible fractured ankle in the second period, as the game was featured by heavily checking that made many of the previous five exhibitions played by the Russians in the U.S.

Denver jumped into a 3-0 lead on goals by Bruce Mann and Paul Josephson. But Russia bounced back with two goals in the last two minutes to tie the score on goals by Benjamin Kisilenko and Constantine Loktov.

Howe gave Denver a 3-2 lead before the period ended, but Russia again tied it up early in the second period on a goal by Victor Yakushev.

ALL-OUT THIRD

Both teams went all-out on offence in the third period, with close checking forcing the Russians to rely on their passing game plays as the puck went from one end of the rink to the other.

Denver took the lead for the third time at 7:51 of the final period, when Mann scored following the puck into the net from the 10 foot line apparently tried to keep the pressure on the Russians, hoping to prevent their setting up for the tying goal.

But the strategy backfired when Yakushev slid the puck past his own blueline and broke in on Schneck with George Krylov. He passed to Erkin on the left of Denver's blue line and the 28-year-old lightweight drove home a hard shot from about eight feet out.

Eight penalties were called—five against the Russians. None of the penalties figured in the scoring.

Bulldogs Trounce Dutchies Maroons Muzzle Greyhounds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs, an uninspiring fifteen club less than a month ago, have become a sensation in the OHA-NOHA Senior A circuit.

They blasted Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 9-6 Sunday for their seventh win in the last eight starts and moved into a third place tie with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The win before 5,242 home ice fans avenged a 2-0 loss in Kitchener Saturday night.

In the weekend's only other action the league-leading Chatham Maroons made it seven in a row on their northern tour by knocking off the Greyhounds 4-3.

TOP TWO

Windsor's recent win record is even more impressive because it includes two wins against Chatham and two against second-place Kitchener.

Sunday's was a thriller in which Bulldogs shook loose from a 6-6 tie with a three-goal splurge in the third period. The crowd-pleasing stunt 2000 youngsters on a special ticket promotion—just about went wild.

Kitchener scorers were Bill Saunders with three, Ralph Blessing, Ken Ullyett and Bob McKnight. Centre Ken Laufman picked up five assists.

HURLEY STANDOUT

The previous night Kitchener goalie Bert Hurley turned in 27 Windsor shots to earn his first shutout of the season. Veteran Lou Cecconi also staged a great goaltending display for Windsor as Saunders and Ullyett scored for him.

Chatham lost goalie Dpn Head for three weeks when he suffered a shoulder separation in a bump by Sox's Bruno Attilio Rosso, spare goalie for the Soo, replaced Head in the Maroon net and allowed only two goals. He may stay with Chatham until Head returns.

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If there is anything wrong with Chicoutimi Sagueneens, it surely isn't the performance of right-winger Jacques Locas.

The Quebec Hockey League veteran has scored 35 goals in the same number of games this season and threatens to beat the record of 54 goals set by Billy Dartnell of the defunct Ottawa Senators in the 1949-50 season when the QHL was known as the non-professional Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Locas, who has 25 games left in which to tie or break the record, scored No. 35 Sunday—a goal that gave Chicoutimi a 4-3 triumph over the league-leading Montreal Royals and advanced the Saguenens into a third-place tie with Quebec Aces who played to a 2-2 overtime tie with the second - place Trois - Rivieres Lions.

Ike 'Shows 'Em' In 6-3 Victory Over Hull Canadiens

Paces Pack With Three Goals For 3rd Hat Trick of Season, Team Plays Brilliant Hockey

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

HULL, Que.—In a don't-do-as-I-say-but-as-I-do gesture coach Ike Hildebrand blazed the way to a McFarlands 6-3 victory over the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens here on Sunday. - Hildebrand accounted for three of the Macs goals.

A lightning-like first period offensive netted the Allan Cup champions three goals in less than a minute before a stunned Sammy Pollock and a sparse audience. The Macs struck so swiftly the officials had trouble figuring assists.

But the lead was shortlived. The Canadiens struck back hard led by playing coach Connie Broden, to score two goals before the period end. They tied the count with Broden again sparking their attack early in the second period, but the Macs grabbed the lead again before the chapter ended.

The Macs took over almost complete charge of the situation in the third period, coming up with that championship brand of hockey that characterized their second period effort against Hull last Friday. They hemmed the Canadiens in their own end of the ice for practically the entire period, scoring two goals and outshooting the speedy Ottawans 11-3.

Besides Ike's three goals Floyd Crawford took the ice in his teeth scoring with a goal and two assists. Paul Payette and Jimmy McFadden were the other McFarland sharpshooters with Bart Bradley earning three assists. Werner Schnarr had singles going to McLellan and Smoke.

Despite the rugged close-checking fast play the game was comparatively clean with Referee Louie LeCompte handling out six minor penalties. Four of them to the Macs.

Connie Broden lived up to advance notices and sparked his efforts for the Hull-Ottawans with two goals and an otherwise brilliant two-way effort. Black got the other Hull goal.

The McFarlands' quick attack struck at the Canadiens main mate when Lionel Botley raced down left wing and slipped a perfect pass to Hildebrand and he made no mistake. Forty one seconds later Ike Hildebrand climaxed a passing play with Johnny McLellan and Lou Semke to put the Macs into the lead. The melee had hardly subsided before the light flashed over the Canadiens' goal when, on a return play from the faceoff McLellan sunk Crawford's pass to make it 3-0.

Canadiens ganged up on Keith MacDonald after the Macs' wingman let Gerry Brassard the Hull goalie low with a legal body check after he was well out of his net. The ensuing squabble saw Referee Louis Lecompte hand out a double minor to MacDonald and a single to McNiff.

A minute later Connie Broden the Habs' playing coach swept in behind the Macs' goal to beat Gordie Bell for Hull's first score and a minute later Crawford got a pass from Black. The Habs power play paid off with Black beating Bell for the tally with Annable and Boucher drawing assists.

Broden brought the small crowd of spectators to its feet after two minutes of the second period when he blasted home Bobby Boucher's perfect goalmouth pass to tie the score.

It was a bitter checking battle at this point with the Canadiens holding the edge if play. Both Bell and Brassard were good in kicking out close in drives and seven minutes remained before the Hildebrand - Brown - Bradley line clicked for its second goal of the game, the coach blasting in Bradley's pass on a fast three-way passing play.

The Macs threw back the heavy - charging Ottawans at the start of the third period and practically took over after three minutes of play.

A penalty to Gauthier did not help the Pollock crew and the Ikemen drove in hard to get the clincher.

Gauthier had scarcely returned to the ice when the Hildebrand, Bradley duo swept into action, with Crawford assisting Ike drove in the five-three goal.

The Macs were clearly masters of the situation at this point and their driving offensive efforts paid off when Payette put the game on ice. It was a picture goal, Paul taking Ike's pass to beat Brassard cleanly.

The Pollock - Broden crew were clearly outskated and outchecked by the fast - skating McFarlands who came up with brilliant two-way play in a hard - checking two-goal third period.

Bears, Barons Close in On Bisons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two games, especially if they are Buffalo Bisons, mean a hot race as tight as the one in the American Hockey League.

While the second-place-setting Buffalo Bisons were picking up only one point in two weekend games, Hershey Bears and Cleveland Barons closed in. The Bears and Barons moved to a tri-tie triumph and a tie.

The results today's standings showed the Bisons leading the Bears by one point and the Barons by two.

WHIP ROCHESTER TWICE

The Bisons whipped Rochester Americans 4-2 at home Saturday and 4-3 in Rochester Sunday while Cleveland played a 4-4 tie with Providence Saturday and Hershey a 3-3 deadlock Sunday.

The Bisons battled to a 5-5 deadlock Saturday with Springfield Indians. The Indians were involved in a 2-2 tie with Providence Sunday night.

The final Cleveland goal Sunday came with 45 seconds to go when Buffalo goalie Marcel Paille had been withdrawn to put an extra forward on the attack.

Bob Barlow, Art Stratton and Ed Mazur made it 3-0 for the Barons in the first period. But Falo cut the margin to 3-2 on second period markers by Bruce Cline and Larry Wilson. In the third Michel Labadie tallied for Cleveland and Wilson for Buffalo before Gord Hollingsworth clinched it for the Barons.

The Bears fought back with three goals in the third period to edge Rochester. Dunc Fisher fired a pair for Hershey with Wilbur Hamelin and defenceman Howie Yanosik adding singles. Guy Rousseau, Dave Creighton and rookie Bill Hicke counted for Rochester.

Leftwinger Jim Anderson tipped in defenceman Frank Solomon's shot at 1:38 in overtime to give Indians their decision over Providence. The win strengthened the Indians' hold on fourth place.

As a result of a pair of goals by Harry Pidhirny and Tony Schneider early in the first period, the Indians had a 2-1 lead until defenceman, Jack Rhonda tied it up in the final period while Springfield was shorthanded.

McFarlands Are Entertained at Czech Embassy

Still flushed with their 6-3 victory over the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, the McFarlands were the guests of the Czechoslovakian ambassador and his staff at the Ottawa embassy on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Madame Bedrich Hrusa and staff were the gracious hosts for the party that gave the McFarlands a personal warm handshaking welcome, while embassy attaches looked after their needs.

There was a flood of flashbulbs and grinding of movie cameras as the Ottawa press and CBC recorded handshaking gestures on the part of the ambassador and his wife and manager Drury Denyes.

Madame Hrusa, after greeting her guests in the spacious legation giving all and sundry a hearty smiling welcome.

The Macs were given a delectable Czechoslovakian turfet luncheon while other refreshments were served in another room.

Following the luncheon Mr. Hrusa showed motion picture films which mainly centred on Prague in which took in the many places of interest and the main points of Czechoslovakia as a whole.

It was a highly enjoyable affair greatly appreciated by the McFarlands and other guests present.

Mr. Hrusa said the Canadian hockey team is looked up to in his native country and he assured the McFarlands they will receive a welcome cool yet reserved markers by Bruce Cline and Larry Wilson. In the third Michel Labadie tallied for Cleveland and Wilson for Buffalo before Gord Hollingworth clinched it for the Barons.

Machine Brain Will Score 1960 Olympics

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—A bilingual mechanical brain giving answers in English and French, is expected to make scoring of the 1960 winter Olympics the fastest in history.

Prentis Cobb Hale, president of the games organizing committee, said a computer will be utilized throughout the Feb. 18-28 sports classic.

In addition to score computations, a memory file will contain biographical and past - performance information on every competitor, including a 200 - word brief of past and current performances.

Hale said that International Business Machines Inc., will furnish without charge its 305 Ramac, developed and manufactured at San Jose, Calif. The memory file can hold 5,000,000 information characters or digits which can be made available within a second.

Hale said the computation of Olympic events requires "the most complex timing procedures involved in any athletic event." He noted that final placings in previous winter Olympics often were unavailable for as long as five hours after an event because of involved manual calculations.

Ramac will give the quick tabulations. Time, however, will remain unofficial until they have been checked by Olympic personnel using established systems.

Whenever information is desired on a competitor, the memory file will be queried and the reply will be automatically printed within seconds. The questioner may specify his answer be in French, the official language of the Olympics, or in English, the alternate language.

DECISION DELAYED

NEWYARK, N.J. (AP)—Police director Joseph F. Weldon says he will wait for a report from Eddie Dixon before deciding before preferring any charges against Dixon's fiancee - patrolman. Dixon had been told by Weldon that if he went through with Friday night's bout with Gene Armstrong in New York's Madison Square Garden he would be in violation of a department rule against outside employment. Dixon lost a unanimous 10-round decision to Armstrong. If a patrolman is found guilty of violating regulations, the penalty ranges from a suspension to dismissal.

Bing's Annual Golf Tourney Starts Thursday

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) When crooner Harry Lillis Crosby invited a few golfing pals for a little shindeeg in 1937 he made no his guests realized what a whale of a show they were starting.

But when Bing's 18th national pro-amateur tournament starts on Thursday, the field playing over three picturesque courses, will include 150 professionals vying for shares of a $50,000 purse and 150 amateurs.

For the second straight year, the format for the affair has been changed. The entire field of 150 two-man teams—one professional and one amateur—will play the first three rounds. Then the field will be cut to the low 40 and ties in the pro-amateur and 45 to 50 pro-am teams.

SEE ALL COURSES

The final 18 holes will be played at the Pebble Beach course but contrary to former years, 25 foursomes will play each of three courses — Pebble Beach, Monterey Peninsula and Cypress Point—each of the first three days.

This will give every contestant an opportunity to play at least one round on each course.

Crosby again backs his tournament with $15,000 in prizes. Television rights sold to ABC for $35,000 complete the $50,000 jackpot.

Bing, who used to play in the tourney, will do the TV commentary Sunday, opening the hole to hole to describe the' play. Proceeds from the gate, programs and concessions go to charity as usual.

In addition to the stars of professional golf, the tournament draws top names from business, entertainment and sports. The purse is divided $35,000 for individual winners and $15,000 for pros in the leading pro-amateur teams.

Last year's winner, portly Billy Casper of Chula Vista, Calif., came back to win his title over Jack Hebert of Sanford, Fla., who won in 1957, copped the pro-am event last year with Los Angeles Attorney Roger Kelly.

In the pro-am section, both of the team shoot for medal score. However, only the low scores of the team counted on each hole and the amateur's handicap is used. Thus should a duffer shoot a 10 on an individual hole for which the amateur has a one-stroke handicap, only nine will be counted a 3 in the scoring.

Entertainment will be slated to play include Desi Arnaz, Ray Bolger, Dick Arlen, Bob Crosby, Jane Greer, Otto Graham, Ralph Kiner and Bill Rigney.

TOMMY WINNER —

WILMINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Olympic skier Art Tommy of Olympic, Calif., a former Dartmouth Fred by 1½ seconds Sunday and won the first annual Empire State giant slalom on Whiteface Mountain. The event was sponsored by students at St. Lawrence University and drew 54 competitors, 14 of them from Canada. Art Tommy, 25, did the 45-gate course in 1:42.4 and Fred, 17, finished in 1:43.9. Both represented the Ottawa Ski Club.

Industrial Hockey League Results

Sports Centre tightened its grip on first place in the Industrial Hockey League over the weekend by shading the runner-up Hillcrest Wreckers squad by 6-4 score.

In the fight for top spot Sports Centre took the win when defenceman Bill Hurst's looping shot from the blueline careened in off a goalpost to snap a 4-4 tie. Sports Centre now hold a three-point lead over the Wreckers with three games left to play. These teams meet once more in the final game of the schedule.

Frank Cris of Bell Telephone gave Gord 'Rocky' Pewyor, making his league debut in Circle TV goal, a rough day in the 6-6 affair. Cris scored four of the team's goals with Bob Hazzard and Bud Fayette firing the others.

The Rangers' goal gave him undisputed possession of the scoring lead, which he had held jointly with Montreal Canadiens' Dickie Moore and Don McKenney of Boston Bruins two leftwingers.

And the total of three points moved him to within three points of the total-points lead, held by Moore. Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens and Geoffrion got two assists Sunday in Montreal's 6-2 win over Boston to break a long personal slump.

American League President Recalls Varying Incidents

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Plastering famed catcher Bill Dickey with a $1,000 fine and a 30-day suspension was the toughest thing baseball's Will Harridge had to do in 27 years as American League president.

"It happened on July 4, 1932, just a little more than a year after I had taken office," the retiring league president recalled in an interview. "It stands out in my mind perplexing, toughest and most controversial decision.

"Two quiet and inoffensive men were involved — catcher Bill Dickey of the Yankees and outfielder Carl Reynolds of Washington. At Griffith Stadium that July 4th, Dickey took a punch at Reynolds at the plate and broke his jaw. The facts as I received them demanded action. I fined Dickey $1,000 and suspended him 30 days.

TENSE RELATIONS

"Col. Jacob Ruppert (wealthy backer of the Yankees) said I was robbing New York of the pennant and vowed he never would speak to me again. But he relented. Even without Dickey for a month, the Yankees won with 107 victories and defeated the Cubs four straight in the world series."

Ruppert appealed to the league's board of directors, but Harridge's action was upheld and a rule adopted making suspension automatic in such cases.

As Harridge mused over 27 years, these incidents stirred his memory the most:

His most delicate and difficult problem:

"That would be the transfer of the Philadelphia franchise to Kansas City. That action was forced out of railroading the Mack family but at baseball, I had to protect Connie Mack as well as the American League."

His gaffe:

"That would be the moving of the major league baseball franchises—Philadelphia to Kansas City and St. Louis to Baltimore. We never thought it would happen."

The biggest oddity?

"That would add up to the wild promotional ideas of Bill Veeck. He wanted to put people in baseball uniforms placards to dash to a batter whether to hit or walk. He had Zach Taylor in a rocking chair in front of the dugout. Then he brought in that midget to pinch-hit.

"That midget stunt when Veeck owned the St. Louis Browns was something I never could get over. It put umpire Ed Hurley in a spot, because when he wanted to order the midget out Veeck shoved a contract under his nose. That contract still is in my office safe."

The greatest innovation:

"The introduction of night ball in 1939. Attendance jumped . . . the whole family was given a chance to enjoy baseball."

The most important part of his job:

"Maintaining discipline on the field. It never can be relaxed. The first step is the hiring and handling of the umpiring, staff and giving it full backing."

His greatest baseball thrills:

"The 1956 world series and Don Larsen's perfect game stand out. And who couldn't get a big thrill out of the Yankees comeback to win the 1958 series?"

ARE CARS CHEAPER OUT OF TOWN?

Sometimes a car buyer will ask if cars are cheaper in Toronto . . . Montreal . . . or somewhere else.

Certainly there ARE cheap cars — but you don't have to go out of town to find them. The only point to consider, a buyer should go to a junk yard where he will get a "car" at absolutely the lowest rock-bottom price.

At KEN PINDER LTD., we believe that most buyers want not only a car that "runs", but a car that will give pleasure and satisfaction for many miles of motoring. At KEN PINDER LTD. the prices are governed by QUALITY which is the true test of VALUE FOR YOUR MONEY. Visit us at 149 Front St., or phone WO 2-3636.

"The garage said it would cost a fortune to fix it up — THAT'S why we want to trade it in!"

KIDNAPPED BABY

shortly after birth. He said the baby was "okay."

Leggett said the woman took "good care" of the baby. "She had plenty of experience caring for children of her own," he added.

Officials at St. Peter's said the baby weighed seven pounds, one ounce when it returned to the hospital. The Chionchio infant weighed seven pounds at birth.

FOUND COAT

In Mrs. Iavarone's apartment police found a black coat with an inverted V outlined on each lapel. Both descriptions corresponded with descriptions given by nurses and a night watchman at the hospital who saw the abductor the night the baby vanished.

Leggett said Mrs. Iavarone, a department store employee, had been confronted by police earlier but declined to say if they had identified her.

For a week a search of an infensity seldom matched in the metropolis went on around the clock.

Thousands of tips were checked, hundreds of persons questioned and many square miles of territory searched.

FOUND CLOTHES

Clues were scarce. The baby's hospital garments, all except the diaper, were found the day after the kidnapping in a vacant Brooklyn store.

Two days later, an ominous note was found pinned to a diaper in a Brooklyn subway station. It said: "Please return to St. Peter's Hospital. Didn't want to hurt anyone. Everything is so hard. Tired. Sick. The ocean looks so inviting. Maybe I will find peace. Just like to keep her warm. Dear God, forgive me."

The unsigned note aroused fears that the baby was not only alive, but the search continued until its happy ending Sunday night.

Police said the blood of the baby matched the blood of Mrs. Frank Chionchio, mother of the missing child.

The blood did not match Mrs. Iavarone's blood, police said, nor did it correspond to the blood of the man Mrs. Iavarone said fathered the child she had in her apartment.

Police quoted Mrs. Iavarone, a bleachedblonde, as saying she delivered the baby herself in her apartment the night of June. 6.

Leggett said, however, that medical examination showed there had been no birth nine days ago.

When asked if the footprint of the baby found Sunday night matched the footprint of the Chionchio infant on leaving the hospital, Leggett would say only that the baby's footprints were "okay."

The baby girl was taken to St. Peter's Hospital and her parents notified. Hospital authorities said the infant was "in good condition."

H. G. Foster, special agent in charge of the New York FBI office, said New York police and FBI agents located Mrs. Iavarone after an anonymous telephone call to a special number designated to receive information on the kidnapping.

Leggett said Mrs. Iavarone has been married twice and that she had eight children, the youngest of which is three.

WINDSOR, Ont. CP) — One young thug in Windsor will think twice before he tries to rob 63-year-old Ruel Banks again. Mr. Banks said the man struck him on a residential street and he started hitting back. The assailant fled.

Project Spends $6,000,000 Yearly to Search Better Ways Of Battlefield Surveillance

By JOHN BARBOUR

DETROIT (AP) — In future wars, soldiers will need eyes to see in the dark, ears to detect the most distant sounds and a sense of taste that can penetrate the most perfect disguise.

In a group of airplane hangars on the east side of Willow Run airport, a scientific team is at work fashioning such tools.

Oddly enough, the team rarely produces a finished piece of equipment, its product, instead, is a bread-and-butter model or a con-cept for extending the senses of the army man in battle.

The project spends $6,000,000 a year to search for better ways of battlefield surveillance. It is called Project Michigan and is conducted for the U.S. Army by the University of Michigan.

To help the infantryman, eyes and his senses beyond the hori-zon and into the dark, the project is using a variety of methods.

HEAT DETECTION

Since every animal radiates heat, infra-red or heat detection is a prime weapon. Machines like trucks or tanks are given away by their own energy, even in the dark.

Radar, the ear that measures the echo of radio waves bouncing off distant objects, has come a long way since its first wartime applications early in the Second World War. Like infra-red, it can help him sight into dark.

Since moving things shake the earth and make noise, special devices that measure seismic or early vibrations and sound are useful.

With all of these there are alr-planes with and without pilots to carry saving devices beyond en-emy lines—and television to help speed the data to patrols.

HOW THEY WORK

Let's look at a hypothetical bat-tle of the future to see how some of the new senses might work.

The battle area may be 500 miles around in a country named X. Atom - armed troops, split into battle groups of a few thou-sand men, roam the woods and the fields, tied together by elec-tronic threads of communication.

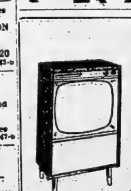
The commander is as mobile as his troops in a headquarters — legs or wheels. Since the enemy is also atom-armed, he and his troops must be copatantly on the move—so as not to pro-vide a concentrated, easy-to-hit target.

Planes whisk over the area, beaming downward radar signals and recording the earth below as the radar waves bounce back. The picture they get is almost as clear as an aerial photograph.

PENETRATE CAMOUFLAGE

Small pilotless aircraft dart over enemy positions, taking heat or infra-red pictures of the battle terrain. They can chart not only where tanks are—but where they have been, regardless of night or camouflage.

Some infra - red devices can even spot flashes from enemy artillery and heat from enemy shells, so that counter-fire can be directed at gun emplacements.



The individual Infantry-man may have special detectors that enable him to pick out men and machines moving at night many miles away be be measuring the tiniest differences in tempera-ture.

By pairing radar, infra-red and photographic pictures, observers can get extremely clear and com-plete views of enemy-held areas.

In the mobile command unit, the information is fed to plotting boards and overlays. The flick of a switch can light up the radar information and compare it with infra-red or with visual observa-tions.

With his computer information, his plotting boards and his bat-tle-wide reporting service, the commander gets a complete, up-to-the-minute picture of his area, his troops and their foes.

TWEED — Director of athletics at Tweed High School, Mr. Charles Lynch, advises that the schedule for Inter-Scholastic Basketball in both the boys' and girls' sections, will get under way this week.

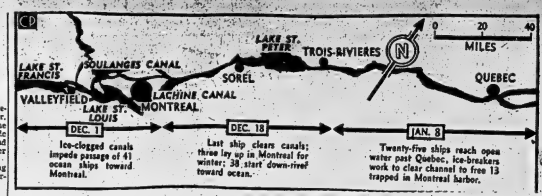
There will be teams competing from Madoc Marmora and Stirling, as well as Tweed.

Tweed Midgets Whip Cooper 9-1

TWEED — On Friday January 9th, The Tweed District Midget Hockey League opened with a game between Cooper and Tweed with the home team cuichissing the visiting, Cooper lads by a score of 9-1.

The stalwarts on the Tweed team were Robert Bush with a tolly of four goals, Terry Lee Sage gathering two and Don Eaton, Stephen MacDonald and Denny Atwood accounting for one each.

QUEBEC ARTIST



Henri Julien, Quebec cartoonist who died in 1908, was also a distinguished painter and draughtsman.

Intosh read an article from the loan library on the subject "Wedding Customs of Long Ago." This told of what the words "wedding, trousseau, orange blossoms, rice, shower" and such, meant in those days and how through the years, they have found a place in our modern customs.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, friendship link secretary, distributed a gift of a nylon purse-size comb to each member of River Valley W.I. from the members of Atlantic Leigh W.I. in England.

The rest of the program will be carried over to the February meeting.

The hostess and lunch committee served light refreshments and were tendered a vote of thanks.

For six weeks, ocean ships have fought a desperate battle to escape the grip of Canada's inland winter, severest in more than a generation, and reach the high seas.

This map shows the stages in their struggle—through the ice-clogged canals of the St. Lawrence River navigation route, past the ice barriers in Montreal harbor and Lake St. Peter and then on to the safety of open water down-river from Quebec.

At the start of December 41 ocean vessels, still in the canal system above Montreal, were trapped by an early freeze-up. It took until December 18 for all of them to break free of the canal ice and reach Montreal harbor. Three gave up the fight and laid up in Montreal for the winter.

The others continued the struggle to reach the open sea 000 miles away with the help of government ice-breakers. Twenty-five reached open water. The remaining 13, with the help of five ice-breakers operating between Montreal and Quebec, were still hopeful of escape to the Atlantic. (CP Newsmap.)

German Freighter, One of 13 Trapped, Heads for Open Sea

MONTREAL (CP)—The German freighter Poseidon, one of 13 foreign ships trapped in Montreal harbor by an early December cold snap, today headed down the St. Lawrence for the open sea.

The freighter cast off her moorings at 9 a.m., worked her way into the channel without the assistance of a tug and moved downstream astern of the ice-breaker Ernest Lapointe. The ice-breakers hope to free the remaining 12 ships some time Tuesday.

The Poseidon berthed at an open pier at Montreal East a few miles downstream from the clustered 12 other ships, was reached Saturday by the powerful transport department ice-breaker, d'Iberville.

She got steam up Sunday night and had ordered a pilot for 7 a.m. today.

The original plan of departure was for all the ships to leave in a convoy led by the ice-breakers once all 13 ships were cleared.

FEAR ICE DAMAGE

But a spokesman for March Shipping Line, agents for the Poseidon, said authorities decided to have the Poseidon prepared to move today at "the best possible moment" because of her exposed position to ice flows from further up the harbor where the ice-breakers were sighting to reach the trapped 12. It was feared the ice in the 12-mile-an-hour harbor current would smash against the ship and cause damage.

The Poseidon's home is Hamburg. She carries a general cargo.

All day Sunday, the d'Iberville and the ice-breaker Ernest Lapointe ground slowly toward the trapped 12 in the inner harbor, encountering "very much difficulty" as they contended with ice rafted to the harbor bottom 35 feet down.

When they tied up for the night, the breakers were still more than two miles from the trapped ships and officials did not expect them to reach the freighters before Tuesday.

The freighters, once freed, are to be escorted by the d'Iberville and the Lapointe as they begin the 800-mile journey down the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic.

The 12 are the German freighters Christa and Luise Bornhofen; the Swedes Vaxholm, Rydboholm and Tornholm; the British Beneverford and Appledore; the Norwegians Elin Havern and Ogna County; the Italian Capo Miseno; the Dutch Prins Frederik Hendrik and the Libertia Kail L.

Harbor officials said the channel was clear all the way down the St. Lawrence River. The breakers N. B. McLean and Montcalm were in the Lake St. Peter-Sorel area, 50 miles downriver, keeping the broken ice moving.

The 13 ocean freighters were imprisoned with 28 others by an unheralded early December freeze-up.

"We'll get them. I don't know when, but we'll get them," was the repeated promise of Capt. Charles Cavan, master of the d'Iberville which leads the four ice-breakers assigned to the rescue mission.

Twenty-five vessels got away earlier in the battle against the ice that began to appear on the river six weeks ago.

Above Lake St. Louis ice also formed quickly in the 14-mile Soulanges Canal. The old canal system, due to be abandoned by ocean shipping when the St. Lawrence seaway opens in the spring, was set for closing Dec. 8.

Then snowstorms and dropping temperatures forced extension of the closing.

It was Dec. 18 before the last of 41 ocean ships cleared the Soulanges and Lachine canals. Canal workers used tugs, steam jets, tow trucks, flame throwers and a diesel locomotive to coax vessel by vessel, inches at a time.

But the crisis just moved down into Montreal harbor and the St. Lawrence river. Ice built up and snow fell.

Ships hesitated to venture down the river. The 13 waited too long and were caught. Another three gave up, laid off crews, and are wintering here.

Fifteen ships edged out of Montreal in convoy Dec. 14 and 15 of them became frozen into the ice of Lake St. Peter, 50 miles below Montreal, when they stopped overnight. They waited four days in sight of riverside farms and villages until freed by the d'Iberville, the Ernest Lapointe and N.B. McLean.

Another convoy of seven was trapped in the lake—a shallow ledge in the river—Dec. 11 and later freed by the Lapointe.

River Valley W.I. Holds January Meet

STIRLING — The January meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Ernest Carr with 21 members and one visitor in attendance.

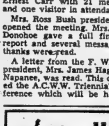
Mrs. Ross Bush presided and opened the meeting. Mrs. J. R. Donohoe gave a full financial report and several messages of thanks were read.

A letter from the F. W. I. O. president, Mrs. James Haggerty, Napanee, was read. This outlined the A.C.W.W. Triennial Conference which will be held in Edinburgh, Scotland, in August.

River Valley W.I. will be hostess for the annual meeting of West Hastings District in June and it was decided to make arrangements for the I.O.O.F. Banquet Hall for that event.

Mrs. Ed. Heasman, reporting the two card parties held in December, announced the proceeds amounted to over $14. There will be three card parties in January, on the 9th, 16th, and 23rd, at the school house.

PLAN POT-LUCK SUPPER



On Friday evening, January 30th, a pot-luck supper and social evening will be held at the I.O.O.F. Banquet Hall. This will be for the members of R.V.W.I. their families and the folks who reside in the Valley community.

The February 5th meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ross Bush. The January program based on "Historical Research and Current Events", prepared by Mrs. Alex Bush and Mrs. Roy Irven, will be given at this meeting as there wasn't time to have it at the January meeting. The February meeting will be convened by Mrs. Ed. Heasman and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe.

A full report of the building committee to date was presented by Mrs. Ed. Heasman and this gave an itemized account of the expenditures of the new kitchen. This was followed by a lengthy discussion period.

Mrs. Mary Vandervoort sent an aluminum tray as a gift for the new kitchen.

Mrs. Roy Irven read a New Year's poem. Mrs. Sheldon Mc-

The true story of one small borrower... and 'MY BANK'

A few weeks ago, Julian Janvrin, an Englishman by birth now living in Toronto, came upon this headline in his daily newspaper: "Bank of Montreal Deposits Top the Three Billion Mark". A depositor at the B of M since shortly after his arrival in Canada five years ago, Mr. Janvrin was prompted by the headline to write a letter to Gordon R. Bell, president of the B of M, outlining his experiences as both a depositor and borrower at Canada's first bank. We thought Mr. Janvrin's story of his struggle against adversity was worth repeating, and with his permission, have made it the basis of this advertisement.

The Success Story of Julian Janvrin...

Julian Janvrin is the last person in the world to say that his is a success story. We think it is. But you can judge for yourself.

FIVE YEARS AGO, shortly after his arrival in Canada with his wife and three children, Mr. Janvrin had occasion to cash a cheque at his local B of M branch in Toronto. "Although I had told the manager that I was just an immigrant," he recalls, "he invited me to open an account, and it was gratifying to me to feel that my confidence in the future of Canada was reciprocated by the Bank of Montreal. Two or three weeks later I opened an account at that branch."

Like most newcomers to Canada, Mr. Janvrin had only enough capital when he arrived to get himself settled, and eventually he found himself short in meeting the final payment on his car, which was essential in his new job as a salesman. So he talked over his problem with his B of M manager, who considered him a good enough risk to advance him the money he needed.

But let Mr. Janvrin continue the story in his own words:

"I mention this because bankers are sometimes charged with being little more than moneylenders and usurers, but in this instance, I knew that the Bank of Montreal was acting as it were on behalf of the people of Canada in helping me to get established in much the same way as in pioneer days the Bank of Montreal must have advanced funds to immigrants to purchase seed, a few implements and maybe a team of horses.

"Soon afterwards I gave up selling, disposed of the car and took a regular job by night, while my wife by day quite literally took the holes out of doughnuts. One of us was able always to be with the children, two of whom were not then of school age.

"Fifteen months later we decided to obtain cheaper rental accommodation outside Toronto. A car, however, would then be essential. Again the bank went along with us.

"Two years ago the landlord of the house we were renting decided to sell the house. Again the Bank of Montreal helped us and advanced the down payment that prevented our home being sold over our heads.

"This summer my son, having passed through six grades in three years at public school, sat for the competitive entrance examination to a school for which I would have to pay an annual fee . . . For this, too, I am in large measure indebted to the Bank of Montreal, for in June my financial circumstances were such that had I not been confident of my banker's support, I might not have ever considered sending him to this school.

"We have now again moved into Toronto to be nearer the school, but our circumstances have improved, inasmuch as our teenage daughter has now left high school of her own will and is now working; and as the two younger children are now at school, my wife in the New Year will be in a position to take an office job.

"This is not a success story, for the struggle, believe me, is still on. But our bank account is now in better shape than it has been for the past five years and will now perhaps be more easy.

"I am now, therefore, at last in a position to write to thank My Bank and in particular my bank manager, for the confidence it placed in us and for the help, encouragement and courtesy it has always extended to us.

"To me it is no surprise that the deposits of the Bank of Montreal should have topped the 3-billion mark, for although from the short term point of view I myself am not yet in a position to make large deposits, it may well be from the long term point of view, that my son, as a representative of the coming generation, may be in a position to do as other sons of Canada are now doing."

The B of M is, of course, proud to have played its part in Julian Janvrin's success story, and is grateful to him for allowing us to publish it to indicate some of the many ways in which Canada's first bank works with Canadians—new and old alike —in every walk of life from coast to coast.

Mr. Janvrin's story provides a sincere and unsolicited testimonial to the fact that "When you ask for a loan at the Bank of Montreal, you do not ask a favour".

When money is a problem with you, why not see your B of M manager? If your proposition is sound and reasonable there's money for you at the B of M . . . at the lowest rates and on the fairest terms.

"Get to know your banker," says Mr. Janvrin. "Your best collateral is his confidence." A young time fore-lance writer, he spends many evenings at his typewriter while the children study.

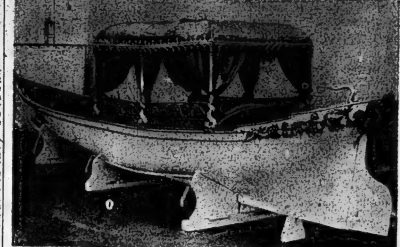
"Don't butt in, wise guy," is the apparent warning of a lion-like rabbit with the improbable name of "Sunriser," who faces up to a goat named "Durty" at a farm near Dallas, Texas. Despite his size, the rabbit rules the roost at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Mert Easley, using a set of sharp teeth to become monarch of an animal kingdom that includes 50 chickens, 13 dogs, four cats, two goats, a cow and a horse. Although he's the terror of the barnyard, Sunriser is smart enough to like people, especially since Mrs. Easley says, "If he bites me he's going in the pot. He'e a fryer just like the rest of our rabbits."

Wants Wider Investment of Father's Fortune

TORONTO (CP) — A former Leeds member of Parliament says he will try to upset in the Ontario legislature a provision restricting investment of money left in his father's will — a $10,000,000 fortune built on the sale of pills.



Senator George Taylor Fulford, the father and a Brockville resident, was international attention for his "Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people." He also made most of his money from their sale which at one point reached 1,000,000 boxes a year in Canada alone. The pills — two of the ingredients are iron and vitamin B — are still on the market.

Senator Fulford was killed in an automobile accident in Massachusetts in 1905 at the age of 53. It was a time when common stocks and even the preferred variety were held in low esteem. Because of this, the senator's will stipulated that his estate could be invested only in federal, provincial or municipal bonds.

George T. Fulford Jr., the son, said he had no quarrel with the Toronto General Trust Corporation, administrators of the estate.

"But now we feel that we should be taking advantage of the investment opportunities that exist," he added. Mr. Fulford is president of the Brockville Trust and Savings Company.

180 Canadians Will Work on Bomarc Missile

SEATTLE (AP)—The Boeing Airplane Company says a talent-sharing arrangement with Canadian engineers and technicians has speeded development of the advanced Bomarc interceptor missile.

Boeing and Canadair services of Montreal signed a contract last month under which 180 Canadians will work on the Boeing-built Bomarc for a year.

Robert H. Jewett, chief engineer of Boeing's pilotless-aircraft division, said in a statement Saturday that "the Canadar-Boeing contract in effect is an extension of military partnership into the industrial field."

The advanced long-range Bomarc model is to be incorporated into the industrial field."

The advanced long-range Bomarc model is to be incorporated into Canada's air defence system.

In Montreal a Canadair spokesman said the 180 engineers are part of a highly-trained team of 300 missile specialists who had been working on the Sparrow, a Canadian missile which the government decided to drop last September.

"We wanted to keep these people available in case we get a part of the Bomarc contract," the spokesman said, "and the agreement with Boeing was one of the methods devised for doing so."

He said Canadair has tried to arrange for some of the other personnel to do sub-contract work on a temporary basis in other firms or in the Canadair plant here.

Havana Casinos May Be Open To Tourists

HAVANA (AP) — The U.S.-backed multi-million-dollar gambling industry took fresh hope today that the doors to Havana's fabulous casinos might reopen soon.

But the casino operators were aware that if this happens only foreigners will be permitted to roll the dice, pull the slot machine levers, or pursue other means of trying for a fast dollar.

The new provisional government and rebel chieftain Fidel Castro stood firm on their declarations such gambling activity was eaded for the Cuban people.

The casinos might get the green light as tourist attraction, however, and that would satisfy the operators. Most of the gambling virtuosa and the big money play have come from U.S. and other tourists.

Provisional president Manuel Urrutia said at first "I will not allow gambling in Cuba." Later he softened his stand somewhat with a statement "I am not in favor of gambling."

Castro also took a no gambling stand when he arrived with his triumphant rebel warriors in Havana. Saturday night he conceded it was possible for the casinos in the hotels to operate for tourists — "but not for the people of Cuba."

Pope Apologizes For Keeping Driver Waiting

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John apologized to his chauffeur Sunday for making him wait outside a convent where the Pope went to deliver Epiphany gifts to 150 poor children.

"I'm sorry you had to wait," the Pope told his driver, 55-year-old Mario Stoppa. "I will walk home."

And walk home he did, half a mile around the Vatican wall from the convent at one edge of Vatican City to his apartment at the other.

On the way he stopped at the apartment of Prof. Cecilio Lolli, editor of the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano. Lolli's wife had been confined to bed for several years by illness. The Pope said he wanted to comfort them.

No Locations Chosen for Bomarc Missile

OTTAWA (CP) — No decision has yet been made on location of launching sites for the Bomarc anti - aircraft missile, says Defence Minister Pearkes.

"Several sites now are being looked at," he told a reporter, "and some preliminary surveys have been made."

A spot near Lac Macaza, about 120 miles north of Montreal, was among possible sites examined so far, he said. There are to be two Bomarc bases, one in Ontario and one in Quebec.

But "no decision has yet been made as to the exact sites," he added.

Informed there had been news reports placing the cost as high as $100,000,000 and as low as $10,000,000 per launching base, he said good-humoredly:

"You can say it will be somewhere between those two figures."

Belgium Plans To Make Congo Free Democracy

Will Organize Colony So Can Be Independent

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The government today announced plans to make the Belgian Congo "a democracy capable of deciding its independence" by instituting elections and a "skeleton" parliament.

Local elections will be held for African councillors in towns and most rural areas by the end of 1959 and they will elect a provincial council in 1960 to form the basis of a chamber of representatives.

The plans were announced in Parliament today by Prime Minister Gaston Eyskens during a declaration of policy on the Congo's political future.

FOLLOWS RIOTS

The announcement followed two days of riots in the Belgian Congo capital of Leopoldville last week in which at least 42 Africans were killed and more than 1250 persons, Europeans and Africans, were injured.

"Belgium intends to organize in the Congo a democracy capable of exercising the prerogatives of sovereignty and of deciding its independence," Eyskens told Parliament.

Eyskens said Baudouin also announced today in a radio broadcast that the country intends to lead the Congo to "independence in prosperity and peace."

CLEARLY DEFINED

"In a civilized world, independence is a status which unites and guarantees order, liberty and progress," Baudouin said.

Baudouin, who said he was speaking to the peoples of both Belgium and the Congo, declared: "For 2 years from opening all European solutions on the Congo peoples, we intend to favor original adaptations."

The Congo, a Belgian colony for 50 years, has a population of more than 10,000,000.

Eyskens said after the new Congo has developed politically, it would be "desirable that bonds of association should be maintained between the Congo and Belgium."

"Our two countries will decide its form freely at that moment," he said.

Eyskens said new communal and rural councillors will be elected by universal suffrage.

These councillors, together with the existing city councillors, will elect the majority of the provincial councillors as well as several councillors.

The prime minister said a "skeleton parliament" will be created immediately by the governor-general of the Belgian Congo and by the governors of the six provinces.

He said none of the measures applied to the Belgian United Nations trusteeship territory of Ruanda Urundi, which adjoin the Belgian Congo.

Teachers Will Oppose Zone Salary Schedules

TORONTO (CP)—The board of governors of the Ontario Teachers' Federation says it will favor any provincial or zone salary schedules for teachers laid down by the Ontario School Trustees' Council or its affiliates.

A statement issued Monday said the governors believe such procedures violate teachers' freedom to bargain with local boards of education.

Bleached Blonde Kidnapped Baby In Plot to Trap Man Into Marriage

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Jean Iavarone, widowed mother of eight, faces court today to answer a kidnapping charge. She is accused of abducting a newborn baby by the Caesarean birth in a marriage trap.

The bleached-blonde mother was booked Monday on a charge of taking Lisa Rose Chionchio from St. Peter's Hospital Jan. 5, when the infant was 2½ days old.

Conviction on the charge carries a possible maximum sentence of 7 years to life in prison under state law.

The motive for the kidnapping, police said, was Mrs. Iavarone's desire to pressure a boy friend, Salvatore Chionchio, into marriage by having him believe he was the father.

The instance search for the child ended Sunday night. Police and FBI agents, directed by a telephoned tip, found the baby in Mrs. Iavarone's clean but untidy apartment in a humble section of Brooklyn.

They related the baby was here claiming she had delivered it by herself the night of Jan. 2.

EXECUTION TOLLS IN CUBA UNDER CASTRO MOUNT

75 Face Firing Squad at Santiago

HAVANA (AP)—The execution tolls in Cuba are mounting as rebel Castro's military courts continue to exact vengeance for collaboration by supporters of fallen dictator Fulgencio Batista.

At least 16 executions were reported executed between Batista's flight Jan. 1 and Monday. More speedy trials are under way, including hearings for about 100 prisoners in Havana province.

The toll took a jump Monday when revolutionary firing squads were reported to have shot 75 persons near Santiago, capital of Oriente where Castro's rebellion was centred and anti-rebel repression was toughest.

Previously another 50 Batista supporters were known to be dead at various points on the island.

NO DETAILS

Officials of the provisional government claimed all cases were fully investigated, but otherwise there are no details on the trials of the condemned men. Apparently most were tried by military court, not by military courts rather than by the revolutionary courts which the new regime has said would be established to try "war crime" offenders.

Of the 16 defendants got the death penalty. Two policemen in Havana were sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Approximately 3,000 persons are being held throughout Cuba.

The weekly news magazine Bohemia estimated that 1,000 Cubans had been killed since Batista seized power in 1952 on Jan. 1, 1959.

The 75 were executed in Oriente were shot in two groups, one of 14 and the other of 61, witnesses said. The executions took place at a military camp one mile from Santiago and one mile from San Juan Hill.

Santiago military headquarters declined to confirm the executions. But a report of the executions of scores of fresh dirt, cartridge cases and tire tracks at the scene.

One of the four Roman Catholic priests who heard the prisoners confessions, Rev. Jorge de Chatode, head of the Catholic Youth Movement in Oriente, said they were mostly young men—police guards accused of torture, secret police, alleged informers, and members of the private army of Batista's brother-in-law Rafael Guiterrez, which despoiled those accused of supporting the rebellion and then fled to Florida.

Some of the men projected they were innocent of the charges against them. One shouted "Fidel Castro is an assassin." Most stood at attention with blindfolds or arm bindings.

Castro said in a statement Cuba is back to normal. He assured tourists and business men in the island will be welcomed by all citizens.

The appearance of Havana indeed was close to normal. There were fewer armed men on the streets and most of those were bona fide revolutionary troops. Bars and night clubs were open and Transportation was normal. Baseball, racing and soccer were under way again.

Decline to Set Strike Deadline

WINDSOR (CP)—The slowdown strike of Local 444, United Auto Workers Union CLC, has declined not to set a strike deadline against Chrysler of Canada "at the present time", a union spokesman said on Monday night.

U.A.W. publicity director Jim Stanbury said the union would give further study to the negotiating committee's report before reaching a decision on the strike deadline.

Minerals Under Coast Waters To Come Under Govt. Control

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal government apparently intends to exercise authority over mineral rights under coastal waters although it has never been conclusively determined whether they are federally- or provincially-owned.

A reliable authority says the federal government soon will issue exploration and development permits covering mineral in the lands under coastal waters that have been defined by international agreement as Canadian.

The result may be a legal battle with the provinces over title to the ownership question and along with it the question of who government will receive royalties from any oil and gas development.

The extent of Canada's jurisdiction for mineral exploration in coastal waters, defined in an international agreement reached last summer, now has been ratified by the 30 signatory countries.

This agreement provides that the coastal state has the right to exercise its sovereign rights as far out from the shore as it is possible to do so. There are certain limits in areas where two neighboring states might claim the mineral rights under the water.

The provision applies only to resources and not to fishing rights and other matters which are covered in other international agreements or are still pending.

The question of which Canadian government—federal or provincial—has primary jurisdiction over submerged coastal lands came before Parliament two years ago. Newfoundland strongly objected and the government allowed the bill affirming the federal authority in a limited area to die.

Quebec, British Columbia and Newfoundland disputed the federal ground provincial rights might be infringed. Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton sought to offset objections with an amendment that suggested would limit the lands in question to those under Hudson Bay, James Bay, Hudson Strait and Ungava Bay.

This appeared to satisfy some but left Ontario and Quebec apparently not those of some seaboard states and the bill was never passed by Parliament.

A number of applications for federal exploration and development permits have been made, it is known, to be in the areas that oil companies are interested in exploring for oil and gas.

Granting of permits might bring Ontario and Quebec closer to challenge a 1912 act of Parliament which some federal authorities say is unclear as to the boundaries of these provinces and the Arctic islands.

In 1957, Ontario expressed itself in agreement with this but has made no recent statement on the matter.

Reformatory Guard Slugged But Escape Attempt Fails

GUELPH (CP) — Two prisoners made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the Ontario Reformatory here Monday after one of them slugged a guard over the head with a 10-inch piece of pipe.

The guard, Harold Koehler, was not severely injured.

Superintendent Charles Sanderson said today the prisoners, Ulrich Weiss, 18, a German immigrant, and Robert Retford, 19, of Ottawa, were charged with aggravated assault.

Mr. Sanderson told this story:

Koehler was on duty with a group of cleaners in the second floor of a cell block. They reported that Retford was lying on the floor. As the guard bent over Retford, Weiss hit him with the bar, inflicting a two-inch cut. He was dragged into a small room and tied.

The unidentified prisoner was pushed into the room with him and the door was locked with the guard's keys.

The escapers were followed through a passageway filled with fumes and smoke.

They are believed to have thought that the passageway led to the roof and freedom. But they were caught at the end of the shaft.

Weiss is serving a sentence for theft and Retford for breaking, entering and theft.

Little Current Board to Hear Grievances

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP) —The school board will find out Wednesday night if a strike vote was that caused 60 out of 124 high school students to play truant Monday, Friday and Manitoulin Island town.

The meeting is returned to classes Monday and began preparing a list of grievances against principal W. Beckley. Their parents will present the list to the school board at its regular meeting.

Grade XIII student Dean Lockyer, one of the leaders in the student strike, Monday refused to say what the specific complaints were. He denied rumors that a teacher instigated the walkout. "None of the teachers had anything to do with it."

It was reported that before Christmas four teachers on the staff petitioned the board that perhaps Mr. Beckley was not suited to be principal since his duties. The board offered Mr. Beckley six months' leave of absence but he refused. Classes last Monday, Board members then suggested he take three days' sick leave, which he did.

At Toronto's Scarborough School were one of the leaders in viously taught teachers and students described the Presbyterians missionary in China as a "sterling gentleman and an excellent teacher."

CBC TO SUBMIT NEW PROPOSALS TO PRODUCERS

Benefit Show Run For the Strikers

MONTREAL (CP)—The CBC said it will likely submit a new "lengthy and detailed" proposal today aimed at ending a strike by 74 Montreal radio and television producers that has been over union recognition. The strike started Dec. 29.

A spokesman said CBC officials were drafting the new proposal in the English language and it would be translated into French before delivery.

They declined to disclose the terms of the new offer but said it "is more detailed and lengthy than that we have made previously."

SHOW SUCCESSFUL

Meanwhile a spokesman for the producers said a standing room only crowd of 3,000 attended a variety show Monday night at Comedie Canadienne for the benefit of the striking union supporters.

He said the affair was so successful that the producers plan to hold it "as soon as we can get time on the stage—not right Thursday night because Chez City."

While the CBC was drafting the new offer Monday, heads of six English-language CBC employees told a mass meeting of their members that the public-service corporation is trying to stall settlement negotiations, hoping for a break in union ranks. The union ordered its members back to work.

LOCK AT WORK

Union leaders reaffirmed their stand to continue picketing at CBC studios until the corporation reported 1,120 of its 2,500 Montreal employees had returned Monday and "more are expected to return today."

Elden Wilkes, executive vice-president of the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTEC), said a majority of the union's 800 members have returned to work in obedience to a directive issued jointly by local and national leaders.

But 150 ARTEC members decided against returning, including 74 "loyal ARTEC", they told another meeting Monday night and defied orders from union heads. They declared they would not cross the producers' picket lines.

Avro Offers 100 Arrows at $3,750,000 Each

OTTAWA (CP)—Avro Aircraft Limited has offered the government a price of $3,750,000 each for 100 Arrow supersonic all-weather interceptors, informants report.

This figure represents production costs only and does not include development costs, spare parts and other indirect expenses.

Avro does not quarrel with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's $800,000,000 for 100 Arrows, with all costs included in that figure. However, when the contract was awarded in 1953, Of this $1,000,000,000 per aircraft or about 1/2, demanded money Monday night.

Ontario Plans Moosonee Port, Asks Federal Aid

Development Proposed To Tap Iron Deposits

TORONTO (CP) — Planning Minister Nickle of Ontario said Monday a seaport at Moosonee near the south end of James Bay "is no longer a dream" and he hopes for quick co-operation from the federal government in the project.

"We want federal engineers to go in there with our engineers and find out just what they are ready to do," he said at a press conference called as minister left the planned $5,000,000 seaport and industrial area.

He said it is necessary to get advice from Federal Works Minister Green and Northern Affairs Minister Hamilton before the province can organize the development.

The province plans a new townsite, a new improvement district and new sidings and marshalling yards for the Ontario Northland Railway.

"The energy potential is there, the resources seem certain, the rail and transportation and communications are already there!" Mr. Nickle said. "The economic factor is present for success."

IRON ORE DEPOSITS

Development of three major iron ore discoveries depends on the seaport and industrial area to be built at Moosonee.

A million tons of 35-per-cent iron ore deposits were at the Belcher Islands, miles north of Moosonee, and railway lines to the seaport would be needed to tap 1,000,000 tons at Great Whale River and 2,000,000,000 tons near Fort George, another James Bay outpost.

Needed from the federal government were decisions on rock facilities and a breakwater to block booming ice floes in the spring breakup.

Mr. Nickle said no "land will be sold until a sample areas have been reserved for the future of industry, public utilities and industrial services. Then we will make sites available for homes, business houses and churches."

In Timmins, Col. C. E. Rey, chairman and general manager of Northland Transportation Commission and the man who has been appointed manager of the seaport, said $5,000,000 will easily finance the project's first major stages.

He said it would finance dredging of a channel to let river ice into the bay and construction of piles from the shore to deep water island, providing a stillwater harbor 2½ miles long. Facilities for safe water transfer of cargo ships of up to 25 feet draft.

Canada's northern coastal benefit from the harbor construction would be jobs for laborers, he said.

"I understand Premier Frost is to discuss the project with the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission and the man who is to be

Fawn Wanders Into the City, Soon Departs

A deer, apparently bent on getting a peek at "civilization", wandered into the city yesterday afternoon.

The big, fawn-colored doe was spotted on East Moira Street at approximately 3:40 p.m. Monday by three Belleville residents, Harney LaMorre, 344 E. Moira Street, Mrs. Roy Roger, and Jim Bowes, of 4 Carl Street.

They stood standing beside my car, parked outside the house when we first saw the dog down the street on from Lightfoot Construction Ltd." Mr. LaMorre related. "It came straight at us."

Apparently frightened when it spotted the trio, the doe ran into the Prince of Wales School yard, vaulted the fence, then turned around and backed back over it again; and when last seen, Mr. LaMorre said, the four-legged "friend" was heading down North James Street.

"I don't know where it was headed — it was probably pretty scared," Mr. LaMorre said. He added: "It's too bad it's not deer-hunting season — darn it."

her claim. Blood tests, the baby's footprints and a physicals examination by a physical examination of Mrs. Javarone establihsed the baby's identity and ruled out the woman's story, police said.

The baby, in good health, was returned to her happy 28-year-old mother, Frances.

The infant had received good care.

Neighbors generally described Mrs. Javarone as "a nice person."

Detectives quoted Mrs. Javarone as naming Pizzimenti, owner of a fruit and vegetable store, as the infant's father and as saying she had lived with him several months last summer.

They said she told them she left the man's aunt Jan. 3 and said: "Tell Joe I just had a baby girl — bring some milk and cigarettes."

Mrs. Javarone lived alone in the apartment above the 14 blocks from St. Peter's Hospital.

She had two sons by her first marriage, which ended in divorce in 1940. The oldest son, 23, died last September.

She remarried and had five more sons and a daughter before her second husband died in 1956. Two of these live with their older half-brother. The other nine are in orphanages and foster homes.

S. Low Names Basil Kuglin As Possible Socred Leader But Local Man Not in Field

Basil Kuglin, Foxboro district farmer, says he would have no interest in succeeding Earl Rowe as leader of the Social Credit party.

Mr. Kuglin was one of four men named by Solon Low, retiring national leader of the Social Credit party, when he was asked at Lethbridge, Alta., yesterday to name men most likely to succeed him.

"I'm already tied up for the next four years," Mr. Kuglin told the Ontario Intelligencer this morning, when questioned about his reaction to Mr. Low's statement. "I am already national chairman for a committee on organization and administrative work for the party, and I am also chairman for the committee planning the national leadership convention.

"I would definitely not be a candidate for the party leadership," he added.

He suggested that either of the two Social Credit provincial leaders, Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta, or Premier W. A. Bennett of British Columbia, would be the logical choice for the party leadership.

Mr. Kuglin, who is a son-in-law of Mrs. Roscoe Vanderwater, lives on the Foxboro waterway, came to Foxboro seven years ago from the Wellington area. In the federal election of June 10, 1957, Mr. Kuglin was Social Credit candidate for the riding of Hastings-Frontenac.

Mr. Low was asked in an interview at Lethbridge Monday night to name five men most likely to succeed him as party leader next year.

He named four: Orvis Kennedy, national party organizer and president of the Alberta Social Credit Association; Alvin Patterson and George Hahn, former British Columbia members of Parliament for Fraser Valley and New Westminister, respectively, and Basil Kuglin.

The fifth person, Mr. Low said, is an Alberta woman whose name he will not disclose because he is letting his name stand before the convention, scheduled for August 1960. Mr. Low declined to name him.

Mr. Low, 58, was in Lethbridge to address the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Since his defeat, along with all other Social Credit candidates in the general election held on March 31, Mr. Low has been teaching school at Raymond, near Lethbridge.

He will devote his summer holiday this year to a 6,000-page book he is writing on his political experiences.

Needs for Greater City Outlined by Mayor at Rotary

The forseeable needs for greater Belleville and how to finance the growth to afford them formed the main topic of Mayor Gerald B. Hyde's address to the Belleville Rotary club yesterday afternoon. Enumerating a formidable list of projects required to service and develop the community and attraction of new industry to the area as well as meeting and attracting aid achieving the new wealth necessary for the community's ramparts to finance these items.

Included on the list were: a 2.3 million dollar sewage disposal plant, a parks development along the city's front, a new police station, a senior citizens' home, a community centre, a new waterworks, new sewage, new sewers and roads to service these.

The acquisition of land by the city for industrial development was one of the means of attracting new industry since the city would need the more dustry could acquire their site at a non-speculative price. A stable labor supply, fair taxation, good transportation facilities and local government interest were several of the reasons cited by Mayor Hyde which attract new industry to an area.

CIVIC PRIDE STRESSED

Belleville has all of these and a quite a number more. Civic pride in the community as another item mentioned for attention by the Mayor as a means to keep new industries here attracted to the community, as well as good living conditions, entertainment and other co-operative merchants.

The mayor urged those present, and all local citizens, to support the McFarland hockey team's campaign to enable it to go overseas as a community project to represent Belleville's name world-wide.

The mayor was introduced and thanked by Jack Vanover president of the Rotarians, and a white carnation was given the mayor as a token of the club's thanks.

Birthdays were observed by Joe Bleasby and Ken Collins, Anderson. Mr. Vanover chaired the meeting which was opened with grace given by Judge Anderson.

Company Will Be Allowed To Put Exits on Dundas St.

The Elmgrie Construction Company of Hamilton interested in the construction of a new shopping centre in the Sidney Crossroads area of the city will in all probability be allowed to provide for exits onto East Dundas Street.

Plans for the shopping centre which would include a grocery supermarket as well as a number of other stores, have been approved by the planning committee although no formal application has yet been made for a building permit.

Approved plans call for the shopping area to be built between Dundas and Carl Streets with a parking lot on the extreme east end extending north to Bridge Street. The parking area would provide accommodation for 1,264 cars.

Building area in the development would be 19,435 square feet of which the supermarket would utilize 18,300 feet. The main parking area would border Dundas Street, with some rear of stores to face Carl Street.

Earlier permission to exit onto the divided highway east of the city had been sought by the construction firm from the Ontario Department of Highways but with the area now within the city limits the request has been made to city council.

Last night at the first committee meeting of council for the New Year, councillors were generally agreed that the request for the construction firm should be granted.

NO MAJOR ISSUES

The meeting was devoid of any major issues up for discussion, with the exception of resolutions from other centres filed and other correspondence to be noted for later consideration.

No action was taken on a resolution from the city of Stratford requesting the Federal government to institute a national minimum wage act in order to prevent exploitation of the Canadian workers in certain sections of Canada.

Neither was any action taken on a St. Thomas resolution calling for the enactment of legislation to provide for blood transfusion or other treatment for any child notwithstanding objection or non-approval on the part of parents or guardians.

In order to clear the decks for this year's community chest drive, no by-days will be addressed in the city during the period Oct. 5 to November 7th, with the exception of the Canadian Poppy Day.

Other matters discussed but on which no action was taken was a motion calling for endorsation of a recommendation from the Retail Merchants Association of Canada in regard to setting minimum store hours for all municipalities in the province of Ontario.

Neither was any action taken on bringing in a by-law providing for the extension to the municipal electric as was approved by the electorate at the last municipal election. The act appropriately calls for special enumeration of parties who would be entitled to vote. The matter was referred to the city solicitor.

U.E.L. Park at Adolphustown Will Be Greatly Improved

The announcement by The Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission this week of the enlargement of the United Empire Loyalist Park at Adolphustown, by the purchase of the J. Duffett property, will be welcomed not only by those of history, especially members of the Loyalist Association, but by advocates of increased public park facilities in the Quinte area. With this new acquisition of approximately thirty acres immediately to the east of the existing park, the acreage to be developed by the commission as an historic shrine and public park now totals approximately sixty acres. Located on the newly-acquired land is a fine old home, dating from the 1840's.

When the Loyalist Park was formally opened in 1956, Premier Leslie Frost assured members of the U.E.L. Association that his government would preserve this historic spot and declared it into an outstanding public park. Today's announcement by the commission is assurance that the Premier's promise has not been forgotten.

Since the opening, the park was under the direction of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. With the expansion of the St. Lawrence Development Commission's duties of operations to include the counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, the U.E.L. park was transferred to the commission in June of last year. Plans are now well advanced for its development as a public recreation area with picnic, bathing and boating facilities and 1959 will see considerable activity in this direction.

A feature of current planning is a Loyalist museum which the commission hopes will be established under the sponsorship of the U.E.L. Association. Proposed location for the museum is the handsome brick house still standing on the property, which was built established in 1877 by D. W. Allison, M.P., grandson of one of Adolphustown's original settlers.

Students of early settlement in this part of Ontario have long held a deep interest in the land now incorporated in the U.E.L. Park for it was that Major Vanalstine landed on June 16, 1784, with a band of 400 Loyalists. Here also was established the first common burying ground in the district settlers of the region. Public and government interest in the long-abandoned and neglected pioneer cemetery was revived in recent years through the efforts of the U.E.L. Association supported by the late Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa. Completion of the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission's program for its newly acquired park will see this site of great historic interest and natural beauty developed into one of the finest public parks in eastern Ontario.

Provision is made for improving bathing facilities and clearing beaches and for eventual parking and trailer camping. picnics and recreation facilities.

Mr. Norris Whitney, M.P.P. for Prince Edward - Lennox, in commenting on the announcement, said he has been advised by chairman George H. Challies that a winter work program has been set up. Under this several men will be working to clear up the property and put it in good shape for next year.

Good Harvest Black Spruce Cones Collected

KAPUSKASING — Reforestation officers of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests here have collected nearly 500 bushels of black spruce cones, enough to produce more than 5½ million trees, P. J. Hare reports. He says the crop of black spruce has the smallest seed of all our trees and has been known to produce over a half-million seed to the pound. However, there are only two to three ounces of seed in a bushel of cones and only one of ten seeds lives to germinate and is suitable for planting in our forests.

"Our forest trees produce a large crop of seeds only once every two to four years. If a bumper crop of seed was produced each year, mice and squirrels would multiply to such an extent that all the seed would be eaten.

"The small amount of seed produced each year maintains a large population of small animals which cannot eat all of a bumper crop of seed. This is nature's way of ensuring the reproduction of forest trees."

Ford Employees Approve Terms Of New Contract

TORONTO (CP) — Ford of Canada prepared to return to full production today following overwhelming approval by its employees of a new contract terms.

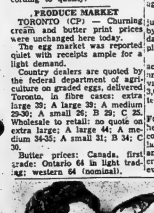
Negotiators reached agreement four hours before a strike deadline Sunday night and 7,000 members of three union locals — at Windsor, Oakville and Toronto — endorsed the agreement Monday.

Oakville workers who had walked off the gun on the strike by walking off their jobs Friday began returning to the plant Monday.

Windsor's 4,500 Ford workers accepted it by a 4-to-1 margin but that was topped in Oakville, where 88 per cent of the 2,000-local favored the new terms.

Most of the 70 workers at the Ford automotive and parts plant here voted for the three-year contract, which is retroactive to last Oct. 1 and provides three annual six-cent hourly wage increases or 3 1-3 per cent, whichever is greater.

Trapped Ships Will Be Freed By Wednesday



MONTREAL (CP) — Department of transport officials say the end of their month-long battle with the St. Lawrence River ice is in sight.

Two of the department's ice-breakers—the D'Iberville and the Ernest Lapointe, smashed their way through to within a mile of the 12 ocean freighters trapped in Montreal harbor since Dec. 9. The department expressed hope all may be freed by today or Wednesday.

Meanwhile, down stream at Trois-Rivieres, the Poseidon, a 3,279-ton German freighter, was continuing her cautious voyage accompanied by a convoy under protection of the icebreakers.

The Poseidon slipped out of Montreal harbor Monday morning from her berth at the east end of the island, several miles downstream from other ships.

Her departure caught harbor officials by surprise since it was expected she would wait until the other ships were freed and accompany the convoy under protection of the icebreakers.

Will Fight Plan To Cut School Building Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Watson, chairman of suburban North York township's board of education said Monday night he will fight any attempt by the Metropolitan Toronto Council to cut the township's school building program.

The township is seeking $12,000,000 to build 14 new schools and 11 additions in the next 20 months.

Mr. Watson said: "If we don't get our budget, the children won't be under cannvas." He added 1,000 students are already taking lessons in four portables.

Noting speculation that Metro Chairman Fred Gardiner may try to trim the proposed $38,000,000 Metro capital budget to $20,000,000, Mr. Watson said North York would be hit the hardest.

Urging a campaign to make the public aware of the school crisis, he said: "We must be prepared to go to the Ontario Municipal Board if we are substantially cut."

Bruce Bishop New Chairman Of Public School Board

Mr. Bruce Bishop of Bishop Seeds Ltd., was named the 1959 chairman of the Belleville Public School Board at the inaugural meeting held last night at King George School. He succeeds George Olsen who headed the school board last year.

Chairman of the finance committee and also vice-chairman of the board is Mrs. Dorothy Tugnette, wife Lyle Langabeer as chairman of the management committee, and James Ritchie, chairman of the property committee.

Board representative on the Corby Public Library Board will be Mr. Arthur Cummings, public school inspector.

Other board appointments were: Belleville Recreation committee, Chairman Bruce Bishop; Belleville and District Planning Council, Dr. J. Russell Scott; Church and School Week committee, Mrs. Dorothy Tugnette; Dental Advisory committee, Jas. Ritchie, George Olsen, William VanTassel.

Staff Relations committee members are ex-officio board members, Bruce Bishop, Mrs. Tugnette, Mrs. Langabeer and Mr. Lawrence Kells, superintendent.

Supply committee is composed of Mr. Bishop, Mrs. Tugnette and Mr. Kells.

WILL CONTINUE POLICY

In his acceptance address as chairman of the board, Mr. Bishop expressed his appreciation for the trust and confidence placed in him and assured that he did not accept the responsibility casually.

"This board has always enjoyed the highest public confidence and I have every thinking as to for maintaining a continuity of public policy from year to year, and my aim in the coming months will be to continue to apply this same quality of leadership," he said.

It was his feeling that the business of the board should as much as possible be at the policy-making level with actual administration of the school system to be left in the experienced hands of the administrative staff.

At the same time he noted that there was plenty of work for all and he urged each member to participate equally in committee work with the idea of bringing information to the board for free discussion.

"We have never been reluctant to enter into a good heavily debate on any subject, and I hope we can continue to do this."

The incoming chairman paid tribute to last year's board and board chairman George Olsen, who, he said, deserved full measure of credit for the manner in which the problems arising out of annexation had been handled.

For the future Mr. Bishop called on board members to be prepared to inaugurate new policies as new problems arose from the annexed area. There were sufficient sites to look after school needs for the foreseable future, but here again, he reminded, the board must keep alert to changing conditions.

He did not underestimate the work of the coming year, but in view of extensive development in last year, he felt the best course was to establish a full range of new committees under which the work of "boring into" the new enlarged school system could be done on a co-operative basis.

In closing, Mr. Bishop welcomed new members to the board, assuring them they would find the board members a congenial and enthusiastic group and that associations would be rewarding ones.

Mikoyan Appears On TV Program And Movie Set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Russia's visiting Deputy Anastas I. Mikoyan capped a busy tour of Los Angeles with a Monday appearance on a local television show Monday night.

The bustling Soviet official hobnobbed with movie stars, college students and newsmen while he dashing through Hollywood in a police-led caravan to keep the TV date.

Not an egg, tomato or spitball was in sight at Mikoyan all day in sharp contrast to his earlier visits in Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco.

On the 25-minute TV program, Mikoyan answered a list of questions — approved beforehand — submitted by commentator Paul Coates.

SAYS HE'S FRIENDLY

Mikoyan described himself as a friendly grandfather who feels the differences between the U.S. and Russia can best be resolved by working closer together, especially in trade.

Could a dispute over the West's occupation of Berlin lead to a war? asked Coates.

"As far as we are concerned, we do not want war," Mikoyan said through an interpreter. "But it is up to the other side to keep peace."

Earlier in the day, Mikoyan refused comment on whether his Saturday meeting with President Eisenhower in Washington might help resolve the Berlin situation.

"I don't know what we will discuss at this time," he said. "But we will discuss everything that will be of interest to Mr. Eisenhower."

Mikoyan had luncheon Monday at one of the fanciest restaurants on Wilshire Boulevard. On hand were such enthusiastic free enterprisers as oil millionaire Edwin Pauley, movie executive Cyril Chappellet and movie mogul Sam Goldwyn.

VISITS MOVIE LOT

Then he visited Paramount Studio.

On the set of One-Eyed Jack he held a zany bilingual conversation with Marlon Brando, who actor spoke to Mikoyan in French, and the Soviet deputy premier replied to him in a interpreter who relayed it to Brando in French.

Then he walked onto a nearby set where Jerry Lewis was making "The Bellboy" and "The Ladies Man."

A camera crew shot film sequence of Mikoyan, Lewis and actress Dina Merrill. The scene was broken up when studio boss W. Frank Freeman complained.

"This scene has just cost me a thousand dollars."

Lewis replied, "And you just talked your way through another $500."

And that ended the movie career of Anastas Ivanovich Mikoyan.

Monday morning, Mikoyan responded to Communist economics to graduate political science students at UCLA. In reply to a question on Red China's communes, he said Russia once tried them and found they don't work.

"We came to the conclusion that they did not function well without material incentive," he said. "Communist China has also now recognized the need for material incentive."

Mikoyan told the seminar that in a way the Chinese communes each embracing several tens of thousands of people in a semi-military organization, are "a cooperative."

Wellington Canning Company Warehouse Swept by Fire

WELLINGTON (Special) — Unestimated heavy damage was caused early this morning when fire broke out in a goods-packed canning factory warehouse.

The warehouse of the Lipsett Canning Company, packed to rafters-high with goods, ranging to juice, tomatoes and some pumpkin, burst into flame shortly after four o'clock this morning.

The village volunteer fire department, aided by departments from Belleville and Picton, had the fire under control shortly after eleven o'clock following hours of successful effort in confining the fire to the warehouse.

The alarm was ripped with the staccato reports of exploding canned goods practically all morning. The origin of the fire was unknown at press time. The warehouse is heated with hot stoves, one of which was located at the west end, of the warehouse where the fire is said to have started.

Lone occupants of the blazing building at the time are missing. They are the warehouse cat and family of two.

The fire was discovered shortly after four o'clock by Peter Van Haarlem, a Dutchman, residing in a farm tenant house adjacent to the factory.

Haarlem drove his car through the village proper sounding the alarm on his horn.

The building was of a metal-sheath construction. It was stated that water damage with be heavy.

The warehouse is connected to the factory proper but excellent work of the firefighters saved the main buildings from the flames.

The factory and warehouse are situated on the northern outskirts of the village on the "new line" leading to Belleville.

Utilities Sign Contract For $102,000 for New Plant

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission met in a special meeting yesterday afternoon to sign the contract with the Tatham Construction Company for the building of the extension to the water filtration plant.

The extension will cost in the vicinity of $102,000 and will increase the water output of the plant by 1,000,000 gallons per day, or double its present supply. Engineers on the project were Gore and Storrie.

A resolution, made by Mayor Ross Burti and seconded by Cliff Baker, instructed that the construction company be advised that it is the wish and the desire of the commission that as much local help be hired as possible. Speaking on the resolution Cliff Baker said it was one of the reasons they had tried to get the contract through to increase winter employment in Trenton this year.

The commission also signed a contract with the Canadian Allis-Chalmers to install to supply the pumps, etc, for the project.

It was also noted at the meeting of the commission last night that the engineers samples have been taken from the new well found on Sidney Street and will be sent in for further tests.

It was explained that in getting the water from this well to be used as samples that two pumps, pumping at the rate of 150 gallons per minute, were both running for two hours to make sure the sample water was clear. It was noted that after the two hours of pumping it had failed to lower the level of water in the well, which would indicate a large supply of water had been tapped.

Work on the addition to the Filtration Plant will get underway immediately and the date for finishing the work has been set for May 15.

Report Children Adrift on Ice In Niagara River

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A report that two children were adrift on an ice floe in the Niagara River touched off a six-hour search by police and volunteers Monday night.

They scoured the 13 miles of river from the south end of Grand Island bridge to the brink of the falls, but found nothing.

Police planned to resume the search today.

An unidentified motorist told an attendant on the bridge that he saw what looked like two boys on an ice floe. Police said he might have seen debris.

Two military helicopters hovered over the river while searchlights and automobile lights played on the water. One helicopter sighted an oil drum but said it was unlikely that that might have been what the motorist saw.

MECHTA SPEEDS UP

The other day an Associated Press despatch from Moscow reported that Soviet scientists figure the space rocket "Mechta" is nearing its top speed of 72,000 miles an hour.

The rocket would be nearly triple the speed at which the rocket was launched. Moreover, after launching the rocket's speed slowed. An initial puzzle was why it took the rocket so long to reach the vicinity of the moon. The explanation given was that, although the rocket had been launched at a speed sufficient to enable it to break away from the earth's gravitational field, the earth's gravity still had an effect on it and slowed it down considerably. Why, then, should the rocket speed up?

Before attempting to answer that question we have to ask another. With respect to what object is "Mechta" travelling 72,000 miles per hour? For, as scientists have been at pains to explain to us, all motion is relative There is no such thing as speed unless one considers not one, but two, objects.

The Soviet scientists could be speaking of "Mechta's" speed with relation to the earth. This would not be unreasonable and there seems to be a hint that this is the right interpretation when the Russians say the distance between Mechta and the earth will increase at "a terrific pace since the earth and the artificial planet are diverging in the cosmos." If it is in relation to the earth that Mechta will pick up speed to 72,000 miles per hour, then an adequate explanation would be that for a while they have been like two cars, which, at the moment the rocket was launched, took different forks at a "Y" in the road, their paths roughly in the same direction, but gradually drawing away from each other. Thus it could be said that "Mechta" is picking up speed, although it would be just as correct to speak from the standpoint of a microbe aboard "Mechta" and to say that the old world had suddenly picked up its heels and started rushing away from "Mechta" three times as fast as it did when it left the rocket hanging in space on launching day.

It could be, though, that the Russians are considering the rocket's speed in relation to the sun, and strength is lent to this possibility by the fact that the orbital speed of the earth is 66,600 miles per hour, reasonably close to the 72,000 miles per hour estimated for the speed of the rocket. If the 72,000 miles per hour mentioned for "Mechta" is in relation to the sun, "Mechta" will eventually slow down, since it will take 15 months to circle the sun to the earth's 12 months and the longer a planet takes to circle the sun the lower the orbital speed. If it is in relation to the sun that the speed of "Mechta" is said to be increasing, the explanation could be that the sun's gravitational force is responsible for the increase in speed.

DEMOCRACY NEEDS NO BLOODBATH

We see by the daily news reports that Messrs. Castro and Company are cleaning up Cuba. Amongst the latest reports is the information that a number of officers, officials, and adherents of the old regime have been executed and a great many more are to be brought to trial. This process is usually referred to as a purge, and it brings to mind many other purges, most of which followed upon the heels of a revolution.

The bloody execution of the royal family, the Romanoffs, and aristocracy of Russia after the 1917 revolution comes to mind. The purging of the Jews after the Nazis' rise to power in Germany during the 30's is another example. The "Reign of Terror" of Robespierre in post-revolutionary France with the slaying of thousands of the nobility, but another atrocity committed in the name of freedom.

Freedom is hardly won through a bloodbath after the results of a difference of opinion or of governments has been decided. We question the soundness of new governments when they have to resort to such measures to "protect" the people. Usually the new rulers are only consolidating their personal position through the wholesale eradication of the former opposition.

Inevitably, the government or party which christens its rise to power with a bloodbath relinquishes the reins of leadership in the same fashion. Fighting and battle deaths are one thing. Homicide is another.

It is disturbing to see Mr. Castro handle his affairs in this manner. It can only mean that the Cuban situation has not yet been resolved.

Prime Minister Macmillan of the United Kingdom, much in demand as an after-dinner speaker, has produced this useful quotation: "Tradition does not mean that the living are dead; it means that the dead are alive."—Ottawa Journal.

Victim of Own Success

New York Times

Champagne, in a way, is a victim of its own success. A court in Britain has ruled that champagne, demanded for a wine to be called champagne, it rightfully must come from the French district of the same name. Before the court succeeded in the argument of the opposition that a Spanish champagne is wholly possible—and indeed is what most is factured in Spain. Truth is, the British have a long, interesting history connecting with luxurious living that other parts of the world have copied to which they term champagne. The recent complaint of the French champagne people is nothing new. For years they have maintained that only in their province of eastern France, which so magically captures the late autumn sunshine, is one able to produce what they modestly call the king of wines and that others elsewhere have been debasing and cheapening the grand old name.

Nor are the champagne producers alone in their resentment of the wine industry in trying to have their products reserved for products from their own regions. This has been inevitable since the beginning. The latter edition is found in other countries of products that in fact comes from the Portuguese city of Oporto, sherry is the British corruption of the name of Jerez or Xeres, where the wine originated. Burgundy comes from the Portuguese island, and sway from the Hungarian place of Tokaj-Hegyalja and bridge from the Sicilian seaport. Other liqueurs produced equally have geographic derivations in their names, as cognac, chartreuse, cordon.

Many products in time come to display the problem that the champagne producers are fighting a geographic name becomes generic for a product showing similar characteristics no matter where produced. The making and doling table are as full of examples as the wine cellar. An interesting variation is that of the turkey. The essentially American bird that we customarily so religiously on Thanksgiving was exported at one time with the turkey-cock, the name given the guinea fowl because it somewhat was imported through the eastern European country of Turkey. The Turkish people do not seem upset that we have borrowed the name of their land. Then, among our most popular meat dishes are a trio that come first from other lands: frankfurters and hamburgers, from the noted German cities, and bologna or boloney, adopted from the Bologna sausage, originally from the northern Italian city known far and wide for its culinary delicacies.

The list of food products with geographic names is a long one. We have Danish pastry, London broil, Scotch woodcock, Boston lettuce, Lyonnaise potatoes, Vienna rolls, Canadian bacon, Brussels sprouts, Bavarian cream, French and Russian dressing, Smithfield ham, Salisbury steak, whose coast they were originally found. We have Alaska, Alaska, Spanish rice, Brazil nuts, Swiss cheese and Swiss steak, Swedish meat balls, Waldorf and Wiener schnitzel—many of them dishes that have their origin in history or town of origin. The particulars of New England and Manhattan clam chowder, one against each other, but they don't seem to worry if the ingredients differ from area other than New England or Manhattan so long as the ingredients are there to preserve our food on dishes called in each instance after some importance to the fine porcelain manufacturers ago was being produced in the Province of Limoges. What it all means, of course, is that the fame transcends national borders, and that the product itself remains one of the greatest forms of flattery. The international court decision proves again that the champagne producers are unable to stem the tide.

Condition of Walks Down Town Criticized

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Everyone is talking about the accumulation of ice and snow on the walks of Front Street, Campbell, Pinnacle and Bridge Streets, but no one is doing anything about it. If the ice cannot be removed then why is sand not placed on the walks to protect the pedestrians from falling?

The city snow plows have thrown the snow up on either side of the streets, making it traffic in the city all winter and will be a menace. With all the talk of unemployment in the city why is this snow not trucked away? There has been much talk about widening College Street, but instead of that it has been narrowed by the snow piled on either side of the road. Pinnacle Street and Campbell Road are in the same sad state. Small wonder the merchants on Front Street are losing trade, but who is going to risk life and limb on the walks while the walks are so treacherous. Is the present deplorable state of Front Street making the proprietors of the merchants who have shops there, put it up to the department of public works? I feel sure there are plenty of men unemployed who would be glad of the opportunity of such work.

Old Bricks Too Costly

Edmonton Journal

A popular architectural fashion, particularly in the United States, is the use of old bricks, salvaged from razed buildings, in the construction for the aesthetic effect. Brickmaking is one of man's oldest crafts. Bricks were used in the Tower of Babel, the walls of Babylon, the Great Wall of China and the Somerian Palace of Kish and many other ancient and famous structures.

Good bricks don't deteriorate much and some architects believe that bricks grow older the better, from the artistic standpoint, but the trouble with old bricks nowadays is that they are too expensive to use. A New York architect who has been doing some building with old bricks has found that it is much cheaper to use new bricks and has so advised his clients. He explained that while old bricks can be bought for a fraction of the cost of new bricks, they often have to be cleaned and picked over by bricklaying who, in general, cost nearly $6 an hour in wages and welfare benefits. Increased labor costs greatly exceed the savings in material costs.

Vast quantities of perfectly sound bricks are coming on the market with the razing of many old New York buildings but the contractor in question believes that the only "economical" course is to use them or dump them into the ocean.

Throughout the world, and on the North American continent particularly, there are countless examples of this conspicuous waste. Many things that could serve a useful purpose are being destroyed. Bricks are merely a minor example. It is interesting to speculate on how long mankind, which is developing at an enormous rate, can continue with widespread profligacy.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my favorite restaurants has been under the same management for about thirty years. I took a couple of friends there for dinner the other evening, and when we were given a table in the entirely unpretentious room, they were obviously a little shocked to observe that the table cloth was patched, and when we shook out our table napkins, two of them had been darned neatly.

"Apart from needle work," said the more sarcastic of my two colleagues, "what is this little place famous for?"

"Well, principally," I replied, "for Grandma."

"That is the name of the lady who runs it.

When the food was served, my friends were unable to perceive anything more than a foot from their plates. The salad crackled with chill, sang with tang. Their beef was in their mouths what a celle is to the cars. The vegetables might have been picked from the garden half an hour ago, here in the dead of winter as if it might be June.

Then Mrs. Grandma came by and I introduced her to my guests.

"They complain," I told her, about the dirty napkins, the patched table cloth."

"Heaven forgive me," pleaded my sarcastic friend.

"Every restaurant," said Mrs. Grandma, "has a right to its spedding manner on the food or on the lighting. I like it light and with a little burning spot into the food."

Customers, of course, have the same choice: fixtures or food.

The Salvation Army Board serenaders report that the collections were most generous during the visits of the band to various points of the city during the Christmas season and the band members appreciate their kindness greatly.

Today is Friday the 13th., in this year 1939, the day when superstition is supposed to ride rampant in the minds of those who believe that if they crack a mirror, seven years of bad luck will attend them; they pay away from black cats that might cross their path and if they open the family umbrella ever they hasten to throw a pinch of salt over their left shoulder. However, a certain few of this city generally are not superstitious. A writer received information that an average of seven hapless ones out of ten give way day to day to a second thought. It is hoped that no citizens meet up with their pet superstitions today and if they do they will be more comfortable if they do not worry about them.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING DEPRESSED

None of us is fully happy all the time. Sometimes we have dark days, we have screaming the light from about us. But that depressed state is not one that lasts. Like our moods, it changes, and the change is sometimes all.

First-aid remedies are important, for they help to give temporary relief. But if one is depressed, we can't very well know what to do about these periods of depression, but we do know that there is always a way out, a happy one to get rid of them. Best this in mind, the dark days haven't lasted forever! If you put in its place some useful service to one else has nothing to do with your temporary depressed state, you will be surprised how quickly you react to new emotions.

The meeting of a dear friend whom you have not seen for a long time, the reading of an inspired book, or a change of scene or environment will help. Whenever we think that we are feeling dark days, we know who have practically nothing. There are always those near us who need only a kindly act to bring the sunlight into their lives again.

An understanding sense of values is most helpful, in fact essential, to give us happiness. Material things have only a temporary worth. They come and go. Only the eternal values give us soul uplift. What a contrasted parade of living are ours each day of our lives! We don't have to search for the happiness. It arrives for all who keep giving loys and kindly aid to the needy persons who need them.

There was a popular phrase that came to light a few years ago. It was "Rise Above It." That is what we should do when we get depressed, even feel lost to ourselves, and even all hope to others.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS CONCERNING EPILEPSY

"Dear Dr. Molner: Will you answer some questions about epilepsy? We have a daughter in her teens who has had the disease ever since birth.

1—Will she have it all her life?

2—Is it considered a mental disease?

3—Is one with epilepsy considered harmful?

4—What are the causes?

5—She is very selfish, and jealous, the oldest of five children. — Mrs. R.N."

"I'm going to give brief answers to these questions today, except for one that takes more space, and I'll discuss it in the morrow's column.

1—Yes, it's likely that she will have epilepsy all her life. Seizures frequently can be controlled with proper anti-convulsant drugs, but this is not a "cure." The drugs (which are not dangerous when taken in prescribed amounts over long periods) must be continued to prevent further seizures.

2—No, epilepsy is not a "mental disease." Many persons with epilepsy have been world famous for their achievements. Normal, dull, or genius—these differences can occur regardless of epilepsy.

IT'S NOT CATCHING

3—No. A person with epilepsy is no more harmful than one to "catch" the disease from him. He is not "dangerous" to others, nor is he dangerous to others depends on how he behaves. He may, on the other hand, be a very helpful person as you can imagine. This is a matter of temperament, moral fiber and upbringing. For examples of people with epilepsy, we have Julius Caesar, the poet, Van Gogh, the painter, and Wagner, the composer.

4—What are the causes? We'll discuss them tomorrow.

5—The youngster's disposition might well have been influenced by the thought occurring to her, "Why should I have the trouble? I have the younger brothers and sisters don't. It's not fair."

So far as baby goes, the first child often gets a case of nose-out-of-joint when a new baby-baby, and subsequent ones, come along. When a ch' ld has a handicap, epilepsy in this case, it becomes that much harder for parents to overcome a bit when he or she gives vent to the quite natural demands for attention. Could that be the situation in this case?

However, the girl is in her early teens. With some careful and firm guidance, perhaps subtle enough so she won't realize it, there's no reason why she still can't become a charming girl and woman.

Fish livers (cod, halibut, etc) are the most prolific source of Vitamin D, although synthetic Vitamin D can be made in even more concentrated form. Men Require Wider Seats

St. Thomas Times - Journal

It is generally believed that Nature created the female of the species with a broader figure than that of the male, but a theatre architect comes forward with startling announcement that the situation is changing. It is becoming necessary to design wider seats in theatres and other places of entertainment because men are requiring more space in which to wedge their bodies, he claims.

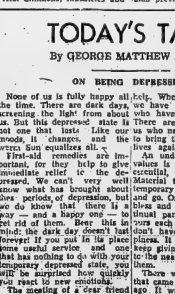
One sure way not to enjoy a performance is to have to fit into the space allotted to the listener or viewer tries to wriggle into a more comfortable position and squirms all the time. Whatever way this new situation has developed, the fact is that the architects' plans for modern places of entertainment have to allow for more room than that. This means fewer seats in a row, and less money taken in at the box office.

But it is going to be a boon to the suffering husband whose spouse wants to drag him off to the opera, Shakespearean drama, or a classic concert. He can put up a valid argument if he has to; he can say how deeply he regrets he could not enjoy the evening with her, but he thoughtfully suggests that she go and take her best friend along for companionship.

And after she has gone he ensconces himself in an easy chair with a pipe or cigar and looks at television.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS



DON'T UNDERESTIMATE

In his first letter to the Corinthians, St. Paul wrote of himself, "I am not sent to baptize, but that am not meet to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God."

If St. Paul was unfit for Christian work, we might wonder then, who could ever be recorded fit? But Paul answers this question immediately, for he goes on to say, "But by the grace of God I am what I am". That great missionary work was going forward, Paul asserted, despite his own unworthiness, by the grace of God.

To understimate our own value for Gods work is to underestimate God's power. It was suggested to a member of our church that he try to bring some new neighbors to church with him.

Increases in Natural Gas Rates in Ont. Foreshadowed

TORONTO (CP)—The practically-certain increase in natural gas rates in Ontario was foreshadowed Monday by A. R. Crozier, chairman of the Ontario fuel board.

He told the Gordon Committee on government organization in Ontario that perhaps a higher profit rate should be allowed natural gas companies and perhaps the rate should be calculated on a more flexible basis.

The fuel board now sets rates to permit a profit after taxes of 7½ per cent of original cost.

"In Alberta they are considering raising the margin of profit to 7½ or eight per cent because of the higher cost of money", Mr. Crozier said.

CABINET MATTER

This was a policy decision for the Ontario cabinet along with the question of whether gas companies should be allowed to calculate profit on a "trended" cost —taking into consideration replacement cost as well as original cost and depreciation.

The fuel board chairman also said there is a possibility of natural gas rationing in Ontario within the next seven years, disclosing that representations for this move have already been made to Ontario by the Alberta government.

There was a plentiful supply of western gas now, but in five to seven years the capacity of the Trans-Canada pipeline might not be able to meet all demands. Then gas might be restricted to "superior" uses.

CAN-REFUSE PERMITS

The fuel board already held the power to grant or refuse permits for industrial use of gas but new legislation would probably be needed to handle the situation.

Mr. Crozier was one of the chief witnesses in the fifth day of hearings by the three-man committee appointed by Premier Frost last May to investigate commission government in Ontario. Chairman is management consultant Walter L. Gordon of Toronto.

Mr. Crozier told the committee for fixing rates and expropriating land for pipelines, leaving it the task of regulation.

Mr. Gordon agreed, noting the board operates as both a quasi-judicial tribunal and a regulatory and administrative agency.

NOT BEST IDEA

"It usually is not the best form of government to give the same people two functions to perform," the chairman said.

Mr. Crozier also said he would like to see consideration given to formation of a board to handle all expropriations, for the department of highways, Hydro, oil and gas lines or any other official body.

A brief from the central Ontario chapter of the Town Planning Institute of Canada complained about inadequate coordination on planning matters within the Ontario government.

"It's an honest criticism but it's one that applies to every large organization," Mr. Gordon told the planning representatives. University of Toronto professors J. B. Milner and G. A. P. Carrothers.

"Thee isn't much that can be done about it. It's the way of the world."

Revolutionary Type of Heating System Designed

MONTREAL — A revolutionary type of heating system has been announced by Canadian Curtiss-Wright Limited.

The new system—named Thermapac—uses electric power only during off-peak hours to provide a constant stream of warm air 24 hours a day.

The Thermapac system uses the principle of thermostorage, retaining heat in a special storage pile for release when needed. Although this principle has been applied before in a few special or experimental installations, Thermapac is the first thermostorage system successfully designed for mass production and general use.

This new breakthrough in heating technique makes possible

—Homes with no chimneys, no ashes to shovel, no fuel tank and practically no noise from the furnace.

—Industrial and commercial buildings that produce no smoke or fumes, require no boiler room or furnace-man.

"Thermapac now gives the house builder and home owner—at reasonable cost the most-modern and comfortable type of space heating ever invented," says Canadian Curtiss-Wright's vice-president and general manager, E. A. Carter. "For industrial and commercial users, it will provide outstanding advantages and economy. And because it will consume power only during off-peak hours, Thermapac also has great economic significance for municipalities and electric utility companies."

First public showing of Thermapac is at the National House Builders' Association Convention at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal, today through Thursday.

CANADIAN DEVELOPMENT

"We are particularly proud that this radical new advance in a Canadian development — engineered at our plant at Oakville, Ontario," says Mr. Carter.

Thermapac operates by generating heat from electricity in elements which are embedded in a storage pile made from insulated material. The materials retains additional heat energy for release later when the elements are not 'charging' the pile.

A continually-operating, low-pressure blower delivers a constant stream of fresh, heated, humidified air 24 hours a day. The blower itself is acoustically soundless. Only the blower creates sound, but because it is operating at half the speed of normal systems it is scarcely noticeable.

Thermapac also differs from previous warm air system in delivery of an uninterrupted stream of comfortably warm air, instead of intermittent blasts of hot air.

A domestic Thermapac furnace for the average 4-person house measures approximately 3 by 5 feet and stands 6 feet high, topped by necessary ductwork leading off to heat outlets.

In apartment buildings, Thermapac assures completely effective individual control by tenants of their heating requirements.

NO CHIMNEY NEEDED

By eliminating the need for venting combustion products, the new system will enable builders to design homes without chimneys — an appreciable saving in future construction in future.

Fire and explosive hazards, inherent in use of combustible materials in other types of furnaces, are not present in the new heating system.

Thermapac may be installed as original equipment in new buildings or replace existing warm air furnaces in older buildings.

Freedom Creed Proposed by Prime Minister

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Monday night urged the free world to redeclare itself to principles of freedom and convince uncommitted countries that its economic purposes and policies embody these freedoms.

He said he hopes free nations will reach a common basis for a Declaration of Freedom's Creed to enunciate the ideals and principles of the West to uncommitted nations—those neither pro-East nor pro-West.

Mr. Diefenbaker told more than 1,200 at a University of Toronto convocation which made him an honorary doctor of laws that a major conflict for the minds of men is taking place in Asia and Africa. It was here the West must prevent Communists from casting aspersions on such terms as democracy. Economic aid was not enough.

The prime minister said the United States "is being met everywhere by the Communist technique of endeavoring to plant fears in the minds of people that the U.S. is an aggressive minded and that her assistance plans are sinister plots."

CAN BE INTERPRETED

He added: "Canada can best interpret the United States in a way that no other nation can to the nations of Asia and Africa and provide the answer to such propaganda.

"I can think of no better way to explain freedom than for the nations of the free world to meet together, exchange ideas and reach a common basis for a Declaration of Freedom's Creed.

"It would be possible to the uncommitted world a solemn pledge of adherence to work with them for better economic conditions in which human dignity, equality and tolerance will be recognized and personal liberty, freedom of thought, expression, association and religion pledged to those who will join in freedom and for freedom in the interests of the hearts and minds of men everywhere."

It was Mr. Diefenbaker's first major speech since completing a round-the-world trip that included visits to Asian countries.

NEED STUDENT EXCHANGE

He said there is need for a free interchange of students between Western countries and uncommitted countries and a need, where possible, for chairs to Canadian universities for study of Asian affairs and Commonwealth relations.

Agreements made at the Commonwealth trade and economic conference in Montreal will lead to 1,000 students and teachers receiving scholarships and fellowships in Canada in a few years. But Russia also "is not unmindful of the benefits that flow from such a policy."

The prime minister said: "While I have no intention of the number of Asian students, I have learned just in the last few days that the number of African students now studying in Moscow, Budapest and Prague exceeds 2,000, and you can be sure that there shall be included the ideas that are part and parcel of the principles for which Moscow stands."

Canada, he said, must be prepared for a larger role as it will no longer be a middle power, but one of the leading powers in the West.

Because Canada was almost universally trusted its role could be a unique one.

Labor Minister Asked to Enter Wage Dispute

TORONTO (CP)—A compromise in the wage deadlock between Ontario Hydro and its 10,000-member employees union appeared to be taking shape today as Ontario Labor Minister Daley prepared to enter the dispute.

Direct talks between Hydro and the union, an affiliate of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CLC), broke down Monday night and both parties agreed to ask Mr. Daley's help.

The labor minister immediately called a meeting for 2 p.m. today at his office.

A union spokesman said Hydro had rejected the "amended proposals" made by union negotiators last week. C. B. C. Scott, industrial relations director for Hydro, said the proposals were amended but not reduced.

12 POINTS AT ISSUE

Nine minor items were agreed on during the direct talks but 12 are still to be settled.

The union membership has voted to strike if demands are not met but sources at Queen's Park say the Ontario cabinet opposes allowing the dispute to reach a strike stage and has given Mr. Daley a free hand in resolving the deadlock.

The last proposals made public by the union called for a 2½-per-cent wage increase on first year of a two-year agreement with the second year left open for further negotiation. Hydro's offer was for a 1½-per-cent increase each year with continuation of a cost-of-living clause which brought a three-per-cent rise last April.

An alternative management offer is for a three-per-cent increase in the second year if the cost of living clause is dropped from the agreement at that time.

OUTSIDE WORK ISSUE

Another major issue is the union's demands that Hydro agree not to give outside contracts for work which can be handled by union members.

The union says that if it calls a strike it will continue supplying power to homes, hospitals and institutions but cut off supplies to industry and business. Hydro officials claim it is impossible to make this distinction because most of the power is sold wholesale to municipal distribution systems whose employees are not involved in the dispute.

Average wage at Hydro is about $2.16 an hour.

Under-Privileged Children Likely to Get Better Deal

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's under-privileged children may get a better deal through the work of grey-haired Bessie Touzel of Toronto.

Formerly of Renfrew, Ont., and an expert on the history of Eastern Ontario's Renfrew County, Miss Touzel is chairman of a committee appointed by the Ontario government to study the standards of charitable institutions for children in the province.

Announcement of her appointment coincided with a report that Mrs. Bert (Mom) Whyte, who has long run a home for unwanted children at Bowmanville, Ont., was unable to regain custody of a child that had been placed with foster-parents at Englehart. But Miss Touzel says there is no connection between the two events.

"This study is a necessary precedent to new legislation aimed at ensuring that children who cannot be cared for in their own homes will get the best treatment available," she said. "The legislation might have an application to Mrs. Whyte's home, but the study is not an investigation."

Miss Touzel is executive director of the Ontario Welfare Council which conducts research into welfare projects and provides information and advice about social work in Ontario.

An avid reader, she said she has studied the history of her home county because its early settlement and multitude of racial groups had made it "a little Canada."

A graduate of the University of Toronto School of Social Work, she worked with the Neighborhood Workers Association, the Ottawa public welfare department and the Canadian Welfare Council, and has just completed a two-year term as vice-president for North America of the International Federation of Social Workers.

Research projects on which she has worked in the past included one for the Dominion government during the Second World War, concerning manpower, and one for the government of New Brunswick assessing welfare services in that province.

She also set up a temporary welfare section through the Red Cross in Manitoba during the floods of 1950.

The form of institutions for children has changed entirely in the last 20 to 30 years," she said of her new assignment. "Once children in charitable homes included orphans and youngsters whose parents were too poor to keep them. Now, adoptions are more frequent and assistance schemes keep families together.

"Children in institutions are mostly those with emotional or intellectual problems. The study will show how many children need care, what staff and buildings are available, and what areas the treatment centres serve."

The report of the study, to be ready perhaps next October, will include recommendations to ensure that the available resources for deprived children are used in the best advantage.

This new version of the poncho would be ideal for wear around the pool on a cruise ship or on the beach at a tropical resort.

The little robe is of terry cloth, with a flattering cowl neckline and bow-ties down the sides. Converting easily into a throw, it is ideal for after-swim sun bathing.

MORTON—READ

Christ Anglican Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, January 10th., at high noon, for a lovely double-ring wedding when Sandra Helena Read, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Edwin Read, became the bride of Donald Robert Morton, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Attwood Morton. The Reverend Everett P. Smith, assistant rector of the church, officiated before an altar adorned with white chrysanthemums and white snapdragons. Lighted candelabra and bouquets of white chrysanthemums and red poinsettias graced the sanctuary and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. John Croyden Withers, church organist, presided at the console of the organ for the wedding music and accompanied the choir of eight, white-surplices who sang before the ceremony, "Praise My Soul, the King of Heaven"; during the ceremony, "Ave Maria" and "Unto Us," and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" while the register was being signed. Other music included the wedding processional, "Birds of Artistochanes," by Parry, and the recessional, "March," by Mendelssohn, as the recessional.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. George E. Read, was lovely in her bridal gown of white, brocaded silk parchment featuring a molded bodice with empire waistline, having long fitted sleeves pointed over the hand, and classic neckline. V-pointed at the back. The bouffant waltz-length skirt was accented by a back bow. Her elbow-length veil of silk tulle illusion was held by matching accessories and pearls, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white gardenias mingled with white stephanotis. Pearl earrings and white satin pumps completed her ensemble.

She was attended by Miss Muriel Curlette, of Corbyville, as maid of honor, attractively attired in pale green brocaded silk parchment made on lines similar to that of the bride's, with elbow-length sleeves, the skirt in cotillion length. She wore a matching feather headdress and shoes, and carried a round bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Mr. James Jeffs of Belleville was groomsman, and Mr. Lionel Read, brother of the bride, and Mr. Mason Taft, of Ottawa, ushered the guests.

The reception following the ceremony was held in the church parish hall where the bride's mother, Mrs. George E. Read, received the guests, attired in mocha brown chiffon over taffeta fashioned with scoop neckline and street-length skirt, pink and brown accessories and corsage of pink and white carnations. Assisting her in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Lorne A. Morton, wearing brown silk and satin in sheath style with matching jacket, beige accessories, brown fur stole, and corsage of bronze-colored gardenias.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask centred by an all-tiered, three-tier wedding cake accented with silver leaves and looped by two white doves with wedding rings beneath an arch of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. White tulle, flecked with gold, and pink carnations filled the base. Tall white tapers in crystal candelabra, and the bridal bouquet completed the nuptial note.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the officiating minister, the Reverend Everett Smith, to which the bridegroom responded, and the toast to the maid of honor was proposed by Mr. James Jeffs.

For the wedding trip to the United States the bride travelled in a pale green, wool dress, brown accessories, fur-trimmed coat, with brown and green accessories, and white gardenia corsage. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Morton will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a china and saucer shower given by Mrs. Bryson Leslie; at a presentation by the staff of Leslie Shoes, of which the bridegroom is a member, and at a presentation by the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer, of which the bride is a member.

Stewardess Wears Ballerina's Tights to Ward off Cold

By SANDY CAMPBELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GOOSE BAY, Labrador (CP)— The Maritime Central Airways DC-4 was an hour out of Goose Bay, heading north at 10,000 feet, when the startled passengers rubbed his eyes and took another look:

Was the stewardess wearing red stockings?

Allowing for male ignorance of female fashion, the passenger was right. Pretty Joan Currie's legs were scarlet from ankle to thigh.

MCA's blessings, she had donned a pair of ballerina's waistlength tights to ward off the chill of Canada's eastern Arctic.

They aren't a general issue for MCA stewardesses, but on northern flights the line gives the girls a free choice of what to wear to keep warm.

Twenty-two-year-old Joan is a native of Alberta, P.E.I., where her father, Winston C~rrie, is a schoolteacher. She joined the airline last September after spending 6½ years as civil service clerk. "I just got tired of Ottawa," she explains.

Her regular route is in the Maritime provinces, but occasionally she is assigned to shepherd passengers to Goose Bay or to Frobisher in the Northwest Territories. That's when she breaks out the warm tights.

On a recent MCA-sponsored junket to Frobisher and Goose, Joan was kept busy serving meals, soup and coffee to a group of businessmen touring the area in search of markets.

On the return flight from Frobisher she had an extra chargea five-week-old husky pup going south with the homing owner.

Looking after 25 people and a small dog suited Joan fine: "I like meeting people—and dogs," she laughed.

Soviet Cabinet Member Now Out of Job

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Maria Kovrigina, the Soviet Union's only woman cabinet minister, who led a campaign for a better deal for Soviet women, has been released from her job as minister of health "in connection with her transfer to other work," the government has announced.

Mme. Kovrigina, appointed in 1954, had campaigned for fewer hours and less arduous work for the women in the large part of the Soviet labor force.

She urged especially for the introduction in the Soviet Union of "effective, convenient and harmless" means of birth control to eliminate the need for abortions, which are legal in Russia.

"The ministerial change appears to be part of a cabinet shuffle before the 21st Communist party congress at the end of this month.

V. P. Kurashov, a former health minister, will take over from Mme. Kovrigina.

Actress Says European Women More Contented

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a woman's country this — in a blatant way," said Siobhan McKenna.

But the Irish actress feels European women in some ways have more real power—and are more content with their lot—than American women.

Miss McKenna, made famous by her role as Bridget Flynn here from Dublin to appear on TV as Maggie Wylie in James M. Barrie's What Every Woman Knows.

This soapy little drama upholds the thesis, dear to all women, that behind every successful man lurks a shy but firm wife. Partly as a result of the play, wives have been thrusting their sticky little paws for the past generations at areas of men's lives they really know nothing about.

What is the difference in this respect between European and American women?

MISS McKENNA: "The European woman is more subtle in manoeuvring her man into the position that will make him a great man (or at least a better man), without him realizing it," said Miss McKenna.

"The European woman seems to be a quiet little mouse with great brainpower. She never seems to push herself, but subtly and gently leads the man who has the ideas in the family—and he never realizes how much more powerful.

The American wife, Miss McKenna admits, is much more adept at entertaining her husband's boss, but added:

"I'm not so sure that this works to the advantage of keeping the home from the office. A man has to have his independence. His home should stay his kingdom. It should be an island of calm to him—not just another salesroom for his career."

GADGETS NOT ALL GAIN

The Irish actress, who has hazel-green eyes, an unruly mop of dark brown hair and looks like a freckled elf, is also dubious about the advantage of the American wife's household gadgets.

"I feel most of these modern gals in the kitchen are more trouble than they are worth," she said. "They take so much time to clean."

Miss McKenna expressed belief a European woman puts up more readily with things the husband's part because "she feels she is partly to blame herself."

"In Ireland we find women who are happy married to men they would be called slobbywells here. It doesn't matter to these wives that they have to go out and find the money.

"It seems to me that the spiritual union is more important than whether your husband is a success."

Man Always Behind Success Of Women

MONTREAL (CP) — There's a man behind the success of every woman, says Dr. Milly B. Halberstadt, a noted practitioner in Malone, N.Y. Mother of three, she believes a woman can go only as far as her husband helps her go in business or a career.

She was interviewed here while attending a refresher course for general practitioners at the Royal Victoria Hospital. Two other women doctors were among those taking the course.

Her husband, Joseph, has a doctorate as a chemist. He is a metal company executive in their hometown.

"My husband is basically a scientist," she said, "and he has always understood my desire for a career. As a woman in medicine I've never run into any problem. In fact, half my patients are men."

Her home life is not without minor problems, she admitted. Once when her son Joseph, now 12, was suffering one of his complaints had opened a door for her as she entered a building. "Mother, I wish you'd let young Joseph told his friend. "She's only a doctor."

She said it would be nice if one of her children chose medicine as a career. But only one of the three, 12-year-old Marc, has any ambitions in that field.

In Malone, Dr. Halberstadt is a staff member—with 21 male colleagues—of the community's hospital. She is qualified to handle all phases of medical treatment except major surgery. She prefers cardiology, obstetrics and dermatology.

A graduate of the Berlin medical school, she emigrated to the United States in 1937, there meeting her husband-to-be.

Dior Aide Says Designers Should Visit United States

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every French designer should be required to make periodic trips to the United States, says Mme. Yvonne Minassian, a petite and knowing blonde who has been with the House of Dior in Paris since its inception.

I talked with Yvonne during the first afternoon's showings of New York spring fashions, staged for 300 members of the U.S. fashion press.

As the fresh, youthful — and mass-produced — fashions paraded down the runway, Yvonne's eyes sparkled with appreciation.

"The things .re charming," she said. "Anyone would like to wear them. Here in America they work on trends that are needed, I think, while in Paris they just design."

SMART SALESWOMAN

Yvonne is reputed to be the smartest saleswoman in Paris, known to all American buyers and devoted to the House of Dior. She is in New York to see how Dior adaptations and copies are being done by New York manufacturers and to take a fresh look at what America wears.

What America will wear next spring was evidenced in the day's showings by such designers as Anne Fogarty, Nettie Rosenstein and Wilson Folmar of the House of Edward Abbott. Yvonne applauded as the new Fogarty designs appeared—fresh, flattering shirtwaist dresses in gay silk prints, capsule sheaths in flannel and linens, sheer, full-skirted date dresses for the young in heart.

LUCKY AMERICANS

When it was announced that these dresses retailed at from $40 up, Yvonne gasped: "How lucky you are, you Americans!"

"I can see in many of these so-beautiful dresses inspirations from the last Paris collections," she said. "But they have been adapted so skillfully to the American taste. They are not copies. But the original feeling perhaps was born in Paris."

Yvonne, who was a surgical nurse in the French Army during the war, went to work for the late Christian Dior before his first and still famous collection, which launched the "New Look."

"She believes Dior's successor, 22-year-old Yves Saint - Laurent, has much the same talent—if is allowed to develop.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

WHY NOT BE GRATEFUL — FOR THESE "NOT NECESSARY" CHRISTMAS CARDS FROM CO-WORKERS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please comment on the practice of sending a Christmas card to everyone one knows. I mean including everyone who works in the office where one works, say 25 people or more. I was under the impression that Christmas cards were to be sent only to those we probably would not meet to give the greeting in person. If our office is all wished one another "Merry Christmas" the day before Christmas when we left work. Some of the people in our office sent a Christmas card to everyone in the office. As a matter of fact, I received several cards from people in the office I hardly know.—E.

If I were you, and these co-workers had taken the good thought to send me Christmas cards, I would have been very much touched and most appreciative of their thoughtfulness. The sending of Christmas cards with their spiritual message and/or inscription of "Good Will Toward All," or their message of warm-hearted friendliness and of friendly good wishes, is a mighty powerful appeal. And so many people, bless their hearts, find happiness and comfort in sending to friends and even to mere acquaintances the message on a Christmas card which they might perhaps feel self-conscious about saying in person. A good spirit, and a generous inclination, this. And why shouldn't they send these kind-thoughted cards, even if they have a very short while before, said "Merry Christmas"? And why shouldn't we, why shouldn't you, appreciate this extra gesture of friendliness, and gratefully say, "How kind, how very thoughtful!"

Identical Twins Meet First Time After 21 Years

VICTORIA (CP)—When Mrs. Margaret Judson and Mrs. Marion Smith first faced each other and accepted the truth, they were surprised to the point of tears.

"We almost bawled," they said in an interview here.

For Mrs. Judson, ward clerk at St. Joseph's Hospital here, and Mrs. Smith, who recently moved to Victoria, are twins who didn't know of each other's existence until they were 21-years-old.

The two were born in Toronto in 1912 and put out for adoption. Margaret grew up in Vancouver. Marion in Toronto. Each was unaware she had a sister.

JOINED CWAC

In the same month of the same year during the Second World War, Margaret joined the Canadian Women's Army Corps and Marion tried to—without success. It was soon after that Margaret began to suspect she had a double.

The army sent Margaret east to work in the base post office in Ottawa. She worked next to a soldier who lived on the same street as Marion in Toronto.

The soldier was so sure Margaret was really Marion using an assumed name that he asked his mother in Toronto to see if Marion had joined the army. He was amazed when his mother said Marion was still there.

TRACED SISTER

On leaving the army, Margaret went to work in the Toronto post office and in 1945 she traced Marion to a Toronto department store. That was when they first met and "almost bawled."

Comparison of their life stories soon established not only that they were twin sisters, but:

They both married sailors of the same age, size, weight and build who had each had four years in the service. The husbands still are in the navy.

They had both, in their teens, become expert roller skaters and considered taking it up professionally.

They had both taken piano lessons for the same length of time in the same years.

They had their tonsils out in the same year.

Each sang also in a church choir.

Now reunited again by Marion's move to Victoria, the twins vow they won't be separated again.

Book on Ukrainian Cookery First Published in English

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A book has been published about Ukrainian cookery and its author, Mrs. Sawila Stechishin of Saskatoon, says it is the first in the world in the English language.

Describing 675 east European dishes, the 500-page book's recipes range from Christmas meals to the use of left-over fish.

Old traditions associated with the dishes are described.

"The village swains doused a young maiden with water and the most popular girl got the most douching," writes Mrs. Stechishin. "In Canada, this practice has finished—it did not fit into the Canadian way of life."

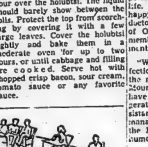
MANY RETAINED

But other customs of Christmas and Easter, and the Ukrainian attitude towards meals—they cannot be relaxed and mildly gay—have been retained in Canada.

The cook book began as a national project undertaken by the Ukrainian Women's Association of Canada to commemorate the 65th year of settlement in Canada by Ukrainians. About 400,000 now live here, plus another 415,000 other Slavs.

Five years' work went into the book. Main problem was improvising for ingredients not available in Canada, converting European weights to Canadian standard measurements, and testing recipes.

Mrs. Stechishin, 55, was nine when she came to Canada from the Ukraine. She graduated in home economics from the University of Saskatchewan in 1930.



Probably the best-known Ukrainian dish in Canada is cabbage rolls, known as "holubtsi" which means "little pigeons." It consists of cabbage leaves and a filling.

This is a recipe for a rice filling: Combine two cups of rice, two cups or less of boiling water, two teaspoons of salt, one finely chopped onion, four to five tablespoons of butter or other fat, salt and pepper. Put the rice in boiling water and cook for one minute. Cover, turn off heat and allow it to stand until the water is absorbed (the rice will be only partially cooked). Add the onion in fat until it is golden, then mix with the rice, and season.

To make the rolls, you need a large head of cabbage, a cup of tomato juice, a half-cup of sour cream, two tablespoons of butter or bacon fat and salt and pepper.

Remove the core of the cabbage. Place the cabbage in a deep utensil and pour boiling water into the hollow to cover the head completely. Let it stand until the leaves are soft and pliable. Then drain the cabbage and take the leaves apart without tearing them. Cut off the hard centre rib from each leaf. Put the rolled leaves into two or three sections.

Line the bottom of a pot with the leaves. Place a generous spoonful of the filling on each cabbage leaf. Arrange the rolls in layers in the pot, sprinkling with salt. Combine the liquid with the sour cream, if used, melted fat and seasoning; pour over the rolls. The liquid should barely show between the rolls. Protect the top from scorching by covering it with a few large leaves. Cover the holubtsi tightly and bake them in a moderate oven for up to two hours, or until cabbage and filling are cooked. Serve hot with chopped crisp bacon, sour cream, tomato sauce or any favorite sauce.

Gary F. — My in-laws annoy the baby.

Estelle F. — I can't tell them off.

Gary F. — My wife and I have been married two years and have a 10-month-old son. My in-laws gave us an apartment on the upper floor of their home. They say they don't want any rent because they want to see us get out of debt and save for a home of our own.

They certainly have been very nice and that's why it's so hard to have to admit they just annoy me to death. They keep coming into our home to play with the baby. Morning, afternoon, and night, one or the other is around cooing and carrying on with the baby.

I don't think that it's good for a baby to have six people around all the time. Even the doctor says I'm right. I've told my wife to tell her folks to tone down and leave the baby alone for a while, but she can't get anywhere with them.

Estelle F. — My folks can't be blamed for carrying on with the baby. After all, he is their first grandchild. I am an only daughter and they have always made a big fuss over me and spoiled me, so naturally, it means a lot to them to be close to me and the baby.

Besides, I feel that as long as we live-in, my parents' home, I can't tell them off.

Very good to us. We couldn't possibly afford a home nearly as nice as the one we now have. Also, we are free to go out whenever we like and my mother is such a help with the baby.

At the one time I did hint to my mother that she might be upsetting the baby, she was very angry and offended. She said she certainly knew what was best for her own baby, that she brought up me and my brother and hadn't killed us.

The Council: The sooner Gary and Estelle confess to them-

One Daily Serving Of Whole Grain Cereal

by Mary Moore

We are told by the authorities on the subject that Canadians should eat one serving of a whole grain cereal each day.

There are some of my earnest grain eaters who do not know quite how to fit these whole grains into their menus.

The most obvious and simple way is to buy and eat 100% whole wheat bread. That insures your daily quota via your morning toast and lunch sandwich. 2nd.) To make and serve rolled oats porridge for breakfast and other whole grain cereals such as yellow cornmeal and mixed cracked wheat and rye or barley or flax. 3rd.) To make baked products such as buns or wheat germ 50% whole wheat muffins. 4th) Make rolled oat cookies 5th) Make Boston brown bread 6th) Use fine whole wheat flour in an increasingly number of your bread products such as whole wheat pie crust, cookies and non-pastry cakes.

I think even some of you experimental cooks will stand in relief either course in cereal making for these cold mornings.

HOT WHOLE GRAIN BREAKFAST CEREALS:

Timetable for cooking cereals in double boiler: Note: Stir all cereal boiling over direct heat in top of double boiler. Cracked wheat, or mixed cracked wheat, cracked rye and cracked flax 1 cup cereal to 4 1-2 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt. Cook 2 hours in double boiler. Approximately yield 4-7 cups. Rolled oats to 3 cups boiling water, 3-4 teaspoon salt, cook 45 minutes — yield 3 cups. Rolled oats to 4 cups boiling water, 1 1-4 teaspoon salt, cook 45 to 60 minutes — yield 4 cups. 1-2 cup cornmeal to 2 cups cold water, 1-2 teaspoon salt, cook 30 minutes, yield 3 cups. Don't forget you oatmeal and cereals are high in minerals and B vitamins.

CRISP OAT BARS:

One egg beaten, 1-2 cup each brown and white sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1-2 teaspoon each salt, soda, nutmeg, 1-2 cup shortening, melted, 1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, 1-2 cup chopped walnuts. Combine eggs, sugars, and flavoring, and beat well. Sift together flour, salt, soda and nutmeg. Add gradually to egg mixture, beating well. Stir in shortening, then oats and nuts. Chill dough about 1 hour. Spread 1-4-inch thick on greased 9" x 12" cookie sheet, leaving 1-inch space around edges. Bake 350 deg. Fahr. until golden brown and fat in centre, about 15 minutes. Immediately cut into bars and remove from pan and cool on rack.

TUESDAY
(Guests)

Apple Juice; Chicken (or veal) and Rice Casserole (see Monday); Brussels Sprouts; Buttered Beets; Waldorf Salad; Homemade Lemon Jelly Roll; Coffee.

WHOLE WHEAT PASTRY

(For two-crust 9-inch pie). Whole wheat pastry has more flavor and food value than pastry made with all white flour. Use whole wheat pastry often, especially with apple, raisin or pumpkin fillings. Use one-half cups each whole wheat flour and pastry flour, 1 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup cold fat, about 6 tablespoons cold water. Sift flours and salt into mixing bowl. Tip residue of whole wheat flour into bowl also from sifter. Cut 2-3 of fat into flour until it looks like cornmeal. Add the remaining 1-3 and cut in until as large as peas. Work quickly. Sprinkle water over flour mixture in small amounts and mix in quickly until flour holds together. Divide in half and roll out to size of pie pan. Use other half for top crust.

Security of Royal Couple During June Visit to Canada Assigned to RCMP Officer

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The broad scope of royal tour security has been assigned to Assistant Commissioner Douglas O. Forrest, RCMP officer charged with ensuring the Queen's safety during her six-week summer tour of Canada.

The job he began Jan. 1 is listed as "royal visit planning and special duties." It ranges from directing traffic to keeping reporters in line.

"Security means more than assuring the safety of the Queen," the assistant commissioner said in an interview. "It means seeing that her trip is both comfortable and free of embarrassment."

VARIETY OF DUTIES

He will be concerned with crowd control, the split - second timing of royal party movements and a multitude of related details, working in close operation with local and provincial police, Scotland Yard security officers, the armed services and—during the St. Lawrence Seaway opening ceremonies — the United States Secret Service.

Assistant Commissioner Forrest, who has been in charge of RCMP "A" division in Ottawa, gave this picture of his organization. Directors from him as to safety and other aspects of the tour will be carried through at the local level by RCMP officers on local planning groups and "they will do most of the detailed work."

"It sounds simpe putting it that way," he said, adding wryly "too simple perhaps."

Assistant Commissioner Forrest, born in Toronto 50 years ago, is a tall man with silvering hair, a ruddy complexion and a habit of thinking out answers over his pipe before replying to questions.

LONG SERVICE

He joined the RCMP in 1932 and has served from Vancouver to Aklavik, N.W.T., and Halifax. During the 1939 Canadian visit of the Queen's father, George VI, he headed the RCMP guard at Alberta's Jasper Park Lodge where the party spent a night.

In 1951 when the Queen toured Canada as Princess Elizabeth with the Duke of Edinburgh, the assistant commissioner was head of the Halifax criminal investigation branch and participated in Nova Scotia planning.

"The magnitude of the tour is a major aspect," he said in an interview. "There is no real problem as such because we have so much experience now in this sort of thing."

He suggested that visits before that of 1939 had not involved nearly as much security planning as those of later years.

He has been attending planning meetings under Lt.-Gen. H. D. Graham, royal tour commissioner, "and mostly listening at this stage." He said he doesn't know how much pre-tour travelling he will do himself but "I think you can assume that most of the route will probably be gone over personally."

SPECIAL ESCORT

If past practice is followed, Assistant Commissioner Forrest and a special personal escort of six or seven selected RCMP personnel will travel with the Queen and Prince Philip. In 1951, as a gesture of thanks, Elizabeth had the RCMP group escort her all the way back to London.

On the safety aspect, Assistant Commissioner Forrest says "one will try to imagine everything that we might have to cope with."

Plainclothes details will be part of the precautionary measures but there are others.

For example, the RCMP may suggest to a local planning group that the tentative routing through the community should avoid a certain narrow street through a heavily-populated sector, taking a wider throughfare nearby to avoid cowd congestion.

TIMING IMPORTANT

Precise timing of movements has to be facilitated so that arrival points can be roped off moments beforehand, doors opened on time, elevators ready and so on.

The head security officer said he knows of no attempt ever made—or contemplated—on the life of royalty in Canada. He anticipates none this time.

But there have been numerous cases where over-zealous onlookers, carried beyond the traditional bounds of royal protocol, have slipped through street-lining guards to thrust nosegays, fruit or other gifts on royal visitors.

"What can you do about that?" asks Assistant Commissione Forrest. In his view, precautions that could prevent such impromptu acts of enthusiasms would defeat the purpose of the visit itself.

TTC Chairman Denies Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Walton, chairman of the Toronto Transit Commission, said Monday night he can find no evidence to indicate a former commissioner knew Yonge Street subway cars were 10 tons overweight.

Mr. Walton said he was unable to find any report to show that chairman William McBrien who died in 1954, knew of the overweight. He said Mr. McBrien, always kept Mr. Walton and commissioner William Russell informed of transit affairs.

Mr. Walton, who became chairman after the recent resignation of Allan Lamport, also denied a charge that the commission had not kept minutes. He said they have been kept since 1921 when the TTC was organized.

The extra weight of subway cars was mentioned in charges of mismanagement made by Mr. Lamport when he stepped down as chairman Jan. 2.

W. E. P. Dunn, TTC general manager, told the commission four days later that Mr. McBrien was notified of the overweight.

New Russian Ambassador Is Welcomed

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Russian ambassador to Canada, a dark-haired, dapper man of charm and wit, appeared impressed on his arrival here Monday with the speed at which news travels in this country.

Anassasp Aroutunian, 56-year-old successor to Dmitri Chuvahin, arrived by train from Montreal where he and his wife and two-year-old son, Hovanes, landed earlier after a flight from Paris.

He was greeted officially by Lionel Massey, son and secretary of the Governor-General, and H. F. Feaver, external affairs chief of protocol.

During a television interview at the station, Mr. Aroutunian was asked to elaborate on remarks he had been reported to have made in Montreal about Russia's desire to increase cultural contact with Canada.

SURPRISED

"How did you know?" he asked in apparent surprise. It was explained that the story had reached Ottawa on wires of The Canadian Press.

The ambassador reiterated to reporters here his Montreal statement that Russia would like to see trade increased and Canada increased.

He said visits to Russia by Canadian artists such as Toronto pianist Glenn Gould helped Russians to understand more about Canada's culture.

"We didn't know much about the culture of Canada," he said, "but we know more now."

Call-Girl System Flourishing in Vancouver, B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Sun assigned 12 senior reporters to investigate the extent of the call-girl racket in Vancouver. The paper made Saturday night and the findings published Monday. The reporters found:

A lucrative and wide-open call-girl system is flourishing in Vancouver, operating in some of the city's leading hotels and motels.

They sell their charms at night for the recognized rate of $25 an hour or $100 a night.

It is said taxis are the "key to sale of sex."

Rabies in Humans Always Fatal

BARRIE (CP) — Grant Walker, 21, bitten Nov. 29 by a dog thought to be rabid now fears he may be stricken with rabies.

He had a doctor clean the wound and thought no more of it until last week when farmer Arthur Benham's son-in-law told him: "You don't have to worry about that dog any more. We shot it. It had rabies."

Dr. Henry Swan began immediately giving him a series of anti-rabies shots, 44 days after he was bitten. To be effective they should be given within 24 hours of the bite.

Walker said Monday: "I feel fine right now, but I wake up frightened in the mornings."

Once the symptoms appear, rabies in humans is always fatal.

Dr. Swan said the chances of humans contracting rabies is very, very, very slight, and in the case of Grant Walker you could be making a mountain out of a molehill if you suggest he is infected."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

You learn something every day — and sometimes in the strangest places.

Sunday frristance we were quaffing a beaker of the Czechoslovakian equivalent of orange crush with attache Miroslav Reyler in the Czech embassy in Ottawa, when he informed us there will be a junior world championship held in Prague this year in conjunction with the titular high links staged by the big brothers.

We had scarcely shaken hands with the gracious hostess, Madame Bedrich Hruska and her embassadorial spouse, than Mr. Reyler attached himself to us in a public relations gesture.

He said the finer points of the junior titular hassle will be ironed out at a meeting of the International Hockey Federation scheduled for Munich, Germany, on January 21. Invitations to enter have been sent out to 23 member countries. It is funny the CAHA has not mentioned the proposed junior tournament.

The attache told us that the Prague organization committee expects twelve entries in the "big brother" tournament. He said that should twelve actually take part, a qualifying competition of three groups will be played first.

The individual groups will be headed by the Canadian, Swedish and Russian teams, and each group will include one of the lowest placed teams from Norway, Finland and Poland. They will play elimination tournaments.

The elimination tournaments will not be played in Prague, Mr. Reyler said. Instead the fans of three Czech cities will watch the foreign pucksters do their stuff. These cities include Bratislava, Brno and Ostrava.

In picturesque Bratislavo, the capital of Slovakia, there is located the best ice stadium in the country, Mr. Reyler said it is a "large indoor hall," seating some 18,000 spectators. This is were the Czech national champion club, the Red Star Brno, plays its games.

In Ostrava, the coal and steel centre of the country, there is a modern indoor stadium seating around 15,000. Brother, what could we do with that one on the Fair Grounds.

The McFarlands are noting with some sort of satisfaction that all the elimination and tournament games played in Czechoslovakia will take place in closed arenas. This will be one strike in their favor.

After the qualifying matches the various squads will take off to Prague where the world tournament will be played in the Winter Stadium, an edifice seating 14,000. The main tournament in which six teams will compete will last for five days from 10th to 14th March.

Extraordinary interest in hockey exists in Czechoslovakia, we were told. Regional elite compete for part of the world tournaments. Among these is the west-Bohemian centre of Pizen, where the junior tournament will be held.

Hockey is one of the most popular sports in Czechoslovakia, the attache said. Shortly before World War II the Czechs played only hockey with a ball and seven players. From that time there has been a constant advance in hockey and today their players rank among the best in Europe and are formidable rivals of their Canadian teachers.

The Czechs, like the Russians, excel in skating and stickhandling. Progress of the game is seen in the fact only a few years ago there were, at the most, two or three clubs contesting for the national title and the right to represent the country at the world tournament. Today there are something like 13 teams contesting for the national championship.

At the present time the young team of Sonp Kladno is favored to win the national bacon. The majority of its players will be included in the country's representative team.

We were told the Czech team is considered one of the favored candidates for the world title, a bauble it has won twice since World War II.

The national growth of ice hockey is made possible by the existence of 31 winter stadia, the greatest number of any country in central Europe. Also contributing to no small way is the development of star players, who in turn are coaching junior and minor stars of the future.

Gordie Howe, Litzenberger Menace Scoring Race Leaders

MONTREAL (CP) — Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Eddie Litzenberger of Chicago Black Hawks are the newest menaces to Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Andy Bathgate in the National Hockey League scoring derby.

The starry rightwingers of Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers are still running one-two but lost ground in last week's play.

The league's official statistics, released today show Howe scored one goal and collected five assists for his week's work while Litzenberger got together three goals and two assists for a five-point production. They moved respectively, into third and fourth places.

Montreal's Boom Boom remains on top, despite a slump, with 51 points. Bathgate has 48, Howe 43 and Litzenberger 42.

LONG SLUMP

Geoffrion hasn't scored a goal since Dec. 27. Since then, over an eight - game stretch, he has counted only three assists. Two of them came Sunday night in Boston's 5-3 win over the Boston Bruins.

Bathgate for several weeks has been steadily chopping away at Geoffrion's lead. The New Yorker last week clipped off another point, scoring two goals and one assist.

The scrapping rightwing pair of Howe and Litzenberger knocked Montreal's Dickie Moore out of third place. Moore, who only one

Three Habs Selected For Half-Way All-Star Team

Johnson, 'Pocket', Moore Sawchuk, Bathgate Named With Wings' Provonost

MONTREAL (CP) — Three members of Montreal Canadiens, two of Detroit Red Wings and one of New York Rangers were voted to the National Hockey League's all-star team in the balloting at the half-way mark of the season, the league announced today.

Voting was close for all positions except left wing. Moore received 86 of a possible 90 points. Closest to him for that position was Alex Delvecchio of Detroit, with 33 points.

Sawchuk received 75 points, Johnson 60, Pronovost 54, Henri Richard 33 and Bathgate 69.

SECOND TEAM

Voting was done by hockey writers, broadcasters and television experts in the six NHL cities. Points were awarded on a 5-3-1 basis for first, second and third choices. The selectors will vote again at the end of the season. The combined totals will then determine the makeup of the teams.

There will be different names in hockey—players who for years almost invariably have been chosen either for the first or second team at this halfway stage. They are Gordie Howe of Detroit and Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Doug Harvey of Montreal.

The selectors plumped heavily for Bathgate and Geoffrion for the rightwing spot. Both have been jockeying for the league scoring lead. Howe wasn't far back, with 40 points, but the veteran Red Wing has been in a scoring slump.

In 16 previous seasons Richard made the all-season first team eight times and the second team six times. He missed out in his sixteenth year in 1957 and again last season when he had a long layoff because of injuries.

Minor Hockey

The "Mighty Mites" of the ice lanes, the squirts, were out in full force again last night to pass judgment on their usual four Monday evening fixtures at Memorial Arena.

The Maple Leafs racked up the Rangers by a 7-1 count while Smith stopped for the winners with three goals while Gregory Burkitt, Ian Gerald, Gerald Bull and Harold Wiebell added singles. Ron Ellis and Barons hooked up in a 2-2 deadlock Bob Coleman and Ron Ellis were the hot hawk marksmen. Jim McKenzie pulled the trigger on both of the Bruins' markers.

Bruins took a 4-1 decision over the Canadiens as Bob Mullen, Neil Goyer, Mike Hanley and Johnny Haymen shared the Bruins' goals. John Burette scored for Canadiens.

Red Wings rolled up a big score to whip the Browns 8-1. Jim McCreary and Ken Mullen paced the attack with two goals each. Other Wing scorers were Ted Howrington, Bobby Tomaso, Paul Loder and Jim Beattie. Ted Sullivan saved the Browns from a shutout.

Next week the first two games will be played from 6 to 6.30 with the next two from 6.30 to 7. The All-Stars will play practice games from 7 until 8 p.m.

MAURICE DROPS

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal, in a four-way tie for fourth place a week ago, scored only a single goal last week and now finds himself in sixth place with 38 points.

McKenney failed to get a point and the Boston leftwinger vacated the same fourth spot. He still has 37 points he now is tied for seventh place with Alex Delvecchio. o' Detroit. Delvecchio, in an 11th-place tie a week ago, broke loose with five assists.

Both Jean Beliveau of Montreal and Ron Murphy of Chicago tied for eighth place a week ago, dropped back. Beliveau scored one goal and one assist and Murphy a single assist, leaving them in ninth and 10th places with 36 and 35 points, respectively.

Montreal's Jacques Plante continues his domination of the league's goalers. The agile Canadien has allowed 82 goals in 41 games for an even average of two goals a game and has recorded up seven shutouts.

Next best are Ed Chadwick of the last-place Toronto and Terry Sawchuk of fourth-place Detroit, tied at 111 goalsagainst each and with averages of 2.77 goals a game.

Sawchuk has allowed 111 goals in 40 games and Chadwick 36 goals in 13 games.

Melee Marks Junior Battle; Petes Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A ragged clash in Toronto and a comparatively effortless win by Peterborough Petes highlighted OHA Junior A action Monday night.

Toronto Marlboros and Guelph Biltmores provided all the spills and thrills during the 5-5 tie and climaxed a heated third period with a wild-swinging melee at centre ice. Peterborough took it easier and led all the way to defeat Barrie Flyers 5-1.

Peterborough's win puts them nine points behind the leading St. Catharines Teepees. Guelph Biltmores came within five points of threatening Toronto St. Michael's Majors' third place; Marlboros are in fifth spot, one point ahead of Barrie.

LED THE ATTACK

Bobby Cunningham led the Guelph attack as he nipped a three-goal performance with an unassisted hat trick that flipped past Marlboro goaltender Len Broderick and tied the game.

Yvon Ratelle and Rod Gilbert completed the Guelph scoring. Don Carey fired a pair for Marlboros with Jim Papin, defencemen Roger Cote and Jim Wilcox adding markers.

The third period ruckus began when Marlies' Ross Morrison tangled with Gilbert. Morrison drew a five-minute major and a 10-minute misconduct and Gilbert got a two-minute penalty and a misconduct. Referee Red Storey's eyes were handed nine of 13 penalties in a ragged game.

Danny Lawson scored Flyers' lone goal in the third.

Chuck Hamilton, Bill Mahoney, Barclay Plager, Wayne Connelly and Fred Dart shared Petes' goals; Ted Hampson had the only hour late after the Barrie bus was held up by a traffic accident.

Wolves Win Over Hounds In Overtime

SUDBURY (CP)—A shot deflected off a Soo defencemen's stick scored the winning goal for Sudbury Wolves Monday night in a 4-3 overtime victory over Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in an OHA-NOHA Senior A clash.

Sudbury coach Gordon Fashan drove the shot from the corner which hit Jerry Odrowski's stick and ricocheted into the Wolves who had to score: two in the final 10 seconds of the third period or three in the extra period to force the game into overtime.

The game was one which was penalized last Oct. 28 by a Sudbury players' strike. The win jumps Sudbury from fifth to third place, a point ahead of the Soo and Windsor Bulldogs.

Sudbury coach Gordon O'Flaherty pulled goalie Ray Frederick twice in the final moments and the gambles paid off with goals by Jim Logan and Joe Zorica, both on passes from Andy Voykin. An earlier Sudbury goal was scored by George Sevich.

The Soo's "big three" — Jim McBurney, John Ofidani and Jim Farelli—each clicked for a goal. Coach Don Grosso argued that Don McLean got another for the Soo halfway through the third period when a puck appeared to glance off the centre ice area bouncing up from Frederick's pads.

It was the league's only action.

Eric Cooper Verdicts London Price for Champ $140,000

By JOHN FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Newly crowned British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper today belted his price for meeting world champion Floyd Patterson at $140,000.

"That's what we want for any fight against Patterson" manager Jim Wicks said. "It doesn't matter whether fight is here or in the states—that is our figure."

The 24-year-old Cooper, fighting for purses of only $2,800 a year ago, jumped into a contender's spot Monday night with a 15-round decision over Brian London at Earls Court Stadium.

BLOOD BATH

Both fighters, finished badly cut around the eyes—but Cooper's flashing left jabs won him the title.

Before the fight, London was rated the No. 2 challenger for Patterson's title. Cooper was rated seventh.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, was far more receptive to Wicks' demands when he was contacted in New York.

"For one thing," D'Amato snapped, "the defeat does not eliminate London. For another, many people are anxious to fight for the world heavyweight championship. None of them is in a position to dictate to the champion. Perhaps the size who makes the most concessions will wind up with the title shot."

SEVENTH ROUND

Cooper, a classic boxer, outclassed a brawling, mauling London.

Before the fight, London was rated the No. 2 challenger for Patterson's title. Cooper was rated seventh.

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager, was far more receptive to Wicks' demands when he was contacted in New York.

"For one thing," D'Amato snapped, "the defeat does not eliminate London. For another, many people are anxious to fight for the world heavyweight championship. None of them is in a position to dictate to the champion. Perhaps the size who makes the most concessions will wind up with the title shot."

INJURY AGGRAVATED

SOLOMONS BIDDING

British promoter Jack Solomons wants to match Cooper against European champion Ingemar Johansson of Sweden in a European title fight in London in June.

"We'll listen to every offer and take the one that brings the most cash," Wicks said.

Cooper facing a rest of two or three months to give his badly cut eyes a chance to heal completed:

"My ambition is to fight Patterson for the world title. London is powerfully strong. I don't think Patterson could be quite as tough as London."

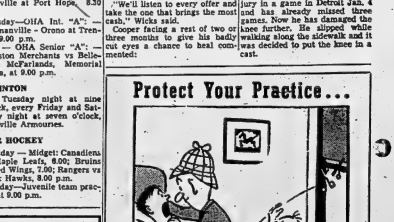
GOOD LUCK TO HENRY

Eddie Ashquist manager of Johansson — another ringside watcher — said he hoped his fighter would get a crack at Patterson.

"But if Cooper gets a go at him—then good luck to Henry," Ashquist said. "Johansson and Cooper are big friends.

"Our chance will come. In fact, hopes of Johansson tackling Patterson are brighter now. American promoter Bill Rosensohn and Al Schweig (D'Amato's attorney) have been in Sweden. And we have not been playing cards.

"But the final word is with D'Amato."



HOW THE FIGHT WENT

Cooper jabbing away with his left took the first four rounds. Then London rushed in and wildly landed some murderous rights and opened cuts about Cooper's eyes. Blood spurted all over Cooper's face and the eye trotted into soggy crimson pulp.

London won the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth rounds on the AP scorecard.

Then, in the ninth round, Cooper shot out a hard left and London reeled back on the ropes. Cooper opened a deep gash about London's right eye and sailed on to take the last seven rounds.

NewYork, Chicago IBC Out By District Judge's Decree

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television fight fans likely will be able to watch the Wednesday and Friday night bouts for months to come despite a court-administered slap of the International Boxing Club.

This was the curbstone opinion of some of the interested parties after the Supreme Court Monday upheld by a 7 to 2 majority a district judge's anti-monopoly decree. The ruling effectively puts the IBC of New York and Chicago out of business.

There was no immediate answer, however, to the question of the future uncertainty was the status of IBC promotions already booked for future dates. Contracts for such as the welterweight title fight between champion Don Jordan and Virgil Akins scheduled for St. Louis on March 6 may have to be drawn all over again.

An IBC spokesman in New York said the firm was handling only TV details of Joe Brown's lightweight title defense against Johnny Busso in Houston, Feb. 9.

MIXED REACTION

Reaction was mixed to the decision ruling which ais directed James D. Norris, a founder and former president of the IBC, and Arthur M. Wirtz, an associate, to sell the stock which gives them control of Madison Square Garden in New York.

Cus D'Amato, manager of heavyweight king Floyd Patterson, was elated. Patterson has rarely been seen in the ring, on the scene or via television, since he won the crown in 1956. D'Amato, a foe of the IBC, refuses to allow his champion to appear under its auspices or if anyone remotely connected with the Norris-Wirtz empire.

D'Amato and the New York that Patterson may now appear televised bouts if an independent promoter acquires video rights—but for "anyone who has been playing footsy with IBC".

SEES LIVELIER SPORT

Bill Rosensohn, independent promoter who staged the Patterson-Roy Harris title fight in Los Angeles and is now in Europe he thought the court decision would liven up boxing.

"There will be more interest for both promoters and fighters," he said. "Madison Square Garden has more or less been a monopoly of the IBC. Now I presume it will become available to other promoters. The decision came as a surprise to me."

In Cleveland, promoter Larry Atkins said he was sorry to see Jim Norris forced to sell his interest in Madison Square Garden because he had been good for boxing. Some of Atkins' shows have been handled by the IBC.

LOOKING FOR MONEY

Teddy Brenner, who ruesses the Garden's fortunes are out Monday at St. Nicholas Arena in New York, had this to say: "I intend to start my next week. I welcome any television sponsor."

Emil Antonelli, promoter of Patterson's first title defense against Hurricane Jackson, said he never had stopped looking for a TV contract. Lence ran weekly TV fights before the IBC and then invite a similar setup by another television sponsor.

NEVER MONOPOLIZED

Promoter Goldie Ahearn of Washington has never established a will with the IBC in producing television but insisted boxing has never been monopolized.

"Boxing will survive," said Adhearn. "If Primo Carnera a champion of the world couldn't kill boxing nothing will."

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight titleholder, said in Chicago the decision was "a birth of freedom for the boxing game. It will put the small clubs back in operation. There is no room for monopoly in America."

Sawchuk Shuts Out Leafs, Wins 3rd Straight

DETROIT (AP) — Terry Sawchuk, Detroit Red Wings' goalie, shut out Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 Monday night for his third straight victory.

Sawchuk, who has been in and out of the lineup with injuries, made 30 saves.

Marcel Pronovost scored the first goal for Detroit at 5.30 of the first period. Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio added goals in the second period.

Olmebo Has First Workout

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) Alex Olmedo of the United States took his first tennis workout in five days today and said he felt virtually fit after from a strained stomach muscle.

"I'm sure if there is no new trouble I will be ready to play in Adelaide," he said. "I plan to take my chances but at the moment I feel great."

Although seeded No. 1 among foreign players, Olmedo's play in the Australian national championships has been in doubt because of a recurrence of an old ailment.

Juniors Mark Third Straight Win With 9-4 Victory Over Port Hope

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lambert - Rollins stretched their winning string to three games here last night and at the same time tightened their grip on third place in the OHA Central Ontario Junior "B" standing with a 3-1 victory over Port Hope Ontarios.

It was a typical junior contest that had 18 penalties in all, including five majors and one misconduct, along with 12 minor sentences.

Belleville built a 2-0 lead in the clean first period but the clubs exploded in a wild middle heat that saw eight goals scored and 12 penalties assessed. Lambert-Rollins led 7-3 at the end of the second and outscored Port Hope 2-1 in the third.

Four goals in the first three minutes and 47 seconds gave the winners a 4-2 lead before the penalty parade started at 5.05 of the second. Rowbotham and Fenton tangled to start matters with the former getting two minors and Fenton one. Haynes of the visiting team benched for tripping at 6.33, Mann of Belleville got the gate for cross checking at 8.31 and Haynes was in again at 9.48 for holding.

In the meantime Elliott and Mavety had upped Belleville's lead by 3-1. Ellis and Port Hope's Mel Stevenson waded into each other hammer and tong for six minute penalties at 10.46. Jerry Mann followed at 11.47 for cross checking and on the same play team mate Larry Mavety drew a major for fighting with one Port Ontarios, who did not fight back or draw a penalty. Both of the visitors got a minor for high sticking at 12.07 and Ehler served a Belleville player for having too many men on the ice at 14.53.

The third period picked up where the second left off when Jerry Mann and Mel Stevenson dropped the gloves and went at it after 1.22. Both were given majors and Stevenson had an automatic misconduct tacked on since it was his second major of the session.

Dennis Kerruish, at 2.57, and Gary Goyer, at 7.46, made it 9-3 before Jerome Greenaway closed the scoring for Port Hope at 10.47.

Roger Drake scored both Belleville goals in the opening stanza, the first while his team was shorthanded, and the second at 13.33. Belleville missed two other great chances when Ellis led a three-man breakaway and later when Elliott produced one off a goalpost. Early in the second Goyer and Ellis fired Belleville goals while Harris and Greenaway registered for Port Hope.

Gary Goyer topped the Lambert-Rollins pointsheet with one goal and three assists, while Roger Drake had two goals and one helper. Goyer, the club's leading scorer, added a pair to his total while Jack Elliott and Dennis Kerruish each had one and one. Bucky Ehler and Larry Mavety also scored with Ron Hull and Ralph Plane earning two assists and Ted Lewis one.

Lewis, a defencemen, joined the club last night. He played earlier with the defunct Trenton Bees.

Garnet Harris and Dave Greenaway had two goals apiece for the Ontarios.

Belleville and Port Hope picked up two assists, Herc Martin and Bill Haynes one each.

The line-ups:

Collection Night Tonight in Memorial Arena

Tonight will be "Collection Night" in Memorial Arena.

While it is hoped that Mars will "collect" a win at the expense of the world champion Whitby Dunlops, their Booster Club will do a little collecting of its own.

So save that white and brown money, and the folding stuff, too, if you feel like it.

Booster members will pass through the crowd during the period. Interlopers carrying those cute little tin cans "Skip" Matthews dug up from somewhere.

The pewsters will be asked to drop their small change into the receptacles and the over-all collection will go to the Booster Overseer Fund.

There are still some of those one-dollar tickets for a trip to Prague, or $1,000 cash, left. Booster Club executive members will be glad to accommodate prospective customers.

Toronto-born Frank Morris, one of the top linemen in Canadian football, has retired from the game after a sparkling 17-season career in which he played in seven Grey Cup finals, six with champions. Frank Morris, Retired Played On Seven Grey Cup Squads

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — Toronto-born Frank Morris, one of the best linemen developed, retired last fall after a 17-season football career during which he played in seven Grey Cup finals, six of them with champions.

The burly 35-year-old, whose 253 pounds are well packed over a five-foot-ll-inch frame, spent nine seasons with Edmonton Eskimos and five with Toronto Argonauts. He played with Argos when they won the title in 1945-46-47, and with Esks when they contributed it from 1954-55-56.

Those were halcyon years for Morris. A two - way guard, he worked under coaches Frank (Pop) Ivy and Darrell Royal, on whom he rates as the best, and Annis Stukus and Frankie Filchock, "the nicest."

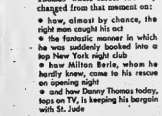
AFTER 10 YEARS

Among his feats as an offensive guard with Eskimos were two touchdowns in 1952—unusual for a lineman. "But I had to play for years before I could score," he says.

DANNY THOMAS
confesses,
"I made a bargain with a saint!"

In The Saturday Evening Post this week you'll read one of the most extraordinary stories ever told by an entertainer.

A two-bock beer-garden entertainer, he was at the end of his rope, getting nowhere, ready to quit. Then, suddenly, he discovered a long-forgotten saint.



"Help me," he prayed, "so go to the top, so I'll build you a shrine for the poor, the helpless, the hopeless."

In an exclusive (and amazingly frank) interview by Pete Martin in this week's Post, you'll learn how miraculously Danny Thomas' whole career suddenly changed from that moment on:

- how, almost by chance, the right man caught his act
- the fantastic manner in which he was suddenly booked into a top New York club
- how Milton Berle, whom he hardly knew, came to his rescue on opening night
- and how Danny Thomas today, tops on TV, is keeping his bargain with St. Jude

Don't miss Pete Martin's "I Call on Danny Thomas."

'Uncle Sam' Took Heavy Beating In Real Estate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal government took a loss of $1,500,000 to $5,500,000 in the deal by which Los Angeles acquired land as the site of a proposed baseball park for Los Angeles Dodgers, Congress learned Monday.

A report by the controller general said the loss was absorbed by the public housing administration and the treasury as result of the sale of Chaves Ravine to the city by the Los Angeles housing authority.

The report said the property, intended as a housing site, was sold by the authority "at a noncompetitive price" below the fair market value.

The public housing administration, in response to an inquiry, said the government laid out $1,553,179 for the land as a low-rent public housing project and that the Los Angeles housing authority resold it to the city for $1,522,948.

A spokesman said the government's total investment in the project, including all charges and fees, amounted to $7,241,220 and that the net loss to the government was $5,823,372. This is $1,500,000 more than estimated in the report by the comptroller general.

The report, which has been transmitted to the house of representatives, recommended that congress pass a law permitting the government in the future to recapture any excess proceeds in such cases.

Movie Column

Marion Hargrove at 22 Top Script Writer for Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At 22, Marion Hargrove wrote See Here, Private Hargrove, which sold 3,500,000 copies, became a hit movie and TV script.

"I learned a lesson," he now admits, "A writer shouldn't have such success until two conditions prevail: No. 1, he should be rewarded for a work on which he has lavished a great deal of time and effort. No. 2, he should be at an age when he is mature enough to follow up the success."

Hargrove still looks youthful enough to play the army private he was—well, corporal, maybe. Now he can look back reflectively at the pitfalls of his youth.

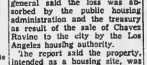
ARMY OBSERVATIONS

Before the war, he was a desk man on the Charlotte, N.C. News. A pre-Pearl Harbor draftee, his wry views of army life were mined in a series of articles in The News. They were brought to the attention of a Hollywood producer who recognized their appeal. Hargrove attempted a book-length ending, and the book became a wartime sensation.

Hargrove roamed the world as a correspondent for the army magazine, Yank, returned after the war to pursue a career as author.

"For the first two years, I couldn't write a thing," he said. "It was the old story of a blank piece of paper in the typewriter and being unable to get an idea."

He finally turned out a light novel about army radio world. It sold 25,000, not bad in the book business but hardly a followup of his See Here success. Then he spent several years as a freelance article writer.



NEW ARMY COMEDY

The turn in his career came when studio boss J. J. Warner wanted a comedy about the new army. Who else could write it but Marion Hargrove?

"I turned out a script treatment, but they didn't like it," he said. "So they kept the movie rights and I turned out a novel. The novel The Girl He Left Behind was better than the picture."

Hargrove had tried unsuccessfully to adapt his second novel for films. He was determined not to return to New York until he had his first screen credit. So he stayed on and soon was in demand as a TV script writer.

He has written 10 Maverick and 5 re- ... this for much of the show's subtlety. Quality Sunday's hills ous Gunsmoke saga ... he was late, and he has another killer coming up—a western version of Sheridan's The Rivals. He also did pilot films for 77 Sunset Strip, Colt .45 and the upcoming Johnny Dollar.

AT THE BELLE — Diana Dors and George Cobel co-stars in the hilarious comedy, "I Married a Woman", the major feature, "All Mine to Give", outstanding drama, co-stars Glenn Johns, Caroline Mahon, Rev. Thompson, Technicolor. Both attractions are playing tonight at the Belle Theatre.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

British Columbia Lions may not win many football games—and that's an understatement—but they are the only club in the wealthiest in Canadian pro football, apparently is willing to spend money as it cash is out of style.

Take last week for instance. President Harry Spring of the Western Interprovincial Union has blithely told shareholders that head coach Wayne Robinson can go free to shop the world in efforts to give the city a winning club in 1959. After all, the Lions have been in the WIFU since 1954 and still are looking for a playoff spot.

Spring apparently wasn't fooling.

NO LIMITATIONS

Robinson, he said, had no limitations placed on him with regard to the amount of money he could offer any player. He was free to make any player purchases or trades he considered desirable and, said Spring, "at such prices he considers reasonable."

That was enough to make any coach envious of Robinson. But Spring was just warming up.

"I further told coach Robinson that I'd like any time experienced any interference from the general manager or any director. He should immediately report it to the president. Some will say we are giving the coach too much power and perhaps we are, but we wish him every opportunity to succeed."

Isn't that sometimes?

MIGHT PROVE COSTLY

Young Mr. Robinson—he's 28 and the youngest head coach in Canadian pro football—unfortunately wasn't around to hear such a lavish vote of confidence. He was somewhere in the United States searching for talent but you can bet your bottom buck that every Lions shareholder fervently hopes he is a "reasonable" fellow about prices when signing players.

Unfortunately, too, there weren't too many football officials at home to comment on Spring's remarks. They were at Montreal attending a coaches convention.

However the few that were available for comment made a brave stand of it.

"Why," said Jim McCaffrey, Ottawa Rough Rider boss, "every club knows that." Jim pleaded the clubs give their coaches a free hand in the selection of players and in handling the club on the field. But, pressed further, he admitted that, "Some coaches have the say about salaries—anything within reason, that is."

THAT MONEY ANGLE

"There's nothing unusual about that," commented president Sam Taylor of the Saskatchewan Roughriders. Even, except that he added Roughrider coach George Terlep has the same power as Robinson—except for one angle."

"Terlep doesn't put up out of pay $25,000 for a player without talking to us. Money is discussed beforehand by Terlep and us. He has a budget determined by the club."

Lee Ross, president of Hamilton Eskimos, asserted that head coach Sam Lyle has a free hand with player personnel under any arrangement "somewhat similar" to that of Lions. But Ross admitted a different matter. The coach, said Ross, "must ask approval of the club president or directors of certain transactions."

That doesn't make the Lions unique. Team owners pay a mere $30,000 or $40,000 a year to coach Wayne Robinson—and he's 10 years ago. Now, that's only one club in the country that can get by with less than $100,000 a year.

Braves Sign Red Schoendienst

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"Red told us what he wanted and we gave it to him."

Birdie Tebbetts, executive vice president of the National Baseball club of Milwaukee, said Milwaukee Braves, had just signed their great second baseman Red Schoendienst, for the 1959 season.

Even though the popular 35-year-old infielder has dropped up from the 1958 pay with Milwaukee he was told to name his own terms.

"I think I'll be able to play this season."

But doctors aren't as optimistic.

Despite Red's gould progress this illness was discovered a few months ago they doubt he will be on the field this season. Said Braves general manager John Quinn:

"We can say is a prayer that Schoendienst's health will be 100 per cent for the 1959 season.

Red reportedly will get close to $75,000 estimated at between $70,000 and $35,000.

Rookie Award To Jim Orr Over Mitchell

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Orr, an unheralded offensive end who gained stature with Pittsburgh Steelers as the season progressed, today was voted the National Football League's 1958 rookie of the year in a close race with Bobby Mitchell of Cleveland Browns.

Orr, who did his college playing for Georgia University, received 16 votes of the 44 football writers voting in the annual Associated Press Poll. Mitchell, a speedy halfback who started the season as if he were going to run off with first-year honors only to slow down in the finals weeks, received nine votes.

In all, nine freshmen were nominated. Tackle Lou Michaels of Los Angeles Rams, fullback Jerry Brown, defensive tackle and fullback Phil Klug of New York Giants received four votes each. Single votes went to tackle Alex Karras of Detroit Lions, quarterback Lamar Hunt and Dale Meinert of Chicago Cardinals and halfback-end Bill Anderson of Washington Redskins.

The 21 - year old Orr, who weighs only 185 pounds, caught 31 passes, scored four touchdowns and gained 910 yards.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, January 14

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — The executive you need who is to help you to achieve the aims you have in mind right now is in a most unfortunate mood. Put things off until a later time. Use the present only to build up your energy and stamina.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Deviously working angles today. Instead of following the straight and narrow to gain your aims, will only, unfortunately, deter your programs. Study and research, reading your paper, becoming well informed — this is your best bet today.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Remain true to devoted pal who is really for you instead of heeding the advice of insincere advisors who present a gloomy picture. P. M. go out to some function that will be most enjoyable and yet cost you very little. Be with large groups.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Stubborn executive and dynamic associate do not see eye to eye at all. Be sure you don't get involved unnecessarily. Impress others with fine self-control and lend a helping hand where needed for mutual benefits.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Rather than keep moping along at the dull tasks you perform daily, step out and find fascinating outlets that will add much to your abundance and put a smile on your face. Meet wonderful people, do important things. Live.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — You feel you would like to consult with a highly paid so-called expert, but if you get rid of that chip on your shoulder and use your own good mind, you will save considerably and get better results. Tact and trust are the keys to success.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Don't keep going around in circles at home harping on the same situation. Be off with dynamic associate who has some truly clever and amazing ideas you can follow and progress will become a relatively simple matter.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — Complete tasks at once which should have been performed long before this. Then be sure to shop, do other important errands so that you clear the slate for the busy days ahead. Keep that important appointment, too.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — If you must talk about finances today with associates, do so cheerily or they get the wrong impression. Steer clear of any heavy commitments, and try to cut down on expenses.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — A close family tie can today be quite cantankerous and you will become very nervous if you take stock of what is said and done. Keep busy improving and enhancing own personality, putting abode in order, etc.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — A private problem could raise havoc with today's fine aspects for excellent opportunities that are otherwise open to you. Push it aside and be about your business or stay rooted by your desk and work like a beaver.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Seek the solution to your problematical affairs from a rather troublesome but truly trustworthy friend today. Follow his or her advice quickly. Any real estate or health matters require another day's consideration before attempting to act.

If your child is born today ... The little tyke born today is the fascinating kind who must always have to exercise the very greatest patience before life's lice Dent read an appropriate address for the occasion and expressed best wishes for the future happiness. 2nd THURLOW
Neighbors' Aid Honors Couple With Gifts

2nd THURLOW — A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jeffrey on Wednesday night in honor of their son, Kenneth, and his future bride, Betty Oakes. They were presented with many lovely gifts.

Russia's Diplomatic Note Simply Rehash of Old Ideas

By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Western governments are deep in study of the possibilities of counter - proposals to Russia's new-old formula for a German peace treaty conference.

They see Russia's weekend diplomatic note as essentially a rehash of old ideas—hammering on the theme of a neutralized Germany, meaning that West Germany would turn its back on NATO and be forbidden nuclear weapons of any kind.

The only new aspects appear to be Premier Nikita Khrushchev's proposals of a date for the conference, within two months place, Prague or Warsaw, and participants, 31 countries, including all of Germany's Second War enemies.

More Important

More important is the implicit eagerness of the Kremlin to get together with the West for talks. This is underscored by the U.S. tour of Russian Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, who presents a friendly face and has been acting for all the world like a politician running for office.

Although talkative on a variety of topics, Mikoyan has been canny and cryptic in what he's said about the West Berlin and German questions. It's generally thought that his presence in the U.S. at this time—and his sunny demeanor — are calculated to have a tranquillizing effect and remove from American minds, if possible, the bogy of ruthless Russian imperialism.

Khrushchev started his current campaign by declaring on Nov. 27 West Berlin he made a "free city," and announcing that Russian troops would be withdrawn within six months—by May 27. This was taken as an unacceptable ultimatum for the Western occupying countries to remove their troops as well.

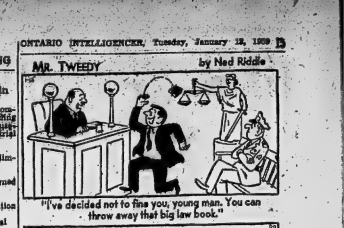
LLOYD'S PLAN

Khrushchev's new communications are broader in scope and more moderate in tone, and are interpreted as an opportunity for Western counter - proposals that could result in a full-blown conference not only on Berlin and Germany but European security in general.

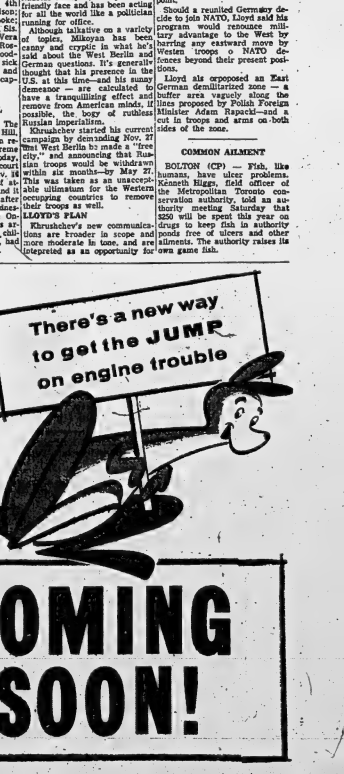
There was no official hint of what such counter - proposals might contain, but a possible clue was given last month by Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd in addressing the British House of Commons.

Lloyd's plan first of all recognized the Western basic position that there will be no withdrawal from Berlin except in the context of German reunification under free elections — a concept that Russia approved in principle at the Geneva summit conference of 1955.

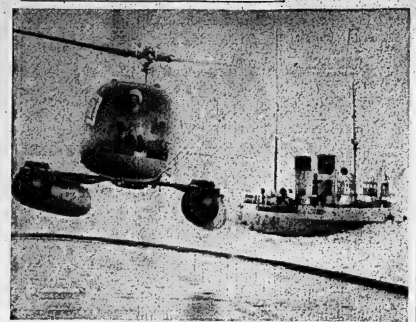
POLISH FEARS



It also sought to reassure Russia and its satellites against any revival of the German militarism they profess to dread. Poland has been especially vocal on this point.



Should a reunited Germany decide to join NATO, Lloyd said his program would renounce military advantage to the West by barring any eastward move by Western troops o NATO defences beyond their present positions.



Lloyd als orposed an East German demilitarized zone — a buffer area variously along the lines proposed by Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki—and a cut in troops and arms on both sides of the zone.

Massey Company Wants to Acquire British Factory

LONDON (Reuters) — The Canadian agricultural machinery firm of Massey-Ferguson today disclosed plans aimed at buying out the tractor-producing interests of Standard Motors, one of the big five in the British automotive world.

Massey – Ferguson's financial advisers announced in London that negotiations to this end are under way between the two companies.

A spokesman said it is hoped that if the negotiations are successful the two companies will be able to "go their own way," independent of each other."

Standard has been producing Massey – Ferguson tractors for some years at its extensive plant at Coventry. The Canadian firm holds about 8,000,000 shares in Standard, about one-quarter of its capital.

Today's announcement indicated Massey-Ferguson hopes to make this shareholding part and parcel of the deal, leaving the automotive section to Standard while they take over the tractor interests.

It was learned that no development is likely for at least two weeks. At present the offer is with Standard for valuation of his tractor plant and a decision on what should happen to its Massey-Ferguson shares.

Letter Carriers At Toronto Seek Increase in Pay

TORONTO (CP) — Some 2,100 letter carriers and postal employees have endorsed six demands on the federal government including a wage increase of $480 a year and collective bargaining rights.

The meeting was called Sunday to protest that postal employees have been the victims of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's "hold the line" policy which has not been maintained by the government itself.

It was called by the executive committees of the Toronto branches of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers and the Canadian Postal Employees Association.

Other demands were:

Amendment of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act to provide postal employees with conciliation procedures.

Double time for work on days of rest or statutory holidays.

Maximum salaries to be reached in three years, providing departmental requirements are met.

Application of the Rand formula (compulsory payment of union dues without compulsory membership.)

Harry Simon, Ontario regional director of organization for the Canadian Labor Congress, and David Archor, Ontario Federation of Labor president, gave assurances of support.

Starr Considers Diesel Firemen Question Settled

Issue to Be Excluded From Board's Reference

Shirley Povich Makes Select Circle of Women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first edition of Who's Who of American Women contained the names of 19,000 prominent women—but not one man.

Shirley Povich, sports columnist for the Washington Post made it clear today he's not happy being included. In fact, he's father used to that sort of thing.

"I now belong to the most exclusive club in America," he said cheerfully.

Povich, whose unmistakably masculine face adorns his daily "This Morning" column, offers pets mail addressed to Miss Shirley Povich.

Once he was invited to join the League of American Penwomen, and the application blank asked questions such as: "How do you get along with in-laws?" and "Occupation?" Povich replied, "I simply try to be one of the boys."

As for the Who's Who of American Women, Povich conceded he didn't try very hard to correct the mistaken impression of the publishers.

He said he didn't bother to reply when he received an advance notice of the listing, which showed dim married to Ethel Povich. He is the father of three children.

The new reference book is published by the same Chicago firm that has compiled Who's Who in America for many years.

Povich's newspaper, in its edition today, played the story on his selection on the front page of the women's section. A photo of Povich was displayed prominently, surrounded by photos of such well known women as Marilyn Monroe, Elizabeth Taylor and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, all included in the reference book with Povich.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not join in reopening the CPR diesel firemen issue that has produced two rail strikes in two years, information said Tuesday.

They said Labor Minister Starr will set up a conciliation board to deal with the current contract dispute between the CPR and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineemen (CLC), but the digest issue will be excluded from the board's consideration.

The government was represented as regarding the diesel fight as closed following settlement of a three-day strike last May, despite repeated renewed efforts of the union to reopen it.

The board will deal with other points in dispute, including a demand by the firemen for an 18-per-cent pay boost.

The CPR company has centred around the CPR's plans to eliminate firemen gradually from freight yard diesel locomotives. The firemen first went on strike for nine days in January, 1957.

COMMISSION DECISION

Later, a federal royal commission decided that firemen were not needed on freight and yard diesels.

The strike of last May ensued, followed by a settlement in which the union "without any abandonment of understanding" accepting the principle that firemen are necessary on the types of engines involved. It stipulated that no more firemen would be hired for freight and yard diesels.

The company agreed to keep on the firemen hired before 1956 with firemen being gradually eliminated as they retired, died or were promoted.

The union is fighting the same issue with the Montreal-based CNR, which wants freedom to decide whether firemen are employed on freight and yard diesels. This is the first time the issue has come to a head on the CNR.

A federal conciliation board is due to hear arguments from the CNR and union at Montreal on Thursday. On the CPR, the firemen also are seeking an 18-per-cent wage increase.

Youth Charged After Stolen Car Hits Tree

TORONTO (CP)—A 120-mile-an-hour police chase through suburban Scarborough and North Toronto ended early today when a car carrying four teen-agers crashed into a tree.

Four youths were admitted to hospital, where their condition is reported satisfactory.

Police said the high speed off when halted for a routine check, swerved around a car and bus, and crashed when the driver failed to make a turn.

The car was in a garage for repairs when it was stolen.

In hospital are Alfred Mallais, 16, Alan Lowe, 16, and a 15-year-old boy named Bond and William Penny with leg injuries.

Mallais has been charged with criminal negligence.

APPEAL DATE SET

VICTORIA (CP) — An appeal against the five-year prison sentences imposed on former provincial Labor Minister Robert Sommers and lumber company executive H. Wilson Gray will be heard Monday, Feb. 16 in B.C. Court of Appeal. Sommers and Gray were convicted for bribery and conspiracy involving forest management licences.

HYDRO CONTRACT TALKS RESUME IN DALEY'S OFFICE

All Pledged to Secrecy by Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators in an Ontario Hydro contract dispute resumed talks today in the offices of Labor Minister Daley.

Representatives of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission and the Ontario Hydro Electric Employees Union (CLC) met Tuesday with Mr. Daley and Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, but no statement was issued.

It was understood that the government officials devoted the session to finding out just what differences existed between the disputants.

Company and union men were believed to have been pledged to secrecy by the minister on progress of the talks.

The union, backed by a strike mandate, seeks a 25-per-cent wage increase in the first year of a two-year contract with the second year remaining open for further negotiation.

The hydro commission has countered with an offer of a 14-per-cent increase in each year.

Two Arrested After Officer Beaten on Head

BALA, Ont. (CP) — Two men were arrested today after provincial police constable J. H. (Buck) Blouin, 28, was beaten about the head and face and his motorcycle stolen on Highway 169 this town 27 miles north of Orillia.

Charged with assault, theft and illegal possession of liquor, Joseph Gordon Shawbrook, 40, and his son, Frank, 18, of Bala.

Const. Blouin said he stopped a truck without headlights when the occupant struck him on the head. Blood from his head was found also on the snow.

Blouin was left lying on the highway.

May Raise Limit On 50 Mph on Some Stretches

TORONTO (CP)—The provincial government will soon study the possibility of raising the speed limit to 60 miles an hour on more stretches of highway.

The announcement of transport will put before the government a study made by a Queen's University engineering professor recommending a new schedule of speed limits on some highways.

The only stretch of road that now has a 60-miles-an-hour limit is highway 401 near London. Top speed on other roads is 50 miles an hour.

The study found that 80 per cent of drivers on a 55-mile-an-hour stretch of Highway 115 at Peterborough drove at 60 per more.

The safety record on that road in the London area excellent, said the department of highways.

ODENSE, Denmark (Reuters) — Danish police joined a public class to learn how to defend themselves against wolves—but only if the 25 boys show up for the lesson.

Three Youths Charged With Armed Robbery

BRANTFORD (CP) — Three young men arrested on provincial Highway 24 south of here were charged today with the $3 armed robbery Tuesday night of a filling station attendant.

Douglas Northrup, 20, of Burtch, Carl Macdonald, 20, of Paris, and Howard McLaren, 19, of Brantford, were charged after several hours of questioning.

They were arrested late Tuesday night, eight hours after the robbery, in their car police found a rifle, similar to the one used in the holdup.

The men who held up CNR station agent Melville W. Kerr first tried to get him to open the safe. He said he could not because no safe-opening key had smashed the dial and handle in an abortive attempt Friday. The men left in a rush with $5, all that was left of a lunch-hour robbery Monday when $3 was taken and money orders were stolen.

Mutchmor Declares Tide of Filth Assails Country's Magazine Stands

Dr. Mutchmor, chairman of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, told 150 of his colleagues Tuesday there has been a "flood" in recent in the number of "obscene magazines."

One reason, he said, was the "disillusionment" of customs officials.

The outspoken minister said it wouldn't be surprising if senior officials of the two departments felt after being called down over the novel Peyton Place that their efforts were unappreciated. The tariff board last year allowed the book to enter Canada.

Dr. Mutchmor was backed up by Dr. J. W. Mohr of the Big Brother movement, who headed a study of obscene literature two years ago. He said the situation has deteriorated over the last six months.

The difficulty is that there is no definition of "obscene" which can be scientifically arrived at, Dr. Mohr said.

In his opinion it was up to individual grocery store owners these magazines are sold and express their opinions of them.

The final answer would be for the industry to be self-policing.

Rev. W. G. Berry said there not only about readers but of those who produce the magazines. "What happens to the models, the photographers, the proofreaders?" he asked.

Russia May Have Answer Concerning Future of Arrow

OTTAWA (CP)—One key factor concerning the future of the supersonic Arrow interceptor does not lie in Canada's air, but in Russia.

The vital question is: What are Russia's plans, if any, for development and production of new bombers? Unfortunately, the Soviets won't let the Canadian defence department in on this secret.

If Russia intends to curtail or eliminate bomber production and rely on missiles there would be little point in the continued development of the Arrow, authorities say.

On the other hand, if the Soviet Union has plans for production of new supersonic bombers Canada, from a strictly military viewpoint, probably should acquire the Arrow as well as ground-to-air missiles.

This is the problem baffling the RCAF and the defence department. There's a saying in the department that what Canada needs most of all right now is a reliable spy in the Kremlin.

There is an associated problem: If Russia is developing new bombers, what are their capabilities? Would it be possible that the Arrow is a better plane than Russia's, a job of tackling them?

The RCAF feels that it needs both manned interceptors and ground - to - air missiles. But which must take into account the Arrow's cost as well as its military necessity.

The authoritative Jane's All the World's Aircraft reported last month that Russia has in service a "secret jet interceptorinstalled number capable of travelling at about 1,400 miles an hour.

The Russian plane flies at 1,300 miles an hour and is expected to be capable of 1,500 miles an hour by April.

A counter-intelligence stroke by the West has not considered impossible. Russia may have purposely "leaked" a report that it has a new supersonic bomber in service—when in fact it has not—so that the West would spend enormous sums wastefully to produce a defence against it.

Board Will Likely Make Greater Use of Parole System

OTTAWA (CP)—The new national parole board will likely make greater use of parole as a prisoner - reform measure than ever before in Canada.

This was indicated by board members at a press conference Monday following the first meeting of the four-man body, appointed last fall.

Asked whether the number of prisoners released on parole will increase under the board's operations, chairman Thomas George Street of Ottawa replied: "I hope it will."

He said it is his personal hope that eventually the board can have its own parole supervisors. He said other board members indicated they might favor a system whereby supervision would be by provincial probation officers and social workers of various welfare agencies.

In recent years, the justice department has remission service which the board will replace Feb. 1, has made arrangements with parole agency workers and probation officers for parole supervision.

Mr. Street stressed the importance of possible rehabilitation of the parole board is to have success with the prisoners it releases. Granting parole was not a matter of setting short or lengthening sentences imposed by the courts.

The job is to decide when a man has had enough punishment as well as for reform.

But if society then turned him away and refused to give him a job, the prisoner could hardly be expected to reform.

U.S. May Be Ready to Modify Policy on German Unification

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may be willing to modify its policy on German unification if it can get the agreement of West Germany and other allies to some revised formula.

That question is expected to be under review in the state department in preparation for new exchanges with Russia on the subject.

President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles expect to discuss Germany in talks with Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan here and Saturday.

Dulles gave the tip off on possible modification of the U.S. policy in a news conference Tuesday. He said reunification of Germany could be accomplished free elections—the formula the Allies have backed for years—but not the only method by which East and West Germany could be merged. He declined to say what other methods were possible.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer always has opposed any alteration of this formula, the position which is that a new all-German government should be elected by the people through free elections in the eastern and western sections.

Western officials have expressed confidence that in such elections Communist influence now controlling eastern Germany, would be wiped out.

The Soviet government has insisted on the merger worked out directly between the East and West German regimes directly.

But officials here said today that all sorts of new ideas are being discussed in the state department. The result could be some interim measure, they headed by, or a new decision to stand firm on present policies.

1,324 Businesses Established by Immigrants

MONTREAL (CP) — Immigrants established 1,324 businesses for themselves in Canada last year.

This is more than half the total 2,442 small business enterprises established since 1950 by a total of some 400,000 newcomers to Canada since 1945.

Immigration Minister Fleming said here today he demonstrate the immigrant's increasing value to Canada as a producer and employer.

Mrs. Fairclough was addressing a joint meeting of the American Marketing Association, Montreal chapter, and the Sales and Executives Club of Montreal.

Notes for her speech were issued to the press before delivery.

She said the 1958 boom in establishment of businesses was partly due to the fact many immigrants have just begun to acquire the money and experience to strike out on their own.

Of the businesses established last year, 805 were in Ontario.

Ten per cent of the businesses were construction firms, 9 per cent were service establishments, six per cent car repair shops, 14 per cent retail outlets, five per cent barber shops and beauty salons and the remainder a great variety of manufacturing, repair and financial concerns.

In every quarter number of immigrants had found economic self-reliance in agriculture. They purchased 1,000 farms and rented 617 others between 1950 and 1958.

W'll Leave Buiness

QUELPH (CP) — Judge C. L. Austen of Guelph and Wellington county and family court today announced he will retire as vice-president and treasurer of the International Malleable Iron Company Feb. 1, to devote full time to court work.

Judge Austen, who has been with the company for 25 years, will continue to serve in an advisory capacity. He has been judge of Guelph court since 1948.

PRIME MINISTER TO MOVE AHEAD ON BILL OF RIGHTS

Measure Will Be Up In Coming Session

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to move ahead this year with a bill of rights that steers clear of provincial powers.

Since Prime Minister Diefenbaker unveiled his first draft of the bill, on the second-last day of the last parliamentary session, a number of organizations have called for a bill of rights embodied as an amendment to the constitution.

But informants say the measure will be re-introduced during the present session of Parliament, starting Thursday, essentially in the original form a simple statute.

A constitutional amendment involving human rights which would apply to both the federal and provincial fields would first require consultation with provinces, Mr. Diefenbaker pretty well wrote off any such plan in his speech at the last session.

"The experience of 90 years," he said in the Throne Speech, "indicates very clearly that the provinces, jealous of their jurisdiction, would not agree to any constitutional amendment aplicable to human rights."

WANTS ACTION SOON

The prime minister, who has been agitating for a bill of rights for 30 years, stated that he wants to have one on the statute books as soon as possible.

Ottawa legal observers are certain to question the way he is going about it.

Justice Leader Pearson, speaking in the Commons last session, suggested parliament is really necessary in freedom respecting Canada. He suggested the government should try to enter this new field jointly with the provinces.

CCF House Leader Argue said the prime minister's bill wasn't broad enough unless they have been embedded in the constitution.

These criticisms have been repeated in s' number of submissions to the government from private organizations. One official said these were mostly union groups, and the Canadian Labor Congress.

CAN'T BE CURTAILED

The bill of rights stipulates that no federal statute or cabinet order—existing or in the future—shall be applied so as to infringe any of a number of rights and freedoms listed in the bill of rights.

The list includes the right of the individual to life, liberty and security of the person and property; the right to protection of the law without discrimination, freedom of religion, speech, public assembly and the press; and the right to a fair and public trial by an independent and impartial tribunal.

Los Angeles Police Chief Informed Mikoyan Will Not Leave U.S. Alive

The visit is to include a look-see expert to New York Tuesday night provoked relatively little excitement.

Although several hundred anti-Communist demonstrators had been alerted for picket duty at Idlewild airport, only about 30 showed up. They were herded off by police to a distant parking lot behind a wire fence, too far away for Mikoyan to see their placards.

No eminent welcoming party for Mikoyan from Los Angeles where Police Chief William H. Parker has called the Soviet Communist leader "would not be allowed to leave this country alive." Parker did not elaborate.

Hundreds of police swarmed over Idlewild airport in a preventive security blanket. Mikoyan was met by Soviet Consul Gen. Arkady Sobolev, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, and Richard C. Patterson, New York City commissioner of commerce and public events.

A police escort led Mikoyan's car to the Russian UN delegation headquarters on Park Avenue.

The unusually tight security arrangement was set up to prevent the egg-throwing and jeering demonstrations that followed Vice-President Nixon in Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and San Francisco.

People Directed By Nose to Turn Over in Sleep

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's amazing what Ralph Riggs knows about noses.

"The nose of a Negro," says specialist Riggs, "is designed as an air cooler. The cranial hair's nose is an air heater."

Dr. Riggs, of Louisiana State University, got onto the subject while dressing a seminar on nose surgery Tuesday at the College of Medical Evangelists.

Another thing about noses. They are part of the mechanism the body uses to make you turn over while asleep.

"In 70 per cent of the cases," said Dr. Riggs, "I can tell what side a person sleeps on by examining his nose.

"A person is directed by his nose to turn over every hour or so. One side of the nose takes it easy while the other does the work. It takes care of doing most of the breathing. If you sleep on your left side more than the other it will show up in your nose."

The United House of the college cautioned that nose operations should be left with one's fixed point of reference."

Take away the nose objective has been taught all these years and what has a pence. You're lost.

If you have to have a new nose, he said, be sure you undergo psychological treatment before and after.

HAVANA (AP)—A presidential-secretary today denied that executions of persons accused of crimes under the Batista regime had been suspended. However, there were no new reports of executions.

A government press source quoting a presidential spokesman announced suspension of executions Tuesday night after criticisms from abroad.

More than 150 persons have been executed since the national military trials since the New Year's Day revolution which overturned Fulgencio Batista. It is estimated 3,000 persons are in jail awaiting investigation and trial on charges of crimes under the Batista regime.

Many of those already executed have been tried in secret.

GIVEN 30 REPORTERS

The denial of a halt in the executions was given to reporters assigned to the presidential palace. It said executions in fact were continuing in accordance with due process of law. But no specific instances of new executions were reported.

Both the statement of the presidential secretary and the press source Tuesday night said the names of the accused and the charges against them will be made available to reporters. Reporters also were invited to cover the trials.

The presidential secretary also denied that government President Manuel Urrutia and Fidel Castro, leader of the revolution, met Tuesday.

The statement on suspension of executions came from Urrutia's office right after it was reported the two men had met.

Earlier Tuesday Castro had defended the executions as "necessary to purify the nation." And Foreign Minister Roberto Agramonte said unless the cry "Blood must not spill "that justice," the public would take the law into its own hands against those who torture and murder of an estimated 20,000 Cubans by Batista police and soldiers.

Trials already had been suspended in Santiago, second-largest eastern most Oriente province where Castro's forces started their military campaign.

More than half the reported executions have occurred in Oriente province, including the city of Santiago, in the two batches early Monday, which the spokesman confirmed.

TV Columnist Freed After 10 Days in Jail

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Columnist Dick Tures, who asserted Hudson County jail 10 days ago with tears in her eyes, came out smiling today.

The 36-year-old New York Herald Tribune television writer was sentenced to jail for contempt. She refused to reveal the source of an item she printed about Judy Garland.

Miss Garland is suing the Columbia Broadcasting System for remarks an undisclosed CBS executive allegedly made about her to Miss Torre.

If Miss Torre is asked again to reveal the name of the executive, and if she again refuses, she may go back to jail.

Coming out today, she said she "wouldn't trade jail for life in the world." But she declined to say whether she would refuse to disclose the executive's name.

"I would be happier coming out of here if I knew how this was going to end," she said.

Miss Torre's confinement was being separated from my children makes life's been away a year."

Dentists Open Treatment-Now Pay-Later Plan

A treatment - now - pay-later plan for dentistry went into effect in Ontario Jan. 1, under sponsorship of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons.

The plan is known as Canadian Dental Services Plans Incorporated — D.S.P.I.

A service contract of 30 cents a month on unpaid balances of $100 and 50 cents on higher balances will be paid by the patient.

Though the plan is a voluntary one, nearly all the province's 2,500 dentists are expected to take part, according to W. E. Jackson, administrator.

Most Belleville dentists are expected to participate.

Where dentists and patients have worked out their own payment plans, these will not be disturbed by the new scheme. "They can carry on as they did," says Mr. Jackson.

The instalment payments may be made to the dentist, to a chartered bank, or to the plan headquarters in Toronto. A similar plan starting Jan. 1 in Alberta also may be the forerunner to the Ontario one for administrative purposes.

Mr. Jackson says surveys have shown that some people without ready cash postpone dental treatment or have only emergency work done and this hampers preventive dentistry.

The plan will cover the cost of fales teeth and all types of dental service including annual or semi-annual check-ups. This is one instalment plan under which there will be no repossessions.

The amounts of monthly payments will be determined by the dentist and patient to allow flexibility.

Industrial Commissioner Needed Mayor Tells Club

Mayor Gerald B. Hyde stated Tuesday Belleville has reached the stage where it needs a full time industrial Commissioner to handle industrial promotion.

This was brought out in a question-and-answer period following a address delivered by Mayor Hyde to the Belleville Kinsmin Club. The mayor and eight city members of council were guests of the club at the annual Civic Day luncheon held at the Quinte Country Club.

In his address the mayor outlined future needs for a greater Belleville and how new wealth can be produced for the city to finance the lengthy and formidable list of projects required to service and develop this community. His Worship proposed the attraction of new industry to Belleville as a means of obtaining this needed new wealth. He then outlined the factors needed to attract new industry to Belleville, including the acquisition of land by the city for industrial sites, a stable labor supply, non-discriminatory tax structure, good transportation system, and civic pride.

Among the questions put to the mayor in the question-and-answer period which followed his address was one questioning whether any movement of industry already by city council to attract new industry, such as giving tax-free land to new industries or a five-year period to aid them in getting established.

The mayor explained that in the past there has been no land available in the city on which to build, and therefore industries had to be sought in the county. He emphasized the purpose of annexation was to acquire more land for the city.

He further explained that because of annexation, the city had included in the past toward industrial promotion, members of the Industrial Commission, and had specified "free" in "going after new industry." Insufficient funds were in the budget for industrial promotion, which hampered the efforts of the commission, he stated.

ATTITUDE CHANGED

He aded that Council's attitudes have since changed and Belleville is now in the importance of obtaining a separate industrial Commissioner (Industrial Commissioner) for the job of industrial promotion.

"The point we need one official to take on this job," he stated.

He noted the Industrial Commission has set up a budget for industrial promotion which will be put before Council and that the Industrial Commissioner may be hired in the early future. He will be hired as manager of the Belleville Board of Commerce, with an assistant to take care of the secretarial work.

Another item mentioned by His Worship whether a date has been set for the commencement of the first stage of the proposed sewage disposal plant.

He replied that he expected that no date has yet been set by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, which will construct and own the plant over a 30-year period. The first stage, a $2,344,000 project, will take about two years to complete.

"Therefore, we are hoping it will be started by next fall," Mayor Hyde stated.

His Worship further explained of the 30-year project is being planned with a long-range view of serving a population of some 70,000 people.

Whether Council plans improving roads and streets in annexed areas was another query put to the Mayor.

His Worship stated no plans have been discussed by Council for such a project. He explained streets in annexed areas would have to be brought up to standard and thereby help finance them themselves.

He added, however, that in annexed areas a program of street lighting is badly needed.

THANKED BY PRESIDENT

The Mayor was introduced by club president Gerry Wishart and thanked by George Hunt.

Councillors present were: Aldermen Mrs. Effie McCabe, Ralph Graham, Ben Safe, Jack Ellis, Lee Digby, Robertson Colling, Dr. James Forrester, and Claude Rice.

During the business period of the meeting, president Wishart announced the club will soon be host to a group of ministers from Allison, who is leaving for Toronto, and Bill Brown, who will be moving to Saskatoon, Sask.

President Wishart also announced the induction of two new members and distribution of perfect attendance pins would be held at next Tuesday's meeting. The speaker will be a past Lieutenant-Governor, Bill Slade, of the Belleville club.

Pleads Guilty To Theft From Trenton Woman

ORILLIA (CP)—Mrs. Kathleen Reid, 42, of Barrie pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of uttering forged cheques and of stealing three life insurance policies. She was remanded in custody for two weeks for sentence.

Court was told that Mrs. Reid, separated from her husband and two daughters, uttered a forged cheque for $87 at a bank here, passed another for $20 to taxi driver Ralph Wait of Port Hope, Ont., and stole three insurance policies from Mrs. Annie Brotherston of Trenton, Ont.

Mrs. Reid had attempted to borrow money on the insurance policies.

Board to Get Prices on New Power Mower

TRENTON — A new power, cutter type lawn mower may be bought by the Parks Board this year but an investigation into the various prices for these machines will be undertaken first it was decided at last night's meeting of the board.

The meeting was held in the Board Room of the Municipal Building, with all members present. The chairman of the Board, Ted Parker, was unable to be in the chair due to business commitments and the vice-chairman, Bill Ireland, took over the chair. Mayor Ross Hurtt was also present.

The matter of the new mower was brought up by the town gardener, Bart Beers, who explained that the old one was causing a lot of trouble and taking too long to cover the present ground, which is under grass and the care of the Parks Board.

He said the new machine which he had the Perature for, would cut a five foot swath and was much cheaper than a "push-mower". He said it was also 100 per cent handier than the gang-type and it could be used in all parks. It would cost $800. He said he would be able to carry it from park to park on his pick-up truck.

Speaking on the matter John Saylor said he felt the board would need the mower equipment as the grass are increasing each year and there is now much more grass to cut. Miss Marion Baker agreed and added that she was of the opinion the board would have plenty of equipment as a good job was impossible without it.

Mr. Beers explained that the newer type mower would cut the grass in half the time the older one the board has and it would not plug up or stall regardless of how high the grass was.

Mr. Ireland suggested that prices be looked into and report be made at the next meeting. Prices for power hedge clippers equipped with gasoline motor and a generator will also be investigated.

Mayor Ross Burtt thanked the entire board for good work they have during the past year.

New Public School Approved By Board at Cost of $170,000

TRENTON — A new school with eight or nine rooms and with an estimated cost of about $170,000 will be built this year on Dufferin Avenue and near the Downs-Coulter plant. This was decided at a meeting of the Trenton School Board on Monday at their regular meeting.

The new school, which will house all grades up to and including Grade VIII, is to be equipped with a combination auditorium and gym, and is to be ready for use at the beginning of next year's school term.

All members of the board voted in favor of the new school with the exception of Mrs. E. Bedford who maintained that the grade seven and eight pupils in Trenton should be all kept under the same roof, in order that all children in the town receive equal advantages.

Mrs. Bedford recommended that a six-room addition be built to the Senior Public School on Marmora Street and that a also roomed Junior Public School be built on the west side of town. She pointed out that three years ago a fire insurance company's inspector had stated a new heating plant had to be put in the Senior Public School. She said she felt that if the addition was put on then the heating system would not be large enough and the Department of Education would share the costs of putting in a new one and thereby saving money if a new small one has to be put into the existing building. And with the addition she said the Senior Public school could then install a Home Economics room and a shop.

Mr. Crews, chairman of the planning committee, said that in five years time the new school planned for Dufferin Avenue may be needed for a Senior Public School. It was the feeling of some of the board members that in making their decision on the school for the west side they were sure it was and would be always needed. They did not however, feel certain that in addition to the Marmora Street school would always be a necessity.

A MAJOR ISSUE

The building of a new school seemed to be only one of the major issues in this matter as the decision of the board appeared to place on trial the whole public school system in Trenton.

The chairman, Stan Ketcheson, voiced his personal opinion that he did not feel that a senior public school was an advantage anyway, and thus supporting the building of the new school failed to disagree with him on this point, but later, when the supervising principal, Mr. Carswell, asked for information on their feelings on this, they hastily assured him that they approved the present system.

Mr. Carswell said if the board frowned upon the system and felt it was of no advantage, he felt his policy must be wrong and would not want to carry this system on.

Again Mr. Ketcheson stated that his disapproval of the separated grade 7 and 8 system was his own personal opinion and in no way reflected the opinion of the board. He stated that he had for some time felt that a junior high school would have much more merit than the senior public school system.

Mr. Crews suggested that this matter be referred to the educational advisory committee, whereupon Mr. Carswell said that was certainly one way of sidetracking the issue.

It was agreed, however, that the matter would be referred to committee for further study under the direction of Mrs. Bedford.

Bruce Westfall Given Higher Rank in Force

TRENTON — Constable Bruce Westfall was promoted to the rank of Patrol Sergeant by the Police Commission, it was announced yesterday by the Chief of Police Jack Taylor.

The commission approved the promotion at a meeting held on Monday afternoon and Constable Westfall was notified yesterday. The promotion will also be brought up before the town council meeting next Monday for sanction by the town fathers.

Sergeant Westfall has been with the department since 1949 and before his promotion was senior constable and because of this had been called on many times to do the work of a sergeant. His promotion takes effect immediately.

Sergeant Westfall is at present on one-week's holidays and will take over his new duties on return to work.

Prior to joining the Trenton police department Sergeant Westfall had worked for five years with the Canadian Dominion Steel in Trenton. He had received his high school education in Belleville and had gone through public school in Trenton.

Thirty years old, the sergeant is married and has three children, David, 5; Mark, 3, and Carol, 1.

For the past number of years Sergeant Westfall has been on the motorcycle patrol of the Trenton department and recalls that when he joined the force in 1949 his brother, Bill, was also a member of the department. His brother later left the force to join the active army, where he now holds the rank of lieutenant.

Mayor Thanks Parks Board for Outdoor Rinks

TRENTON — "I want to thank the entire Parks Board for the three skating rinks they have put in the parks," Mayor Ross Burtt told the members of the board last night at their regular meeting.

"I know it has been of service to all the children in the various areas and they are all enjoying them. Especially the seven, eight and nine-year-olds," the Mayor continued.

Bart Beers, the town gardener, was also thanked for the work he has done in getting the rinks set up and ready for flooding and putting the framework around them. The lumber for this purpose was bought from Allore's and will be used again next winter for the same purpose.

Several other reports were heard at the meeting that many children are making use of these rinks in the Mosquito, Cotsell and Champlain Heights parks.

The work at Hanna Park concerning the clearing of brush and old trees, also came under discussion at the meeting and it was reported by Bart Beers that they could easily keep the men there for another two months as the work was certainly there to do. The board however decided they would keep the men working for another two weeks and would make further plans and decisions about it at the next regular meeting, which is slated for the fourth Tuesday of the month.

Bill Ireland, who is chairman of the Hanna Park work project, said he felt other members of the board should make a visit to the park and they could decide on some of the old dead trees which are to be cut down by doing this he said, it would perhaps keep some tax-payers from complaining to him about the trees being cut down and these persons would know it was the decision of all the board members and not just himself.

John Saylor, secretary-of the board, was instructed to see the town's sent-treasurer, W. W. Larry, for instructions on Unemployment Insurance Stamps and compensation coverage and the men working at the park. He was also instructed to procure the town engineer to have the roads at Hanna park plowed out again for easier access for the men working there.

Several Cases Concluded in Police Court

TRENTON — Joe Valyear of Trenton was given one year's suspended sentence on a charge of stealing a wrist watch in Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon. Magistrate T. Y. Willis presided.

Harvey Robinson was also sentenced to one year's suspended sentence on a charge of having possession of stolen property, namely the wrist watch which was alleged stolen by Valyear.

The watch the property of Leslie Todd, West Street, who was said to have had a party at his home and later had discovered the watch had been stolen. The theft was investigated by Staff Sergeant Walter Youmans of the Trenton Police Department.

Valyear admitted he had stolen the watch and later traded it with Robinson for two bottles of wine. He said he had not told Robinson it was a stolen watch.

The pair were also ordered to pay $5.00 in costs. John Principale, crown prosecutor from Belleville, acted for the crown.

Keith Webb of Brighton was found guilty of a charge under Section 225 of the Criminal Code and was sentenced to seven days in the county jail. He was represented by Clive Thompson of Brighton and had pleaded not guilty to the charge. Evidence was presented by Patrol Sergeant Bruce Westfall of the Trenton Police.

THOSE RUSSIAN DOGS AGAIN!

Early to bed and early to rise may make a man wealthy and wise, but it is no way to stay healthy, if a Russian scientist is right. There's nothing wrong with going to bed early, but the thing to do is to stay there as long as possible.

This Russian researcher subjected a 15-year-old dog, in an advanced stage of senility, to extensive sleep therapy. Before the "rest cure" the dog "was completely senile. The lower part of the body was devoid of fur. The animal kept lying without reacting to anything. It would get up and move about only if induced by food." After three months of induced sleep it lost all traces of senility. Leg muscles and co-ordination improved. Hair re-appeared where none had been for a long time. Six years later the animal reached what, for a dog, is the decidedly ripe old age of 21½ years, the experiment was prematurely ended when the dog lost a battle with a chimpanzee.

Stories like this expose one to almost irresistible temptations. One must resist the urge to refer to the inadvisability of gay old dogs getting up to monkey business, and refrain from taking advantage of the earlier opportunity, a couple of sentences further back, of speculating on the possibility of barbers prescribing sleeping pills instead of hair tonics for their bald-headed customers. In avoiding these pitfalls, we have received invaluable assistance from the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, which highly-impudently deals with these same facts from the standpoint of their economic implications, a theme eminently suited for editorial pages.

The Cornwall editor observed that there were important social and political factors involved in the Russian scientist's discovery. "Should it be proved, for example, that a 12-hour stint in bed added one-third to a person's productive life over the usually recommended eight hours, the net result would still be fewer waking hours. This in turn would produce a longer, but less fruitful life." Populations would grow older, output would become less (unless the capacity per hour could be increased to offset the declining number of hours), and there would be an inevitable decrease in living standards."

It just shows one the state the world is in when an old dog taking a nap can confront one with the spectre of universal poverty in this fashion. . . However, it is possible to be optimistic about almost anything, if we try hard enough. In an age when the H-bomb can be pictured as a harbinger of peace it should be possible to let sleeping dogs lie and still preserve hope for the future. Perhaps the Cornwall editor's pessimistic viewpoint overlooks the fact that we appear to be destined to work fewer hours in any event, what with automation and labor unions. Starting off in this optimistic vein helps us to find another ray of sunshine.

We have all been told that one of the great problems of the age is the proper use of our increasing leisure. Here we have the solution - - we can sleep it away. If this does not really get rid of it, but only spreads it out over more years, there remains the fact that gay old dogs, whether two-legged or four-legged, are likely to indulge in monkey-shines and remove themselves from the life-prolonging couch, making room for the alarm clock of the next generation. Our view of life is such that we think the dog probably got more fun out of being killed in a fight with a monkey at 21½ years of age than he would out of dying of senility at 15 years of age.

OLD HORSE-PLOW SHOWN

Here in Belleville, and indeed in most Ontario urban communities, there was a time when the horse-drawn sidewalk plow was a familiar sight.

For that reason or another, these plows have now disappeared from most communities. Here in Belleville, we understand, there was a feeling that the plows were not doing an adequate job and the city suspended sidewalk plowing entirely for some years, before resuming the service with jeeps. In other communities the horses were replaced by jeeps for another reason - - it got to the stage where there were just not enough horses available to do the work. The motor car and the motor jeeps have supplanted horses, though, was made amply clear by the caption under the Globe and Mail's picture. It takes Barney four hours to clear two miles of sidewalk in Stayner. The horse is too slow for today's pace of living. We think, though, that Dobbin did the better job.

THE IMPOSSIBLE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Things that are easy today
Once were difficult seemed;
To do them, in search of a way,
The dreamers long dreamed.
"Impossible," then was the word
That the practical said;
But the dreamers, in no way deterred,
Kept plodding ahead.

Things that had never been done
Were the goals that they sought;
Battles that hadn't been won
Were the battles they fought.

Not the things that were easy to do
Nor the paths that all trod,
But for difficult tasks, and the new,
They were willing to plod.

And what was most difficult then
Is but simple today;
The dreaming, impractical men
Made easier our way.
So if difficult now your task seems,
Keep on, undeterred;
"Impossible?" Cling to your dreams;
There is no such word.

He Changed Army's Diet

BBC London Letter

The grumble about his food is the privilege of the British soldier, and over a hundred years ago his grumbles were more than justified. It was a genial and remarkable Frenchman, Alexis Soyer, one of the most famous chefs of his age and inventor of the Soyer stove, who revolutionized his diet and laid the foundation for the work carried on today by the Army Catering Corps. Soyer's achievements were commemorated in a program broadcast in the BBC's general overseas service on the centenary of his death on August 1, 1858.

Soyer arrived in London from Paris in about 1830, said narrator Wynford Vaughan Thomas. "Cay, witty, eager, inventive, with a taste for the flamboyant in dress and manners which never left him." He became chef at the Reform Club and made it known as "the finest gastronomic temple in Europe." Soyer was also a pioneer of mass cooking, and in 1846 published a book at the request of the British Government to organize soup kitchens during the potato famine in Ireland.

In 1854, Britain found herself engaged in the Crimean, with "the whole army in everything after fifty years of peace." Soyer, a man of great heart and infinite energy, "was full of ideas, had felt in command and looking where he heard of the appalling conditions in the Crimea where the army was enduring the bitter winter without shelter, fuel or clothes, without fresh meat, bread and salt pork — when they could get it. He offered his services and, with his wife, set out full of ideas and recipes, landed at Scutari and then made them on the Crimea itself. He brought something even more important than ideas, initiative, personality — his new model field kitchen, and the consuming enthusiasm of full, rich humanity."

According to Soyer's description the noise and confusion at Scutari "was terrific" and getting their rations was almost unbelievable. The soldiers suffered the precaution of marking rations of some with a piece of cloth from the coat of the soldier with half a dozen buttons tied together, so with the forks, knives, scissors, and in one case "a pair of snuffers. All this dirty rubbish had to be sifted daily with the meat until Soyer put a stop to it.

"His good natured countenance was quite refreshing. His peculiar appointment also established the monotony of our everyday existence", recorded Miss Alicia Blackmore, one of Florence Nightingale's volunteers. Vaughan Thomas continued: "Soyer had certainly saved the British soldier from starvation. In the Crimea he had set up his stoves and, with the backing of Lord Raglan, the Commander-in-Chief, had started schools of cookery, despite the horror of disapproval from die hards who thought this "would improve the cook but not the soldier."

After the Crimean War the Soyer stove remained — as it still does with modifications — in well-known army cookery and in Army School of Cookery and planning scientific feeding for the soldier faded with the peace. At the outbreak of the 1914 war, although the cooking equipment and rations had improved the training of cooks was still left to the Commanding Officers, who used to attach the units' cooks to well-known regiments for training; others relied on "volunteers" with no aching enthusiasm or training. The Army Service Corps, as it was then, had been responsible for supplies and the Army was trying 35 army cooks to a battalion's boast, "Any can lead troops, I can feed them."

When peace returned the lessons of the Crimea were forgotten. Vaughan Thomas said, "In 1921 the first well organized Army Cookery School was opened at Aldershot. The first really big step came in 1939 when the foundations were laid of the Catering Corps — rather like the Culinary Corps Alexis Soyer had recommended some eighty years before. On the outbreak of war in 1939 the British Army had a small catering service in each command, and in the BBC program, a member of the Corps can be found wondering how the service is serving and a point to be of giving outposts as good a service as anyone can."

Some Lessons From 'Lunik'

New York Times

Now that the deserved applause for the scientific merit of the latest Soviet rocket feat has been given, it is time for us of the West, and particularly for the United States to assess the implications of this feat and the lessons to be drawn from it.

The first implication — of course, is that we are appreciably behind the Soviet Union in the rocket field. That unpleasant fact must be faced if we are to take the necessary measures to improve the situation. In a sense, the "Lunik" flight may have been helpful to us in compelling the widespread illusions born of our own public belief that the Atlas satellite success, the first time, had in some way pulled us abreast of or ahead of our Soviet competitor. That illusion is now dispelled. The primary lesson is that we have been given enough resources to this field to overcome the Soviet advantage born of the fact that Moscow put a full program began long before our own first serious efforts. It will be the duty of the new Congress to examine the President's budget for the next fiscal year in order to determine whether that budget provides adequate resources to do the job. Where it does not provide enough resources for a significant number of the experiments, for basic research, and the like?

A second lesson is that we must really settle down for long-term competition with the Soviet Moscow obviously has far-reaching plans for the conquest of space. The head of our National Aeronautics and Space Administration, T. Keith Glennan, has said on Sunday that we still have no such long-range plan.

Finally, the "Lunik" presents more powerfully than ever before the basic lesson of the sputniks. In the minds of the engineers of the Soviet Union we are up against a formidable array of rivals.

We cannot meet their challenge adequately unless we begin to bear upon the problem the best talent we have in the way of scientific intelligence and competence. And since the race is likely to be a long one, it is not too soon to begin making sure that the youngsters now being educated in our schools are stimulated to acquire the necessary knowledge and ability that they can compete successfully in the years ahead.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If I were a Communist agent in America with millions of dollars to spend annually, I wouldn't waste it in bribing public servants to give away state secrets. I would invest it on The Pan Alley, encouraging the deep insecurities of that region to turn out more and more salacious rock 'n roll. Gaggle-headed and neurotic musicians would be helped to prominence. I would seek out the more questionable publishers of dirty ditter paperbacks and slip them a few hundred thousand so they could set up more respectable offices. Moreover, there'd be a trend showed towards furthering the best generation. I would offer it a helping hand. Anything that promoted the insubordination of the teen agers, anything that contributed to the confusion and exasperation of parents would be most liberally endowed. The best intention of my spending would be to break down dignity, to encourage relaxation of authority of what is and so as to build up in the short a time a possible new teen generation that could easily be got out of hand.

Whereupon, in a state of decadence and confusion, America would look desperately around for any kind of discipline to rescue them. And there, pretty as a picture, would be Communism, the most iron-fisted discipline there is.

The victory would be bloodless, except of course, in construction camps, torture prisons and a few things like that.

Valuations Vary Much

County Judge Albert J. Gordon has called attention to a curiosity that often takes place in ordinary citizens. How it is that valuations of property vary, in expropriation or tax cases, show such enormous disparity.

Adjudicating on the Peche Island assessment, His Honor observed: "I had always thought the evaluation of real estate was a science, but when I find two or more valuators appraising the same piece of property and their valuations vary anywhere from 50 to 300 or 400 percent, I wonder if I have been right."

It's no wonder His Honor wondered.

Tax Agreement Of Dominicans Left Unaltered

QUEBEC (CP) — The private bills committee of the legislative assembly today decided at a stormy sitting during which a Liberal opposition member walked out of the committee room to leave untouched a 20-year tax agreement between suburban Courville and the Dominican Order.

Premier Duplessis suggested the agreement be ratified without change. His proposal was accompanied by a lengthy statement in which he denied having introduced an amendment to the agreement when a bill introduced by the town of Courville Dec. 17 was first examined by the committee.

He said he noted the extent of the Dominican Order's property at Courville exceeds the 10 acres allowed by law but that the Quebec government would correct this situation and validate the order's deeds to the property if a request was made by Dominican authorities.

"This shows we are only interested in being fair to all. . . . It shows the government's good will."

DISCUSSED PREVIOUSLY

Mr. Duplessis, referring to newspaper accounts of the committee's sitting Dec. 17 during which the tax agreement was discussed, said they were erroneous.

The premier said contrary to newspaper reports the bill had not been adopted by the committee Dec. 17.

Liberal Leader Georges Lapalme, who sits next to the chairman of the committee during discussion of bills, said he was under the impression the bill had been adopted Dec. 17 and he had notes to that effect in his papers. It was only later he learned the committee had not passed the bill.

Mr. Duplessis today made no reference to his suggestions Dec. 17 before the committee that the life of the tax agreement be cut to five from 20 years and that the amounts of taxes provided for in the agreement be increased by $600 to $3,000 annually.

Emilien Rochette, Union Nationale member for Quebec County, rose to speak and animated discussion broke out when Emilien Lafrance, Liberal for Richmond, interrupted.

He was called to order several times and there was a din when he tried to speak up. Finally, he picked up his papers and stomped out of the committee room.

'We're Doing It Now' Slogan Of Construction Projects To Boost Jobless Situation

"We're Doing It Now", is the slogan at half a dozen or more local construction projects currently giving a boost to the city's winter employment situation.

Biggest project being carried on currently in the city is the construction of the new federal building at the corner of Pinnacle and Station Streets where workmen are busily engaged in placing exterior stone and in the numerous other related jobs which go into the construction of a million dollar plus structure.

Other jobs underway in the city include the new Toronto Dominion Bank at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets; the erection of the new Moira Secondary School on Farley Ave.; construction of a new warehouse by Arthur A. Sills and son Ltd. on East Dundas Street; construction of new housing in the annexed area in the east end of the city and installation of water mains and sanitary sewers in the same area.

Another construction job underway is provision for a temporary store on Coleman Street for Bill Delline Ltd. for use until a modern new store replacing the one burned last fall, is built. Already preliminary work is being done toward getting foundations underway for the new permanent structure to be built on the old site.

While the above jobs were not necessarily commenced as result of the program to provide winter work initiated by the Unemployment Insurance Commission, they all serve to keep men at work during winter months.

DRIVE BEARING FRUIT

Last fall the Unemployment Insurance Commission inaugurated its "Plan Now" and "Do It Now" campaign, to urge the commencement of projects which might not otherwise be started until the spring.

And Mr. Cecil Huiser, manager of the local employment office, feels that the campaign is bearing fruit.

To support this claim he notes that the number of persons seeking work, and also the number "on claim" at the local office, is now lower than at the same time last year.

"We are not saying that any of the bigger jobs now going on in the area are the result of our campaign, but at least the work is being done and men are being employed," he said.

The local planning committee however points to at least one project which was started as result of the campaign.

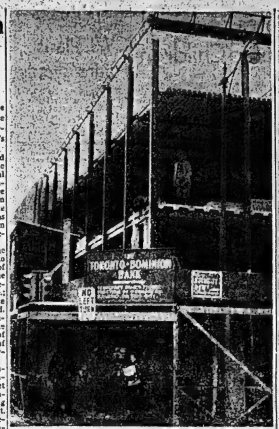
NEW BANQUET ROOM

This was at the Belmont Restaurant where upstairs accommodation was renovated as a banquet room. The job is now nearly completed and provided winter work for a number of carpenters and others in related trades.

"This was one job which was started to help provide jobs during the winter," noted George Whitman, chairman of the local committee. "Originally it was intended to wait until spring."

Two other jobs to be carried out during the winter and one of which is already in progress are the renovation of the Pinnacle Street municipal parking lot building for a health department headquarters, and improvements to buildings at the Belleville fair grounds.

The Pinnacle Street project is now partially completed with tenders to be called for heating and plumbing trades.

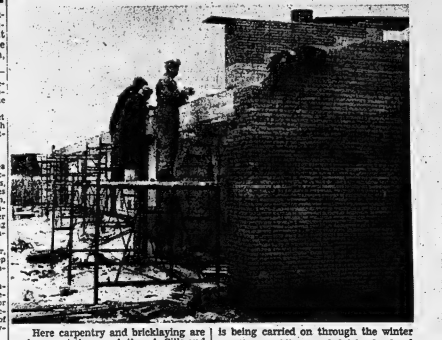


NEW HOUSES ON WAY

In the eastern annexed area of the city one local construction firm, Lambert and Rollins, has half a dozen new houses in various stages of completion, thus providing work for construction men. Despite winter conditions, basements are being dug and foundations commenced for other houses.

And, according to Mr. Huiser, all jobs, however small, keep at least some men gainfully employed.

Installation of that extra bathroom, that much talked of remodelling of the kitchen, or finishing of the basement recreation room, are the type of jobs which give men employment.



Remember, no job is too small or too large, Do It Now," Mr. Huiser urges.

"We're doing it now" reads the slogan on the Employment Office placard appearing at the Toronto-Dominion Bank construction job at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets. Steel was erected earlier in the winter and now workmen are doing roof installation, preparing sub-floor and doing other installations.

Winter snow and cold need not delay a start on construction work as is indicated by pictures of projects currently being carried on in the city. These range all the way from foundation work to erection of steel. Shown above is excavation work by power shovel for new watermains in the Northwood Crescent—Farley Ave. district. Sewers are already in and better class homes will be constructed on the pre-serviced lots.

Here carpentry and bricklaying are underway at the new Arthur A. Sills and Son Ltd. warehouse on East Dundas St. Project was started in the fall but work is being carried on through the winter months providing needed jobs for local workmen.

Truck Driver Unaware Purse Contained $801

TORONTO (CP)—Truck driver William Kearley drove around Tuesday unaware a purse he found and tossed in his truck contained $801.

Police stopped Kearley's truck after Eileen Mondoux, owner of the purse, reported she believed she lost the purse when she put her dog in her car.

Police, looking for the purse at Mrs. Mondoux's home, were told by a neighbor she saw a red truck stop and the driver take an object from the road.

The officer who stopped Kearley's truck examined the purse and found the money intact. Kearley received a $10 reward.

Wants Economic Forecast for 1958 Tabled

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF Commons leader Hazen Argue said today he will ask the government to table in Parliament as soon as possible the trade department's report on the Canadian economic outlook for 1958.

The government, he said, has indicated that it would table the report in 1959. It is a confidential annual forecast of the Canadian economy, prepared for the trade minister and used in part by the finance minister in preparing his budget.

Mr. Argue said today in a statement, issued before his Commons group held a pre-session caucus, that parts of the report were published last spring.

He said that there were discrepancies between the published extracts and forecasts contained in Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech.

All but one member of the eight-man CCF representation in the Commons attended the caucus. The lone absentee was Douglas Fisher, member for Port Arthur, who was in Kingston to deliver a speech at Queen's University.

Amish Youngsters Causing Controversy Over Education

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — On one side are Ohio's school officials, armed with state law.

On the other are the Amish, a soil - tilling religious sect that came to Ohio from Pennsylvania almost 150 years ago.

In the middle are the Amish youngsters, about whom the controversy rages.

Schools and how long the youngsters go to school are the primary points of contention.

State and county officials have inspected some of the Amish schools and claim they are not up to minimum Ohio standards. The state board of education has a resolution which puts the responsibility for enforcing state standards on local superintendents.

By a 19-to-2 vote, the board Monday called on the state department of education to give all possible assistance to local authorities in such enforcement.

GO TO COURT

And at Kenton in Hardin County, the county board of education has gone to common pleas court to try 40 close two Amish schools for allegedly failing to meet minimum standards.

School Superintendent Frank Blackburn says an investigation of two Amish grade schools near Kenton disclosed a number of state-prescribed courses are not being taught, and that three of the four teachers have only gone through the eighth grade.

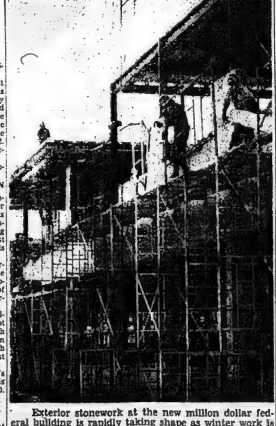
The Amish generally follow a policy of passive resistance, but in this case they found a champion in E. Guy Hammond, a 76-year-old semi-retired lawyer.

He filed a motion to strike out most of the county school board's contentions. It was overruled by Judge Arthur D. Tudor, who said the two questions involved in the Hardin County case are 1. Do the Amish schools comply with state educational standards, and 2. What is their (the Amish) recourse in law?

Hammond has 10 days to appeal.

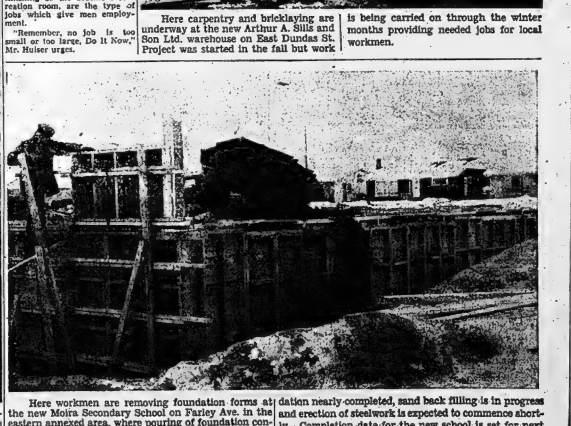
NOT RESTRICTING RELIGION

The school board says no infringement of religious rights or restrictions of number of schools the Amish may want to maintain is intended. The only thing sought is an injunction against the Amish operating the schools as they do now.



The sect originated in Switzerland in 1693 when the Mennonite church's doctrine became too liberal for Jacob Amman. Many of the Amish came to North America in the early 1700s.

Most modern devices—including cars and electricity—are not used by the Amish here. Each church group is independent from the other. The Old Order Amish are considered to be the most strict.



The Amish population in Ohio's Holmes and Wayne counties is estimated to be more than 4,000.

SCOTTISH ABBEY

The foundations of the abbey at Arbroath, near Dundee in Scotland, were laid in 1178.

Exterior stonework at the new million dollar federal building is rapidly taking shape as winter work is progressing. Here workmen add to scaffolding to allow for placing of more stonework.

Here workmen are removing foundation forms at the new Moira Secondary School on Farley Ave. In the eastern annexed area, where pouring of foundation concrete for the new edifice has been virtually completed by Fidelity Construction of Oshawa. With the foundation nearly completed, sand back filling is in progress and erection of steelwork is expected to commence shortly. Completion date for the new school is set for next September.

Wedding

SHELDON - BAILEY

A lovely Yuletide wedding was solemnized on Saturday, December 27, 1958, at 2 p.m., in Carmel United Church, by the Rev. A. Peckman, minister of the church. Mrs. Joyce Isabelle, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bailey, R.R. 1 Stirling, became the bride of George Clarence Sheldon, of Toronto, son of Mrs. Robert Hopper and the late Mr. Charles Sheldon.

A lovely Christmas tree, ferns and poinsettia adorned the front of the church while the graceful pews were designated by white bows.

The soloist, Mrs. Gerald Clancy, of Wellman's, sang before the ceremony, "The Wedding Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "Because," and "O Perfect Love," accompanied by the church pianist, Mrs. Arthur Pryer, who also rendered the processional and recessional music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white faille silver metallic brocade, fashioned in ballerina-length on princess lines, with a deep "V" neckline with fitted bodice, having a matching jacket with a high stand-up collar and buttoned front with long lily-point sleeves which were buttoned at the wrists. The finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a bandeau of white taffeta. She carried a bouquet of crescent roses with red Sweetheart roses and white satin streamers, centred with tiny red rosebuds. Her only adornment was a single strand of pearls which her mother wore on her wedding day.

Mrs. Harry F. Hubel, of R.R. 3 Stirling, as matron of honor, was her sister's only attendant, wearing a ballerina - length gown of pale blue taffeta with gold brocade made on princess lines, with a deep "V" neckline. She wore a white feather-ed hat, pearl necklace, and pale blue shoes, and carried a nosegay of blue and white mums with white satin streamers.

Master Donald Hubel, eldest nephew of the bride, was the aunt's ring-bearer and looked quite dapper in his navy blazer and white trousers. He carried the ring on a white satin heart-shaped cushion.

Mr. Albert Newton of Ajax attended the bridegroom while Messrs. Glenn Hubel, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. William Bailey, brother of the bride, both of R.R. 3 Stirling, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church hall. The bride's mother, wearing Dior blue nylon lace over taffeta, accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing navy crepe, pink and white accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask, beneath white wedding bells and white cascading streamers, centred by a three-tiered pink and white wedding cake, made by the bride's grandmother, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of pink roses, rosebuds and forget-me-nots. Tall pink and white candles in silver candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial picture.

The waitresses were Mrs. Fred Brandt, the Misses Dorothy Johnston, Dawn Hubel, Pearl Visser, Jean Grills and Joyce Harry.

For travelling to Toronto and points west, the bride donned a green Rondera tweed sleeveless dress with round neckline and empire waistline, with flared skirt, tan purse and shoes, suede kid gloves, and a white satin hat, dark brown wool coat and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Stirling, Carmel, Mount Pleasant, Wellman's Corners, Tweed, Peterborough, Ajax, Belleville, Toronto and Coddington.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon will reside at 121 Woltrey Avenue, Toronto.

Previous to the wedding the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Bert Davenport, Toronto; at a china shower at the home of Mrs. Charles Johnston and Dorothy; at a presentation of a clothes hamper and recipe box by her co-workers at the Northern Electric Co., Belleville; at a presentation of a cheque by the Northern Electric Club, and last Saturday night at a community shower held in the Carmel church hall where she was presented with a beautiful tri-light floor lamp and two matching table lamps and a bedspread.

PLAN CLOSE CHECK

TORONTO (CP)—Police Chief James Mackey has ordered tightening of qualifications required for a permit to carry a revolver or pistol in Toronto. He estimated that 99 per cent of the persons issued permits in recent years did not need to carry weapons and many of them were a hazard since they didn't know how to handle them.

Special Facilities Required To Help Crippled Children

By DR. HAROLD V. CRANFIELD
Medical Director
Ontario Society for Crippled Children

The first of four articles appears today. Each one was written by leading medical specialists on behalf of the Crippled Children's Centre Building Fund, 92 King St., East, Toronto 1.

Those who deal directly with the tragedies of crippling have developed a studied casualness of manner and action towards their work. It is almost as inviolate as to be a code. A typical group of such doctors have prepared a series of four articles of which this is the first. These are intended to tell you about crippled children's work. The lack of drama in their presentation might lead the unsophisticated to think of them as flat, but the dullness is intentional. The writers strive for honesty and may in their own eyes have, in this desire to understate, done it too well.

One of these writers says of his profession: "They are not trying to cure the incurable; they are not interested in crippled children at all." Few but other doctors would appreciate the coldly objective meaning of such a remark, or the implication that personal feelings must be subject to reason and the constant quest for new means to overcome the handicaps that birth, disease, or injury have placed on bewildered childhood.

Belying his remark, these doctors give up their youth in studying and their young manhood in round the clock work with nearly helpless infants in a scarcely respectable for a doctor to look as young as his years. He should be bald, or at least grey, and certainly haggard, it would seem. His eyes should grow wise as strangers and his wife is rarely widowed, for the average life-expectancy of his profession is less than that of the population as a whole.

WONDERFUL WORK UNFOLDED

But here are the stories of these men who work away so that crippled children grown up with the absolute minimum of disability."

With the map of Ontario spread in front of you and a pin in your hand, decide on each municipality where a centre should function to this end. It will be apparent at once they are indeed few. Draw a circle with a fifteen mile radius around each of these places — Kingston, Ottawa, London, Windsor, Sault Ste. Marie and so on. There would be less than twenty-five circles on the map. Observe how few of these touch each other — note the areas, especially to the north, where no circles appear at all. There are crippled children here, but they need so widely that no local facility could ever be feasibly provided for them. " It is axiomatic that more than an hour's journey to a treatment centre and the same home again would undo, through sheer fatigue, any good that would result from regular attendance.

What are the problems of providing children, and in what is the order of their importance? First, is their need to communicate; they must speak. Second comes the necessity that they should be able to look for themselves and to this end they must have useful hands. Their third need is ambulation or locomotion. This last one is placed first by many who fail to think the matter through. When one has had the skilled services of the surgeon to put right or at nearly right as possible these rare mistakes of nature and these tragic accidental happenings, what then?

These children need to be coached to usefulness, as far as it is within their scope. That specific facilities are necessary, even if one thinks only of the education of a specially handicapped child. The regular school has steps and distance to penalize crippled children. There are precious few speech therapists and too few physical therapists and physical therapists to contribute to the recovery of these who could never run, or work. He speak without their help and who can make it alone?

WILL SUPPLY FACILITIES

So it is planned to build, in Toronto, a centre that will look like one. Moreover, there are precipled children who could thus be helped in a home and to back and forth for care. Facilities will be provided for three to four hundred such cases daily basis. These same facilities will be sufficient for one hundred other children from remote areas who will live in residence for the short intervals they require these aids to restoration. Because they are children, they need to play and be prepared by education for their future lifework. These, too, will be provided. Finally there will be research here and investigation into novel improving care for crippled children and preventing these crippling conditions.

This centre is planned as a complementary service to the function of the Hospital for Sick Children and to Sunnyview School for the Orthopaedically Handicapped. It will be built on a site that is adjacent to Sunnyview Avenue near Sunnybrook Hospital and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind; for here is the centre of population for Metropolitan Toronto. " Its completion date is set as September 1960 and $4,088,500. are needed and with your help it will be done.

Another article on Friday.

Quinte Secondary H-S Assoc. Holds 1st. 'Open House'

On Monday evening the parents of Grades 9 and 10 students attended "open house" at Quinte Secondary School. Prior to this year one "open house" night was adequate, but with an increase of 200 in the student body it was decided to hold two "open house" nights. The Parents of Grades 11, 12 and 13 are invited to attend on January 19.

Mrs. Doug McDonald, convener of "Open House" was pleased to report that the attendance was excellent (approx. 400 parents attended). She also expressed her thanks to the room representatives who were most cooperative. Parents of Grades 11, 12 and 13 students acted as representatives this week.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) —Three men described by police as "extremely dangerous" escaped from the Buffalo State Hospital Monday night. The Erie County sheriff's department identified the three as Raymond Colensky, 25, of Windsor, Ont.; Robert Hurley, about 22, of Niagara Falls, and Donald Wahl, 22, of Niagara Falls. They apparently were not armed.

W.I. Enjoys Colored Slides Of Europe

The monthly meeting of the Canniton - Corbyville W.I. was held in the town hall, Canniton, Monday evening.

Mrs. A. Milton was hostess for the evening and greeted the members as they arrived. The president, Mrs. D. Windsor, was in the chair.

There were four visitors and 20 members present.

Thank-you cards and letters were read; report of postman's banquet, proceeds to be divided between the regular fund and the community building fund.

Plans for a tea in the spring were discussed and the following ladies selected as conveners of the different months: Mrs. Shorey, Mrs. E. Demill, Mrs. Foot, Mrs. Ellsworth, Mrs. J. Latchford, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Boyd and Mrs. W. Latchford.

Mrs. Boyd introduced the guest for the evening, Miss Kay Homsa, Miss Homsa was one of the representatives of the Junior Farmers who went for a two-week tour of England, Scotland and Ireland last year.

She showed pictures taken over there and gave an interesting word picture of her stay. The scenery was beautiful and the color pictures brought out the true beauty of the flowers in more than a fleshing to see, especially at this time of year in Canada.

Mrs. Boyd thanked Miss Homan and presented her with a gift.

A cookie sale was held and refreshments served after the meeting closed.

Weavers' Guild Views Foreign Materials

The newly-elected president, Mrs. Patillo, presided.

The annual report of the secretary was given, and correspondence and general business dealt with.

The highlight of the evening was the showing of materials brought home from abroad by Miss K. Homan. These proved most interesting to the weavers. A profitable evening was closed by refreshments served by the hostess.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Most modern sleepwear for colder climes is as chic as it is comfy. This dainty gown is of fine challis in pastel yellow, blue or pink. An insert at the shallow, round neckline is of matching wool lace. The gown hangs in loose folds from fitted yoke at the neck. If desired, it can be worn with a matching satin sash.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Dorothy S.—When I look in the mirror, I run away screaming.

Mrs. E. S. — I dont want her to get hurt.

Dorothy S.—I am one of those most miserable of all creatures—the ugly duckling in a handsome family. My awful looks would probably not be noticed in other families, but in mine I stick out like a sore thumb. People used to look at me so sadly and say in effect, "Don't worry, darling, you'll outgrow it all . . . you're just at the awkward stage." Well I'm nearly 17 now and I haven't outgrown it. My braces are off my teeth and I've tried a zillion different hairdo's and make-ups. But I still look absolutely rotten. Sometimes when I look into the mirror I feel like running away screaming.

Well, all I want to know is how can a girl like me lead a normal life? Dont bother with that line about, "It's what's inside that counts." I'd hate to see the inside if this is what the outside looks like!

Mrs. E. S. — My husband and I are so unhappy about Dorothy we hardly know what to do. It is true that she seems to have more than the ordinary share of facial defects. Yet I won a beauty contest when I was young, and my husband was known as the best-looking boy at our high school.

I have tried everything possible to help Dorothy improve her appearance and become less self-conscious. I was even willing to go through the expense of letting her have some facial surgery, but our family doctor advised against it and said we're exaggerating the problem.

However, I don't believe in taking a thing like this lightly. This is a very important period in the life of any girl. I don't want Dorothy to get hurt so badly that she'll be the scar for the rest of her life. How can we help her?

The Council: There is little doubt in our minds that Dorothy is reacting less to her actual lack of attractiveness than her mother's disapprobation in her. No normal individual is entirely devoid of physical attractions and no real-life person is without so-called defects. This is true of the most beautiful of actresses. We can all dwell endlessly over our own fine points and flaws. But what a waste of time and energy!

We feel that Mrs. E. S. has the real problem in this case. Her overemphasis on physical "perfection" represents a real personality deficiency. Apparently her own beauty as a young girl gave her an enormous sense of power making up for some inner weakness she felt. She would like to have perpetuated this power in her daughter. She now feels defeated and afraid to let her child enter life without the weapon of beauty.

We don't doubt that Mrs. E. S. fears for her daughter are deeply felt, but are they reasonable? A telltale outsider, the family doctor, believes that Dorothy and her mother are exaggerating and the drastic action is called for. Possibly Mrs. E. S. would like to discuss this with another trustworthy outsider. We are not first person the answer will be the same.

Dorothy has received the worst scar of all in her realization of her parents' disappointment in her. It is time for them to conquer their own fears enough to realize that their daughter has many strengths, many potentialities, and it should be their job to help her discover these. When she does, she'll look and feel more beautiful — not the artificial beauty she desires, but the beauty that is real.

Club Activities

C.A's

FRANKFORD — The C.A's of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met on Friday evening, with Mr. Doug Flood in charge. A welcome was extended to all.

The Rev. G. Pierce gave the announcements and Miss Sandra Purvis read the Scripture, Psalm 138.

Pastor and Mrs. Ken Van Allan, guests for the evening, were with a duet, "Inside Those Pearly Gates." Mr. Van Allan sang "The Love of God," and brought the message from Ecclesiastes 11: 9-11 and 12:1, speaking on "Remember Now Thy Creator in the Days of Thy Youth" setting of the authority of God, His purpose in making us, and the commands He gives us.

The service closed in prayer.

TRINITY LADIES' CLUB

MADOC — Mrs. Allan Burris extended a warm welcome to the many members and guests of Trinity Ladies' Club who took part in the meeting.

With the Burris' home tastefully decorated, the spirit of Christmas prevailed through out the evening's program arranged by Mrs. George Devolin.

The story of the Birth of Jesus was read by Mrs. Jack Scrutton and at intervals many old carols were sung by the members, "O Holy Night" was the appropriate solo given by Mrs. Archie Adamas, others who assisted with readings were Mrs. Hulin, Mrs. C. Farrow, and Mrs. McGowan.

Each club member brought a gift and these were presented to the ladies of the club, who had recently suffered fire losses. Donations were also received for a family in urgent need.

Continuing in a lighter vein, various members recalled amusing childhood memories of Christmas. The serving of fruit cake and coffee completed the club's activities for the year.

Sincere appreciation was extended to Mrs. George Devolin for her work as president for 1958, and also to the hostess, Mrs. Allan Burris, president-elect for 1959.

Two Winter Dishes

by Mary Moore

Some of you will remember Tinka's visit from Windsor in the late Fall — when I gave you her Geemuese Northerlian (braised beef with vegetables).

At that time she gave me two other recipes but I was so busy with Christmas baking I didn't take time to try them then.

I recommend it hot served with vegetables — especially.

TINKA'S CABBAGE PUREE:

Cook a quartered, medium-sized cabbage in water to cover until it is soft but not so soft it will fall to pieces. Save the water. Run the cabbage through the meat grinder with 2 hot cooked potatoes. Stirring with a wooden spoon add the cabbage water, to make it into a smooth paste like soft mashed potatoes. Return to the heat, add salt and pepper. Stir constantly until piping hot.

Tinka added — "Extremely cheap supper — especially if you have seen keeds".

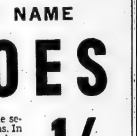
NOTE:

If some of the members of your family habitually shun liver try serving the shove loaf with this.

TOMATO SAUCE:

Two cups canned or chopped raw tomatoes, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-6 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 teaspoon celery salt, 1 1-2 teaspoons minute tapioca, 1-3 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon each finely chopped onion, celery and parsley. Brown the onion, celery and parsley in the butter, then add all remaining ingredients. Transfer to top of double boiler and cook over boiling water 25 minutes. Serve without straining. This is delicious over 2 poached eggs on toast for an emergency supper.

Dinner Menu



by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

TINKA'S LIVER LOAF

Put through the fine knife of the food chopper 1-lb beef liver, helping it through with 1-2 medium onion and finally 1 slice of dark bread to clean the machine. Beat in 1 egg, 1 tablespoon each butter, softened, and water, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, and season highly with salt and pepper. Now you have to use your own judgment: adding fine dry breadcrumbs (packaged are fine) until you form a firm loaf but not a stog: one-tender but loving together. Put in a buttered glass dish, bottom of which was dredged with fine bread crumbs. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. Test with toothpick in 1-2 hour — if it comes out clean — loaf is done. This is excellent served as a canape but I re-

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

WELLINGTON — Pretty decorations brightened the Centennial parlor for the recent meeting of the W.A. of the United Church, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Maybee played "The Star in the East," to call the meeting to order, and Mrs. Beatrice Alyea, acting president, read an appropriate poem, "I Will If You Will."

Bills were moved to be paid. Mrs. R. A. Thompson read letters of thanks from Mrs. Edna Fyne and Mrs. Nelson and voiced appreciation by Mrs. Bradley for plant received. Cards are to be sent to the bereaved family, a thank-you note to Mrs. Gill, the leaders were in charge of the following program:

Mrs. Bishop read, "Religion and Life," by Padre W. A. Young; Mrs. Poulter ran the projector and Mrs. Bishop was narrator and all enjoyed a colored film entitled "Help Night."

Mrs. Pettingill announced, a reading, "Dinner" on the "Table," by Mrs. Earl Marvin.

Mrs. Pettingill announced, a reading, "Dinner" on the "Table," by Mrs. Earl Marvin. Four young ladies from the Mission Band, Jeanette and Marjorie Reed, Jennifer and Linda Macdonald, Elaine Bishop and Kathy Alyea sang, "Up on the House Tops." Mrs. Ida McPaul gave a reading "Mary, the Mother," and "Christmas Wants." Mrs. Leonard Palmer delighted all by playing, "O Faithful Pine," and "Bells of St. Marys," on her auto harp. A poem was read by Mrs. J. T. Ross.

Mrs. Pettingill thanked all those who helped. A card was signed to be sent to Mr. Cox.

The leaders and members of group IV served fruit bread and cookies, cake, candy and tea. And all enjoyed a social hour.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

CONCERNING THE PARENTS' TABLE AT WEDDING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. The Parents' Table at the wedding reception should, we know, include both sets of parents and the minister and his wife. Then should there be another table for other relatives of the families; for example, grandparents, aunts, uncles, and so forth?

2. Should the place cards read with the formal name of guests:

Mother of Bride-to-be.

1. The Parents' Table, besides including both sets of parents and the minister and his wife, may and usually does, include other close relatives of the families, often several, particularly intimate friends of the parents and, sometimes one or more distinguished guests. Actually the number of guests included at this table is very flexible, and depends on the wishes of the hosts and on the general convenience, principally the possible size of the table. Certainly if possible the grandparents should be seated at the Parents' Table.

For this table there are certain extremely important traditional rules about the seating arrangements. You, hostess of the wedding, sit at the head of the table; at your right, the bridegroom's father, man guest of honor at the wedding; at your left, the minister. Opposite you, your husband, host of the wedding; at his right, the bridegroom's mother, woman guest of honor at the wedding; at his left, the minister's wife. Other guests are seated alternately around the rest of the table — man, woman, man, woman. This seating should, of course, be most thoughtfully planned.

2. Yes. And as usual no place cards for the hosts, you and your husband.

"JR." NOT CORRECT IN THIS CIRCUMSTANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband passed away suddenly last month. I am expecting our fourth child in March. If this baby is a boy, I would like to name him after his father. In this case, would it be correct to use "Jr." after the name, since the father is deceased? — Reader.

No, in this case, it would not be correct to use "Jr." after the name. I can very well understand why you might perhaps wish to do this, or might be inclined to do it, but it would not be wise even to use the "Jr." for a time, would, I think, lead to name - explanations later on.

DEFINITE PROCEDURE FOR INSERTING WEDDING INVITATIONS IN THEIR ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Are wedding invitations placed in the inner envelope with the fold up or down? And then how is the inner envelope placed in the outer envelope? — M.

The invitation most often used today (the small invitation which fits into the envelope without folding) is inserted in the inner envelope with the engraved page facing the flap of the envelope. Then the inner envelope is placed in the outer envelope with its flap side inside the flap side of the outer envelope.

When the invitations are the large, formal ones engraved on the front page of a folded sheet, the sheet is then folded again and inserted in the inner envelope with the folded edge at the bottom of the envelope.

PROPER TO PROVIDE ALTERNATIVE DRINKS AT RECEPTION

Dr. Beeckman:

We know that of course champagne is the traditional beverage to be served at the wedding reception. But it so happens that quite a few of our most intimate friends don't care much like champagne and neither do we particularly like it). Would it be proper for us to provide any other alcoholic drink (perhaps one or two kinds of cocktails and highballs)? My mother suggests we serve champagne for the drinking of the toasts at the wedding reception — then offer a choice of the other drinks as well, of course, as a non-alcoholic drink for those who prefer this. Would you approve of this plan? — Bride-to-be.

Yes. It's festive to have the traditional champagne for the wedding toasts, and it's entirely proper to provide other alcoholic drinks for the guests who might prefer them. And of course one or two non-alcoholic alternatives.

WED 60 YEARS

BRANTFORD (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. William Suddaby, both 84 years old, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday. Both are still in good health. Mr. Suddaby still works every day in the West Brantford grocery and butcher store founded by his father.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Going shopping? With all events and schedules almost back to normal after the holiday upheaval, many articles have again made their appearance, while many others have been put away until next year. Small chickens, long the best buy on the meat counters, have returned to take their place because what is left of the larger birds of Christmas and New Year's. Beef is still high, pork is quite reasonable, while some New Zealand lamb has been brought out of cool storage to sell at bargain prices. This should continue for a while. Eggs are at a good low price now and should stay at this place for some time; make good use of them.

If you are taking advantage of the many sales being held at this time of year, and are buying a new carpet or rug, you should first consider what you expect of it. How fast are the colors? How readily will it soil? Will it clean readily, and is it mothproof? Check labels and ask for information before making any decisions. Other ways to ensure satisfaction with your purchase: check the color of carpet samples in your room in both natural and artificial light. Choose a color, pattern and texture that will be suitable for your furnishings and which you will enjoy for a long time.

Did you or the children get any clothes made of corduroy as gifts for Christmas? It is well to remember that different corduroy qualities and finishes are used for different purposes. But careful washing and ironing can preserve the freshness and beauty of this material. If there are instructions attached to any particular item, be sure to follow them. However, there are some simple rules to follow to retain the rich color, luxurious softness and deep pile. Use any mild soap and warm water. Squeeze the suds through the fabric and rinse by pressing the water out gently. Never twist or use a wringer, because this will set deep creases in the corduroy pile which you will want to avoid. Do not use a dryer because, again, the wrinkles will become set into the fabric and will not iron out easily.

Lastly, mothers can look forward soon to a new innovation in children's clothes. This idea comes from England, which is famous for its children's clothes. Their styles and fabrics are copied all over the world. But they are also practical. These days British mothers are buying what are called 'expandable' suits for their children. Expandable suits do just what their name implies — they expand with the youngster. Each outfit comes with extra pieces, extra bottoms and extra tucks in the sleeves and hem, so that it lasts for ages.

Good shopping!

Late last year the eyes of Canada were turned towards Sudbury and the prolonged strike which was settled before Christmas. During the Christmas holidays, friends lent us a copy of a booklet published by the International Nickel Company of Canada. T & T's friends, who had secured copies for school instruction, were greatly impressed because the ramifications of this mighty industry probably touch every man, woman and child in Canada. It will be difficult to edit the information in a few lines, but some salient points may interest our readers.

Nickel received its name in Sweden. The people were superstitious and when they found a metal mixed with copper they thought Satan had cast a spell on the mine. They called the new metal Kupfer-Nickel which means "Old Nick's Copper" in English. Nickel was first discovered in Canada near Sudbury by accident. The trans-Canada railway was blasting its way across northern Ontario when a blast uncovered deposits of nickel. The industry did not burst into wealthy progress. Sir John A. MacDonald and Sir Charles Tupper believed in the industry and steered it through lean years, thus preserving it for Canada.

Today many thousands of men and women receive their incomes directly and indirectly from the nickel industry. Approximately eighty millions of dollars go directly to its own employees, while many more millions go to other employees in other industries who supply the nickel industry. Research is constantly going on and the search for new deposits never ceases. The industry helps Canada in an infinite number of ways.

The International Nickel Company has set up scholarships at Canadian universities. Deserving boys and girls are helped to secure university education. If any boy or girl in the Quinte area is interested, information can be obtained for these scholarships at the International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, 55 Yonge St., Toronto. T & T is pleased that friends passed this folder along so we could tell boys and girls in our local schools about the scholarships. We hope a deserving boy and girl is interested enough to make further enquiries. All the natural resources in the world are as nothing without the natural resources of our young people.

GUILTY OF EGG THROWING

CHICAGO (AP) — Four Hungarians who tried to throw eggs at Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan during his Chicago visit were fined $100 and costs each Monday. Judge Joseph Butler found William Egrestis, 25, George Bongratz, 27, Gena Petrokovtis, 28, and Vendel Acs, 33, guilty of disorderly conduct but suspended the sentence.

Neighbors' Aid Hears Talk on County Home

Doris McLean was hostess for the regular meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid on Thursday afternoon, with Evelyn Bird presiding.

Annual reports were given by the various officers. Evelyn thanked all the members for their support during her presidency, and introduced the president-elect, Doris McLean, who took charge of the remainder of the meeting.

A short devotional followed. Plans were made for 1959 program and membership dues were paid.

Gifts were presented to the retiring executive by Marj Wettlaufer.

The guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Ken Yorke, matron of the Hastings County Home for the Aged, was introduced by Winn Cameron. Application forms were shown which were necessary for admittance. Mrs. Yorke described the plans and lay out of the present home and the activities the residents enjoy, through the kindness of the local organizations. The original home for aged was opened in Hastings County in the year 1908.

On behalf of the Neighbors' Aid, Shirley Griffith, thanked the speaker for her most interesting address.

Prizes were won by Dora Eldridge and Delia Wiley.

The December meeting will be at the home of Bessie Bush.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee, Lena Reid, Bessie Bush, Betty Lough and Dorothy MacLean.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

JOHNSTOWN W. A.

JOHNSTOWN — The Johnstown Women's Association held its recent meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on Thursday afternoon.

The new president, Mrs. C. J. Brunt said she needed everyone to stand behind her to help her during her term of office and especially she needed the Lord's help.

Scripture, Deut. 6 and Matt. 22, was read by Mrs. Arden Gilchrist, and the "Lesson Thought" by Mrs. Everett Clapp, which dealt with the commandment "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Mrs. Brunt asked if members would answer the roll-call in February with a suggestion on how each could make money for the W.A. in 1959. Mrs. William S. Harry gave the report of the W.A. for the year.

The hostess was thanked for opening her home. Mrs. Fred Meyers asked the ladies to her home for the February meeting, with Mrs. E. Clapp and Mrs. E. Stickle as program conveners.

A short service was held with Mrs. W. Vandervoort receiving the W. A. life membership and a pin.

A poem called, "Yet It Lives," was read by Mrs. R. Stickle following which she handed a lovely Bible to Mrs. Clapp, past president, saying "This is in appreciation of all you have done for the W. A. in the past two years, the many times you have left your work and used your car to go hither an dthither and act as though it was no bother." It was decided all bills be paid, and that W.A. still has in 1959 — "the birthday box', 'strawberry money', 'wash day money' and 'bake table'.

Thank-you notes were received from Mrs. Douglas Harry for fruit while in the hospital; from Mrs. W. Vandervoort for a plant received at Christmas; from Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Pulkanham for a turkey received at Christmas; from the Mentally Retarded Children — a donation — World Literacy.

Mrs. Clapp read a letter from the friendship secretary.

A contest was put on by Mrs. William S. Harry with Mrs. Fred Meyers winning the prize.

Chocolate Mint Tarts Win for Quebec Lady

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Leopold Marois of St. Eustache, Que., won $2,500 with her chocolate-mint tarts Tuesday.

Judges in a national bakefest sponsored by a milling firm gave her tarts the nod over dishes submitted by nine other competitors. Mrs. Marois, wife of a dairy farm president, said she'll put the prize money in the bank until she decides what to do with it.

Mrs. Ursula McGowan of Smiths Falls collected the $1,500 second prize for her peach cream tarts and Mrs. Alex Fisher of Brantford won $1,000 for her hazel nut cake.

THE RECIPE

Mrs. Marois' winning recipe:

Pastry — two cups of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoon of salt, two-thirds of a cup of shortening, a quarter-cup of chopped walnuts, four to six tablespoons of cold water:

Filling — three tablespoons of soft shortening, two squares of unsweetened melted chocolate, three cups of sifted icing sugar, one egg, a quarter-cup of cottage cheese, a quarter-cup of cream, two to three drops of peppermint flavoring, walnut or pecan halves.

Mix flour and salt together, cut in shortening to a consistency of coarse corn meal and stir in water. Gradually add water, stirring with a fork, until mixture holds together.

Divide dough in half. Roll each on a lightly floured surface and line two eleven-inch pie plates with this pastry. Prick with a fork and bake in hot oven (425 degrees) for 10 to 12 minutes or until pastry is browned.

For the filling, cream the shortening and add melted chocolate. Mix and gradually add icing sugar, cream cheese and cream, beating until fluffy. Add flavoring and spoon into baked and cooled tart shells. Garnish with walnut or pecan halves.

GERMAN VISITOR

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Elects 1959 Officers

The first business meeting of the new year of the Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church was held on Monday evening in the parish hall.

The meeting opened with a devotional period conducted by Mrs. A. Bongard and Mrs. A. Cooper, with Mrs. J. Hibbard as pianist.

Reports of the various officers were heard and all were most gratifying.

Many notes were read expressing thanks for being remembered at Christmas and in appreciation of donations made to worthy objects.

Discussion ensued as to the date to be set aside for the annual fall tea, also for a basic sale and rummage sale in the future.

It was decided to hold business meetings on the second Monday of the month instead of the first to overcome conflicting dates.

The president mentioned the entertainment being planned for later in the month for members of the Hastings County Home.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Mrs. Bongard called on Archdeacon J. D. Creggan, who, after appropriate remarks on the work of the group, conducted an impressive installation ceremony, which the following officers were installed for 1959.

Honorary presidents, Mrs. J. B. Creggan, Mrs. G. G. Wellsh, Mrs. Everett Smith; president, Mrs. A. Bongard; vice-presidents, Mrs. D. Dunseith; secretary, Mrs. Frances Reid; treasurer, Mrs. J. MacDonald; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. J. Flemlee; Sunshine secretary, Mrs. J. Hibbard; educational secretary, Mrs. A. Silles; sewing convener, Mrs. F. Goodfellow, Mrs. H. Luttrell and Mrs. E. Pyke; refreshment convener, Mrs. H. Rose; visiting committee, Mrs. J. O'Connor; social convener, Mrs. J. Gowler, Mrs. A. Silles and Mrs. Lancaster; forwards, Mrs. E. Green; pianist, Mrs. J. Hibbard; Girls' Auxiliary, Mrs. A. Cowsin and Mrs. C. Reid; Junior Auxiliary, Mrs. J. Cleary; Girls' Auxiliary, Mrs. C. Fowler; nominating committee, Mrs. J. Pepper and Mrs. H. Ingram.

Mrs. Bongard thanked the members for their co-operation and hoped this year would be as successful as the previous one.

Tea hostesses, Mrs. A. Sawin and Mrs. C. Reid. Served refreshments.

Next week's meeting will take the form of a social evening.

Automatic Bed Display Brings Out Wolf in Men

By EDNA USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Yvonne Mann, 23-year-old English redhead, is staying in bed for a living.

A fashion model from London, she is "demonstrating" a bed which tilts at the head or foot by pressing a button.

The bed (and Yvonne) is part of the 10-day Canadian Furniture Mart where Canada's furniture manufacturers display their wares to retailers and the public.

BRINGS OUT THE WOLF

Reclining on her cosmic - age couch Tuesday, she described life from the horizontal:

"Lying in bed here seems to bring out the wolf in men," she said. "They say 'That's a soft job' and 'Do they make double beds like that?' The women who have been walking round the mart all day are envious. Everybody's friendly."

She lowered a hazel eye as a male passerby quipped: "Want to change places?"

Yvonne, 36-24-36 and five feet six inches tall, has worked as a model in France, Switzerland, Germany and England. She came to Canada six months ago for a two-month holiday and likes it so much she's staying indefinitely.

Clad in slacks and sweater, she lies on a divan made similarly to a hospital bed, but with an electrically operated crank.

"The bed will cost about $300," she said. "It is ideal for post-surgery cases or anybody who has a heart condition. This is the softest job I've ever had."

The furniture mart contains about $7,500,000 worth of furniture.

There are ottomans that can be inflated; cord coverings for corresponding screening. Mrs. garden furniture that can be cut, then mended by heating the broken ends and sticking them together; shrubs and trees made with built-in cigaret lighters; and roulette wheels; settees that have tables built-in; bookends that change like fish and "mountains" tables that can be lifted by a swivel.

Trends in furnishing are to-ward a casual style using more native wood and less high gloss.

St. Andrew's E.A.W.M.S. Elects Officers

The annual report of the Evening Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, heard recently at the annual meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Brain was an encouraging one.

The membership of this young group has almost tripled during its three-year history. During the year the group financed the education of a young girl in a Mission School in India; entertained some of the ladies from the Belleville County Home at an afternoon drive and tea; also held a successful party for students from the Ontario School for the Deaf.

In keeping with the year's study of Canadian missions, speakers included Archdeacon J. D. Creggan, who gave a first-hand account of life among the Canadian Indians, and the Rev. R. D. MacLean, who spoke on the French Canadians. Other speakers were Miss Ruby Walker, regional secretary of the W.M.S., and Mrs. K. Denton Taylor, a member of the Auxiliary who is the first woman convener of a Presbyterian Church General Assembly committee.

NEW OFFICERS

The meeting was opened by past president, Mrs. F. B. Sheffield, who followed the annual reports, called on Mrs. V. Weir, president of the Kingston Presbyterial, to install the 1959 Slate of Officers, consisting of honorary president — Mrs. R. D. MacLean; president — Mrs. H. Williamson; vice-president — Miss Enid Cornell; treasurer — Mrs. G. F. Scott; recording secretary — Mrs. J. Gardhouse; Mrs. Henri Pickard; telephone secretary — Mrs. Ross McKenzie.

An extremely interesting outline of the organization of the Women's Missionary Society in Canada was given by Mrs. R. Brain, pointing out that the organization of the W.M.S. followed the same organization as the Presbyterian Church itself, and that each church organization in the most democratic church government in Canada. Mrs. Brain also pointed out that the Government of Canada is patterned after the type of government used in the Presbyterian Church. Tea Scripture was read by Mrs. G. E. Scott and the meeting was closed by the Benedictus.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. F. Pickard, Mary and Mrs. Gilchrie.

Not a Sack In Carload of Spring Fashions

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — There's not a sack in a carload of New York spring fashions now being previewed by the fashion press.

Today's creations of the female form include designers Jo Coudy, Oleg Cassini and Ben Zuckerman. The only holdout of the season to date is Larry Aldrich, who has been beating the drums for the "relaxed" silhouette for nigh on to five years and still shows it, modified but recognizable.

Jo Copeland shows a feminine, flattering and strictly elegant group of daytimes and evening fashions. Most dramatic of her evening gowns is a full-length sheath of white chiffon with jewel-studded midriff and floating panels.

LOW NECKLINES

Cassini, playboy of the New York cafe set, has happily back to his figure-revealing creations with necklines as low as the law allows, insisting that "the bosom is here to stay."

Women's dresses are supposed to appeal to men," Cassini says.

Ben Zuckerman shows a discreet and wearable group of softly tailored suits and coats, the suits all with short jackets and slim skirts.

Lower Birth Rate Will Not Solve Problems of India

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Kenneth Coleman says she disagrees with the theory that a lower birth rate would solve India's problems.

With her husband and three children she is here on furlough from Ajaala, India. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman manage a rural training school and a model village called Nav Jiwan (New Life) in the Punjab near the Pakistan border.

"There is plenty of food in the world for everyone', she said. The solution of India's troubles lies in proper distribution—not in birth control.

POTENTIAL GREAT

"Potential output of food in India is five times the amount required for the present population. It is the lack of improved farming methods that keeps so many of India's millions undernourished.

"Western countries keep advocating birth control because they are frightened that India's population will one day overflow their country.

"Previously two of three Indian children died before the age of four. Now, with improved health standards, many more live through many dire later of malnutrition because of the poor farming methods."

Snow Plowing Charges Made On Frontage

KITCHENER (CP) — A new method for charging ratepayers for street cleaning and snow plowing was approved in principal by Kitchener council Monday night.

The changes will reduce property assessment and make those who get the services pay for them on a per foot frontage basis.

Ald. Michael Wallers, chairman of council's finance committee, estimated the savings might reduce the tax load by ¾ of a mill.

Explaining, W. L. Bradley, city engineer, said the cost of snow removal over the entire city could be set at four cents per foot frontage.

"This means that a property owner having a 50-foot lot would have his snow plowed in front of his property for $2 a year," Mr. Bradley said.

If this system were adopted the city would realize an additional revenue of $100,000, leading to a decrease in the mill rate on general property assessment of an equal amount, he said.

Charges for street cleaning and flushing will vary, since some streets are cleaned daily and others only twice or three times a week. For those streets cleaned daily five times a week, the charge will be 20 cents.

$4,000 FOR LIBEL

TORONTO (CP) — An Assiniboia court jury Monday awarded a factory worker $4,000 damages after he successfully claimed he was libelled in a union publication. Stanley Papp, 59, fought suit against Peter Lovering, president of Local 984 of the United Auto Workers (CLC) and Pearl Kalyniuk, Douglas Arthur and Hazil Livingstone, editors of the monthly union paper Hours to Build. Counsel for the four admitted the article was libellous but said it got into the paper by mistake.

$50,000 Bond Requested in Kidnapping

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Joan Iavarone was held in $50,000 bail Tuesday in the kidnapping of a newborn baby after the child's reluctant father was talked into signing the complaint against her.

"We bear this woman no grudge," the father, Frank Chiconchio, said of himself and his 26-year-old wife. Their baby, Lisa Rose, was found alive and unharmed Sunday in Mrs. Iavarone's Brooklyn apartment.

Police said Mrs. Iavarone, 43, abducted the baby from a Brooklyn hospital Jan. 2, only 1½-2 hours after it was born, in a plot to induce her boy friend to marry her by passing the infant off as their love child.

Chiconchio, a 28-year-old lawyer, at first refused to sign a kidnapping complaint against the buxom blonde wrcow.

He was talked into it, however, in the chamber of Magistrate James A. Roe, Jr. He was told that if he didn't sign the complaint he could be subpoenaed as a witness against Mrs. Iavarone and forced to testify to the substance of the complaint.

BUILDING VALUE OFF

TORONTO (CP) — Total value of building permits here in 1958 amounted to $108,93,620, a decrease of more than $12,000,000 compared with 1957. Since new apartment building regulations went into effect in September, 1957, no permits have been taken out by apartment builders, mainly because they consider parking requirements too severe for economical development.

CABINET STUDIES SPEECH

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet met for about 2½ hours, and spent part of the time going over the speech from the throne to be delivered Thursday by Governor-General Massey at the opening of the new session of Parliament. Prime Minister Diefenbaker was absent in Toronto.

Today's CAREER SOLDIER in the Middle East

The Canadian soldier in the Middle East is proudly and efficiently doing a job of vital importance to the peace of the world. Canadian soldiers are members of the truce supervisory teams along the Arab-Israel border, the United Nations observer group in Lebanon and form a large part of the United Nation Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip and Sinai peninsula. In UNEF he is referred to by his comrades of other countries as "the real backbone of UNEF".

The soldier himself in our modern Canadian Army has the things that a man appreciates most —job security—good pay—a healthy outdoor life with variety and openings for advancement. His greatest satisfaction however comes from the sure knowledge that his is an important role in the growing responsibilities of Canada.

Intervention in Operation Of Boards by Frost Govt. Charged by Liberal Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer today accused the provincial government of "indiscriminate" intervention in the operation of boards and commissions.

In a brief to the Gordon committee on government organization in Ontario, he called for separation of the province's 60-odd boards and commissions into two groups, administrative and judicial.

Administrative agencies would be brought directly under cabinet ministers and thus be more accountable to the legislature, while judicial tribunals would be independent and thus insulated from cabinet control.

HAVE CRITICIZED

Commission government has received sharp criticism from Ontario Liberals both before and after Premier Frost appointed last May of a three-man investigating committee headed by management consultant Walter L. Gordon of Toronto.

In his brief Mr. Wintermeyer said many boards and commissions are beyond the reach of the legislature in their policy decisions. At the same time these decisions were frequently made by cabinet ministers while the public believed the agencies are "independent."

"The Liberal party acknowledges the fact that certain functions performed by boards and commissions are created and intended to be made independent of the legislature and political intervention, for example the workmen's compensation board.

"However, no specific determination and evaluation has been made of those boards and commissions which are intended to operate in an independent fashion.

GOVERNMENT "ADJUNCTS"

"The result has been governmental intervention in the operation of boards and commissions indiscriminately in many instances boards and commissions have become adjuncts to departments of government whereas government has determined policy without responsibility for such policy."

The Ontario fuel board had an administrative function in enforcing safety regulations, plus a judicial function in licensing gas companies. It was "naive" to suggest the government wouldn't influence the judicial function while assuming responsibility for administrative functions.

The Ontario municipal board, established to advise and regulate municipal financing, had acquired broader powers while maintaining its close association with the municipal affairs department and hearing its decisions appealable to the cabinet.

"OPENS THE DOOR"

"This opens the door for governmental intervention in the autonomous activities of the municipalities."

Mr. Wintermeyer said administrative or regulatory agencies should be made part of government departments, with cabinet ministers responsible for all their activities.

"Those commissions that perform judicial or semi-judicial functions, including licensing should be segregated from departmental administration and should in all respects be independent of governmental interference. The members of such boards should not be political appointments and their tenure of office should be similar to that of judges."

Mr. Wintermeyer called for a standing committee of the legislature to continually review the province's boards and commissions, assisted by legal and accounting experts. The committee would make periodic recommendations for legislation to improve commission government.

Claims McRuer Put Ontario Law To Wrong Test

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal was told Tuesday that Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court is applying the test for criminal law put the cart before the horse.

Elliot R. Pepper, assistant director of public prosecutions, said the chief justice had held that the test for criminal law was that a provincial statute be "void of necessity" within the Dominion statute.

"The question is whether the Dominion statute comes within the provincial."

Mr. Pepper was arguing at the second day of a hearing of an appeal by Mr. McRuer against Chief Justice McRuer's ruling that the careless driving section of the Ontario Highway Act is invalid because it trespasses on federal jurisdiction.

REFERS TO PREVIOUS CASES

Mr. Pepper said the province had not invaded the criminal field. He quoted a number of cases to show that the section of the act in question, section 29 1, was dealing with civil negligence.

"All provincial offences are quasi-crimes," he said. "This is because there is some duty or offence to the public."

Chief Justice Robert Forsyth of the appeal court said the case depended entirely on the question of whether the provincial section invades the criminal field.

Sydney Paikin, counsel for Ernest Harris, a Toronto man who was acquitted of careless driving, said the important test was whether the provincial statute was "in pith and substance" criminal.

Mr. Paikin said the disputed section of the Highway Traffic Act was "almost similar verbatim" to the Canadians were not in such good shape," he said.

Lester B. Pearson Presents Award To M. Richard

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson, a former baseball player, presented the Canadian Big Brother of the year award for 1959 to Maurice (Rocket) Richard Tuesday night.

Mr. Pearson, Big Brother of the year in 1958, made the presentation to the famous hockey player at a banquet of the Big Brothers Association, an organization devoted to help underprivileged boys.

The Montreal Canadiens' scoring ace said "I'm really happy to receive this wonderful award."

A reporter asked Richard whether he is a supporter of Liberal Leader Pearson at voting time.

Laughing, Richard replied "No politics for me." Even if he were a Pearson supporter, he added, he wasn't saying so.

Mr. Pearson, who left immediately after the presentation, said jokingly "I only wish that whipping the Liberal party into shape was as easy as it is to whip the Montreal Canadiens into shape."

"But there was a time when

Commission May Recommend Reorganization of Boards

TORONTO (CP)—The Gordon committee on government organization in Ontario may recommend re-organization of many of the province's 60-odd boards and commissions.

This was indicated Tuesday by committee chairman Walter L. Gordon, the Toronto management consultant named by Premier Frost last May to head an investigation into commission government in Ontario.

He said the committee plans to classify boards and commissions according to whether they are administrative agencies or judicial tribunals.

"One of the difficulties is that in many cases there is a duplication of functions. Some boards are both administrative and judicial."

ADJOURN TO JAN. 22

Mr. Gordon spoke as the committee adjourned its hearings until Jan. 22, when it plans to hear from the Ontario Labor Relations Board and the Urban Development Institute of Ontario. The Ontario Federation of Labor is expected to submit a brief in February.

Tuesday's hearing devoted the most time to chairman Lorne R. Cumming of the Ontario Municipal Board, which last year issued 4,856 orders affecting local government in the province's 976 municipalities.

"To an outsider the powers of your board might appear frightening," Mr. Gordon remarked to Mr. Cumming.

"There is a tendency to overemphasize it," replied Mr. Cumming. "We're really not as powerful as people think."

Mr. Cumming said that since 1954 the board had lost powers to new boards such as the Ontario Fuel Board, Ontario Telephone Authority and Ontario Highway Transport Board.

Its work included arbitration between individuals and the provincial or municipal governments; supervision of municipal financing; assessment appeals; approval of restricted area by-laws; and settlement of municipal disputes such as territorial questions.

Mr. Cumming said two sections of the Ontario Municipal Board Act provide for appeals from board decisions—to the Ontario cabinet on questions of fact and to the courts on questions of law or sometimes even fact.

"The government of the day may intervene in any matter when decisions of the board affecting matters of policy are felt to be completely divergent from government policy that a variation or reversal of the board's order is justified."

At the same time the board was an independent tribunal.

Father Drops Children From Blazing House

KINGSTON (CP) — Two children were saved Tuesday from a blazing house when their father dropped them from a second storey window into the arms of a neighbor below.

Mrs. Clarence Sudds, the children's mother, was preparing lunch when she saw smoke. Pamela, 5, and Heather, 3, ran upstairs to wake their father, who rushed downstairs, forgetting the children.

He fought his way back through the smoke, picked the children up and dropped them through the window into the arms of neighbor Ray McCarthy.

De Gaulle Frees 7,000 Algerians In Amnesty Move

PARIS (AP)—The government announced Tuesday night it is freeing some 7,000 Algerian rebels held in concentration camps without trial.

The new cabinet announced that in addition:

1. All French death sentences in cases where all appeals have been exhausted were commuted to life imprisonment. The number of Algerian rebels affected was estimated at 140 to 200.

2. All terms of prisoners in Algeria will be cut one-tenth and perhaps more.

3. Messali Hadj, a veteran nationalist leader detained for six years in France, will be freed. Although his influence with the rebels has declined, he will not be allowed to return to Algeria.

4. Mohammed Ben Bella, first deputy premier of the Algerian rebel government, and four associates captured with him in October, 1956, will be transferred from prison in Paris to a fortress at some unannounced place. Officials said this would make living more comfortable for them.

PEACE EFFORT

President de Gaulle had been expected to announce a new amnesty as one of his first presidential acts. But the announcement immediately aroused speculation that it was the first step in a new peace effort to bring peace to rebellious Algeria.

Transfer of the five rebel leaders amount to confirmation of de Gaulle of them as nationalists whom the French government have followed the view of Algeria's Europeans that the rebel leaders are fanatical Communists who did not represent any Algerian nationalism. The 9,000,000 Algerian Moslems.

So far there was no sign of violent opposition by European settlers in Algeria to the amnesty. In metropolitan France generally was favorable.

"The Paris press, including those papers generally welcomed the action. Some papers suggested it could open the way to new progress toward settlement of the Algerian rebellion.

On Oct. 22, 1956, Ben Bella and four of his chief associates were flying from Morocco to Tunisia for a conference with the leaders of those two countries, which had recently won freedom from France. French authorities in Algeria supported by pro-French planes, talked the French pilot of Ben Bella's Moroccan plane into landing in Algeria. The five rebel leaders were hustled off to Paris and prison, ending their secret contests from Morocco and Tunisia.

Mercy Killing Sentence Cut To Year in Jail

LONDON (Reuters) — The Court of Criminal Appeal has cut to one year's jail the term for manslaughter sentence imposed on Dorothy Goddard in the mercy killing of his 12-year-old invalid daughter.

Lord Chief Justice Hubert Parker, chief of the three - man court, today called the case tragic and said mitigating circumstances allowed a reduction in the sentence. Mrs. Williams Moodie, 47, three months ago by a lower court.

Moodie had admitted smothering his helpless daughter, Trishie, in the bed after the little child a drug at his home at Durham in northeast England. His wife was not in the room.

Moodie gave himself up to police, leaving a letter for his wife reading:

"As I write these lines I am blinded with tears.

"Trishie is sleeping upstairs. She will not wake up anymore.

"I have done this because I loved her.

"I love you also and am fraught with mental anguish in watching you fight a very long battle against ever - increasing odds.

"No punishment they can inflict on me could exceed what I have been reluctantly compelled to self-impose."

Fails to Win Seat

TORONTO (CP)—Reeve Marie Curtis of Long Branch was voted off the seven-member Metropolitan Toronto executive committee Tuesday in a secret caucus vote by the Metro council to choose the 1959 members.

She had been a candidate for a fourth consecutive term on the policy-making body.

It was because I opposed the subway," the housewife said afterward in a reference to her leadership of a delegation which opposed methods of financing the proposed $200,000,000 east-west rapid transit line.

Predicts North America Will Face Biggest Sales Boom in History During Next 10 Yrs.

TORONTO (CP)—North America will face its biggest sales boom in history during the next 10 years, Kenneth McFarland, education consultant for General Motors Corporation and one of the continent's top salesmen, predicted Tuesday.

Mr. McFarland, named top salesman in the United States in 1957 by the National Sales Executive Club, told a conference on sales management that "we need to build so many things in the next 10 years that their total value will exceed the value of all privately - owned property in North America now."

Mr. McFarland, one of five speakers at the conference sponsored by the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto, said that today, for the first time in 25 years, free enterprise was working as it was supposed to work.

It was headed for another short depression nor the flush of orderlytaking prevalent in the 1940s and early 1950s.

SUPPLY, DEMAND WORKING

"The rule book is working again, and the law of supply and demand is working again."

The lifeblood of free enterprise was selling, the process of bringing together money and merchandise.

Delegates heard criticism of the present North America merchandising system from Wilbur H. Johnson, vice - president of Capital Life Insurance Leonard G. Truesdale, vice-president and sales director of Zenith Radio Corporation.

Mr. Johnson said a salesman must fight for the quality of service which made him an honest man after the sale was complete, emphasizing that it is not enough to sell and then let, the buyer worry about repairs.

HULABOOP A SUCCESS

He also noted that "in the petrochemical, atomic, automatic country of the 20th century" — where tons of metal were put into orbit at a height of 11,000 miles, the greatest merchandising success of last year was the hula-hoop—which was made from a laboratory but out of somebody's head.

Mr. Truesdale said that in the sort of national bargain basement used by some salesmen too much emphasis is always on who can give the best deal, the most things, the biggest discount and the best trade in value.

The former president of national Frankenstein that walked into retail outlets with nothing but a dollar sign in its head.

"Discount houses are degenerating the retailing of America."

SICK MAN WINS LOTTERY

LONDON (Reuters)—A down-and-out former bricklayer won £2 to his name became £12,000 he won £15,000 for one penny in a soccer pools coupon. Tuesday he has lived on £3-a-week relief in a municipal lodging house since ill health put him give up work six months ago.

Posed, Practised as Doctor Man Faces 2 Court Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Brett, 28, of Regina is to appear in police court here today charged with issuing money by false pretences and uttering a forged document. Both counts has been entered.

Brett was arrested Dec. 19 at Regina in connection with an alleged boax at St. Paul's Hospital here when a man posed and practised as a doctor despite a lack of medical qualifications.

Brett allegedly claimed that last April he delivered three babies while posing as an intern between April 3 and 26.

Brett said in a newspaper interview he spent his first week at the hospital on medical wards treating cases that could be dealt with by medicine. The second week "I was on the eyes ears-nose-and-throat cases, and for the last week I was on call for the maternity ward from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. every day."

"I delivered three babies altogether but was assisted by obstetric nurses," he said. "The rest of my time as co-intern, I attended women who had already been delivered."

Brett, who later was a newspaper man in Prince George, B.C., said he prepared for his role by reading for two years and was inspired by Ferdinand Waldo Demara Jr., an American who entered the Royal Canadian Navy as a doctor during the Korean War.

"I did it to prove it could be done and to show how dangerous the system is," he said.

A hospital spokesman said at the time that a man calling himself Dr. Jack Harris, who attended to hospital officials that he was a doctor, was given exposed any patient to the slightest hazard.

Dr. A. Thompson, St. Paul's legal adviser, said in a prepared statement:

"Dr. Harris spent some time in various departments, including the department of medicine, and was under constant supervision.

"On one occasion he was called on to perform a lumbar puncture, and after a fumbling attempt in the presence of experienced nursing personnel in the department of medicine, he was relieved of the assistance to another intern who completed the diagnostic procedure.

"Dr. Harris was present in the maternity department during the delivery of six babies over a two-week period. In all cases the deliveries were made by competent and qualified medical men with the assistance of the entire personnel on duty in the department of obstetrics.

"During Dr. Harris's two-day stay in the maternity department his familiarization procedure was supervised by one of our five highly-qualified practitioners and specialists."

Maximum sentences if convicted are 10 years on the false pretences charge and 14 years for uttering a forged document.

MIKOYAN PROVES ADROIT ANSWERING QUESTIONS

During a speech before the world trades council in San Francisco, Calif., Anastas Mikoyan is caught in various displays of emotions as he addresses the crowd. He applauds throng as he is introduced, talks about trade, rits down to wipe brow under ovation, then partakes of California wine as question period comes up. He answered with surprising frankness many questions that should have proved embarrassing.

Producers Will Discuss Latest CBC Proposal

MONTREAL (CP)—CBC officials and representatives of 76 striking television producers were to meet at 10 a.m. EST today to discuss the CBC's latest settlement proposal.

The meeting to discuss the proposal was announced jointly by the two parties Tuesday night as the strike started to show increasing signs of unruliness.

An official of a CBC union which ordered its members to cross producers' picket lines was attacked on his doorstep, first attack on a person since the strike began Dec. 29. Six other unions continue to support the strike.

The producers walked off the job to force recognition of their Association des Realisateurs (CCCL). The CBC refused on the grounds that the producers are part of management and under federal law cannot form a labor union.

Details of the proposal to be discussed today were not made known, but it was believed to contain suggestions for redefining producers' responsibilities in an effort to reach common ground for settlement.

The producers' association also announced a mass meeting of CBC union members would be held today.

It said representatives of the Quebec Federation of Labor were to go to Ottawa today for talks with Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Next weekend 50 strike supporters from the Toronto area were expected to arrive, the producers said.

Four incidents in which paintfilled bottles were flung into the air Canada (ARTEC), was homes of CBC employees have been reported since the weekend. Brian Tanguay, vice-president of Montreal local of the Association of Radio and Television Employees of Canada (ARTEC), was attacked and beaten Saturday night as he opened the front door of his home.

The men jumped him and battered him about the head, bruising his forehead and shocking him down. They fled before he could identify them.

Three incidents reported 1,300 of its 2,600 employees at work are compared with 1,100 the day earlier. This included 620 of the 822 ARTEC members.

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec central council of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor Tuesday night asked Labor Minister Starr to step in to settle the strike of the CBC's French-network television producers.

Council Secretary Maurice Dussault said delegates from the 58 affiliated unions had agreed to send a telegram to the minister.

Mikoyan Suggests All Sides Agree to Inter Recent Past

It's a far cry from Nikita Khrushchev's visit of last year: "We will bury you."

Anastas I. Mikoyan, the No. 2 man in the Soviet Union, is touring across the United States telling the capitalists that the grave diggers have been told to wait.

Instead of burying the people opposed to Russia, Mikoyan is pleading that all sides agree to inter the past and work together to pave the way for what the deputy premier called a "hot peace" in place of the cold war.

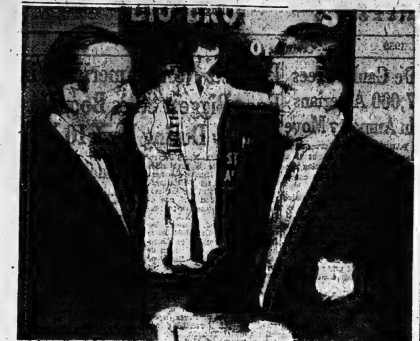
Everywhere he goes — to the government in Washington, to the businessmen of the Middle West and California and the bankers on Wall Street — Mikoyan has been hammering one main theme.

Let us forget the past and start again. We can talk and argue but let's not fight.

To do as he asks, a vast amount of pride would have to be swallowed in many capitals. It would involve overlooking the slaying of the Hungarian revolt, for example.

For political reasons, it may be impossible for the West to forget. Perhaps this is why Mikoyan appears to have created a warmer welcome from big business than from the government. His plain speaking has won admiration. One industrialist said in Cleveland:

"I'm just about the most anti-Communist businessman you can find. I have been following his arguments, trying to tear them to pieces. But I'm damned if he is telling the truth."



The unanswered question is what do the Russians hope to get out of Mikoyan's jaunt?

It isn't enough for a meeting of the leaders of Russia, the U.S. and Britain and perhaps other countries.

Mikoyan is asking for a new approach in the differences between the two great power blocs. He may also be seeking an agreement on Germany, the biggest single cause for distrust and dispute. A summit meeting on Germany and Berlin could logically be expanded to cover difficulties.

To arrange such a barley will require even greater salesmanship than Mikoyan demonstrated in the businessmen. President Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles, with whom he meets next week, will be seeking some written - in guarantees of success before they agree to face Khrushchev.

Metro Council Shies Away From Subway Fight

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto council eyed the high-level conflict in the Toronto Transit Commission Tuesday but finally voted to stay out of the scrap until the final settles.

The council, whose members represent Toronto and its 12 fringe suburbs, held its inaugural meeting even as the transit commission was convening another heated session at which Allan Lamport elaborated on the mismanagement accusation that marked his resignation Jan. 2.

Fred Gardiner, the Metro council chairman, said during his inaugural address he felt the executive committee should study a proposal that a judicial inquiry be conducted into TTC management. But he also said the executive's first action should be to get from Mr. Lamport a statement formally presenting his charges — among them one that the cars on the city's north-south subway system each are 10 tons over-weight.

Mr. Gardiner told the councillors the Metro-TTC partnership set to build the second subway — a much longer one along Bloor Street and University Avenue for $200,000,000 — won't be damaged by the TTC uproar unless the situation is a lot more serious than it looks at the moment.

FAVOR CLOSE SUPERVISION

At the TTC meeting, Mr. Lamport, who recently resigned as commission chairman, won support for a proposal to appoint four top-flight engineers to ride herd on the Bloor-University subway project. His opponents in the 3 to 2 vote were Commissioners Clive Sinclair and J. A. Scythes, against whom he had directed charges of non-support when he resigned. The chairman now is Charles Walton.

Mr. Lamport produced figures which he said substantiated his claim that power has cost $40,000 a year extra because of the over-weight cars.

General Manager W. E. P. Duncan said he wouldn't reply to the ex-chairman's complaints until he had them in full. Mr. Lamport replied he hoped to have them in writing today.

Wants Pageant On Toronto at CNE Show

TORONTO (CP)—If Toronto Controller Donald Summerville has his way, this city's first mayor will take the place of the usual big-name United States entertainer as the star of 1959's Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show.

Controller Summerville, also a CNE director, says he will urge the CNE board to make a pageant of Toronto's history the show's main attraction.

It would celebrate the 125th anniversary of Toronto's incorporation as a city, which falls this year.

Controller Summerville said he through a pageant centred about William Lyon Mackenzie, mayor of Toronto in 1834, would be more popular than the appearance of a U.S. star.

He said the show should be all-Canadian and the second half a variety show, perhaps starring TV stars Wayne and Shuster.

Govt. Claims Buildings on Right-of-Way

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto lawyer said today the department of transport has told 13 property-owners in the main business block of Port Colborne their buildings encroach two to three feet on the Welland Canal's right-of-way.

The department asks the owners to sign annual leases for the property, pay a nominal rent of $10 a year and agree to lean down the parts of the buildings which encroach if ordered to do so.

The government letters to the owners said the encroachment when a new survey was made. Mr. Slubley said he doubts the new survey is correct but even if it is he contends the owners have won title to the land by more than 60 years of undisturbed possession.

Mr. Slubley said he does not know what the government plans to do about the street allowance which runs between the canal and the properties.

"Even if they can establish title to the street they will be obliged to maintain the right-of-way which people have been using since before Confederation."

Former B.C. Chief Justice Dies at Home

VICTORIA (CP)—Gordon M. Sloan, former chief justice of British Columbia and for the last year foreign adviser to the B.C. government, died at his home here early today. He was 60.

Mr. Sloan was chief justice of B.C. from 1944 until about a year ago when he resigned to take up the foreign post.

Born in Nanaimo, B.C., in May 1898, he graduated from the University of British Columbia and was called to the bar of B.C. in 1921. He practised law until entering politics in 1933.

He was elected to the provincial legislature in 1933 and the same year was appointed attorney-general in the cabinet of Liberal premier T. D. Pattullo.

Mr. Sloan was appointed a justice of the court of appeal in 1937.

Reach Agreement On 3-Year Pact

CHICAGO (AP) — International Harvester Company and the United Auto Workers early today reached an agreement on a new three-year contract for 37,000 employees who have been on strike for two months.

The agreement, ratified by the UAW local harvester councils at a meeting Friday, would end the strike that forced the shutdowns of 19 Harvester plants, seven parts depots and three transfer points.

The principal gains in the new contract, a spokesman said, were an annual pay increase of six cents an hour or 2 1-2 per cent, whichever is greater, and the length of the new pact — three years. The new contract covers the period from last Aug. 31 to Oct. 1, 1961. Wages under the old contract averaged $2.55 an hour.

FARTHEST NORTH TV

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—Canada's northernmost television station opens Thursday in this British Columbia city, 800 miles northeast of Vancouver. Station CJDC-TV, the second low-powered television outlet to be licensed in Canada, will operate on 150 watts. Television aerials have already sprouted on 2,000 houses in this area, which has a population of more than 10,000.

BLAST RIPS PIPELINE

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — An explosion ripped apart a five-foot section of natural gas pipeline Sunday, hurling debris 30 feet and shaking residents awake in Kamloops, 18 miles away. The pre-dawn explosion near Barnhartvale, on the main Inland Natural Gas Company line to the Okanagan valley, tore up rocks and frozen earth but did little other damage.

to approve the killings and revolutionary leaders at first defended their course.

PUBLIC TRIAL

Castro told Havana Lions Club a public trial would be held in Havana's Central Park. He charged Batista's men murdered 450 persons at one time, apparently in Oriente, and 90 in one night in Mariano, adjoining Havana.

Agramonte termed the new government's death penalties "at least humane compared with the barbaric treatment accorded revolutionary soldiers when captured by Batista men."

One of Castro's commanders, Argentine physician Ernesto Guevara, said Americans should not cry about executions because they were "to blame for the napalm (fire bombs) and other bombs and the strafing that killed many innocent women and children."

The U.S. government supplied fighter planes, napalm and other weapons to Batista's government for hemispheric defence but had stopped all shipments by last April because they were being used against the rebels.

MODIFY CASINO BAN

Castro also announced a modification of the regime's previous ban on the lucrative gambling casinos which American interests established in Havana's luxury hotels under Batista.

He said the casinos, closed since his victory, could reopen for tourists and other foreigners but Cubans will be barred from them. He added that the casinos would be taxed heavily and the proceeds would go to charity.

HOME DAMAGED

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)— Fire caused heavy damage Tuesday to the three-storey home here of Otto A. Harbach, playwright and lyricist of Smoke Gets in Your Eyes. Harbach was at his New York apartment at the time.

Lord Altrincham Hits Anglican Church Dogma

LONDON (Reuters)—Lord Altrincham, outspoken peer whose comments on Queen Elizabeth touched off a Commonwealth-wide storm, said in an article today that "the present state of the Church of England is surely rather laughable." He said:

"It resists the authoritarian claims of the papacy and its clergy get very hot around their dog collars if the Pope propounds some new and highly-indigestible dogma.

"Yet the Anglican Church itself asserts a body of doctrine which no sane man can accept as necessarily true for all men."

Altrincham, editor of a monthly magazine, was writing in the first issue of the Birmingham Christian News, a newspaper published for Anglicans in that Midland diocese.

In the article, entitled "If I were Archbishop of Canterbury," the 36-year-old peer said he would refuse to attend pompous evening functions and be careful not to seem just another state official.

"Most English parsons are much happier talking about a Test (cricket) match than about the resurrection," he said.

Altrincham became the centre of an uproar when he criticized the Queen for being too remote from her people.

Pea-Soup Fog Shrouds London Store-Robbers

LONDON (Reuters) — A chill pea-soup fog worthy of a Sherlock Holmes thriller covered London today and criminals took advantage of it.

Brick-wielding smash-and-grab thugs broke store windows in five downtown raids during the night and flitted away in the murk before police could nab them.

Ice and fog snarled travel here and elsewhere in Britain. A freight train crashed through the middle of an empty passenger train at St. Helens, Lancashire.

Snow and ice gummed up road travel in wide areas of western Europe.

The situation improved in The Netherlands, where swollen rivers dropped and ferry, rail and bus services started again after a six-day layoff caused by gales, fog and snow.

In eastern France, soldiers and firemen were helping motorists caught by three-foot snowdrifts in the Moselle area.

Eastern France also had flood trouble, with the River Marne overflow soaking 100 houses in one village.

Do-it-Now Work Program Getting Into Full Swing

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's annual "do-it-now" program for stimulating winter employment is getting into swing in some 170 communities across the country.

Under the stimulus of the federal labor department, the program calls for a concerted drive to "do it now" on works ranging from home repairs to major outside projects during winter, the period of Canada's peak unemployment.

Provincial and municipal governments, community leaders and industry—particularly in the building and building materials trade—are co-operating in a concerted drive through advertising and other forms of support.

Daily and weekly newspapers and broadcasters have pledged support. Business firms and other organizations are contributing free advertising and other public city.

GENEROUS RESPONSE

"For every dollar we spend on advertising we get about $5 worth free," one federal official says.

Labor Minister Starr calls the general response "exceptional" this year. The program has been going on four years, with the current one the most extensive yet.

"The effect is bound to be beneficial to a certain extent this year, and to a much greater degree in succeeding winters through experience and positive results," he adds.

One phase of the program is a federally-assisted incentive plan for contributions towards municipal projects. The federal government pays 50 per cent of the direct payroll costs.

Mr. Starr said this week that so far $41,500,000 worth of winter-time projects have qualified for the assistance, involving payroll costs of $11,600,000. These would produce 900,000 man - days of work for 15,000 men not otherwise employed, or 60 days per man.

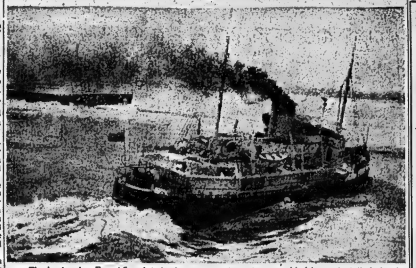
Army troops and native police drag a man across the street during recent rioting in Leopodville, Belgian Congo. The rioting involved African natives and Europeans. According to reports, 36 persons, all natives, were killed in clashes. The natives in the city have been growing restive and attempting to form a new political party.

Escapes Return To 'Pen' for Life For Minor Theft



HAMILTON (CP) — George King, 67, once sentenced to death for the murder of a policeman, was freed of a minor theft charge Tuesday that would have sent him back to Kingston penitentiary for life.

Police dropped charges of selling a rented refrigerator after King paid $50 from his pension fund. He had been remanded seven times.

A conviction would have meant the breaking of King's parole. He is on probation after being released last year from the penitentiary where he was serving a life term for the 1936 murder of county Constable oDnald Sherville at Orchard Beach in nearby Grimsby.

King was in penitentiary in 1941 on another charge when he confessed to slaying the constable.

He was sentenced to be hanged but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

Foxboro W.I. Hears Address By Dr. Loynes

The January meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was held in the school auditorium. This being the anual supper meeting, the husbands of the members were present. This year the Institute was privileged to have Mrs. E. David, Dr. Loynes, the Reeve and Councillors with their wives and the district president, Mrs. C. Reid, and her husband present.

Following the supper, Mrs. C. Hubble introduced the meeting in the usual way and introduced the guests of honor.

Mrs. M. C. Jamieson, as program convener, called on Mrs. J. Ewing, who spoke on the motto, "A merry heart kills more microbes than medicine".

Mrs. W. Rombough sang, "Squaws Along the Yukon".

Mrs. Hubble called on Mrs. Reid, president of the East Hastings Institutes who gave the following suggestions how to make the W. I. meetings more interesting: Try to be at the meeting place at least five minutes early; Ask a new person to attend the meeting and see that she has a way of getting to the meeting; take an interest in all correspondence; answer briefly all roll calls; be willing to work on committees; do not criticize — remember, "It is the little things that create differences".

Mrs. Jamieson, after thanking Mrs. Reid, asked Mr. A. Wickett, reeve of Thurlow to speak on behalf of the council, he thanked the members of the Institute for their invitation. He also stated it was a great source of satisfaction to any elected body to know that while each person votes as he or she wishes they have voted.

After thanking Mr. Wickett, Mrs. Jamieson again asked Mrs. Rombough to sing. This song was "Along With You".

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. W. Simmons introduced Dr. Loynes, of Belleville, the guest speaker of the evening. Dr. Loynes then introduced the physiotherapist of the mobile unit of the Canadian Arthritic Society of Belleville, and the physiotherapist, Miss P. McIldowie of New Zealand.

Dr. Loynes stated that there are 50,000 people in Canada who are disabled by arthritis and rheumatism; 15,000 people in Canada are either bedridden or in wheel chair due to arthritis or rheumatism; 6,000,000 work days a year are lost due to arthritis and rheumatism; 30 per cent of the people who have rheumatism or arthritis are between the ages of 18 and 50 years; one-third of the people who have heart trouble have been affected by rheumatism.

Dr. Loynes also said that as yet no cure for arthritis or rheumatism has been found, though scientists are working on it. He said the reason for the mobile unit is to be able to treat arthritic patients "in their own home, and to be able to treat more patients, some of whom might not otherwise receive books were loaned to subscribe treatment.

The film, "Never Surrender", which was produced in British Columbia and Alberta was shown and most enjoyed. This film was on the treatment of arthritis and showed some of the techniques used.

Freed of Charges

HAMILTON (CP)—A Hamilton woman—accused of stabbing her common-law husband — is free today of all criminal charges.

A Supreme Court grand jury today returned a no-bill indictment on a charge of manslaughter against Mrs. Eleanor Graham.

The mother of two was first charged with murder after 45-year-old Victor Selenuk staggered to a corner grocery store and died last October.

Harry Belafonte Saves New TV Hour by Bell Telephone

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bell Telephone Hour opened its series on NBC-TV Monday night with a program advertising the theme of adventure in music.

Personally, the only adventure I detected was whether I would last to the end.

I did, and I'm glad, because the last 20 minutes was the best of the hour. Then, Harry Belafonte sang ballads, folk songs and spirituals.

Members of the New York City Ballet offered a travesty on the dances of 40 years ago. But I enjoyed the background piano of Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale.

Efrenata Tebaldi, in excellent voice, sang selections from Madame Butterfly.

There also was some business of Maurice Evans speaking Ogden Nash verse set to the music of Carnival of the Animals while Baird puppets leaped about. I don't know what was behind this idea.

The program dispensed with that tired old television hack: the master of ceremonies. I could have used one to lead me through this wasteland.

Bess Myerson, the former Miss America who appears regularly on Big Payoff (CBS-TV, 3 p.m. EST week-days), told us the other day:

"I'm tired of hearing blasts against daytime television as being 'unimaginative'. Daytime TV shows offer more companionship and therapy to countless numbers of people than any of the evening programs.

"The daytimers are a God-send to thousands of shut-ins, who have no other means of 'escape.' They are companions to housewives who spend the major part of the day alone. They're a contact with the 'outside world' to a countless number of older people."

OVERCOME BY SMOKE

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A young father, Louis Borch, and his two-year-old son were carried from their blazing apartment here early Sunday after firemen found them overcome by smoke. Eight other persons fled the building. The fire was confined to the apartment.

Canadian Comedian Steals Show in London Theatre

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—"My name is Frank Berry," yells the big fellow on the stage. "I'm a Canadian."

The audience is predominantly male and predominantly bored. Nobody goes to the Windmill Theatre to see men perform. It's a place for well - endowed and scantily-clad chorus lines.

Undismayed he talks with machine-gun rapidity. He pulls one joke on top of another. Gradually the audience warms up.

MAKES A HIT

At the end of 12 minutes Berry leaves the stage to roar-ing applause. He is called back for bows.

Then colored lights cover the stage again and the audience gets an eyeful of the female anatomy which makes the Windmill famous.

"It's like this six times a day," says a Windmill employee.

"Berry steals the show—and the kid is only 21."

A few days later, after keeping a reporter waiting for an interview 10 minutes in the gangway leading to the girls' dressing rooms, Berry told his story.

"I started professionally in Vancouver when I was 14. I wasn't much good. I didn't get much applause. And I didn't get spoiled.

"I toured Vancouver night clubs and the interior of B.C. Then I came to London last April."

At first he was essentially a magician. When his gags overtook his tricks he pushed magic to the background.

IN VARIETY SHOW

He hooked on with a touring variety show in May. His jokes usually went over big. When they didn't he told his audiences:

"That's okay, I can always return to my old job of explaining dance routine to the sex fiends at the Windmill."

In July the Windmill gave him a six-week contract. He was the first Canadian comedian to star there.

Now he's on for seven weeks after a long night-club tour on the Continent. He has a three-month English tour coming up in the spring.

But he likes the Windmill best. "It's a real challenge for a comedian."

He tells the audience, "My mother would be shocked if she knew I was here—she thinks I still push dope in the States."

Graduates of the Windmill include such stars as Terry Thomas, Peter Sellers and Harry Secombe. Berry is shooting for bigger things, too.

"I want to make some kind of name over here, so I can go to the States in about three years and not have to play the dumps."

Legendary Land of Gauguin Not Paradise by Long Shot

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I've been to tougher locations in this country—on mountaintops in the Rockies and places that were infested with cattle market. But at least they were never billed as Paradise."

This sums up Edmond O'Brien's disillusionment after a three-month stay in Tahiti for a film location. The legendary land of Gauguin canvases isn't Paradise, O'Brien found out by a long shot.

French moviemakers tabbed Oscar winner O'Brien for an expensive movie of the South Seas, The Ambushers.

The location in Tahiti sounded like a dream.

Says O'Brien: "As scenery, Tahiti itself was a disappointment. In the first place, there isn't a white beach on the island. The natives fish, but you seldom see them swim; the lagoons are lined with coral that can cut you to ribbons.

ATTRACTED THE WORST

"Tahiti seems to have attracted all of the worst that Western civilization could have brought in. The place is filled with castaways of all kinds.

"The weather was murder. The average humidity was 84, and on some islands, 89. I sweated right through a mattress every night. There were no studios, so we had to shoot our interiors where we could. One picture had its roof, and you can imagine how that was, combined with our lights for the color camera."

On the credit side, O'Brien remarked that some of the island girls are indeed beauteous, par-ticular, part-Chinese.

"And some of the outlying islands are the way you imagine the South Seas," he said. "Especially Moorea and Bora Bora. Moorea resembles the Bali Ha'i of South Pacific. They were worth the trip."

Gonzales Good For Five Years

MELBOURNE (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, 30, says he is good for another five years as king of professional tennis.

His most likely successor?

He picks Peruvian Alex Olmedo.

"I don't see anybody around who I think can beat me," the tall, swarthy Mexican-American said today while still enjoying the fruits of a straight set victory over his chief rival, Lew Hoad.

Gonzales Tuesday night smashed Hoad 8-6, 6-3, 6-3 to go into the Victorian pro final tonight against Australia's Frank Sedgman.

Hoad had beaten him in their last meeting in Rome four months ago and there was talk the king was slipping.

But Hoad, although playing well, was helpless under Pancho's relentless attack Tuesday night.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie defenceman Dave Amadio scored three goals and his shot led to a fourth as Edmonton Flyers beat Vancouver Canucks 5-1 in a Western Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Amadio, a 20-year-old up from Hamilton Junior A Cubs, scored a goal a period, and in the first period his shot was blocked by Vancouver goalie Bruce Gamble before the netminder himself pushed it in. Frank Roggeveen got credit for that goal.

The win boosted Flyers' lead at the top of the prairie division to four points over second-place Calgary Stampeders, although Stamps have played six fewer games.

Canucks remained in second place.

In other games, Winnipeg Warriors defeated Saskatoon Quakers 7-3 and New Westminster Royals sank farther into the cellar of the coast division by downing a 4-3 overtime decision to Spokane Flyers.

SATS ENTRY UNDERATED

SANTIAGO, Chile. (AP)—Canada's entry in the world basketball tournament arrived here Tuesday. Coach Fred Cullen immediately said he thinks his 10-man squad has a better chance than most observers give them credit for. The tournament starts Friday, with Canada to open play in the third group of the round-robin tournament with Brazil, Russia and Mexico.

WANT KAPP

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders said Tuesday they hope to sign quarterback Joe Kapp of the University of California, one of the outstanding players on the Pacific Coast last fall. General manager Jim Finks said the Western Interprovincial Football Union club has made Kapp a "lucrative offer" and he is planning to meet with Kapp next week. Kapp was not drafted by the National Football League.

HOAD BEATEN

MELBOURNE (AP)—A capacity crowd of 9,000 packed the Olympic Velodrome Tuesday night to see Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles smash his way into the final of the Victoria pro tennis championship with an 8-6, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Lew Hoad. Australia's Frank Sedgman qualified to meet Gonzales in the final 8-6, 6-2.

Thursday by defeating Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has designated the week of January 24-February 1 as "Minor Hockey Week in Canada."

From coast to coast, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, hockey will pay tribute to the work being done for minor hockey. They will take time out to pay tribute to the men who make hockey possible for boys—the men who are the volunteer workers—the managers, coaches, local league secretaries and even those hard-worked guys, the volunteer referees.

For without these men there would be no minor hockey. And if no minor hockey, no hockey at all.

In Ontario, the week's observances will be held under the ages of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, the greatest organization of its kind in the world.

The OMHA, in turn, is co-operating with other CAHA athletors to make Minor Hockey Week a successful venture. Its executive members, Doug Patterson of Stirling, and Albert Watkins, Peterborough, in this district, are even now laying the groundwork for the week in lining up special programs.

Special nights will be held in practically every city, town and hamlet where hockey is played — and that means almost every community in the country. Teams will be holding their own "Minor Hockey Night" during the week, featuring special programs, important games, lucky draws and door prizes.

OMHA president Jack Oakes and every member of his executive will be "on the road" every night of the week visiting as many communities as possible.

There will be press interviews, radio and television appearances for every phase of minor hockey — players, coaches, managers, secretaries, referees, and individual members of the OMHA executive, thus covering every field of endeavor connected with the training of better Canadian citizens through participation in minor hockey.

WELL DESERVED

The Ontario Hockey Association, we are informed, has conferred a well-deserved honor on its president, Lorne Cook of Kingston. President Cook will represent his organization at the world hockey tournament being held in Prague. The suggestion that the OHA send its proxy overseas, we are told, came from the management of the Belleville McFarlands hockey club.

There is not an individual, or anything else in the Eastern Ontario senior hockey circuit, who will begrudge Mr. Cook the trip, or raise a dissenting voice. He has earned it —and earned it well.

The overseas junket holds more for the OHA president than merely seeing a Canadian team battle to retain the world's amateur hockey championship. The fact that a Belleville team is carrying the nation's banner on its shoulders has more than passing interest for the officials. After all, he is a former Belleville boy and was associated with hockey here before he moved to Kingston.

That he has earned the honor goes without saying. He has been a faithful worker for the Eastern Ontario Hockey League for many years. He toiled long and hard as its convener and back in the balmy senior "O" days, doing a grand job besides his work as an OHA executive member.

He still carried on during his vice-presidency, and retained his convener job during the past two years as head of the hockey organization. Convening a senior hockey league, especially one of senior "A" calibre is a thankless task at its best. Keeping sometimes temperamental managers and other officials on a friendly basis is no sinecure, but Mr. Cook has managed to do this, sometimes when things did not look too rosy.

He has handled the administrative work of the eastern league in a superlative manner, drawing schedules, looking after pools and fluttering the dove of peace on more than one occasion. And one of the staunchest supporters the Mace will have in Prague will be Lorne Cook, president of the OHA.

BOOSTERS MEET TONIGHT

The McFarlands Booster Club is holding a very important meeting tonight, and President Armand Duffy would like to have as many members as possible out. The get-together is scheduled for the city hall at eight o'clock.

There is a lot of important business on the agenda and the club executive wants a big turnout on hand to hear and take part in the various discussions. All Boosters should make it a point to be at the meeting.

Mikita Sparks Teepees Win Over Petes

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Despite a broken wrist, St. Catharines TeePees' Stan Mikita outscored his closest rival two goals to one Tuesday night as TeePees edged Peterborough Petes 4-3.

Mikita is the leading scorer in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series. He got both his goals in the first period, the first after only a minute and 13 seconds of play. Other TeePees scorers were Ted Wright, also in the first, and Wayne Hillman who got the winner at 7:46 of the third. Wayne Connelly, who is second in the league scoring race, scored the only goal of the second period. Bill Mahoney scored in the third and Bob Babcock tallied at 4:41 of the first.

The win left TeePees nine points ahead of the second-place Petes.

Mikita showed his back-checking ability as well as he set two minutes of the game when with Pat Stapleton and Don Grosse he held off Petes' power plays after Hillman and Chico Maki got penalties.

Peterborough kept TeePees on their toes throughout and controlled play in the final four minutes. Both goalies, Jacques Caron of Petes and Dennis Delordy of St. Catharines, made spectacular saves.

Wings' 6-Footer Rearguard Improved Slowly With Years; Began Hockey Life as Wing

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The results of the mid-season voting for the National Hockey League's all - star team was greeted by the expected quota of anguished cries and outraged astonishment, but at least one selection met with general approval.

That was the choice of Detroit Red Wings' Rene Marcel Pronovost, a 26-year-old hardrock rearguard, for one of the first-team defensive spots.

In choosing the solidly-built six-footer the selectors rewarded the quiet determination with which Pronovost has set about learning the skills which have made him one of the league's best defencemen.

His growth to all-star status has been slow but sure since he became a regular member of the Red Wings back in the 1951-52 season. His progression from a position on the second all-star team last season to first team all-star mid-season show he is still improving.

PLAYED FORWARD

Not a natural defenceman like teammate Red Kelly or Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens, Pronovost, a native of Lac Tortue, Que., began his hockey life as a forward.

He attracted Detroit scouts as a left wing and centre but when he turned professional at 19 with the Omaha Knights of the United States Hockey League it was as a defenceman.

But he hadn't forgotten his scoring prowess and with the Knights he set a league record for points collected in a season, 94, won the league's rookie award and was called up to Detroit the next season.

Midway through the season Wings sent him to Indianapolis Capitols of the American Hockey League to learn some of the finer points from coach Ott Heller and though he played only 24 games at the Capitols he ended up on the league's second all-star team.

Next year he was in the NHL to stay.

MAY BE BEST YEAR

Each year there was steady improvement both in defensive play and the effectiveness of his rushing attacks and this year, with five goals and 14 assists after 30 games, may be his best ever in a scoring way.

Although his rugged features and the faint scars of many a flying stick make Pronovost look like a typical product of the rock'em sock 'em defensive school he usually gets a little more than 50 minutes in penalties during a season and off the ice he is a quiet, studious person who has made himself, with the same application he brings to hockey, one of the game's most bilingual players.

Detroit fans recognized him in 1956 when they awarded him their annual trophy as the team's most unsung player, but now Pronovost is coming into his own around the league.

Leafs Invite Fidel Castro To Open Season

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Hockey League have invited Cuban rebel leader Fidel Castro to open Cuba's baseball season here April 29 when Leafs meet Havana Sugar Kings.

Castro, a former pitcher in Cuban minor baseball, is expected to accept an invitation to open the Havana season when Leafs play there April 14.

Leaf general manager Rudy Schaffer confirmed Tuesday congratulating him on the rebel victory.

He added: "Your appearance here for this big occasion will further your excellent relations with Canadian public. We also extend a cordial invitation to join other Canadian and American celebrities as our guest at the old-timers baseball club dinner the night before."

Meanwhile, it is reported that the Cuban situation will be discussed at the International League meeting Jan. 30 in Montreal.

Writers Name Charlie Burns Outstanding Athlete of 1958

TORONTO (CP) — Charlie Burns, who came back from a critical head injury to write a dazzling hockey success story last year, has been named Ontario's outstanding athlete of 1958 by the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association.

A year ago, Burns was named assistant manager as Canada's senior hockey championship at Oslo when he helped Whitby Dunlops bring the title back to Canada. Last fall, he successfully made the jump to professional Hockey League ranks with Detroit Red Wings.

The 47 association members, participating in the voting made the 27-year-old forward a narrow choice over Ron Howell, brilliant native - born end of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four football union. Each voter made three choices. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis and Burns wound up with 85 against 80 for Howell, who last fall was picked as the outstanding native Canadian in the country's pro football leagues.

SKULL FRACTURED

Burns, a native of Detroit who was brought up in Toronto, suffered a double skull fracture and blood clot on the brain in practice with Toronto Marlboro Juniors of the Ontario Hockey Association before the 1954-55 season. For a time it was feared he might not recover. And when he did, after a delicate brain operation, doctors doubted he would ever play any sport again.

With a silver plate in his skull, he was playing baseball two months after leaving hospital. Then he returned to hockey. First, he played in a Toronto industrial league when Marlboros, sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL, declined to take a chance on another injury. Then he was accepted by Marlboros, wearing a special helmet for protection, and he helped them win the Canadian junior championship.

In 1957, he helped Whitby win the Allan Cup and played in the world tournament last year, giving up a chance at a professional baseball tryout to stick to hockey.

He is the first-team player to win the award since it was inaugurated in 1951. All others were individual athletes. Last year's winner was golfer Al Balding, also the choice in 1956. Golfer Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto was named in a three-time winner, 1951; 1953 and 1958. Golfer Gerry Kesserling was picked in 1952 and swimmer Marilyn Bell in 1954.

The award will be presented at the association's annual $25-a-plate sports celebrities dinner for crippled children in Toronto Feb. 4. Proceeds of the dinner, marking opening of the annual country-wide Easter Seals campaign, go to the Canada Society for Crippled Children.

Ray Favored Over Maravilla

CHICAGO (AP)—Roque Maravilla of Boise, Idaho, 22-year-old light-heavyweight with 18 knockouts to his credit, tonight makes his television boxing debut against No. 5 contender, Sonny Ray.

Ray, 23 - year - old counter puncher and body punisher who came up through Chicago's small clubs, has won eight of his last nine bouts and is a 2-to-1 favorite.

The fight will be televised starting at 10 p.m. EST by ABC.

In his last outing, Nov. 14, Ray made an impressive but losing battle with the No. 1 rated contender, Tony Anthony, in Madison Square Garden. He also is the only fighter ever to defeat Jesse Bowdry, doing it three times.

Maravilla lost two of five starts in 1958, including a defeat by Eddie Cotton in his last time out, Dec. 11, in Boise. Cotton is among Ray's victims.

Maravilla, who came up through the golden gloves ranks, has 18 kayoes in a 29-4-2 record.

Big Four, WIFU Officials Gather for Important Talks

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Representatives of the nine clubs of the two major Canadian professional football circuits gather here Thursday to prepare for the annual Big Four Football League meetings which continue through Sunday.

The eastern Big Four, which held its annual meeting in Montreal in December, is over considerable business to be dealt with at Winnipeg before the delegates go into the CFL huddles, under Canadian football commissioner C. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union will hold its annual meeting while the Big Four will apply its loose ends.

Several proposals — ranging from minor changes to drastic ones — are expected to be kicked around at the CFL meetings, which combines the Big Four and WIFU.

The least two clubs—Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders—are reluctant to leave the rules as they are.

Jake Gaudaur of Hamilton, Big Four president, says he is in favor of two or three minor rule changes, but cares to discuss them only at a league level.

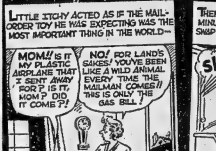
Montreal Alouettes, Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders have expressed a desire for unlimited backing for all linemen —something that has knocked around for several years. At present, linemen can block up to the third five-yard stripe beyond the line of scrimmage.

Lew Hayman, Argos general manager, says he is not in favor of additional blocking by backfielders as, with the backs already in motion, it could result in a return torpedoer football and increased injuries.

British Columbia Lions, Montreal and Edmonton Eskimos have proposed the use of more blocking by backfielders.

Several clubs want the harsh marks moved to 20 yards from the sidelines instead of the present 25.

The Lions, WIFU tailenders, are seeking the most drastic changes. They want unlimited imports—so far not supported by any of the other eight clubs—and failing that, unlimited changes of imports.



LEAVES ON TRYOUT

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—John Santesso, 23-year-old Italian-born soccer player promised a tryout with a Scottish league team, will fly to Preswick Saturday to begin a week's training with Glasgow Celtic. Santesso played centre forward on last year's Welland Italians in the Southern Ontario Soccer League.

Northern Kids Feel Lack Of Ice Time

TIMMINS (CP)—Young hockey players of Northern Ontario aren't skating as well as those of the last decade, says Jimmy Skinner, head scout of the National Hockey League's Detroit Red Wings.

Skinner, former Red Wing coach now on a scouting trip of Northern Ontario, figures a lack of ice time may be hampering today's youngsters.

Such players as Ted Lindsay, now with Chicago Black Hawks, Dean Prentice of New York Rangers and Bert Olmshchich, Allan Stanley and Dick Duff, all of Toronto Maple Leafs, are among current NHL players who played their early hockey in the Kirkland Lake-Timmins area.

Macs Hand Whitby Dunlops Decisive 6-Defeat

Three Goals in 1st Chapter Set Stage for Brilliant Win In Thrilling All-Out Battle

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

If any European hockey spotters were in the cheering crowd of some 2,500 fans in Memorial Arena last night, the McFarlands were not looking.

In a brilliant two-way display, they came up with the brand of hockey that earned them a national championship, decisively defeating the Whitby Dunlops 6-3 in a spine-tingling battle of champions.

It was the Dunlops final appearance on Belleville ice this season, and their second defeat at the hands of the Hildebranders.

Bolstered by Billy Graham, former Vancouver Canucks and well known pro football star and Dennis Boucher of the Quebec League, the McFarlands were full value for their victory despite the fact they were outshot 29-26 in the game. . . . . .

They ripped home four goals, three in the first period before the Dunlops broke the scoring ice in the second frame. The world champions held a territorial edge in the third period but the teams split a pair of goals with penalties playing an important part. It was the worst defeat suffered by the Dunlops this season.

The Dunlops lost some of their two-way strength by protesting too loudly over official decisions. Ted O'Connor objected to the fourth Belleville goal scored by McLellan and was given a ten minute misconduct. He persisted in arguing and was tabbed with a game misconduct. Harry Sinden was also given a misconduct. Including these, the Dunlops were assessed seven of the game's thirteen sentences handed out by Referee Vern Goyer.

Boucher sent the Macs away on their victory march with the first goal of the game. He also drew an assist. Paul Payette, however paced the Macs' goal parade with a pair and an assist. Other snipers were Ike Hildebrand, Minnie Menard and Johnny McLellan. Jean Paul Lamirande had three assists with Smrke, Graham, Dewsbury, Brown and Bradley getting singles.

The first period saw the Macs flash the most spirited drive seen here in some time and they took a territorial advantage outshooting the world champions 10-4.

Dennis Boucher making his debut in a Macs livery, marked the occasion with a blazing drive high in a corner to put the Macs one up after four minutes of play with Payette and Lamirande assisting.

The Macs were sailing in high gear and they smashed home the second goal of the chapter at 9.50, Ike Hildebrand streaking down the left boards to beat Henderson cleanly with a low hard shot. Wiener Brown and Clart Bradley were in on the kill.

At 14.34 Chaszewski drew his second penalty of the period and the Macs lost little time taking advantage of the manpower advantage. They rapped rearward on a power drive and Minnie Menard's hard shot found a corner to give the Alma Cuppers a 3-0 lead. Al Dewsbury was cashed for interference with seconds to go in the period.

Tempers began to fray in the fiery second period when the Dunnies drew four of the seven penalties imposed. Dewsbury drew his second sentence of the game at three minutes and Bell came up with some sparkling saves to keep the goal-hungry world champions at bay.

On a breakaway Johnny McLellan tipped home Lou Smrke's pass and the Whitby team, swarmed around Referee Goyer in protest. Ted O'Connor argued long and loud claiming the official had the thumb on McLellan but the goal stood and O'Connor drew a misconduct, then a game misconduct for his arguments.

Paul Payette was thumbed for his second penalty of the season and the Dunlops surging power play paid dividends Johnny Hassard scoring from a ranging attack with Air and Myles getting assists.

Floyd Crawford was thumbed but the Macs loaned back the Whitby power plays. The defencemen were content back on the ice when the Macs hurled their power at Henderson. Paul Payette rifled the puck into the net in the goalmouth scramble with Hagar and Graham assisting but Long John Henderson came away out of his net in hot protest over the goal.

Bobby Attersley was chased at 16.53 and Harry Sinden was the third Dunlop to voice his protests. When he hurled his stick down the ice he was promptly tabbed with a misconduct penalty. Whitby edged the Macs 11-10 in the shooting department.

The Dunlops threw their vaunted third-period comeback power at the Macs in the final chapter, outshooting the Hometown 14-8 on the play. But they failed to crash a stubborn McFarland defence and when they came close Cordia Bell tapped back everything but one shot.

Crawford was thumbed at 1.43 and from there to mid-period the Dunnies staged an all-out offensive in a desperate effort to whittle the margin. They cut the Macs' lead to 3-2 at 9.31 when Bobby Attersley returned to the scoring column on a neat passing play with Samolenko and Gordie Myles.

Three minutes later Crawford again got the gate and the world champions returned to the offensive. Then Jean Paul Lamirande grabbed a loose puck and surged into the clear. He slipped the puck to Paul Payette in full stride and the stylish centre raced in alone on Henderson to score a pretty goal.

Flori Goegan broke into the clear seconds later but his hard drive went over the net as he blasted in on Long John's domain.

The Dunnies fought to the end but Bell and company checked and fought brilliantly for their victory. With seconds to go Alfie Treen was chased and that was the game as far as the Dunlops were concerned.

Casper Defends 'Crosby' Title

That news isn't so good for the 300 qualifiers who start the rounds on three courses Thursday, but Casper, Gary Middlecoff, who walked off with most of the loot in 1955 and 1956, can't come.

Middlecoff is tied down in the East on business.

Casper won last year's event with a 277. And he teamed with Bob Reynolds, amateur and former Stanford football star, for second money in the pro-am.

Last year's pro-am was won by pro Jay Hebert and Roger Kelly, Los Angeles lawyer, with a best ball total of 260. Hebert is back this year.

Singer Bing Crosby annually gives $15,000 to the tournament which he started in 1937 as sort of a friendly clambake. To that is added $35,000 by the television sponsor of the Sunday finals.

The take from admissions, programs and concessions goes to charity.

Comedian Bob Hope (handicapped at 10) is teamed with veteran Jimmy Demaret and movie actor Randolph Scott with Canadian Stan Leonard, who plays out of Lachute, Que.

Macs Presented With $1,000 By Province

The Province of Ontario presented the McFarlands Hockey Club overseas fund with a cheque for $1,000 last night.

The presentation was made in Memorial Arena between the second and third periods of the Macs-Whitby Dunlops hockey battle.

Representing the government was Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A. Hastings West, who presented the cheque to Mayor Gerald Hyde, treasurer of the fund.

Also present at the presentation ceremonies was Mayor Harvey J. McFarland of Picton.

"With this cheque for $1,000 goes the best wishes of the Province of Ontario to the McFarlands in their quest for the world hockey championship," Mr. Sandercock said. "We in Ontario know the Macs will do a good job in Europe and will be a credit to their province and their country."

A packed arena gave the ceremony participants a tremendous ovation as they were introduced individually by the Macs Booster Club past president Dick Beare.

Rough Riders To Promote Rule Changes

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders will try to promote two rule changes at this week's football talks in Winnipeg.

The proposed changes, which would tend to open up the game and possibly provide more opportunities for longer runs, are unlimited blocking by the seven linemen and shifting the hash marks to 20 yards from the sidelines. They are 15 now.

Jim McCaffrey, the Ottawa club's general manager, said the rules will be formally discussed at the meetings this week. This will be done when the new Canadian Football League's rules committee meets Feb. 7-8.

However, there is no doubt that the other eight clubs in the CFL will be informally approached on the rule changes.

The Winnipeg meetings starting Thursday are to be made up of separate annual meetings of the Big Four and WIFU, and a general meeting of the CFL.

Major items on the agenda of the CFL are to up last year, approval of a constitution, import rules, standardization of player contracts, and the college draft.

Resignation of Grid Coach Places Army Brass in Tizzy

By ED CORRIGAN

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—Army today began the long quest for a new football coach and athletic director while failing to unearth a clue on the mystery of why a coach on top of the world should abruptly quit.

Earl (Red) Blaik, fresh from an undefeated season and the toast of the coaching set for his "lonely as" stance last year, resigned Tuesday, effective Feb. 15, his 62nd birthday.

His only reason:

"This is the proper time to withdraw from college sports, as my thought-provoking career is unthinkable."

Army brass said they were caught flat-footed. Only a little over a month ago, Blaik said that he'd "only add offscreen—and no end is sent far out on the flank and doesn't even take part in the huddles—had merely scratched the surface.

Why would Blaik resign so suddenly a coaching job that he had held for 18 years?

IDEAS OFFERED

There are several theories:

1. His health. It has been said that he has a bad stomach and the steadily increasing pressures of the game are getting to be too much.

2. He was at odds with Gen. Gar Davidson, academy superintendent. This he has denied.

3. He was at the end of his rope trying to convince the brass to permit Army to play post-season bowl games and thus gain additional prestige.

4. He wanted to be able to have prospective players tutored before taking the entrance examinations, just as Navy has been doing.

The last two offer the most logical reasons. At the end of last season, when Army compiled a record of eight victories, no defeats and one tie, the cadets were certain bowl timber. But the policy of higher-ups was against it.

Blaik says: "Within a reasonable time I shall accept one of several opportunities either in television or business."

LURE PHILLIES

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—A bill designed as a first step toward a stadium to lure Philadelphia Phillies to New Jersey was introduced Tuesday in the state senate. The bill would permit county boards of freeholders to set up authorities to build and administer recreation projects. Specifically, the bill would permit the creation of a five-man authority to build the proposed stadium on a site near Camden, across the Delaware River from Philadelphia.

Dodgers Have Prize Prospects

NEW YORK (CP)—Of the 16 rookies on the Los Angeles Dodgers' 1959 roster, it is safe to say that a trio of young outfield hopefuls — Ron Fairly, Frank Howard and Don Miles—are the prize prospects.

But the Dodgers aren't ruling out a young Canadian pitcher from Dorchester, N.B. Billy Harris, a 28-year-old fast-baller with a 14-19 record at Montreal, may be the best of the Dodger rookie pitchers the Dodgers are screening.

Fairly, only 20, is a sorrel-top bonus baby who majors in finance at the University of Southern California in the off-season and seems destined for a long and fruitful career in the National League.

Brought up to the parent club toward the end of the season, the right-handed batter came through with a home run, one of the longest hit by a Dodger all season. The Dodger boss thinks that with another year at either Spokane or Montreal he'll be ready for the majors.

Miles, also 22, is a lefthanded hitter who collected 23 homers with Victoria of the Texas League and St. Paul. Last year he was tabbed by the Dogertown spring training brain trust as the best new player since Mickey Mantle.

Five pitchers, a catcher, five infielders and as many outfielders comprise the new batch of Dodgers. Besides Harris, tabbed as the best of the pitchers, there are Rene Valdes, 28, 15-14, at Montreal; Bob Giallombardo, 20, 12-9 at Montreal; Ralph Mauriello, 24, 8-11 at Victoria and Spokane; and Larry Sherry, 23, 6-14 at Spokane. All but Giallombardo are righthanders.

Watson Takes 'Punch' at Punch But It Is Probably Fan Bait

TORONTO (CP) — New York Ranger coach Phil Watson's opinion of the services being done Toronto Maple Leafs by fellow National Hockey League coach George (Punch) Imlach:

"What an operator that Imlach is. He always leaves the door open. I bet he has an escape hatch at Maple Leaf Gardens just in case. And don't bet he won't have to use it."

The comments probably were made to add a little drawing power when Rangers (three points out of second place) meet the Leafs (one point out of fifth) tonight here.

Watson continued:

"I notice he's been keeping pretty close track of how Leafs have been making out since he took over as coach. He keeps telling everybody 'look what I'm doing. See how the team has improved!'

"Who's he trying to kid? He's been with Leafs since the season started, hasn't he? What was he doing as manager before he fired Billy Reay? Cleaning the ice?

HEAVILY SARCASTIC

"So Imlach has been running the whole show for more than a month. What has he done besides making stupid forecasts? He's brought Leafs all the way from last place to sixth (in a six-team league). For that they should name him coach-of-the-year.

"Imlach isn't fooling anybody at least not those who know him. He'll bust his money belt taking bows if Leafs win. But when they don't make the playoffs who'll get the blame? Poor old Billy (Reay)."

CARSTAIRS, Alta. (CP)—Mel Fredell, a member of the Carstairs hockey team, died Monday night after a fall during a hockey game.

Orioles Sign Hoyt Wilhelm

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles announced today that Hoyt Wilhelm, who pitched a no-hit game against New York Yankees last September, has signed his 1959 contract.

Except for the knuckler, the 35-year-old knuckleballing right-hander had a hard-luck season in 1958. He compiled an earned run average of 2.34 but his won-lost record was 3-10.

Duke Signs For $40,000

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Duke Snider has signed his 1959 contract with Los Angeles Dodgers and will draw $40,000.

The duke received slightly more than that in 1958 and he took the token cut in good grace Tuesday. He told general manager Buzzy Bavasi of the injured knee that kept him out of the lineup from time to time is greatly improved.

Hounds Oppose Suggestion for 6-Team Playoffs

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP)—Opposition was expressed by the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds Monday to the suggestion that the senior OHA-NOHA series adopt a playoff system involving all six teams in the circuit.

Sault Hockey Promotions Limited, financial sponsors of the Greyhounds, sent a telegram to league administrator Lloyd Pollock, of Windsor, asking that the playoffs "remain the same with the four top teams only."

It was suggested during the weekend by North Bay Trappers, supported by Windsor Bulldogs, that a full-league playoff be arranged in order to bolster the clubs' finances.

The Greyhounds club indicated it did not think the suggestion that all teams participate in the finals was fair to the fans. There had been no word on how the suggestion had been received by Sudbury Wolves, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen or Chatham Maroons.

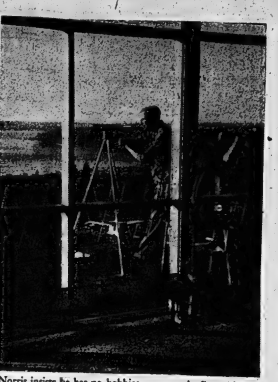
Len Norris, Cartoonist

Satire Softened with Whimsy



Len Norris is a mild-mannered, droll Canadian who regards the quirks and eccentricities of his fellow countrymen with an amused if disenchanted eye. For the past 20 years he has used his sharply satirical cartoonist's pen to poke good-humoured fun at the foibles of Canadians and to underline with a wit that may be barbed, but never vicious, some of the old world threads which run through contemporary Canadian culture. He was born in London, England in 1913, "within the sound of Bow Bells if the forecast was rain"; emigrated to Canada, settling in southern Ontario, when he was 12. Like most artists in the uncertain days of the '20s, he worked at a vast array of jobs from draftsman for the Port Arthur City Engineer to workman on Toronto's coal docks. During the war he served with Army Headquarters in Ottawa, created and edited an army manual, sweetening difficult technical information with a lavish sprinkling of zany cartoons. For his efforts Norris was later awarded an M.B.E. In 1950 he moved to the West Coast where he works for a large Vancouver newspaper. Norris avers he knows nothing about politics; refuses to turn our political cartoons. He prefers to depict the comical in the commonplace, with a born humorist's unillusioned eye for seeing the ridiculous in the sublime. In 1951 he was unanimously awarded the National Newspaper Award in Cartooning. Norris has created a wonderful world of waspish women, walrus-moustached men, and fiendish little children, in whom thousands of Canadians daily see, if not themselves, at least their friends and neighbours.

Although he is largely self-taught, Norris' drawings are greatly admired for their technical excellence.

Norris' talented right hand is insured for $125,000. Original drawings for his cartoons hang in the offices of public officials from Buckingham Palace to the Parliament Buildings in Victoria, B.C.

Norris insists he has no hobbies — except loafing. Above, he relaxes from his "five cartoons a week" contract on the balcony of his west Vancouver home, keeps a keen eye cocked on activities in the harbour which sprawls below.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain at the same time. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Most amazing of all—the improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make the statement "hemorrhoids have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is a wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Swearing Parrot Will Likely Live 100 Years, Always Curse

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The distressing thing about a swearing parrot is that he will probably live for 100 years and never give up the habit.

It seems you can scold him, starve him and threaten to slay him and that cursed parrot will still swear like a drunken sailor.

So it is not suprising that respectable parrot - lovers should take a dim view of Polly's impurities.

A group of them got together when their parrots went on display at London's national exhibition of cage birds, and while the judges listened to these talking birds go through their nice, clean nursery rhymes, the owners chatted about their problems.

"The environment means everything," said one exhibitor. "A parrot reared in a decent home will develop a similar temperament and vocabulary."

ADVISE COMPLIMENTS

Another suggested that parrot-psychology should get top priority. "When he says something nice let him know you like it, and when he starts to swear, ignore him."

Sometimes, he said, the parrot will forget certain phrases, providing the owner is willing to wait, say 25 years or so.

Because some parrots live so long it is possible for one bird to have half a dozen homes. This is where problems can arise.

One of the exhibitors who works in a pet shop made his business sound like a child - adoption agency. He must show great discretion in placing his parrots.

FOR INSTANCE

Here is just one example: "Occasionally we get a parrot that has been raised in a pub, and a clergyman might drop in and take a liking to that bird. . .

"Now there's a problem, mate."

He said he wouldn't sell it to the clergyman.

"It wouldn't be fair to the parrot."

He explained that a parrot used to the noise and crowds in a pub would be bored in a quiet home.

"And there is a likely chance he will have picked up such phrases as 'fill her up, guv'nor' and 'shut the bloody door.'"

He said it would also be unfair to take a parrot away from children and put it in a home with old folks. At the same time he wouldn't consider taking a bird from a ship and giving it to children.

"Dealing with parrots is a highly specialized job," he said, proudly.

POTENTIAL EQUAL

The exhibitors say that although parrots are traditionally the worst offenders for swearing, all talking birds have equal potentials for developing the art. But it seems other species, like the budgerigar, usually spend more time with the ladies. Their language is more refined.

To illustrate this point, one exhibitor took a reporter on a tour of the talking bird section.

The first budgie was owned by a woman. It said, "you are a naughty boy."

The second belonged to a man. His statement: "Mind your business."

The third, a woman's, said: "Hello my darling."

Under male ownership, another screeched: "Shut up."

"It's sad to see birds from unhappy homes," said the exhibitor.

Western Powers Study Possible Talks With Reds

LONDON (Reuters) — The possibility of a meeting between the Western powers and the Soviet Union on the future of Germany was under study in Western capitals today despite the rejection by Russia of Western suggestions for such talks.

Diplomatic observers said Saturday's Soviet note proposing a conference on a German Peace treaty rejected the contacts suggested by the West although little publicity had been given to this facet of the Russian document.

The Western powers, in notes to Moscow Dec. 21, proposed talks on "the question of Berlin in the wider framework of negotiations for a solution of the German problem as well as that of European security."

On Sept. 30 the Western powers had said they were ready to discuss any proposals genuinely designed to ensure the reunification of Germany in freedom."

But the Soviet note rejected combined talks on Berlin Germany and European security. It said the Soviet government is convinced that the problem of European security calls for a special discussion and cannot be lumped together with other questions, including the Berlin issue."

Nixon Believes Defence Program Quite Adequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon has indirectly invited a sweeping inquiry by Congress into President Eisenhower's defence program. The Democrats are ready to give it a thorough going-over.

Nixon, who sat in on preparation of the budget, told fellow Republicans he is satisfied Eisenhower's military proposals will stand up under the most minute examination by the Democratic-controlled Congress.

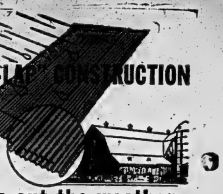
It is Nixon's belief, as relayed by those with whom he has discussed the matter, that Eisenhower's planned program will keep over-all U.S. military power ahead of Russia, so that there will be no future "blackmail gap" in relative defence strength.

Eisenhower has said the new $77,000,000,000 budget he will send to Congress next Monday will include $7,000,000,000 for all types of missiles and related armament.

MISSILE POWER ISSUE

Relative missile strength is one of the issues the Senate preparedness subcommittee expects to investigate as soon as Congress is fully organized.

Nixon has conceded that the U.S. is behind in both the missile and satellite fields. But he told associates he is confident the rate of American development now exceeds that of the Russians.



However Democratic Senator Stuart Symington (of Missouri) does not agree that the U.S. program is paced fast enough to catch up with the Russians.

Symington challenged Nixon in the Senate Monday to prove that the United States is ahead of Russia in intercontinental missiles. Nixon made no public reply.

Eastern Steel manufactures several distinct types of metal roofing and siding—each designed with a different application in mind. To help you choose the right covering, write today for your free copy of Bulletin 140, showing the best roofing, siding and accessories for the covering job you have in mind.

Remember, when applying Eastern Steel roofing or siding be sure to use 'Preston' spiral shank Led-Hed nails—the roofing nails with the lead seal underneath the head which plugs the nailhole with rustproof, weathertight lead.

'Shoot Every One Of Murderers' Castro's Order

195 Shot, 1,000 in Jail, Another 5,000 Hunted

HAVANA (CP) — Fresh dispatches told today of the execution of 10 more men by order of Cuban revolutionary courts, boosting the reported toll to 195.

Fidel Castro said the executions will continue, regardless of world opinion about the summary justice accorded captive followers of ex-dictator Fulgencio Batista who are adjudged major war criminals.

"We have given orders to shoot everyone of those murderers," Castro declared Wednesday night.

SOME JAILED, SOME FREED

However, not all convicted prisoners are being sent before firing squads. Some are getting prison terms. A few are being freed. Among those freed Wednesday provisionally freed were three civilians and two military men.

A new Supreme Court headed by Judge Emilio Menocal was sworn in here today. This tribunal overrules all lower court war crimes trials from the revolutionary courts.

In another development, rebel military strength in Havana was augmented by 2,000 men pulled out for Las Villas province of central Cuba, where they will be responsible.

Criticism of the hurried military executions by rebel squad chiefs mounted but the rebel chieftain, asked by reporters if the executions should be halted, replied:

"No, to the contrary, we have given orders to shoot everyone of these murderers. And if we have to battle world opinion to mete out justice, we are prepared to do it."

Castro had scheduled a press conference later in the evening but called it off with word that he was ill. He said the illness of his nerves was not disclosed, but the strenuous life of the past few days the last two weeks probably would be telling on him.

Reports reaching Havana said 19 persons were put to death in Camaguey, 200 miles east of Havana, for political murders and tortures during the regime of former dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Two more executions were reported from Manzanillo, 'a Oriente province, where eight others were shot Saturday. Former Batista soldiers were condemned to death in Santiago, west Cuba's Matanzas province.

Estimates of those in jail awaiting trial run as high as between 5,000 and 6,000. Castro's forces still were searching for another 5,000 fugitive soldiers, police and informers.

As yet, no trials or executions had been reported in Havana. Provisional President Manuel Urrutia's government continued to give assurance that reporters would be permitted to see those accused and charges against them before they go to public trials. But the military courts in the provinces apparently were going ahead without waiting for publicity.

BITTER AGAINST U.S.

Castro's bitterness, however, and many other Cubans, were bitter that the United States had not condemned Batista for his transition to Castro's adherents.

Referring to his U.S. critics, Castro told reporters: "You can tell them that the time to worry about the executions is when you see the tyrant was in power and they were butchering the Revolutionary leaders estimate that 20,000 Cubans died, were tortured or otherwise suffered during Batista's second six-year period in power.

Convict Mother For Abandoning Six Children

KITCHENER (CP)—A 31-year-old mother was convicted Wednesday of abandoning six young children after a police officer told Magistrate Stan Barron he found three of the children naked in an abandoned farm house.

Mrs. Theodore Kahl and her 34-year-old unemployed husband left the children from 11:15 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and went to a friend's home to "do some drinking" knowing the upstairs was heated, Mrs. Claude Rose, would look after them, said defence counsel Joseph Lissemore.

The couple were jointly charged but the case against the husband, a construction worker with a broken foot, was dismissed. The children are aged 11 months to nine years.

Constable John Stevenson said he found the 11-month-old baby girl in an unprotected high chair two feet from a fire and other children, three of them nude, huddled round a fire in the kitchen.

Despite the fires, he said, the oldest boy's bare feet were turning blue with cold.

Hydro Union Resume Talks

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and its employees' union were to resume bargaining on their own again today with a request to arrange counsel to Labor Minister Daley next Monday.

Commission officials and representatives of the 10,000-member Hydro Employees Union met with Mr. Daley and other conciliation officer Louis Fine in the ministry's office Wednesday.

The meeting ended with Mr. Daley's suggestion the groups meet during the remainder of the week and report to him at the start of next week.

The union has proposed a complex job evaluation scheme which it is believed is a main topic of today's talks.

Gunman Wounds Ottawa Cashier

OTTAWA (CP) — Beverly Keith Munroe, 23-year-old bachelor cashier for a dairy company here was reported recovering today after undergoing emergency surgery to remove a bullet from his chest following a $2,000 robbery Wednesday night.

Munroe was alone in his cashier's office at the rear of the store when he looked up into the muzzle of a pistol.

The gunman fired, striking Munroe in the right side of the chest. He said he did not have time to get a look at the man, and could not help police with a description.

A bag containing $1,500 in cash and $300 in cheques was taken.

Generally cold weather with flurries near the Great Lakes is the weather forecast for Ontario Friday.

ENGINEERS SCAN SITES FOR TWO BOMARC BASES

One for North Bay, Other in Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence department engineers now are investigating possible sites for the two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases to be established in Canada. The bases are scheduled to become operational in late 1961.

Though no official announcement has been made it is understood the two sites will be located in the neighborhood of North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que. The government has said one base will be built in Ontario, the other in Quebec.

The Bomarc, manufactured by Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle, Wash., is capable of carrying a nuclear warhead and Ottawa officials say that the missile, to be fully effective, will have to carry such a warhead.

NUCLEAR WARHEADS OUT

However, Canada has not reached any agreement as yet with the United States on procurement of nuclear warheads.

Under U.S. law, Canada cannot be given American atomic warheads. They are kept under lock and key at the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's weapons custody depot.

Officials say that any nuclear warheads fired by Bomarcs would be detonated over the sea and consequently there would be little danger from fall-out or other radioactive harm to persons on the ground under an atomic explosion. They also have actually demonstrated this at the Nevada proving ground. Bomarc missiles would not contain nuclear warheads, of course, until the missile was put into service with the U.S. Air Force and Royal Canadian Air Force. However, by the time the Canadian missile bases are ready, the Bomarc's range will have been increased to more than 300 miles. The longer-range weapon now is undergoing trials.

The two Canadian Bomarc sites will be the first to be built running from Sault Ste. Marie to Quebec City. They will provide a Canadian industrial triangle east of the Great Lakes.

GROUND-CONTROLLED BASE

The sites will be smaller than 100 acres each and the Bomarc missiles will be launched from below ground. Each site will have 56 launching platforms as well as the radar control unit, housing for personnel, maintenance shops and storage.

The Bomarc can be fired in two minutes—and then the actual launching site. It climbs vertically to a predetermined height and then levels out to seek its target.

The missile is so accurate that its warhead weapon will not attack a single target. However, it cannot distinguish between friendly and hostile aircraft which will determine missile courses, firing times and points of interception. The ground controller has enough to target, its own seeking device will take over from ground control.

Algeria Universal Suffrage Key to Peace Says de Gaulle

PARIS (CP) — President de Gaulle today opened the first National Assembly election in the French Republic with a pledge to work toward a political solution in Algeria through universal suffrage.

De Gaulle's generalized message, read to the assembly by its president, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, clearly implied more elections or referendums in the troubled North African territory where a rebellion has raged for four years.

A general calls to the expression of universal suffrage, de Gaulle said, was the pacification and economic transformation of Algeria.

De Gaulle's open reference to a political solution through universal suffrage was a far cry from the political future of Algeria and metropolitan France which the French settlers in Algeria demand.

De Gaulle's vague remarks made no mention of any time limit or any concessions kept will settle Algeria's future. He simply opened the door. For did the president make any comment on rumors that new overtures had been made for a cease-fire in Algeria.

Following de Gaulle's brief message, newly named Premier Michel Debre presented to the packed chamber the program of his new government—a program supporting the Western alliance but clearly demanding a bigger role for France.

The premier declared that France continues to support the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, but recommended changes to make it more efficient.

"The Atlantic alliance will be all the more valuable to France once only if it is founded on the solidarity of its members and the equality in the sharing of responsibilities. In the long run there can be no solidarity between the Western nations if the solidarity works only at certain moments and in certain places and not in others, in the face of certain problems and not others.

"One cannot be associated in Europe in the presence of a certain menace and divided in the Mediterranean in the face of the same menace."

Police Deny Statement Given Was Obtained by Coercion

TORONTO (CP) — Magistrate Fred W. Bartrem was to rule today on the admissibility of the incriminating statement which a policeman charged was obtained from him when he was questioned by police.

Defence counsel Hugh Locke objected to the introduction of the statement as evidence Wednesday. He said the statement was obtained by Constable John Haana, 27, was told he would be "out on the street door" if he admitted in writing to stealing a $2.60 fishing rod. The lawyer made the statement on behalf of 12 policemen from north-end stations charged with minor thefts three months ago. He said his wife would be routed out of bed and brought to the station if he didn't co-operate.

Inspector George Holmes and William Mathews and Detective Rutledge Ryan all denied there had been any threats involving Haana's wife. Ryan said he had been offered a hushed-up dismissal in return for a confession.

Earlier Wednesday, the first two of the 12 men awaiting trial pleaded guilty and were sentenced to jail terms.

Roy Williamson, 27, pleaded guilty to nine charges of theft and drew six months. George Richmond, 29, of Scarborough, one charge and got two months.

Both were automatically dismissed from the Metropolitan Toronto police force.

Before Magistrate Bartrem in passing sentence: "If the public can't trust policemen whom can they trust?"

Williamson, the court was told, was stealing from locker to locker, paste to clothing and bedding. Bones admitted stealing three pairs of skates.

Harry Rose, Williamson's lawyer, said he is likely to lose his "penny arbs." He asked for a suspended sentence and said he is the "sole support" of his wife and the father of a 15-months-old child, adding the "hell do double and triple time."

Bone, the father of two children and working from locker to locker, was said to be in such financial difficulty he could not afford a lawyer.

Rose said Williamson was 18 years old when he first got in trouble with the police. He was 21 when he was arrested and trial that his home is up for sale. Three charges against him were dropped.

TWELVE SHIPS, FREED FROM ICE, HEAD FOR QUEBEC

Escorted by Two Govt. Icebreakers

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Three of the 11 foreign ships which anchored here overnight, after escaping from ice-trapped Montreal harbor, had headed on eastward by mid-morning today.

The eight others remained anchored off this port where a swirling snow storm hit the area. They were expected to continue their journey to the Atlantic when the storm abates.

The three which left were the German ship Christa, at 7:40 a.m.; the Swedish Rydboholm, at 7:55, and the Swedish Gothenburg, at 8:10.

The ships dropped anchor here shortly before dusk Wednesday after a 90-mile trip from Montreal harbor—five of their crews forced month-long layover—and were expected to reach Quebec City, 75 miles downstream, tonight.

Beyond Quebec City the river is much wider, making winter navigation considerably less hazardous.

The 12th member of the convoy, the British ship Lochlee, Wednesday — the English freighter Beaverford — disappeared from here overnight and steamed on alone when the ice let up.

KEEPS GOING

She reached Quebec City a few hours later on instructions from her owners ignored a scheduled cargo stop there and headed for Sorel, 50 miles up the river, that night navigation aids were removed from the river some months ago.

The convoy was led by the Canadian d'Iberville, which played a major role in freeing vessels caught in the ice in Montreal, while the breaker Ernest Lapointe, her partner in harbor service, brought up the rear.

As the d'Iberville entered the channel here Tuesday afternoon she turned in midstream and saluted the four ships behind her. Captains with the Beaverford leading the convoy.

CAPTAIN ELATED

The salute was an eloquent gesture of appreciation for Captain Charles Caron, captain of the sturdy ice-breaker.

"It's been one of the great est days in my life," Capt. Caron said. "Now I really have learned many lessons but I certainly gained some new experience."

The winter was the worst in years in the Montreal area with ice blocking the Lachine Canal at Montreal a week before the scheduled April opening date and the resulting delay leaving the Quebec-bound freighters stung in Montreal harbor from Dec. 9 until Wednesday.

The 20th Parliament — the German-owned Poseidon — was freed Tuesday night and Montreal's Monday without waiting for an escort.

Dept. Officials Seek to Settle School Squabble

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP) Education department officials from Toronto are expected in this Manitoulin Island community today to seek settlement of a situation at the high school which led to a one-day student walkout Wednesday.

Tom Dunn, chairman of the board of education, said the officials are being sent in response to a board request for assistance. "Immediate action in the situation at the Little Current High School."

About half of the students went on strike Wednesday after Principal W. H. Beasley was dismissed. They claimed he had been unable to perform his duties. They returned to school Monday.

At a special meeting the board Friday night a number of parents indicated the attempt to oust the headmaster had their blessing.

Students Dean Lockyer and Laurine Bousquet, both of Grade 13, lead the striking students in the protest against lack of action by the board in having the headmaster removed.

PASSED IT ON

The board has passed the matter on to Education Minister Dunlop, who is believed to be behind having the officials start back Friday.

Said Mr. Dunn: "What they will do I don't know. It's now in the hands of the department."

Mrs. Lorne Beasley, and her daughter Laurine, submitted letters protesting student actions last Friday to a board meeting Wednesday night, attended by ratepayers and parents.

Witness Dies Of Heart Attack While Testifying

BRAMPTON (CP) — A part time jail guard, testifying at the murder trial of farmhand Robert Johnston, collapsed and died of a heart attack in the witness box here about 2 p.m. Thursday.

D. P. J. Kelly adjourned the case until today.

James Shooter, who worked at the Peel County jail, had nearly completed his testimony when he was stricken midway through cross-examination by defence counsel in the trial on a charge of murdering Mrs. Beatrice Johnston and Mrs. Ada Wilson, 70. Wilson, his head shattered by blows from a clawhammer, was found in a field and soaked bed August 23. He died a month later.

Dr. Kenneth Gray, a Toronto psychiatrist, has testified that Johnston suffered from "abnormality of a 12-year-old — he is as he was 20 years ago."

Earl Cowell, a former boarder of Wilson's testified he went to the farmhouse at 8 p.m. August 23 to get some personal belongings. He said Johnston let him in, found the victim.

Floyd Rowley of Bolton, said Johnston drove a gas station in Tottenham shortly after 9 p.m. August 23 to buy gasoline and oil, up, demanding to be driven to Tottenham. The witness refused, he refused, Johnston threatened him. It was then, Mr. Rowley said, he noticed blood on the man's hand.

Govt. Lifts Lid On New Session Of Parliament

Massey to Read Throne Speech for Last Time

OTTAWA (CP) — The government lifts the lid today on the 1959 legislative program at the opening of the new session of Parliament.

Governor-General Massey, insurgurating the last session in his seven years as the sovereign's representative, enters the Senate at about 3 p.m. EST to read the speech from the throne outlining that program.

The government has worked on its legislative plan at an unusual number of cabinet meetings since Prime Minister Diefenbaker's return from his world tour a month ago today. It has given few advance hints of what it will present.

STATE DRIVE

The ritual of Parliament opening was to begin at 2:33 p.m. EST with Massey's departure from Government House for a 20-minute drive to Parliament Hill in a closed state carriage.

The 71-year-old Mr. Massey is to be met at the entrance from the governor-generalship following the royal visit this summer, after the longest term in office of any governor-general. He entered Government House in September, 1952.

Traditional ceremony governs the principal figures in the ceremonial opening.

After Mr. Massey enters the Senate, the gentleman usher of the black rod, Maj. C. R. Lamoureux, walks down the long corridor to the Commons to summon the lower house.

STAND AT BAR

The elected members stand behind the bar at the rear of the Senate during the reading of the throne speech in English and French, invited guests sit in chairs on the Senate floor and in the galleries above.

Parliament won't get down to legislative business until Monday, when party leaders will open the debate on the speech from the throne.

The usual cross-party speeches follow the mover and seconder, Warner Jorgenson, from the Manitoba constituency of Provencher, and Lucien Cardin, who captured Montmagny-L'Islet-Rivière du Loup-Témiscouata as in a byelection last Sept. 29.

His victory, and the Conservative defeat in Quebec East by Liberal Paul Hellyer in a Dec. 15 byelection, left party standings in the Commons at the same point they were after the March 31 general election.

The 263 - seat Commons has 208 Progressive Conservatives, 48 Liberals and eight CCF members.

Police Seek 3 Men Who Obtained $20,000 a Month From Begging Trip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Wednesday they are seeking three brothers for questioning about a country-wide "begging racket" that netted them about $20,000 a month.

Officers said the three, one a deaf mute, organized eight other deaf mutes selling novelties in cities, towns and villages between Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver Island.

The operation was disclosed Wednesday when the sister of one of the deaf mutes said the brothers vanished, owing her brother $3,440. He was to receive 10% as a chauffeur with his own car.

Icy Rain, Fog Make Driving Hazardous

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Icy rain and fog hit parts of Southern Ontario overnight, creating hazardous driving conditions in the wake of a storm that moved eastward over the Lake Ontario region.

Walking was treacherous in some areas. In Belleville this morning citizens took the roads because of the condition of the sidewalks after an all-night freezing rain.

Temperatures were in the 30s over much of Southern Ontario and 10 to 15 degrees colder in the North overnight.

But the mild spell is expected to end today, with temperatures tumbling 10 to 20 degrees by Friday, the weather bureau said.

In the North, below-zero temperatures again will take over by Friday morning, "with no moderation in sight."

Kingston streets and particularly sidewalks were glassy today after freezing rain during the night. City works board employees used considerable sanding of streets making driving less hazardous than walking on the glazed sidewalks. Police reported a rash of minor accidents but nothing serious.

Similar conditions were reported in western Ontario. In the Kitchener area, treacherous driving conditions slowed motorists to a crawl. Many motorists left their cars at home.

Drilling Rig May Have Been Hit by Ship

SIMCOE (CP)—Two drilling officials said Wednesday night a gas drilling rig which toppled in Lake Erie, sweeping five men to their deaths in the lake, had been struck by a ship.

E. E. Cox of Toronto, president of Underwater Gas Developers Limited, told an inquest into the November disaster that two cables supporting the rig were found cut and that it believed the ship had run into the drilling platform.

Jack Nicholl of Toronto, drilling superintendent of the company, said he agreed with Mr. Coste's theory about the ship.

The coroner's jury did not mention the officials' testimony in its verdict, which recommended establishment of a Canadian maritime service similar to the United States Coast Guard to work with the RCAF in rescue operations.

The verdict cited three causes for the deaths: Lack of adequate communication, delay in relaying information sent by ships at the Dunnville radio direction station at Port Burwell and lack of a searchlight boat.

The bodies of Leroy Bouwes of Bothwell and William Marsh Jr. and Walter Wiebe, both of Dresden, were recovered. Two other Dresden men George Vogan and Ken Mitchell, are still missing.

The jury said the presence of the men on the oil rig far out on the lake was a calculated risk and that they could have had a seaworthy boat. The verdict said the deaths were due either to drowning or exposure.

Woman Doctor Plays Psychiatrist With Her Life Price of Failure

LONDON (AP) — A woman doctor talked for 15 minutes Wednesday night with a maniac holding a pistol to her head.

The wild-eyed young gunman told Mary McHugh: "I have got to kill—you will do."

Dr. McHugh, 32-year-old mother of seven children, with a number of patients waiting to see her in her office, talked the bedewell district of south London.

Third to be called in was a man of about 34. She motioned him to a chair.

"I have a problem," he told her, whipping out a pistol. "I have got to kill someone. I'm not going to kill myself."

Dr. McHugh smoothed her white surgical gown, went to the second six-year period in power. door, locked it and put the key in her pocket.

"Christopher, stay where you are. On no account come down. Keep the lights on and grip on the trigger.

"No, I'll," said the doctor. "Let's talk this over."

And she talked about anything that came to mind. "I knew I was desperate and my only hope was to talk him out of it," she said later.

At first the gunman didn't want to listen. "I have just got to do this," he said.

The doctor kept talking. Finally the man got up and went to the door.

"I shall be back," he said. "I must kill."

Then he vanished in the London door and disappeared.

Slippery streets and sidewalks caused by last night's rain which froze on hitting the ground, slowed vehicular and pedestrian traffic in the city and district this morning.

No serious motor accidents were reported although cars were forced to slow to a crawl in order to negotiate the slippery streets, while this morning pedestrians shuffled along on slippery sidewalks.

Newsboys were late in making their morning rounds and more than one was late for school after falling to complete paper routes on time.

Legislators in Canada and the United States have suggested that the 1,600 - mile Alaska highway be paved as a joint Canada - U.S. venture.

The road, stretching from Dawson Creek, B. C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, was built by the U. S. Army in 1942-43 as a wartime project. The 1,221-mile Canadian section was taken over by Canada in 1946 and the Canadian Army maintains it.

While most of the road is gravel-surfaced, Alaska has paved a considerable portion of its section.

Highways Minister Gaglardi of British Columbia and Senator Richard Neuberger of Oregon have suggested that Canada and the U. S. co-operate in sharing the cost of paving the entire highway.

Solid line in this map shows the Alaska highway. Broken lines are part of the B. C. and Alberta highway systems which join with the Alaska highway (CP Newsmap).

Curling Notes

Rather belated but make no mistake things are humming up at the Curling rink. The players both men and women are in the midst of their second club dinners and the calibre of curling also the club was started about one year ago. At present there are a number of young curlers who will make their mark in the years to come while the oldtimers have sharpened up their eyes and given the youngsters a real tussle. The comradeship and fellowship at the rink is the end of the world and it is a most enjoyable place to spend family recreation in splendid surroundings. The genial president, Jack Bell and the board of Directors are doing everything possible to make each season better than the last.

At a recent meeting of the directors it was decided that the sons of the members should have the chance to learn the game of curling in their formative years. This work was turned over to director, Jack Deacon, and the first appearance of the kids will be on Saturday morning from ten to twelve noon. All the fathers are welcome and asked to bring along their sons and after a little curling an organizational meeting will be held further play. This is a splendid idea and some real good curlers will come out of the program.

A rink of Dr. J. F. McCoubrey, Bob Manning, Doug Ashley and Ben Corke as skip journeyed to Oshawa on Monday to take part in the annual spiel and came home with some $18 cash. They vowed to get revenge on the finalists in the Fitting Trophy secondary cup of the spiel and were defeated by Al Steer's rink from Midland. The rink won one game on Monday and one on Tuesday to put them in the semi-finals. On Wednesday they played a 12-end game to make the finals, the skip quitting on ninth end.

Max White took a rink to Peterborough on Saturday but no reports have been received, while Charlie Lovett left Saturday with the crew and on Saturday, Bob Bastable was to play in Peterborough but Saturday but found the competition pretty tough. Jack McArthur's rink from the Lake Ontario rink north but he is confined to the hospital and will be a patient for some time.

The Quinte Curling Club has two bonspiels on the go at the present time and both of them are progressing rapidly. The mixed spiel will be a two-day affair starting on January 31st, while the men's spiel will be from February 2nd to 10th inclusive, the finals for all trophies to be played on the final day. The men's spiel this last year is still being talked about and some of the prizes have been secured and they are fabulous. Entries are coming here gone out with some replies already, fifteen rinks will be in the men's spiel with the winners of three and two games coming back for the Sunday play. More information will be available in a few days and this will be posted.

The Curling Club is sending two rinks to the Tankard playdowns in Toronto next Thursday, Ben Corke and Morris Booth being the skips. The names of the rinks will be given later.

Canadian Pills Help in Battle On Alcoholism

TORONTO (CP) — A chance remark about the benefits received from taking liquor experienced by workers at a Niagara Falls, Ont., plant has led to development of new drug for treating alcoholism.

The Alcohol Research Foundation of Ontario announced Wednesday that tempodil, a pill of highly purified citrated calcium carbimides, has been found highly effective and completely free of side effects.

Dr. J. V. Armstrong, head of the foundation's medical advisory board, said the drug produces discomfort if alcohol is consumed.

"When you take a drink of one to 1 1-2 ounces of whisky after 15 to 20 minutes you feel a glow on your face. A tingling spreads over the upper part of your body, you pant and feet apprehension and fear. Vomiting is rare and the effects last for hours."

He said the drug has a reaction similar to antabuse, a Danish development, but does not have serious side effects. Clinical work had been conducted on more than 300 persons between 1954 and 1958 by Dr. J. D. Armstrong, medical director of the foundation and Dr. Gordon Bell who operates a private clinic.

Dr. Ferguson, who developed the pill and tested it on himself, began his research in 1954 at Canada Colors Chemicals, medical-officer at the Cyanamid of Canada Limited plant in Niagara Falls, remarked at a dinner party how workers exposed to calcium cyanamide dust reacted to liquor.

The pill, produced by Lederle Laboratories, a division of Cyanamid of Canada, is available by prescription.

He said also that the Liberals are gradually expanding their national and provincial organizations nd while there aleas cost money, "I think we can meet the needs for an expanded budget."

Of one we loved and will not say;
Although we smile and seem care-free,

Hoping for cure but all in vain;

Without farewell he fell asleep,
Without a whisper he went to keep
We have lost but God has gained,
One of the best dads the world ever knew.

Former Local Citizen Killed In Quebec Mine

IRONSIDES, Que. (CP) A 50-ton chunk of falling limestone clipped life out of two men Wednesday in a new iron mine being dug near this Ottawa valley community just 12 miles east of the capital.

Two other miners mucking the bottom of a 188-foot vertical shaft were trapped in a spray of stone. Neither was seriously injured.

A fifth member of the crew, Bob Young, 32, who had been operating a mucking clam from the top of the shaft's steel shaft floor, was just missed by a second big piece of rock that fell some 150 feet to the floor of the shaft while he helped the injured to get free.

Dead are Alfred Henderson, 37, formerly of Duparquet, Que., father of eight children; and Harold MacDonald, 25, formerly of Belleville, husband of a wife of only a few months wept at the mine entrances as the bodies were being brought to the surface from the rock fall.

Clement Roy, 30, of Ironsides, one of the trapped men, walked 940 feet up a connected inclined shaft after he was helped by Young to give the alarm.

The mine secre operated by Dravo of Canada Limited, Toronto, the company digging the mine for Hull Iron Mines Limited, a private group headed by Montreal lawyer Robert Lafleur.

Prodigal Use Of Land Causes Grave Problem

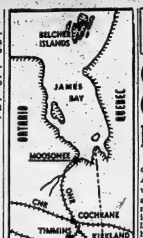
MONTREAL (CP) — Lack of concern for exercising force changes in the design of Canadian homes and the face of the country's cities, says Stewart Bates, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

He told the annual convention of the National House Builders Association Wednesday that the prodigal use of land in Canadian cities had created a problem.

The problem would grow "until such time as we find new forms of municipal government with the breadth and power to cope with land planning over very much greater areas than at present."

"Many admirable community plans have been drawn up. But individual plans cannot solve the overlapping plans of urban and suburban growth."

"Metropolitan Toronto has led the way in a new form of municipal government, but even this is inadequate to meet the needs of urbanization which is extending almost continuously from Oshawa to Hamilton."



Mr. Bates said the land problem may well change the shape and design of Canadian homes.

Ontario hopes to have its first seaport at Moosonee, a community at the southern end of James Bay.

Premier Frost has announced that engineers are working on a preliminary plans for a port project in the northern community which now is populated mainly by Cree Indians.

Moosonee is the northern terminus of the provincially-owned Ontario Northland Railway which runs south to connect with the CNR at Cochrane and the CNR and CPR at North Bay.

This map shows location of Moosonee and the Belcher Islands 400 miles to the north in Hudson Bay. The islands are said to contain millions of tons of iron ore and Moosonee could become a refining and shipping point for the ore. (CP Newsmap).

Marie Torre Does Not Face New Jail Term

NEW YORK (AP) — Columnist Marie Torre will not be asked again in court for at least a year to reveal the source of an item in the forthcoming Judy Garland, the actress' lawyer said today.

Miss Torre, radio - television columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, conveled a 10-day jail term Wednesday on a contempt charge for refusing to answer the question.

She had faced a possible new sentence if she again had refused to answer.

Miss Torre attributed her information concerning Miss Garland to a Columbia Broadcasting System executive. In a pretrial examination of a $1,393,000 libel suit brought by the actress against CBC, Miss Torre declined to identify him, invoking freedom of the press under the first amendment to the United States Constitution.

NO CASE AGAINST HER

Lionel S. Pooklin, counsel for Miss Garland, told a press conference today he had concluded the court's ruling, that Miss Torre "we do not intend to take any proceedings against Miss Torre."

"If she is called as a witness at the trial and asked the question, it is a matter between her and the court, I might call her. CBS might call her. But there will be no more pre-trial examination of Miss Torre."

Pooklin said he does not expect Miss Garland's suit against CBS to begin for at least a year, because of the court calendar, which is now a year behind."

Council Sells Narrow Strip Of Land to A. and P. So That Firm Can Erect New Store

TRENTON — The town council paved the way for a new A. and P. store in Trenton when it passed a resolution, at a special meeting in the board rooms of the Municipal Building, to sell the 15-foot strip of land the town had reserved behind the A&P lot for the sum of one dollar.

There was one "if" attached to the resolution and that was "the strip would revert to the ownership of the town if the A&P stores had not made plans to build a new store within one year of the date of transfer of the property." The company has owned for some time the lot of land on Front Street known as the former parking lot. The company paid $18,000 for it but at the time of the sale the town had reserved a strip of land behind this lot estimated, at 10 feet wide. It was found but later that he property extended three feet out onto Front Street and the town made this three feet up to the company in narrowing the strip at the back to 15 feet.

Nick Fraser of a Trenton real estate firm, representing the A&P stores at last night's meeting and informed the council the company had purchased the LaVern property less a frame outbuilding. It would give the firm enough room for bringing in its trucks to load and unload and a place to store garbage until it could be removed.

STRIP RETURNED PROPERTY

Mr. Fraser pointed out that the 15-foot strip the town had retained at the time of the sale of the large parking property now ran between the two pieces of property and as it is now owned, by the firm and requested that the town deed this land over to the firm to enable it to go forward with plans for a new store.

Councillor Vagn Lange and Mayor Ross Burtt both praised the executive's co-operation the town has always received from the A&P Stores in dealings with it and the company's desire to retain good public relations at all times.

Mayor Burtt told the council it was, in his opinion, worthy of giving back to the A&P Store what had been taken from it in the first by-law and the company had done no complaining when the town took the strip.

AMENDMENT DEFEATED

When the issue was made a motion, that the land be sold to the firm for the sum of one dollar, with the stipulation that the firm start plans for a new store within one year. Councillor Claude Graham moved an amendment to the motion, which was seconded by Councillor Bill Bradshaw, that the conditions of sale also include a paragraph stating that the A and P company give a right of first refusal on the LaVern property to the three businesses to the south of the lot if they want to buy it.

However the amendment was defeated as the majority council felt it was up to these businessmen to deal with the A and P owners on this matter and that it would be best for the town to stay out of the issue and not act as a party to it.

Councillor Howard Azz and Councillor Vagn Lange moved and seconded the first motion which was passed by a three-two vote. Councillor Lloyd Warrall was not present for the special meeting.

HIRING MORE REVENUE

Mr. Fraser had previously pointed out that the lot as it now stood was only competing with the municipal parking lot and was cutting the town's revenue from this point. He said once the town had approved the sale of the strip and the A and P store was built it would mean an added $5,500 to $6,000 in tax revenue for the town. It would also increase the use of the municipal parking lot, as well as increase the pedestrian traffic on Front Street. He said it would bring other stores to this area and would put an end to Front Street being "a halfe starved street."

He said it would also put the A and P store right in the down town area and not away from it. "It will be a boost to the economy of the town," said Mr. Fraser, "regardless of how you look at it."

Town-Clerk treasurer, O. W. Larr; told the councillors that the revenue from the parking lot on Front Street amounted to $3,300 for last year, to which Councillor Lange commented, "It should have been $7,500."

16 Witnesses Called in Probe Of $300,000 Fire

TRENTON — Two insurance companies asked 16 witnesses in a day-long investigation into seeking the cause of the fire which destroyed the Belleville Cold Storage firm last September 18. The unofficial damage caused by the fire has been set at over $300,000.

The witnesses were questioned by the lawyers of the insurance companies concerned in the fire.

The probe began at 10 a.m. and concluded at about 4:15 with no decision being reached. It was understood the case will now go to higher court and will consist chiefly of a battle between counsel.

The witnesses called yesterday told what they knew of the fire and the various actions they had taken during the first rushed minutes as well as what they could recall minutes before the fire broke out and for a time after the building had been destroyed.

The court was handled by the Fire Marshal's Office and during as court clerk was Fire Marshal Al Williams of Belleville.

Witnesses called during the day were: Mayor Ross Burtt, Fire Chief Gerald Vance of Belleville, Police Chief Jack Taylor, Mrs. Pauline Wolcey, Lieut. Gerald Lewis of the Belleville Police Department, Engineers Maurice Hitts and Elmer Sandy of the Trenton Fire Department, Clifford Stillman, Almond Spencer, Charles McCaughey, Miss Mable Benson, William Barry, Bob Wolsey, Danger Hearns, John Nancarrow and Gerald Hill.

All witnesses were directly connected with the fire in that they were either working for the plant, fought the fire or had information regarding it.

3 New Members Appointed to Centre Board

TRENTON — Council last night approved the appointment of a community centre board, which saw three new names added to those who had not resigned from the last years board.

The matter was brought up at the council last night by Councillor Vagn Lange who recommended the new board to the council and asked that the members of the 1958 board be placed on again this year to enable them to straighten out the managership of the rink issue.

New members to the board are; Councillor Howard Azz, who automatically heads the board through his chairmanship of that committee on the council; John Farrell immediate past president of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion and Walter Wrightman, president of the Lions club.

Members of last year's board who were reappointed this year are; Chairman of the Community Centre Board, Cliff Baker; Councillor Vagn Lange, former councillor John Farrell immediate past president of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion and Walter Wrightman, president of the Lions club.

Members of last year's board who were reappointed this year are; Chairman of the Community Centre Board, Cliff Baker; Councillor Vagn Lange, former councillor John MacDonald and Clyde Carr.

Ted Parker, Don McPherson and Joe Gould, were the three former members who had either resigned from the board or expressed their desire not to sit on it for another year.

At the meeting council last night Councillor Lange pointed out that the board members are up for appointment each year and did not serve a staggered term of office. He said he felt the members of the former board who had wished to remain on another year should be given a chance for at least another year to try and settle the managership of the rink troubles they have had over the past two years.

He said it has been suggested that the board hire a manager to look after the promotional work of the Community Centre and to also look after matters to be responsible for the machinery of the plant as well as the building, and that the board would give this considerable consideration.

SISTERS MISSING

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Police are looking for two Windsor teenage sisters missing from their homes since last Friday night. Claudette Jeanne, 15, and her 13-year-old sister Lorraine apparently left their home as a result of a quarrel with an older sister. But police said Wednesday night there was reason to believe the girls are both safe and that they haven't left the Windsor area.

THE PRICE MAINTENANCE QUESTION

Joseph T. Crowder, secretary-manager of the Canadian Wholesale Council, and David A. Gilbert, national general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, are planning a speaking tour throughout Eastern Canada. Their objective - - to urge the repeal or amendment of Section 34 of the Combines Investigation Act. This is the section, introduced by the Liberal regime a few years ago, which forbids a manufacturer or other supplier of goods from prescribing resale prices for his product.

A release from the Retail Merchants Association lists various reasons why this legislation has proven unsatisfactory. It is alleged that it has resulted in extensive "loss leader" selling of nationally-advertised products, with accompanying dissatisfaction on the public inferior substitutes once customers have been lured to the store by the advertising of well-known products at prices sometimes actually below the wholesale cost.

Mr. Gilbert, according to this release, reports that early in the Association's campaign against the ban on "price maintenance" policies there was "some scepticism" but that detailed explanation and evidence have won support. Perhaps it would be only fair to wait until Mr. Gilbert, or Mr. Crowder, present such detailed explanations and evidence to a Belleville audience before passing judgment on the merits of their case. Nevertheless, we are forced to admit that at present our attitude to the campaign could accurately be described as being "some scepticism". That it is desirable to eliminate the type of practices described by the Retail Merchants Association we heartily agree. That the best method of doing this is by the repeal of Section 34 of the Combines Investigation Act is not so certain.

In this connection it should be noted that the Canadian Wholesale Council and the Retail Merchants Association are apparently not wedded to the principle of outright appeal -- that they would be satisfied with the alternative of amendment. The Retail Merchants Association notes that "The Department of Justice has had the situation under study for several months and expects to have a solution before the next session of parliament." This leads us to hope that the result may be legislation which will safeguard ethical retailers against unfair competition through loss-leader selling, but will yet avoid the dangers which appear to us inherent in permitting wholesalers or manufacturers to dictate the minimum resale prices of products.

Mr. Gilbert says that price fixing is not the aim of the Retail Merchants Association, but that "there are sufficient manufacturers and retail outlets to ensure competitive marketings, and other legislation to prevent cartels." Nevertheless, almost any consumer can think of a number of products which are produced by only a handful of firms, and if these firms are permitted to fix the retail price they could, without any agreement of a type which would involve the application of legislation against cartels, greatly curtail "competitive marketing" at the retail level. There must be a better solution to this problem than merely to repeal Section 34 of the Combines Investigation Act and to revert to the situation which existed before it became law.

In these times when government authorities are repeatedly telling us that legislation is our gravest peril it is difficult to believe that the government would prevent efficient retail organizations from passing on to the consumer, in the form of lower prices, part of the benefits derived from such efficient operation.

FISHY ULCER STORY

According to Kenneth Higgs, field officer of the Metropolitan Toronto conservation authority, fish have ulcer problems.

Statements like that need elaboration.

What gives a Toronto fish ulcers? Not Toronto, surely. Even a poor fish must know that Toronto isn't worth worrying about. Not Torontonians, either. We can understand a Bay of Quinte fish getting ulcers, what with the rush at the opening of the pickerel season being followed almost immediately by the onerous duties of keeping all those tourists satisfied during the long summer holidays. A Bay of Quinte fish may be pardoned for getting snappy. He has to snap at almost everything that is thrown his way if he is to maintain the district's enviable reputation and provide all-comers with stories about the big one which got away. An executive-sized fish in this district must find the pressure of work appalling during the height of the season. But a Toronto fish -- why one bite a day would be enough to keep everybody happy.

IS THERE NO WAY?

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Is there no way to mark the blood-red brain,
The mind gone wrong with frenzy or desire?
No way, until he victim it has slain,
To tell the arm that may be raised to fire?
Do madmen give no sign that men may read
Until completed is each horrid deed?

Must we give up our lowest, for our highest?
Our noblest to our lowest, for all time?
Is there no way that we can throttle first
The mind depraved that labors for a crime?
Must human fiends, unhampered, roam about,
Detected only when their shots ring out?

HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

THE QUINTE MISSION

One of the most fascinating chapters in the history of the Quinte district is the story of the Quinte Mission.

This was the first attempt by the French to carry the gospel and establish an Indian mission in the district.

This general region had gradually become known to the French, Champlain, during the winter of 1615 somewhere on the north shore of Lake Ontario.

Champlain's journey was followed by the incursion of troops by the Roman Catholic Church of Christianity into the territories of the Georgian Bay area, and in 1632 the Jesuits began their missionary endeavours in that area.

In those early years, access to the lands of the Hurons was via the Ottawa River. However, following the destruction by the Iroquois nation of the Jesuit Mission there and the subsequent dispersion of the Huron Indians, the upper St. Lawrence route was used. Missionaries journeyed to Montreal to ask for missionaries. The French, anxious "to expand their influence to the west," readily agreed.

The Jesuit Order, long established on this continent, was entrusted with the sending of missionaries to the Oneidas and Mohawks, while the Sulpician Order was to be responsible for the Cayugas.

Two Sulpicians, M. Trouve and M. defrantion, were designated to establish a mission to the Cayugas living on the north shore of Lake Ontario somewhere in the vicinity of Oswego.

Wounded in the struggle that ensued, Champlain spent

The inaugural dinner meeting of the Quinte Traffic Club had for its guest speaker Ernest McKeel (second from left) of Campbellford, one of Canada's outstanding traffic consultants. Others present above are (left to right), Ralph Plumpton, president; Mr. McKeel, Clyde Mason, director, and Jay Rollins, secretary-treasurer.

Traffic Club Holds First Dinner Meeting

Mr. Ernest McKeel, one of Canada's foremost traffic consultants, was guest speaker at the first dinner meeting of the recently formed Quinte Traffic Club. The meeting, held in Leitimer's Tea Room yesterday evening, saw representatives from local industry and shipping concerns present to hear Mr. McKeel speak on "The Position of the Traffic Manager in Industry."

Giving a brief history of the development of traffic in industry and the emergence of the position of traffic manager as an important executive function, the first guest speaker of the club, went on to point out the various functions which the traffic manager fulfilled in helping the purchasing agent or sales manager to take advantage of various freight and traffic charges in enabling a firm to obtain its materials at the lowest net price and also to ship its good by favorable rates.

Presently there remains much to be done in explaining the advantages of the traffic manager to industry, according to Mr. McKeel, and clubs such as the Quinte Traffic Club can do much to further the position and the knowledge of these men.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. Ron Godden and thanked by Mr. O. Owen. Chairman of the meeting was club president Ralph Plumpton. Grace was given by Len Gilchrist.

The club executive for 1959 consists of: R. N. Plumpton, president; H. G. Emerson, vice-president; J. A. Rollins, secretary-treasurer; and directors, R. E. Godden, C. W. Mason, L. Jobey, and G. Sine.

Townspeople Honor Residents On Birthdays

DESERONTO — On Thursday evening of last week a number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Brant to honor him on the occasion of his birthday. Benson, who has been a lifelong resident of this community, will be remembered as one of the most active sports of this town in his younger days. His many friends all join in wishing him many happy returns of the day. The evening was spent in games and, in the late hours, Mrs. Brant served the guests bounteous and delicious refreshments.

Sunday was the 91st birthday of Mrs. Thomas Swenor, Brant St. Her many friends and all the townspeople join in congratulating Bridget in her remarkable achievement. She is still a very active person and on Sunday attended Mass at St. Vincent de Paul Church where Father Martin extended to her the congratulations of the parish. She and her husband, Tom, have lived their whole lives in Deseronto and will be remembered by many of the former residents of the town.

Boosters Need Little Over $1,000 To Reach Objective of $10,000

The McFarland Booster Club's membership is confident it will reach its Macs Overseas Fund objective of $10,000.

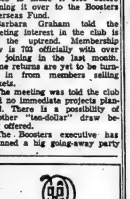
At the moment the overseas exchequer contains $7,501.24. Tickets from the second Prague faust selling at $10 each are practically sold. This means another $975 addition to the fund.

According to these figures the Boosters are approximately $1,000 short of their objective. They hope to make it up before the final deadline.

Included in the all-round figure are the receipts from the Jim Matthews Can Campaign which yielded $266.14. The "real celebration" at the Macs-Whitby game last Tuesday brought in $272.94.

A mythical figure called "Archie", who automatically collects pennies at the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans club here, has picked up $89.35 to date and hopes to make it $100 before turning it over to the Boosters Overseas Fund.

Barbara Graham told the meeting interest in the club is on the uptrend. Membership now is 103 officially with over 300 joining in the last month. Some returns are yet to be turned in from members selling tickets.



The meeting was told the club had no immediate projects planned. There is a possibility of another "ten-dollar" draw being offered.

The Boosters executive has planned a big going-away party for the team. This will be held on the night of January 30 after the Macs' final scheduled game with Cornwall. Details of the party will be announced later.

Joan Gander stated she has fifty tickets for the Macs-Whitby game Saturday night. These can be procured from her at Hellman's.

The club has reserved a block of 100 seats in the Kingston Community Centre for the Macs-Merchants game next Wednesday. These can be secured from Tom Nell or President Armand Duffy.

Les Gilchrist of the Canadian National Railways city ticket office told the meeting that the CNR round-trip fare from Montreal to Prague was $561.80. If size has a package deal for $90 which includes hotel accommodation, meals and admission to the final games of the tournament. Husbands and wives travelling together get a rebate of $150.

What's all the fuss about? That's the question asked by Diane Jamieson, Freia von Wedel and Connie Marrie, stewardesses on the Canadian Pacific Airlines. If the order comes from the upper echelons to raise the hemline, they're prepared and adequately assembled. But on the British European Airways, stewardesses objected to the order to abbreviate skirts by an inch or so. It wasn't the principle of the thing, they admitted; it was the effect. "We aren't all built like chorus girls," was their anguished protest.

CATHERS — FROST

A lovely winter wedding was solemnized recently in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, mid a setting of Christmas trees, lighted candles, and baskets of white and yellow chrysanthemums, when the Reverend Harry N. Davis united in marriage, Mildred Jeanette Frost, Trent Road, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Deline, to Donald Norman Cathers, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Cathers.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. George Barker of Montreal.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over satin, featuring a fitted basque, having long sheath-like sleeves "V"-pointed over the wrists, and portrait neckline accented with sequins. The three-quarter length skirt was in bouffant style. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of sequins, and she carried a bouquet of red and white roses mingled with fern.

Miss Gwethelyn Cathers, of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, wore a Trilassan gold over taffeta with matching accessories and headdress and carried a bouquet of yellow and white 'mums.

The bridesmaid, Miss Joan Ash of Ottawa wore periwinkle blue with matching accessories and headdress and carried yellow and white 'mums.

Mr. Brian Barker of Montreal attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Don Purdy and Bob Jones, both of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at Hotel Quinte where the bride's grandmother, wearing a combination of light blue lace and faille with flowered pink accessories, and corsage of pink roses, received. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in dusty pink lace and faille with matching feather hat and gloves with corsage of blue roses.

For travelling to Toronto and western points, the bride chose a grey tweed ensemble with white feathered hat, muskrat jacket, and pink corsage.

Upon their return the young couple will reside in Belleville.

Guests attended from Buffalo, N.Y., Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa and Trenton.

FOWLER — DAVIDSON

STIRLING — Miss Olive Davidson, Stirling, and Mr. Thomas E. Fowler, Bowmanville, were quietly married in the chapel of Queen's University, Kingston, with Rev. A. M. Laverty officiating.

The bride chose a turquoise street-length dress with white accessories.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fowler of Seymour township.

The newlyweds have taken up residence in Bowmanville.

Mrs. Charles Stewart; a piano solo, "In the Garden," and "The Old Rugged Cross," by Mrs. Clarence Thomson; a reading, "A Perfect Squelch," by Mrs. Clara Wildman, and a "Snow Contest," by Mrs. Ray Stewart.

Avondale Cubs, Scouts M.A. Holds Meeting

Avondale Cubs and Scouts Mothers' Auxiliary held the first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. C. Twiddy, Wright Avenue.

The president, Mrs. T. Legacy, extended a warm welcome and hoped that all had enjoyed the recent holidays, and trusted that 1950 would be a successful as 1950.

Business included reports by the secretary, Mrs. Dave McDonald, who had charge of the Christmas gifts to the boxes of the Cubs and Scouts; and the sewing convener, Mrs. L. Vestman, who reported making six "scherchiefs" and six shoulder patches for the Scout troop.

Owing to Avondale having recently been taken into the city, a discussion followed regarding a project for February, which will entail obtaining a suitable place for the money-raising projects. Mrs. Dave McDonald was assigned to approach the proper authority in this matter.

The evening was spent in playing a hilarious game which was won by Mrs. A. McPherson.

Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held on February 14 at the home of Mrs. A. McPherson, Wright Avenue.

Petty Officer Auger on Way To Join Staff at Palace

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A pretty Wren petty officer, dressed in Buckingham Palace, conceded Wednesday she gets excited if she lets herself think much about her appointment there.

"Right now I'm living one thing at a time," said Rosalee Auger, 25, in an interview.

She leaves today by air to join the royal household staff as private secretary to Edmond Butler, the Canadian appointed assistant press secretary to the Queen last fall.

But reporters who expect to find Petty Officer Auger in a "flurry" about the trip will be disappointed.

NAVY SELECTED

The navy selected her for the job, which includes duties in connection with royal tour starting in mid-June, on the basis of her stenographic and organizational ability, wide adaptability, capacity for work and appearance.

She was chosen from more than 120 permanent force Wrens. It is her first trip overseas, and the posting probably will last a year.

A trim size 10, five feet, five inches tall with green eyes and brown hair, petty officer Auger—its pronounced o-ay-ay—answers questions with a quiet aplomb.

She was keen on the navy, she said, even before this appointment.

YET TO MEET BOSS

She hasn't met her London boss—Sqd. Ldr. Raymond Butler, 35, former assistant to the secretary to the governor-general and a lieutenant-commander in the navy reserve.

"But I hear he is an eligible bachelor," said Rosalee with a twinkle in her eye.

Her duties will bring her back to Canada with the royal tour and probably will mean a trip aboard the royal yacht Britannia for official ceremonies opening the St. Lawrence seaway.

"I'll probably get seasick if it's rough," said Rosalee, "I think I'm a better flier than sailor."

A native of Port Arthur, she grew up and went to high school in Winnipeg where a brother and two sisters still live.

STEADY HELPER

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Maud Freeman now has spent 21 Christmases as "kettle girl" for Salvation Army workers in Detroit. She hasn't missed a day as volunteer workers. She is the mother of 12, and has 29 grandchildren.

Quinte Women's Institute Enjoys Talks on 'New Year', 'Institute'

The New Year's meeting of the Quinte W. I. was held at the Maude Parrott Memorial hall, Belleville, on the 13th with Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, the president, presiding.

Mrs. Vivian opened the meeting and extended greetings and a warm welcome to the visitors and members.

The business consisted of reading letters of thanks for flowers from Mrs. Wrese and Mrs. Trapnour, also a letter from the Children's Aid Society of Belleville, stating that Miss Fyens would come and speak at one of W.I. meetings.

The Junior Girls' club will meet at Stirling to display their work on "cottons can be smart" on February 28th for East Hastings. The project this year will "Clothes closets up-to-date."

A letter from the provincial president, Mrs. James Haggarty, was read thanking all for cards and notes received. She spoke of the trip being given to Miss Ethel Chapman by the Women of the F.W.I.O. to Edinburgh next summer.

Miss Chapman is much loved by all members of the Women's Institutes of Ontario and all join wishing her a happy voyage.

The treasurer's report showed a successful year.

Mrs. Hugh McMullen took charge of the social part of the program.

Mrs. McMullen spoke on the topic, "Good Resolutions Are Not Worth Much Until They Ripen Into Good Deeds."

New Year's day is just another day, but the word 'new' makes one think of making new resolutions and a desire for will power to carry them through. If we wish to succeed for ourselves alone it is not good. The greatest among you is he who serves.

Mrs. Gerald Clancy favored with a duet.

GUEST SPEAKERS

The guest speakers for the afternoon were Mrs. Clifford Clancy and Mrs. Clarence Holmes.

Mrs. Clancy, a past president of North Hastings district, brought greetings and spoke on the theme "New Year's."

She said, in part: "We have a challenge as we enter into a new year, let us try and make it a happier year for some one. Dr. MacKay has given us a recipe to live by, he calls it the essentials for great living:

"'A faith to live by:
A self fit to live with:
A work fit to live for.'

"Then we have a purpose that will keep us steady in all this disturbing age, because we have found a meaning at the heart of this strange business called life.

"And so the beginning of the new year is but a station from which we will never arrive at nor leave from again."

"This should stir us to new and better endeavors. Let us thank God that He has blessed us in freedom and our democratic way of life.

"We hear a lot today about international good neighborliness. This should start at home. Let us carefully examine our individual conduct to see if our standards are what they should be."

Mrs. A. Cook favored with a solo, "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, past provincial president, brought greetings from her branch of the Institute and said all thoughts are centred on the new year.

"The name 'January' means looking back as well as looking forward. We think we are making progress, but let us stop and think. We have learned how to destroy, but have we learned how to build? We have learned how to kill, but have we learned how to save? We know how to die, but do we know how to live?

"There are three bones which we should have and use: wishbone, to wish for the good things of life; a jaw bone, to ask questions and find out what is right for us; a back bone, to keep us going after all that is good in life in spite of discouragements.

"We are members of a great organization ready to go forward but we are only as strong as each individual and unless each member does her share with a smile and willingness, our efforts are defeated in the beginning.

"If we have made blunders and had failures in the past, let us forget them and press forward forgetting petty differences. There is no room for them in the new year.

"The word Institute gives us an 'I.' "I' stands for interest, let us then be ready to further the interest of our Institute. Let us be an interested member. We should read at least one good book this winter, one that will create deep thought.

"'I' stands for initiative. We should be ourselves, strengthen our own personality, be slow to criticize and help others.

"'I' stands for inspiration: If our meetings are not inspiring they will not be a success.

"'T' stands for ideals. If we are going to have as our motto 'For Home and Country,' then our ideals must be of the best, so let us unite in making folks happy, thinking of the good things and keeping out all that is evil."

Mrs. Holmes closed with a New Year's prayer by Edna Jarque.

Mrs. Garbutt thanked all who had helped with the program.

Mrs. Robert Atkins favored with an accordion solo. Mrs. McMullen spoke of the rug-making project, the first meeting to be at Mrs. Ken Vivian's on Tuesday night, January 20.

Mrs. Jack Purcell, pianist, presided at the piano.

Refreshments were served by the conveners. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Erle Denyes', Church St., on February 10.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Wilfred Spencer was hostess to 14 ladies and several children, when she entertained Rylstone Women's Institute, at her home on Wednesday, for their January meeting. Mrs. Stanley Karr, president, opened the meeting.

Miss Ellis Jones, secretary-treasurer, gave the minutes of the December meeting and the treasurer's report and read the correspondence. It was decided to advertise for sale, in the local paper, a print quilt which has been donated to the Institute by a former member.

Mrs. Alfred Aking, convener for home economics and health, was in charge of the balance of the program which consisted of a reading, "A Staple Setting," by

Baby Talk

In the basement of Kirsten's in Scott, Marianne and I were buying Rosenthal china (for about 1-3 the Canadian price). After which we asked in the ladies' lavatory (and what turned out to be incomprehensible) pidgin German for the ladies' rest room.

THURSDAY
(Economical)

Tuna's Liver Loaf with Tomato Sauce (see Wednesday); Cabbage Puree (see Wednesday); Green Beans; Rice and Raisin Custard Pudding; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Baked Savory Picnic Ham with Banana Fritters or Baked Bananas; Broccoli with Hollandaise or Carrot Rings; January Salad with Pepsin Marmalade; Thin Lettuce, Wafer-thin Cucumber Slices, Chopped Hard-cooked Egg, Chopped Parsley, Shredded Cabbage, Chopped Apple; Relish or Apple Pie; Cheddar Cheese; Coffee.

Our affable and retund clerk, the only one in the store who had any English, said "A little moment pliss," then brought out a little slip of a girl who was a parceler I think and holding up two fingers said "Swei up". So we started climbing, first to the first floor, then on up to the second and though we had arrived. But no. On we went up to the third floor and as we rounded the last flight saw we were coming to a huge display of bathroom furniture! We stopped dead in mid flight and stared at one another: "They think we want to buy a toilet!"

The baby food problems of some of our readers are brought sharply into focus in this book where there are two very young boys whom it is my joy to feed.

The Maple Leaf Service (MLS) store does a magnificent job of supplying the Canadian mothers with canned baby foods, but storage and shelf space is at a premium and the girls cannot buy the variety of baby food here that they can at home. This is one little hardship.

Marianne has dozens of menus and dishes for her young now babies but seems to appreciate my fresh viewpoint on the subject, and says she thinks you would like to be reminded of them too — especially if you have babies that are poor eaters.

More than half the time Gary will eat all of his meals without help or coaxing. The remainder of the time he would rather play with army trucks than eat. Davey, who is fifteen months old, will make a brave attempt at feeding himself if he is starving after we come in from a long walk. Otherwise it must be assayed in, but if something of Gary's antics distract him he whips his head around to avoid that oncoming spoon, and often smears both of us.

I do not know what Dr. Spock has to say about this, but I feed those two by the army method: Their mouths are garaged by hangers and the spoonfuls of food are jeeps, tow trucks, transports, brigadier's cars, red cross trucks; red Ferraris and green Jaguars being towed by army trucks after an accident etc. Gary is an amazing talker and can pronounce all of these words as well as anyone. Both plates are as clean as a whistle by the time all of this traffic has passed through.

They are able to buy wonderful whole wheat bread at MSL, resist be, and I crumble a half slice of it in Davey's dish and deep his four-minute egg on that. Stirred up with a little Danish butter it is delicious.

Fresh frozen Fordhook limas are available and when cooked mash easily for Davey for lunch on the day after we have had them for dinner. I save out about 6 of them and wrap them in foil in the refrigerator.

The same limas are good mixed with drained canned kernel corn and/or diced carrots, especially if you have a little sauce sehne (sour cream to spoil) and salt and pepper with which to mix them!

HOW TO ANNOUNCE YOURSELF TO BRIDE'S MOTHER IN RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I live together, have many friends, and therefore very often attend weddings together. When there is the announcer at the wedding reception, of course, we each give our name to him before we file down the receiving-line. But what is correct for us to do when there is no announcer, and when the bride's mother is of course first in the receiving-line and we don't know her too well? My sister insists that we each should "announce" our formal name to her: for example, "I am Miss Rosemary Smith". I feel this would be too formal, and that we would naturally take it for granted that she would remember us and our names. Which of us is right about this?

Two Sisters

Your sister is absolutely right in her thoughtful and sensible point of view. In these so-important and ugsetty minutes when the bride's mother must greet and welcome so many guests, we should do everything we can to help her. The first thing is to say our name most clearly and distinctly so she will be able to catch it at once. (No mumbling, please.) And in most cases, even when we know the bride's mother fairly well, it's best to give our formal name so that she can unhesitatingly pass along this name to the next person in the line. It's most helpful to her not to, as you advise "naturally take it for granted that she would remember us and our names." At this busy moment she has no time to try to "remember"!

USUAL PROCEDURE AT SUCH An INFORMAL CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckmar.:

My groom and I are to have a very small and most informal wedding in the church where we have both been members for a long time. We will each have only one, attendant, his brother as his best man, and the married sister as my matron of honor. In these circumstances we would prefer not to have a processional. Is a processional necessary? — Bride-to-be.

In these circumstances a processional is not necessary, nor is it customary. The usual procedure is: when the clergyman indicates that he is ready to begin the ceremony, the bride with her attendant and the groom with his attendant simply step forward to the altar. But of course you should consult with your clergyman for his guidance and approval.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two urgers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Paul R.—It's still Christmas at our house.

Rose R.—This is the worst part.

Paul R.—In our house Christmas lasts about four months — two months before and two after. And I don't like it!

My wife goes absolutely crazy figuring out gifts for everyone and trying to budget each person according to a lot of different factors. Then she stays awake nights trying to figure out what each person spent on the gifts they gave her so that she'll give them back in equal measure next year. Sometimes she goes around talking to herself and that's so mad at some mistake she made in giving a too-cheap or too-expensive gift. I've gotten so that I'm just about ready to stage a disappearing act for four months of the year. The aftermath is the worst part, so I'm ready to take off now.

Rose R.—Paul takes no responsibility at all for this very important matter. The whole burden is on my shoulders and he won't even talk it over with me.

It just happens that there are some poor relatives and some very wealthy ones in both our families. Some of the poorer ones give us nicer gifts than the wealthier ones, but you can't give a wealthy person a cheap gift in return because he has so many good things of his own he won't pay any attention to your gift.

The post Christmas letdown sure is the worst part. That's when I start feeling that at least half of the things I did were wrong. If Paul talked it over with me in advance I wouldn't make so many mistakes.

* * *

The Council: We are fairly certain that Rose's "Christmas neurosis" isn't confined to the holiday season and its aftermath. This season is merely the manifestation for an intensification of her ordinary, everyday feelings.

She undoubtedly spends a good part of her time thinking about whether or not others are treating her "right" and punishing herself for real or fancied offences she has committed against others.

Rose's behaviour shows that at bottom she is still wallowing in childish feelings of envy and greed. She is deeply engrossed in the question of whether others love her enough to give her gifs and she is overwhelmed by the problem of having to conceal her basic selfishness. She probably resents the power of her rich relatives and would like to "put them in their place" by giving them a better gift than they gave her, yet she is furious at what she interprets as their scorn of her in giving her a small, inexpensive gift. Quite possibly she would like to "Lord it over" the poor relatives by giving them a fine gift, but is disconcerted when they fail her by being generous with their gift.

There is only one way out of such a dilemma and that is to make a change in basic attitudes and relationships. Rose might try making her Christmas project a 12-month one this year. She should make a real effort to conquer her pettiness and try to like and understand others. The more she thinks about them, the less will she be concerned about herself and their attitude toward her.

If she succeeds in doing this, we believe Rose and her husband may begin to experience the pleasures of the holiday for the first time when Christmas 1959 draws near.

Afternoon Aux. WMS Hears Annual Reports

The Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held on January 9th when a delicious pot-luck luncheon was enjoyed by all present.

Special guests were the Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Davis and the Rev. and Mrs. R. J. Sherwin, and Mr. F. Adsett.

Following this friendly get-together, Mrs. Adsett conducted the opening activities, with the worship service in charge of Mrs. T. F. Franklin, who chose a timely selection for the new year entitled, "Close the Gate."

"We all know the function of a gate is to close in or close out whatever belongs in a certain place. Let us close the gate of 1958 and shut out the little vexations, disappointments, failures, fears and gloom, and most of all 'self pity.' Let us enter 1959 resolved to fill our days with service for the betterment of all by a friendly smile; a word of sympathy or one of praise which may lighten someone's load and bring rich reward to both the giver and the receiver."

SECRETARIAL REPORTS

Mrs. Adsett called upon the different secretaries for their yearly reports; the recording secretary, Mrs. MacArthur, reported the regular meetings with an average attendance of 35; the treasurer, Miss Young, reported that the Society had exceeded the allocation, having sent $1,955 to the Presbyterial treasurer; the Christian Stewardship secretary, Mrs. Davis, expressed her pleasure in the fact that the allocation was exceeded and largely through the fact of systematic giving; community friendship secretary, Mrs. Mayes, reported 268 cards sent to sick during the year, 73 Christmas cards and 82 boxes sent to the shut-ins and sick at Christmas time, besides many calls made during the year.

The Missionary Monthly secretary reported that there were 34 subscribers and the supply secretary, Mrs. McDonald, that a shipment of bright colored three-yard-length cotton material had been sent to India; and that four boxes of good used clothing had been sent to Toronto to be allocated as required.

The Mission Band reported large attendances and splendid programs carried out by the leaders, Mrs. Loynes and Mrs. Ross. Mrs. Farnsworth reported for temperance, stating that an educational program is carried out in public and Sunday Schools.

Mrs. Franklin, the corresponding secretary had written letters of condolence and other letters under her department, and Mrs. Denyes, Associate Helpers secretary reported several new members and their donations.

Mrs. Walsh, as literature secretary, was anxious that more reading would be done in 1959, and Mrs. Bird expressed her happiness to be able to assist in any way possible.

PRESBYTERY'S ACTIVITIES

Mrs. Adsett, the retiring president, who had served two years, gave a short resume of her activities during office: she had attended 18 meetings out of 20; 60 extra meetings and five Presbyterial meetings, and expressed her appreciation for the co-operation she had received from all.

Mr. Davis installed the officers for 1959, concluding the installation with a short message; congratulated the Society on meeting its allocation, and reiterated Mrs. Davis' words that what had been accomplished has been largely through systematic giving. He also urged the W.M.S. to broaden its horizon, and take more interest in helping the under-privileged wherever and whenever possible.

He told of an incident that occurred during the last World War: a shipload of American sailors was wrecked in the Pacific Ocean. After drifting for days they were rescued by natives along the Guadalcanal, who took the sailors ashore and gave them every comfort. One of the boys writing home to his parents said, that "had this occurred years ago, we would have been feasted upon, but owing to Christianity as taught by the missionaries, we were feasted."

Mrs. Adsett introduced the newly-elected president, Mrs. MacArthur, who, after a few remarks took over the business at hand.

Mrs. Denyes was called to say a few words. Concluding her brief talk, she presented Mrs. Adsett with a book, as a memento from the Society.

Cuba's National Hero May Become Important Figure To All of Latin America

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — The magic of Fidel Castro's personality is likely to be felt beyond the borders of this land he wrested from tight dictatorship.

The bearded man of action promises to become an important figure to all of Latin America, and particularly the countries of the Caribbean.

Now Cuba's national hero, he speaks of the day when there will be a spiritual confederation of Caribbean nations."

This must be disquieting for Generalissimo Trujillo, dictator in the nearby Dominican Republic. Castro does not envisage any dictatorships in a Caribbean confederation.

SPEAKING TOUR

Castro intends to expound his ideas in Latin America. He will go to Venezuela and other Latin American countries in the spring. He plans also to visit North America.

Castro is a man who speaks eloquently with his hands as well as with his mouth. His gestures underline his points with dramatic emphasis.

"There shall be no more bloodshed in Cuba," he says. "The people will have love."

But he has the toughness of a warrior. He also says that those who have wantonly killed "have to fight to pay for living." That is his justification for the military trials and executions by supporters of the ousted dictator Fulgencio Batista.

MODIFICATION POSSIBLE

This was interpreted as meaning that the stand might be modified if some other practical avenue of unification opened up to prospective partners with Russia.

It is understood that various new ideas now are under discussion in the state department.

Late Monday West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe and Herbert Dittmann, emissary from the German foreign office, conferred with Dulles. Grewe then issued this statement saying that it had Dulles' approval:

"The secretary reaffirmed that it is the policy of the United States government to seek reunification of Germany through free elections. As the secretary said yesterday at his press conference, there are various theoretically possible methods, but reunification of Germany by free elections is the natural method and the formula agreed to by the Western powers and Russia at the summit conference in 1955."

RUSSIA OPPOSED

Since the summit meeting, however, Russia has opposed this decision plan and insisted on direct negotiations between the East and West German governments on reunification.

The Russians are advocating a settlement which would demilitarize and isolate Germany as a buffer zone in central Europe.

President Eisenhower Wednesday denounced the Russian plan and called it "an exercise in futility." The Germans are for it strong and active a people to accept such a status, he indicated.

But he offered the Russians "any assurance, any material moves to prevent there is no danger from these (German) people and they shouldn't insist on isolating them."

West Germany Reassured U.S. Policy Unaltered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has reassured West Germany that it is standing pat —for the time being, at least—on the policy of seeking German reunification through free, all-German elections.

Statements designed to clarify the U.S. stand did not, however, rule out the possibility of future revision of this policy.

The West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sought more information Wednesday after State Secretary Dulles told a press conference that free elections were the "natural method" but not the only possible way of merging the two parts of Germany into a single nation again.

MODIFICATION POSSIBLE

This was interpreted as meaning that the stand might be modified if some other practical avenue of unification opened up to prospective partners with Russia.

It is understood that various new ideas now are under discussion in the state department.

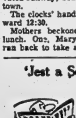
21 Persons Perished, 40 Hurt In Great Molasses Flood of '19

BOSTON (AP)—It was Wednesday, Jan. 15, 1919. Clocks ticked off the noon hour in Boston's busy north end.

The temperature hovered at the freezing point. There was a blanket of snow in the air.



The everyday bustle of activity echoed along Commercial Street, the north end's cluttered avenue of trucks, delivery vehicles and wagons.

A group of children romped beneath a huge tank—58 feet high, 90 feet wide—that towered over the Purity Distilling Company plant. It contained 2,500,000 gallons of molasses. A guard shooed the youngsters away.

A train clacked by on the overhead tracks of the Boston elevated railway, bound for Charlestown.

The clocks' hands moved on to-ward 12:30.

Mother beckoned children to lunch. One, Mary DiStasio, 11, ran back to take another look at the molasses tank.

'Jest a Second'

"Don't wipe you- loffice ap-ple on your father's trousers you'll get heirs on it."

A city laborer, Michael Senotti, sat down to lunch with five companions. The nearby pushcarts were yawned. He munched on a cheese sandwich.

It was 12:31.

A moment later, with only a muffled report as warning, the great molasses tank erupted.

A 15-foot wave of sticky, black liquid spewed over two city blocks with such force it hurled trucks against a steel and concrete railroad bridge. It flattened other trucks, sheared wooden buildings from their foundations, ripped apart iron girders and tossed them about like matchsticks.

Nearby tenements, attempting to flee the fluid fury, slipped, rose, slipped again, and were engulfed.

Some stories later a tank holding part of steel over the area. Some molasses escaped the elevated's uprights, splintering them. Train service was halted on the nine-hundred block between Commercial and Hyde Park.

A dozen persons attempting to flee were swallowed up in the slithering mass.

A fire horse collapsed, trapping two firemen. Comrades rescued them after two hours.

At one point the molasses ran to its deep.

Police, firemen and sailors from the Charlestown naval yard, attempting rescue work, soon rescued themselves.

All of the rescue teams and police were able to determine the toll.

Little Mary DiStasio's body was found beneath four feet of molasses. The public works yard was a blanket of molasses. Senotti and his companions were dead.

In all, 21 persons perished, 40 were injured and the damage ran to millions.

Strenuous Bid Will Be Made to End Deadlock

MONTREAL (CP)—Efforts will be made to end a formal submission of a "lengthy and detailed" proposal which had been handed to the producers informally the night before.

REJECT FORMULA

The CBC proposal was prepared after the CBC rejected a formula submitted earlier by the producers. The formula was worked out in Ottawa by top officials of the Canadian Labor Congress and officers of seven CLC unions affiliated which supported the producers' stand.

After Wednesday's morning session a joint statement was issued saying both sides realized the public had been inconvenienced" by the strike and its effect on CBC radio and TV operations.

They were "determined in plan to continue bargaining again."

The CBC refused recognition on the grounds that the CLC members were part of management and under federal law are not eligible to form a union.

Terms of the proposal under consideration today were not made public, but it was believed the CBC would like to see re-defined producers' responsibilities to eliminate management functions, now performed by them, but by unions there was little deviation from the basic stands.

Originally more than 2,000 other CBC employees in seven other unions refused to cross picket lines set up by the 74 producers, but after only one day 1,500 and 600 of its 800 members back to work the CBC reported more than 1,300 of its 2,500 Montreal-area employees.

ARCTIC SCHOOL BOY

This youngster strides around the townsite of Resolute Bay every morning ringing his bell to summon the Eskimo students to school. Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island, a bustling international airtime stop, radar base and weather station in the Canadian Arctic, has a new school with six teachers to instruct 170 children —part of the northern affairs department's growing school program. (CP Photo.)

Teachers Must Have Special Qualities to Operate Schools Where Eskimos Are Pupils

OTTAWA (CP)—The cling-dong of the school bell now carries within 750 miles of the North Pole, and the centre of Canada's high Arctic has its first non-Eskimo woman resident.

Both developments came before last Christmas when Carol Baker and his wife took up residence at Resolute Bay on Cornwallis Island, where Mr. Baker will teach school to the young and old of the Eskimo community.

Resolute Bay, in the centre of the archipelago about 1,700 miles north of Winnipeg, stands as the high-water mark for teachers of the northern affairs department. It may hold that distinction for some time, since only two other Eskimo settlements lie further north.

EXPANDING EFFORT

The department entered the northern education field 10 years ago. It now has about 175 teachers directly employed in the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and a few places in northern Quebec.

The aim of its expanding operation is to wipe out illiteracy among the Eskimos. Some officials have estimated that perhaps 95 per cent of the 12,000 Canadian Eskimos cannot read or write.

But in the Mackenzie Valley of the far Northwest authorities estimate that about 89 per cent of the Eskimo children now can read. Back there, Baker will teach school, and say the same level may be reached in the eastern Arctic in 15 to 20 years.

Anglican and Roman Catholic mission schools already began in the Arctic about 100 years ago and are operating three full-time institutions. The number will soon be reduced to one. About 20 part-time schools remain, and J. W. Jacobson, chief of the department, said:

HEAD INTO ARCTIC

Mr. Baker, 22, who like his wife was born at Kingston, Ont., headed north before Christmas for his first look at the Arctic. Mrs. Baker is the former Sheila Plaunt of Haileybury, Ont., left to open a school at Pangnirtung on Boothia Peninsula, about 280 miles south of Resolute Bay and 2500 miles from the North Pole.

The North, whose lone municipal school district is at Yellowknife, N.W.T., makes special demands on the teaching profession Mr. Jacobson said from his office view.

One is that there must be some settled community where attendance can be regular. Another is that the teachers must have special qualities.

The northern affairs department put its first two teachers into the Mackenzie River Valley which has the most settled regions of the North, both teachers Miss Dorothy Robinson and E. M. Hines, are still with the department.

About 30 per cent of those that apply are hired and there is no shortage, with an average turnover of 22 per cent in personnel.

Mr. Jacobson said, compared with about 35 per cent in southern schools.

Resolute is the site of the most northerly RCAF station and the headquarters of the network of jointly - operated Canada-United States weather stations. It has a meteorological force of about 40 persons working on the mysteries of the upper troposphere, and it serves as the main supply depot for the high Arctic, altitude during the brief summer shipping season and again in the spring when RCAF transports fly supplies in the weather stations.

The school, to be held in temporary quarters until the permanent ones are finished, owes its early existence to Leah, a young Eskimo girl who was so interested herself that she began teaching the small children. Pending the arrival of the Bakers, the government supplied with supplies, advice and material.

AID ADULTS

Each teacher is expected to carry on adult education, which usually starts as Eskimo parents drop in at the school out of curiosity and remain to be instructed in English, handicrafts or other skills.

All instruction is in English, but the Eskimo language isn't suited for extensive education," Mr. Jacobson said, "and it would be of little help economically.

"Greenland has run into some difficulty because of its strong Eskimo tongue. It has found that schooling ceases for most after the seventh or eighth grade. The language can't carry education any longer."

Defence Budget Little Changed From Last One

OTTAWA (CP)—The government likely will place before parliament a defence budget for 1959-60 little changed from the current one.

Some $4,500 defence expenditures were estimated at $1,686,000,000 and parliament voted the amount for the new fiscal year starting April 1 will likely be about the same.

But the defence budget as such won't tell the story of defence business at the parliamentary session opening today. That story is reserved for debate on the estimates of the supply committee.

The Liberals will call for establishment of a special Commons committee with power to call non-government as well as government witnesses to give views as to whether the plane should be ordered into production. Under present practice, the government can easily reject such a motion but its opponents in this regard likely won't be made known until after the Liberals make their position on the $300,000,000 expenditures on the Arrow, if any, probably won't be known until the estimates are usually placed before Parliament fairly early in the session.

It is likely that the government apparently hasn't made up its mind yet on whether the production of the Arrow and the estimates have already been prepared.

The administration is expected to decide the Arrow's fate by March 31. If its decision were to order production, unemployment in Malmaker convertor Arrow costs in the 1959-60 fiscal year would be introduced later in the session.

The defence department is in the position of being unable to make any big reductions in defence expenditures without large cuts in the strength of the armed forces. And there is no indication of any personnel cuts.

MINE-MILL FAILS

OTTAWA (CP)—The left-wing International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Can.) has failed to get control of collective bargaining for workers at Bicroft Uranium Mines at Bancroft. The Canada Labor Relations Board announced Wednesday that in a representation vote of the workers, Mine-Mill was not the majority. The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) is the bargaining agent for the 480 workers.

Two Men Die In Ottawa Crash

OTTAWA (CP)—Two men were killed Wednesday night in a trawk-auto collision and police today are still trying to locate a young man who staggered from the scene.

Police said they believe the missing man may be the driver. A witness saw him walk away after the small car rammed into the rear of a parked trailer-truck on Brunson Avenue in southwest Ottawa. He was bleeding profusely from the face.

Dead are Peter Swinburne, 19 employed as a pressman, and James Stacey Box, 29, a salesman for Canada Bread Co. Ltd. of Ottawa, Box, who was found in the front passenger's seat, was dead on arrival at hospital. Swinburne, in the back seat died on the operating table.

Tour Convinces Mikoyan U.S. Folk Want Peace

NEW YOR K(AP) — Anastas I. Mikoyan, the Soviet Union's first deputy premier, was wined and dined Wednesday by 1,100 business and industrial leaders at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

He reminded them that the Soviet Union posed neither an economic or military threat to the United States.

Today Mikoyan planned his first visit to the United Nations headquarters and a talk with Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold.

At the dinner sponsored by the Economic Club of New York, Mikoyan hammered at the themes of peace and coexistence and more trade.

WANT PEACE

He reconfirm that the American people, both the ordinary people and the business people, want peace, Khrushchev, he added:

"Now the talk is more of the economic menace of the Soviet Union—that it is an even greater threat. That talk is without groundless. It would be best to stop frightening ourselves.

"There are differences between our countries. Let us argue our differences peacefully. Talk —

"Constructive proposals of my government have all been met with nyet, nyet, nyet. (No, no, no) Let's make an effort to get (da, da, da)."

Some of Mikoyan's remarks drew laughter and applause. Others were met with silence.

AHEAD OF GOVERNMENT

American business men, Mikoyan said, are far ahead of the U.S. government in their outlook for trade between the two countries.

He said visits of prominent Americans to Russia, such as Adlai E. Stevenson, Eric Johnston, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, "convinced us of their sincere desire for peace between the two countries."

His busy schedule Wednesday included a visit to the department store, lunch in Wall Street, and a reception given by oil and acquaintance, former New York Governor Averell Harriman.

Appeal Court To Give Decision Within Week

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday reserved judgment on the attorney-general department's bid to reject a ruling that the province's licensed drive-in theatre operations are illegal.

The ruling was made by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer two months ago in the case of Toronto lawyer William Common said Wednesday that since then more than 100 charges have been laid in Ontario and that the province is appealing the appeal.

The appeal before Chief Justice McRuer, Justice Porter and Messrs. Justice W. D. Roach, W. F. Schroeder, Q.C., and Donald A. M. LeBel, lasted three days. A decision is expected within a week.

ARGUMENTS

Final arguments were presented Wednesday.

Mr. Pelton of Hamilton, counsel for the respondent David Volles, accused of careless driving, said there are two major reasons why the Ontario statute should be declared ultra vires—the Criminal Code—and therefore its validity.

The careless driving law comes from a common law crime; the Criminal Code is the creator of a motorist towards the safety of others, not towards the regulation of traffic.

Chief Justice Porter suggested that the two aspects covered by the legislation seemed to be penalties—a fine or imprisonment. He asked if the legislation would not be all right if the penalty were only cancellation of a driver's licence.

Mr. Pelkin said he did not think so.

JUDGE DISAGREES

He contended that the penalty provisions must be considered in dangerous driving offences.

Chief Justice Porter disagreed, saying that in that case there would be no use for legislation to separate civil negligence from criminal negligence.

Chief Justice Porter said he did not think a motorist had a guilty mind just because he drove a car without due care.

RESTRICT PILL SALE

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Dymond said Wednesday he will ask the federal government to restrict the sale of tranquillizer pills so that they can be obtained only on doctors' prescriptions. Ontario has unsuccessfully urged the federal government for years to put on all sedative pills under prescription.

Producers Declare Auction Of Hogs Impractical in Brief Presented to Frost Govt.

TORONTO (CP)—Auction selling, advocated by Ontario meat processors, was termed impractical for selling and marketing hogs in a brief presented to Premier Frost Wednesday by the Ontario Hog Producers Co-Operative.

The co-op represents some 40,000 Ontario producers. The detailed brief, presented to Mr. Frost and Agriculture Minister Goodfellow in answer to criticism of the present marketing scheme, said auction selling would be a retrograde step.

President Charles McInnis said "during the past five months our discussions with the processors indicate that they are satisfied only with a system of auction selling."

The board feels, this would not be in the best interest of hog producers at this time, he said.

FAIR TO ALL

"After conducting the analysis contained in our brief to Mr. Frost, we have been more than convinced that our present method of selling is sound practice and fair to all those in the trade."

Under the scheme, hogs are collected in 17 marketing yards of the co-operative. The co-op's brief said sales staff are hired by packing houses. Hog lots are sold on a bid basis.

F. R. Kohler, co-op general manager, said the co-op will adopt any recognized method which method to improve selling methods. If a better one is established for sale by ticker tape, similar to selling and buying on stock exchanges.

Bids will be recorded as to number of hogs, time the bid is made and the assembly point from which they are purchased.

KEEP SECRECY

S. Aiken, a Western Ontario hog producer and senior member of the co-op board of directors told Mr. Frost that the co-op hopes to improve the marketing plan continually.

He said the Ontario Securities Commission has been approached to examine the marketing plan and the economics department of the province has met with co-op directors.

The analysis of the scheme was prepared by Dr. David D. Monison, a marketing professor at the University of Pennsylvania and former associate professor at the University of Toronto's graduate institute of business administration.

He said the Meat Packers Council of Canada (Ontario section) had criticized the new marketing scheme in that hogs were not necessarily sold to the highest bidder.

The co-op's scheme tries to eliminate discounts for poor quality products at all times during the day, he said.

Auction selling would result in discrimination for producers whose hogs were sold late in the early in the day.

A bidder with selling power could capitalize on the co-op's responsibility to move the remainder of the hogs.

Trade Mission Leaving to Tour West Indies

MONTREAL (CP)—A 39-member economic mission leaves today for The West Indies to explore the possibilities of increasing trade with the Caribbean.

The mission, representing a cross-section of Canada's trading interests in the Caribbean, is to spend 17 days touring the major islands in the new West Indies Federation, and British Guiana.

Organized by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, the mission has a two-fold purpose:

1. To develop closer relations between Canada and The West Indies;

2. To determine at first hand the problems involved in expanding and developing trade between Canada and the islands, thereby laying the groundwork for future trade expansion.

The mission's tour stems from a visit by four representatives of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce to The West Indies last April for ceremonies marking the inauguration of the federation. The chamber was invited by the Incorporated Chambers of Commerce of the British Caribbean to form a larger business mission.

The Canadian chamber decided to make the trip to coincide with the opening of the first of two Canadian government - sponsored trade fairs in The West Indies this year.

The mission is to spend six days in Jamaica, four in Trinidad, three in British Guiana and four in Barbados before the group is to return to Canada Jan. 31.

In Kingston, Jamaica, Friday the mission is to attend the opening of the Canadian government trade fair in the capital's exhibits. A second trade fair is to be held in Trinidad in February.

The mission's, headed by A. C. Ashforth of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Murder Attempt Case Dismissed

TORONTO (CP)—William Harold Cole, 63, Tuesday was freed on $1,000 bail on a charge of attempting to murder Mrs. Marie Dupuis, 76, with a paring knife. The accused he was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm in 1954 and was given a two-year term.

Mrs. Dupuis was stabbed in the throat and chest in front of her door on her porch. She testified Cole attacked her after asking about his wife who went into the house when she saw him.

Cole's bail agreement admitted of the assize court trial, Cole said he went to see his wife whom he thought kidnapped.

Interest Rates in United States Beginning to Edge up Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates in the United States are beginning to edge up again. The reason for the upward pressure, financial observers think the trend will continue for a while.

One factor is that the U.S. treasury is borrowing more money to finance its deficit, and must pay higher interest rates to get it.

Another is that bankers are convinced that business itself soon will be coming back to life and will want more than it has been for about a year now.

Still another is the revival of home building—and the additional spurt expected when cooperative weather is here—both causing more demand for investment funds and thus tightening the money market.

And finally, there is President Eisenhower's anti-inflation campaign against inflation. This will support the federal reserve board's new drive to curb inflation by keeping money and credit as tight as the economy will stand.

The treasury will pay four per cent on its new long-term bonds. Last month's four-and-existing long-term' bonds. This has caused existing bonds of comparable maturities to edge higher in yield—that is, to state a bit lower in price, so that today's buyer can get more from the bonds despite their fixed interest rates.

Business has been slo. to finance its recovery in a large degree out of its own corporate funds. But bankers believe that as business continues to get bet- rates.

Move Two Cities Closer Together

Two cities in Ontario are moving closer together. Actually, they are moving apart, but the distance between them is shrinking. Sudbury and Toronto are moving apart at the rate of 1/10 of an inch a year, but the distance between them is shrinking by 1/10 of an inch a year. The reason is that the earth's crust is moving. Sudbury is on the Canadian Shield, which is moving northeast. Toronto is on the Appalachian Mountains, which are moving southwest. Scientists say the movement is caused by the earth's rotation.

DESERONTO

Loans of $38,000 Reported At Inaugural Meet of Council

DESERONTO — The inaugural meeting of the Deseronto town council was held on Monday and it seemed to indicate that Deseronto would enjoy able and progressive legislation this year. The meeting, which lasted until 12.30, evidenced that this council was not governed by any one man or clique and the members were only concerned for the welfare of the town.

The financial report for 1958 was presented by Reeve Alford, came in for some sharp questioning which revealed that regardless of the attempt of the reeve to indicate a credit balance, the town ended 1958 with loans of $38,000 from the Bank of Commerce.

The meeting opened with Canon Coleman asking the invocation, after which Mayor Sweetman welcomed the council in his opening remarks he told them that if they would work for the town they would benefit themselves. He hoped they would support the move initiated by the council of last year to have the houses of the town numbered. He advised that this year would likely decide the issue of the causeway to Prince Edward County.

According to the mayor, water filtration and sewage disposal were both issues that would have to be considered in the near future.

The public utilities has an engineer coming to give advice on water filtration and he advised council that the government would finance over a period of 20 years any advance or improvement in water conditions. He also asked the streets committee to work more closely with the public utilities, especially during emergencies.

Following the address of the Mayor, Reeve Alford presented the financial statement as at December 31st., 1958: cash on hand, $25; cash in bank, $3,324; uncollected taxes, $31,437; due from Province of Ontario, 21,-770; dominion grant in lieu of taxes, $2,542; total $39,105.

Liabilities: Canadian Bank of Commerce loans, $38,000; sundry accounts payable, $753 $8,753. Surplus $352 — $39,105.

GRANTS YEAR LATE

In closing Mr. Alford stated that this year council was going after tax arrears in a big way.

Councillor Lott asked the reeve if the improvement grants were not paid in 1958 and was advised that in 1957 Deseronto had received the grants for 1957, thus the grants were always a year late.

Councillor Detlor asked if the county levy had been paid before December 31st. and was advised that it had been.

Councillor Spence questioned the amount of uncollected taxes as mentioned in the statement and thought there should be some breakdown to show how the year's deficit was incurred.

Mayor Sweetman asked Reeve Alford, Councillors Howard and Spence to retire and strike the committees for the year.

Finance: Reeve Alford and Councillors Spence and Detlor; fire and police — H. Howard, G. Lott and J. McAllister; Streets — G. Lott, J. Therrien and H. Howard; Industrial — J. Therrien, J. Spence and H. Alford; property — J. S. McAllister, H. Howard and J. Spence; welfare — J. Spence, G. Lott and J. McAllister; by-laws — M. Detlor, H. Alford and J. McAllister; court of revision — H. Alford, J. Spence, J. Therrien, M. Detlor and G. Lott.

School Board Criticizes I.O.L. Stand on French

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Oakville public school board Tuesday night criticized the Wentworth County Loyal Orange Lodge for objecting to the introduction of oral French into Hamilton public schools.

The lodge last week told the Hamilton board of education that conversational French classes would be a infringement of rights and privileges of public school supporters. It claimed the plan was being pressed by Roman Catholic associations in the city.

Trustee William Cotton told the Oakville board "the criticism by the lodge was based entirely on anti-Roman Catholicism and should be weighed very carefully."

Juniors Chalk up Fourth in Row With 8-4 Victory Over Port Hope

Belleville Lambert - Rollins chalked up their fourth consecutive victory in Port Hope last night, by an 8-4 score, to consolidate their grip on third place in the OHA-Central Ontario Junior "B" League.

The clubs fought to a 1-1 tie in the first heat with Eddie Flata's boys from Belleville taking over in the second for a 5-2 lead. They outscored the Port Hope Ontarios 3-2 in the final period for the 8-4 victory.

Captain Gary Rowbotham sparked his club pointwise for the second straight game, scoring two goals and picking up an even number of assists. Dennis Kerruish also scored twice with Jimmy Ellis, Gary Coyer, Jack Elliott and Bucky Ethier potting single goals. Ron Hull, Roger Drake and Ralph Plane each had a pair of assists.

For the last-place Ontarios, Highfield, Watts, Mel Stevenson and Martin were the marksmen. Dave Greenaway had two helpers with one each for Garnet Harris and George Fenton.

Referees Locke and Cane handed out 16 minor penalties, eight to each club. Belleville, however, earned a couple of misconducts for talking out of turn. Rowbotham drew one in the second period and Don Hull picked up another at the game's final whistle.

Kerruish and Highfield scored goals in the initial period. Watts gave Port Hope a short-lived lead at 3.10 of the second but Goyer made it 2-2 20 seconds later. Ethier, Elliott and Kerruish went on to build the 3-2 lead by the period's end.

M.-Stevenson and Martin cut the lead to 5-4 in the final period before a pair of goals by Rowbotham and one by Ellis wrapped it up for the Lambert-Rollins crew.

Belleville's next start will be in Picton against the Prince Edward Combines Saturday night and their next home game is here Monday against Kingston.

Soccer Referees Seek Own Safety Measures

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver soccer referees, endangered in the past by fans, will seek "suitable protective measures" in soccer games featuring teams with "national identities."

A program recommending that all "national" soccer teams in this area be placed in a league of their own, with their own referees, was defeated at a meeting of the Vancouver and District Referees Association Wednesday.

Instead, the protective resolution was passed. What form the protective measures would take was not known.

President Jack Jones said it is not difficult to tell which games are likely to cause trouble.

"Just look at the crowds is enough," he said. "Our boys feel they are in constant danger from attack."

Julie Newmar to Make Debut In Omnibus Next Sunday

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — "Men," says Julie Newmar, "have much greater imagination than we have beauty—bless their hearts."

A man would have to have quite an imagination indeed to cudge the beauty of Miss Newman. A tall, svelte, curvaceous pulchritude who currently is playing on Broadway in The Marriage-Go-Round.

Next Sunday she makes her television debut on Omnibus (NBC-TV, 5 p.m., EST), in a satiric comedy on Hollywood life entitled Mulice in Wonderland.

KEENAN WYNN IN CAST

"I play an actress, an extra-type girl who's a little larger than life and overwhelm a blind date, a psychiatrist played by Keenan Wynn," said Miss Newman. "In a way it's the part of a Hollywood sex goddess.

"But is it necessary to say that the movies have developed quite a few sex goddess types and television has not developed even one? Is it censorship?

"Of course not," said Miss Newmar. "You can't really censor sex. You censor sex with your eyes more easily than any other way. The girl who wiggles her hips won't get her man. She'll only get cigars.

HOPEFUL OUTLOOK

Well, said this fellow, is there any hope for a goddess-type on television?

"I think so," said the goddess-type Miss Newmar. "On television an actress must just pretend that sex is on her mind and throw it at you blindly." Looking at him thoughtfully, she said slowly, "sex is most potent when it is not projected."

"But we were speaking of television. See how hot it is with lights. Black is not a color that expresses sex. On television everything is simply black and white—most of the time. For instance, I'm wearing black today. If I wanted to convey an impression of sexiness on anyone I'd have worn beige."

She was doing mighty well in black, the man said.

"Not that I'm aware of," she replied. "Maybe when color sets are in more general use television finally will develop a sex-goddess."

Western League

Calgary Stampeders, who have played only 34 Western Hockey League games against Edmonton's 39, forged to within two points of the first-place Flyers after Wednesday night's action.

In their ninth straight victory the Stamps defeated Seattle Totems 5-2. Totems were at the end of an eight-game Prairie swing in which they managed only two victories.

Spokane Flyers, meanwhile, stayed a point ahead of Victoria in the Coast standings when the two teams battled through overtime and failed to break a 4-4 tie.

Dusty Blair, Howie Glover, Bill Hay and Don Ward scored for the Calgary sextet. Ronnie and Tom McVie tallied for Seattle.

At Victoria, Buddy Bodman, Al Johnson, Del Topoll and Blinky Boyce connected for Spokane. Gordie Haworth tired two Victoria goals and George Ford and Don Blackburn one each.

Cougars were forced to play without star centre Stan Smrke from early in the second period. Ballisk hurt an ankle in a mid-ice collision and was taken to hospital for x-rays.

KELLY OUT

DETROIT (AP) — Defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit Red Wings is sidelined with a foot injury suffered Saturday night.

Gordon Drake has been called up from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League to take his place. Kelly was hurt in Monday's practice when teammate Pete Goegan's shot bruised a bone in his left foot. Doctors said Kelly will miss tonight's game in Boston and possibly Saturday night's game in Toronto.

NELSON REPLACEMENT

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League have purchased first baseman Joe Altobelli from Cleveland Indians for $20,000. Altobelli played last year with Indianapolis of the American Association, hitting .287 and driving in 94 runs. He will replace Rocky Nelson, a .326 hitter with Leafs last season who was drafted by Pittsburgh Pirates.

Fatherless Puerto Rico Boy Making Good in Movies

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a fatherless Puerto Rico boy in the Harlem slums, the image of Lewis Stone became an imposing figure on the movie screen.

"I saw all the Hardy family pictures I could," says Henry Silva. "Judge Hardy became like a father to me. And I wasn't so alone. A lot of guys in the same neighborhood felt the same way. When they balked at doing something, their fathers told them, 'Do it or I'll break your neck.'

"In the Hardy pictures, it was different. When Mickey Rooney wouldn't do something, Lewis Stone would say, 'Now let's sit down and talk this over.' That made a big impression on us."

Now Henry Silva is himself in Hollywood beginning what promises to be a distinguished acting career.

ROUGH NEIGHBORHOOD

When he was growing up, the street next to his in Harlem was called as having the highest incidence of juvenile delinquency in the U.S. His father pulled up stakes when the boy was one, leaving his mother to bring Henry up alone. Yet he stayed out of trouble.

"For one thing, I could run fast," he said. "But the most important thing was that I didn't go looking for trouble. You didn't have to go far to find it. It wasn't unusual for kids to be stabbed and left to rot in the streets or pushed off buildings.

"But three other guys and I stuck together and became almost like brothers. We all made it—one is a lawyer, and we've done all right since."

Henry was a longshoreman, garment worker, bus boy, waiter and finally broke into acting via a father to me. And I wasn't so alone. A lot of guys in the same neighborhood felt the same way. When they balked at doing something, their fathers told them, 'Do it or I'll break your neck.'

Henry was a longshoreman, garment worker, bus boy, waiter and finally broke into acting via Actor's Studio. After some seasoning in stock and TV, he made his big break as the menacing dope pusher called Mother in A Hatful of Rain on Broadway and in the movie version, and was nominated for an Antoinette Perry award—the equivalent of the Oscar," he recalled. "After the show closed — nothing! I was really interested."

Fortunately, director Fred Zinneman remembered Silva and cast him in the movie version. The offers started pouring in the day after the preview.

The role of Mother set the pattern for Silva's career. Hollywood being type-conscious. He just finished Green Mansions, in which he plays a fire to Audrey Hepburn. Now he's making The Hawbuckers, and he has a violent scene in which he attempts to rape Nicole Maurey.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Now if we can repeat the dose on Saturday night, all will be hunkey-dory with us."

You could scarcely hear happy Ike Hildebrand make that statement as the jubilant McFarlands celebrated their stunning 6-2 victory over the world champion Whitby Dunlops Tuesday night.

Beneath the din of the dressing room pow had to stretch your ears to hear any conversation. Hizzoner Mayor H. J. McFarland beamed his happiness over the result as he shook hands with the Macs.

Billy Graham of the Kitchener Dutchmen, and Dennis Boucher, former Quebec leaguer who has been playing recently with the Cornwall Chevies, sat quietly in their seats.

Both players, who are on trial with the McFarlands, not yet having been released by their respective clubs, turned in a good effort with their new team-mates. Graham showed flashes of the spirited, spunky play that characterized him against the Dunlops two years ago and last year against the Macs. If he stays and rounds into hockey shape he will be a valuable asset to the Macs' front-line corps.

The McFarlands put the quietus on some of their local critics with that brilliant all-out display against the Dunlops. It was one of the best. If not the best, efforts they have come up with this season and the likemen proved without a doubt that they have the potential of champions.

Unbeaten in their last seven outings the Macs have won five and tied twice, with nine tilts left in their 48-game schedule. Five of these games are with the Whitby Dunlops, one of them coming up this Saturday night, and the Macs are but a scant two points behind the world champions and they can tie for tops with a win on Saturday. They have yet to defeat the Blairmen in Whitby, but Saturday will be as good a time as any to start.

The Macs will perform but four times more before the hometown fans before they take off for overseas. They meet Kingston here Friday night, Cornwall on January 23; Hull on January 26 and Cornwall visits the local arena in Memorial Arena on January 30. In their "away" games they meet Whitby twice, Cornwall, Kingston and Hull.

We missed the junk in the Sudbury paper, but Ron Craig, Pembroke sports editor, picked it up and here is what he wrote:

"There is a little, short, round man in Sudbury who takes a peculiar delight in blasting anything and everything connected with sport.

"North Bay Trappers have been the number one target for his barbs in the past but now he has switched his attention to Belleville McFarlands, Canada's hopes in the World Hockey Tourney.

"Paul Patton, the little man who seems to go out of his way looking for the shady things of life, says, The Macs have been trying to add players, but most of the players they picked up turned out to be stumblebums.'

"Then, after running the Macs further into the ground, Patton says, 'most of the players on the team are hardly the type to pay monthly dues to the local treasurer, Mayor.'

"His latest below-the-belt blow came just after Billy Reay was hired by the Macs as assistant general manager. Said Patton, 'Billy Reay, newly appointed to some vague executive post with Belleville, is going to feel out a few of the players on that team—Reay is a strict teetotaler.'

"Why Patton stoops to printing junk about the Macs, we fail to understand. They are having enough troubles without having such tripe thrown in their direction.

"Should hope loss in Prague, Patton's readers will probably assume that the Macs were too busy soaking up suds to play good hockey.

"So what if some of the Macs bend the elbow now and then. There isn't a club in Canada that hasn't a player or two who likes his beer. As a matter of fact Patton's beloved Wolves know how to handle a glass pretty handily.

"In Sudbury they have a quaint between-periods custom.

"Two pubs are located within spitting distance of the rink and when the siren wheezes the faithful dash from the rink and hurry through the swinging doors to down a couple of quickies. Sometimes they tarry and miss half a period.

"We were only in Sudbury once and, after the game we spotted six Wolves dashing to beat the last call. Oddly Patton didn't mention it in his daily chatter."

Kingston Bows to Hull 6-3
Bulldogs Stop Chatham Cold

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A few weeks ago the biggest problem in the OHA-NOHA Senior A circuit was how to stop Chatham Maroons and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen from making a runaway of things but to-day Hull and Kingston Bulldogs have found the solution. But another problem is rapidly being created. How do you halt Windsor?

Wednesday night Windsor stopped Chatham cold with a convincing 6-2 victory that made 2,000 Chatham fans wonder how the Maroons ever reached first place. It was Bulldogs seventh win in eight games.

TRAPPERS LOSE AGAIN

The victory moved Windsor to within a point of third place, still tied with Sault Ste Marie Greyhounds who kept pace by downing North Bay Trappers 3-2 in overtime at the Soo.

In the OHA's Eastern Senior A division Hull-Ottawa Canadiens outskated Kingston Merchants for a 6-3 decision on Kingston ice.

Windsor jumped to a 4-1 lead early in the second. Chatham goalie Antillio Rosso, on loan from the Soo until Saulte Ste. Marie is out with an injury, faced 30 shots. That was 13 more than Chatham forwards managed to toss at the Windsor net.

Bobby Brown scored two for Windsor with singles going to Erwin Grosse, Frank Bathgate, Gord Hasky and Lon Bendo. Chatham scorers were Jim Conway on the Soo ice, his goal to tie for a six-year carter, and Don McGregor.

OVERTIME DECISION

It was the second time in two nights that North Bay has lost an overtime decision.

The clubs battled through a scoreless third period and were near the end of the 10-minute extra session when Jim McMurray slapped home the winning goal for the Soo, his second of the game and 21st this season.

Tony Kaiser and Cec Kearney scored for North Bay with the other Soo goal going to John Ordandi.

Hayden Keeley led the Hull attack with two goals to go along with markers by Bobby Boucher, Ed Bruneau, Guy Blaick and Marcel Morisette.

Frank Chiarelli scored twice for Kingston and Roy Partridge added a single.

'Fighting' Leafs Miss Chance To Vacate The Cellar

Beaten by Broadway Blues After Duff Gave Them Lead; Two Penalties Prove Costly

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owner Conn Smythe always told his Toronto Maple Leafs he wanted a fighting team, but sometimes he must wish they hadn't taken him quite so seriously.

Wednesday night, playing a game that could have lifted them out of last place in the National Hockey League for the first time in months, Leafs were downed 3-2 by third-place New York Rangers, and two of New York's goals came with Leafs in the penalty box.

Predictably Rangers' goals were scored by crack shots Andy Bathgate and Camille Henry. Their other goal came from defenceman Harry Howell—his second this season.

Leafs' goals were scored by two of their best marksmen—Dick Duff and Bob Pulford.

EARL LEAD

Toronto went out in front at 7:44 of the first on Duff's 14th goal this season—scored when he took rearguard Tim Horton's rebound off the boards and beat Lorne Worsley in the Rangers' nets.

But at 15:18 Larry Regan was penalized for slashing and Rangers took better power-play of the game. Henry, fleet-footed centre ace, Red Sullivan.

It did not when Bathgate let a 25-foot screen shot go at goalie Ed Chadwick.

It was the 26-year-old Winnipeg native's 24th goal this season, the highest production in the league. Sullivan and Henry got the assists.

Early in the second Howell ripped in on right wing and hooked a shot at Chadwick's arm into the Toronto net to make it 2-1.

The game stayed that way until, with Bob Baun sitting out a holding penalty, Henry put the play on again, Camille Henry tipped Bathgate's long shot into the net to make it 2-2.

HELD IN CHECK

Pulford gave Toronto's second goal a couple minutes later by sliding a loose puck under Worsley's legs and it looked like the Leafs were within sight of a tie.

But in the third period they got only three shots at Worsley—out of a total of 21 all night. Rangers had 39 shots at Chadwick, who at times was left without a defenceman in possession.

The third period was chiefly notable for a fist-fight between Howell and Duff. Both received major penalties; Baun got a minor in addition and Toronto's Carl Brewer and Rangers' Howell also got minors.

The fight gave New York's Lou Fontinato an opportunity to recover the league lead in total penalties from Ted Lindsay of Chicago Black Hawks.

Fontinato had fault with the referee's handling of the brawl and was given a 10-minute misconduct for talking.

Ole Casey Sent Berle and Jessel To the Showers

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) No one underscored Casey Stengel Wednesday night but he scored more laughs than Milton Berle or George Jessel.

The occasion was a Shrine testimonial for the colorful manager of the world champion New York Yankees. More than 1,500 attended, including leading sports figures.

Berle and Jessel were never better but Casey ran them both to the showers muttering: "What did he say? What did he say?"

Casey spoke Stengelese, understandable to a select few. His talk went something like this:

"Well, I'll tell you how you get to become manager of the year. You take a guy like Rhubarb Duren, who was so wild he walks 183 men in a year, Rhubarb. After five years you put him in the majors and he's still out to make a new walk record, so you look at his bifocals.

"They're too small. The guy's whole trouble is he can't see the home plate. Then you bring in bigger bifocals and you get him bigger bifocals that reach to 60 feet, see?

"But then his control gets too good. I don't want that.

"So I score that by having him wipe his bifocals with a dirty rag before each pitch. That cures it but as and saves 18 for me. It was the greatest change of pace in major league history."

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Cronin, one of baseball's most celebrated players, unofficially has been crowned president of the American League.

CONDITIONS MET

He said he was not interested in becoming league president unless certain conditions were met. And they were.

The conditions included moving the league office from Chicago to Boston, but retaining a branch office in Chicago.

The branch office would be in charge of Will Harridge, who resigned after 27 years in office.

Still to be confirmed at the Jan. 31 full league meeting is Cronin's request for a five-year contract at $50,000 a year with a $15,000 expense account.

Cronin was elated over his selection and said he was deeply indebted to Harridge.

TO HEAD DIRECTORS

The screening committee recommended that Cronin succeed Harridge as league president as of Feb. 1 and that Harridge be named chairman of the league's board of directors on the same date.

Wants Change In Method Of Information

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions will protest to commissioner Sydney Halter the method of informing Western Interprovincial Football Union clubs when a player is taken off a team's negotiation list.

The problem arose when Saskatchewan Roughriders dropped import Joe Kapp, University of California's great running quarterback. Halter notified WIFU clubs of the move by mail.

However, Lions receive their mail half a day later than other clubs and were beaten by Calgary Stampeders in placing Kapp on their list. Under rules Stampeders had Kapp on their list 20 minutes before B.C.'s bid was received by the commissioner's office.

Don Gilfillan, who left Wednesday for Winnipeg and the WIFU and Canadian Football League annual meetings, said the protest will be based on principle more than the effect ease of Kapp.

The club said it wants to prevent a repeat of this in the future when it might involve a player B.C. had greater interest in.

Kapp, a six-foot, 205-pound lad, was the greatest running quarter-back in American football circles. He also completed 56 of 97 passes for 649-yards.

Don Hogan Scores Three In Barons Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Riding a six-game unbeaten streak and with five victories and a tie, Cleveland Barons today were tied for second place and within only one point of the league-leading Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League.

Barons moved into a tie with Hershey Wednesday night as they defeated Buffalo Bisons on a flight to Cleveland from Montreal. He had been scheduled to replace the injured Gerry McNamara. Binkley made 36 saves in the Cleveland goalmouth. Marcel Pelle.

Don Hogan scored three goals for the Barons. Buffalo kept even with Cleveland for the first two periods, getting goals by Gerry Foley and one by Bill Sweeney.

But in the third period, Art Stratton, Georges Bouchard and Bill Needham salted it away for Cleveland.

Blue Bombers Will Present New Proposal For East-West Shrine Game

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers will present a new proposal for the ill-fated East-West Shrine game to the second annual meeting of the Canadian Football League here Friday.

Plagued by bad weather since its inception four years ago, the Shrine game may be on but as far as spectators are concerned. Several suggestions have been kicked about—some officials have advocated a summer game to beat the weather, but coaches have been against the proposal because of the possibility of injuries to key players.

The Bombers have come up with the idea of a three-game series between the East and West junior winners and put them on coast-to-coast TV-radio hookups to pick up the Grey Cup championship of Canada.

The Winnipeg club is meeting with other Western teams in annual session here today and Friday before going into the annual meeting of the CFL Saturday and Sunday. At the same time, the Eastern Big Four is meeting to loose ends left over from its annual meeting in Montreal last month.

In its brief, to be presented to the Western Interprovincial Football Union meeting before going to the CFL, the Bombers claim the proposed Canadian Bowl is 'ill sponsored and promoted by Shrine officials and could be built up to rank second only to the present Grey Cup contest."

The Grey Cup committee say it would be "a terrific stimulus to amateur football throughout Canada . . . It would be promoting amateur sport and not professional sport . . . and the net revenue to the Shrine would be very much greater in proportion to the outlay."

Last year the West beat the East 6-0 in hair-freezing temperatures at Hamilton before a crowd of about 5,000 fans. Other years, rain and snow hampered the play.

Winner of the 1959 Grey Cup final also will be among the main talking points at the meetings. The classic will be played in the East this year on Saturday, Nov. 28.

Toronto and Montreal have been named as cities likely and both offers its new 35,000-capacity grandstand at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds as a selling point, while Montreal figures it rates it as has held the national final only once—in 1931. The 1958 final was played in Vancouver.

Rule changes also will be discussed but no decisions likely will be made until the CFL's rules committee meets in Toronto next month.

Several proposals will be made at the meetings—including unlimited blocking for linemen, more blocking for backfielders and blocking on pass interception.

Quebec Hockey

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces bounced from the bottom of the Quebec Hockey League to second place Wednesday night with a three-goal splurge in the final period that gained them a 4-0 win over Chicoutimi Saguenenns.

The Aces' win broke the first-place deadlock with Chicoutimi and put them one point up on Trois - Rivieres Lions and two ahead of the Saguenenns. They trail the leading Montreal Royals by 11 points.

Jean Marie Cossette, Pete Panagakho, John Bailey and Jackie Leclair connected for the Aces. Jacques Gagnon and Greig Hicks scored for Chicoutimi.

The wrapup goal came when Chicoutimi pulled goalie Gillis Boisvert for another attacker in the last minute.

Minor Hockey

The midgets took over the ice at Memorial Arena last night with three games being played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's 14 to 16-year class.

Rangers scored a 5-3 victory over the Black Hawks with J. Kiser sparking the win. Both participated in all the Ranger scoring plays, getting one goal and four assists. Kiser had the two goals and one helper while G. Graham had the other two goals. K. Johnson and W. Cooey scored unassisted goals for the Hawks.

Maple Leafs held the Canadiens to a 1-1 deadlock in the hardest fought battle of the evening. Stu Muirhead scored on a solo play for Canadiens. D. Jones tallied for the Leafs with M. Pelsinger assisting.

Red Wings shaded the Bruins 3-2 in another keenly contested affair. All the goals were unassisted with B. Seames getting two for the Wings and T. McCabe one. A. Waddell and K. Jones were the Bruins marksmen.

HONOR GOLFERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Harry Bradshaw and Roberto De Vicenzo, recent winners of the Canada Cup matches in Mexico City, will be honored with a gold tee award at the national awards dinner of the Metropolitan Golf Writers, Jan. 27. Bradshaw and O'Connor also were members of Great Britain's team in the event that defeated the United States in 1937.

Eastern Senior A League Scoring Statistics

Whitby centre-ice star Bobby Attersley leads in the OHA Eastern Senior "A" League scoring race with 65 points, according to official statistics released today. Attersley, who has watched his production drop sharply in the past few weeks, has a loop-leading 41 assists along with 24 goals. He is tied with team-mate Sid Smith in the goals race. Smith is second in points with 51.

Belleville playing-coach Ike Hildebrand closed in on Smith this past week and now has 49 points, consisting of 23 goals and 26 assists. Kingston's Moe Savard is fourth with 45 points, followed by three members of the McFarlands, Lou Smrke, Johnny McLellan and Paul Payette with 41, 40 and 40 points. Bob Boucher, Hull, and Ron Stewart, Kingston, are tied in the next spot with 39, while George Samolenko, Whitby, completes the top ten list with 38 points.

Long John Henderson, Whitby, is the loop's top netminder with a 2.91 average in 24 games. Belleville's Gordie Bell closed the gap, however, and holds second place with a 2.51 mark. Bell, Henderson and Kingston's Lynn Davis are tied in shutouts with two.

Cornwall Chevis defenceman Marcel Goyette is the league badman with 61 minutes in the penalty box.

Amazing Aussie Has Two More World Records

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Ilsa Konrads, Australia's amazing 14-year - old swimming champion has added the 1,500-metre and 1,650-yard world records to her fast-growing collection.

She was timed in 19:25.7 for both 1,500 metres (1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches) and 1,650 yards Wednesday. The latter distance represents 30 laps in the 55-yard north Sydney Olympic pool.

Ilsa, a 5-2, 100-pound schoolgirl, ripped 37.4 seconds off the 1,500-metre record of 20:03.1, set by Jans Koster of the Netherlands, and cracked the world standard of 20:30 for 1,650 yards by a whopping 1:04.5. No individual held the 1,650 - yard mark. The time was set up by the international amateur swimming federation when it ruled world records could only be made in 50-metre and 55-yard pools.

W. Bergs Phillips, secretary of the Australian swimming union, said Ilsa's time for 1,650 yards was the biggest chunk ever off a world swimming standard.

Ilsa was going at a fast clip that she was only 1.2 seconds off her own world records of 10:11.2 for 880 metres and 880 yards. The double conquest gave her the four major distance swim records for women.

It was a big night all around for the fabulous Konrads.

Ilsa's 16-year-old brother John, billed by just one-tenth of a second to break his world records for 400 metres and 440 yards by winning the New South Wales 440-yard championship in 4:21.9.

John holds seven world individual freestyle swimming records. He also shares in two relay world records.

Ilsa was the acme of consistency in her performance. She averaged 46 strokes per 55-yard lap. She said she had counted her strokes and sang pop tunes to herself.

Sonny Ray Tags Maravilla In Dull Bout

CHICAGO (AP) — Sonny Ray with a mean right hand, and Roque Maravilla who was in a blackout for seven rounds, went through the motions for 10 rounds Wednesday night.

Ray, fifth-rated light-heavyweight contender gained a unanimous decision in the Chicago Stadium bout which was televised across the country.

Ray tagged Baise, Idaho, opponent with a long right—the first punch he threw in the first round. Maravilla, making his TV ring debut, staggered. A left and another right dropped him.

Maravilla came out after taking a nine count, covered up well and weathered it. From then on until the last two rounds, the two fighters pumped ineffective shots at each other mostly along the ropes.

Most of Maravilla's action came in the final two rounds, after he found out what he was up against.

"I didn't remember anything after being knocked down until the end of the eighth round," the 22-year-old former golden glover said. "Then I asked my corner what round it was. They said the ninth was coming up."

Ray's right hand was swollen badly and x-rays were to be taken to see if there were any broken bones.

"I hit him so hard in the first round I might have broken it," said the 23-year-old Chicagoan.

Ray weighed 173 pounds, Roque 172.

'Best Goalie Roughest Game' Russian Topic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Russian hockey players left the United States today talking about the "best goalie and the roughest game" of their American tour.

Ivan Walmesley, Philadelphia Rambler goalie, was the topic of discussion for his spectacular performance in the 3-3 tie with the Russians in their farewell game Wednesday night before a sellout crowd of 5,811.

The Soviet team was to fly from Idlewild airport in New York today for Sweden, where it will play a two-game series before returning to Moscow.

"That Walmsley was sensational," said Russian coach Anatol Tarasov. "His saves meant the difference in the game."

Walmsley stopped 43 Russian shots in all, kicking out 32 in the first two periods.

Tarasov was disappointed that his club failed to win its final game but was satisfied with the tour. The team won five contests and tied three. Philadelphia was the only professional team the Russians played.

A two-goal rally by the Ramblers in the last 3½ minutes brought about the stalemate.

Tarasov said the game was the roughest of the Russian tour. Rambler playing co-coach Doug Adam said it might have been rougher. He said his club had to play restrained hockey because of international rules.

Sasky Riders Add Coach

REGINA (CP) — Carl Y. Schuette, line coach at Brown University in Providence, R.I., has been added to the coaching staff of Saskatchewan Roughriders, it was announced today by the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

Schuette joins head coach George Terlep and line coach Bob Maddock to give Riders a three-man coaching staff on a full-time basis for the first time in the club's history.

Schuette spent three weeks here last July assisting Terlep at the pre-season training camp.

Glamor Boys Hit Bing's Golf Trail

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Golf's glamor boys, heartened by good news from the weatherman, hit the trail today in the first round of Bing Crosby's $50,000 national pro - amateur tournament.

The forecaster predicted clear skies today and Friday—and possibly Saturday—for the tournament, played over three lush courses bordering the Pacific.

The 300-man field starts on Pebble Beach, Monterey Peninsula or feared Cypress Point, the 6,317-yard layout with the fabled 18th hole. Shortest is Monterey at goes 6,246 in 72 and Pebble Beach is 6,701. Each is par 72.

The teams rotate over the courses for three rounds.

The final round for the 90 of teams and 60 low pros is scheduled Sunday at Pebble Beach.

The amateurs, all handicapped by Bing himself, don't keep score. It's strictly a best ball event.

Favorites to win the $4,000 top money include last year's champ, Billy Casper, local favorite Ken Venturi, and Ernie Vossler, Ventturi won the Los Angeles Open, first event of the new year, and Vossler took the second, the Tijuana Open.

The 16th hole at Cypress Point is a par-three killer, running 222-yards over a big water hazard.

American College Football Gets Another Grid Gimmick

LOS ANGELES (AP) — United States college football in 1959 will follow the famous "lonesome end" of 1953.

The "wild card" player will be a substitute who can re-enter a game as many times as his coach chooses, provided he goes in when the game clock is stopped.

The player could be a key quarterback, a kicking specialist or perhaps a guard carrying instructions from the sidelines.

As a result of the rule change, games should be more wide open, higher scoring and crowd-pleasing.

Such was the hope today of the national collegiate rules committee, its majors' changes, announced Wednesday:

1. Relaxation of the substitution rule.

2. Widening the goal posts—for the first time in the history of the game—from the present inside-the-post distance of 18 feet six inches to 23 feet, four inches, or the outside distance of 19 feet, two inches to 24 feet. The posts remain 10 yards back of the goal-line. The wider goalposts are expected to encourage more attempted field goals.

Unchanged was the two-point conversion rule.

WIN CURLING

TORONTO (CP) — Mississauga Curling Club won the right to represent District 6 in the Governor-General's Trophy competition at Guelph Jan. 29 with a 26-19 victory Wednesday over Dixie Curling Club. The win came on the 12th end in the double rink event.

'Tells Critics 'Put Up Or Shut Up'

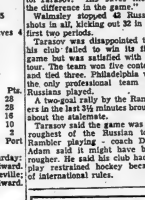
CHICAGO (AP)—The president of the dissolved International Boxing Club has challenged critics of the IBC to "put up or shut up" now in promotion of fights.

Truman Gibson, the IBC president, held a news conference upon his return from London where he attended the Brian London-Henry Cooper bout.

Referring mainly to the IBC's arch enemy, Cus D'Amato, manager of heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, Gibson likened foes of the IBC to Cuba's Fidel Castro.

"Castro conducted the revolution, but wisely left the running of the country to an experienced hand," said Gibson.

Gibson said Bill Rosenzohn of Los Angeles, who reportedly heads a new promotion group which may do business with D'Amato, lacks actual fight experience.



"Except for one fight he promoted in California (the Patterson-Roy Harris match last August 18), Rosenzohn's experience has been limited to theatre TV," said Gibson.

Gibson said Rosenzohn and D'Amato both formerly insisted that home television viewing of boxing was on its way out, to be supplanted by closed circuit viewing.

"TV networks and sponsors have long memories," said Gibson. "There is a question whether they will look kindly upon Rosenzohn and D'Amato."

Young People's Union Holds January Meet

RAWDON — Members of Rawdon Young People's Union convened Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott, Mount Pleasant, with an attendance of 23.

The new president, Rasburn Scott, gave the call to worship and the devotional opened with "Worship The King". Marion Reid read the Bible story and Allyn Warren gave the prayer. Bernard Beckett gathered the offering. A hymn of dedication followed. Lyle Couch read "The Life of Madame Curie," which told of her contribution to the world.

It was decided to devote an evening for a bowling party. The next meeting will be held in Bethel Church Hall with Mildred Morton in charge of the program. The group plans to purchase Y.P.U. crests for the members.

The treasurer, Bernard Beckett, gave a full financial statement.

At the close of the business period David Potts conducted the recreation. The ladies and the Mount Pleasant girls served refreshments.

A vote of thanks was tendered for hospitality. Rev. W. G. Fletcher spoke briefly and announced Benediction. The meeting closed with the "Friendship Circle."

FAVORITE TONIC FOR MANY YEARS-ALWAYS CAN RELY ON SYNTONA, HE SAYS

Tells of Experience in Relieving Rundown Condition, Weak Upset Stomach and Headaches.

To people suffering from tired, rundown conditions, indigestion, nervous irritability, backaches or rheumatic pains, Symtona Herbal Compound offers surprisingly fast and effective relief.

Mr. Ben Hinds, R.R. 2, St. Thomas (which is 6 miles south of Aylmer) writes:

"In my opinion there is nothing like Symtona if you get rundown, tired, weak upset stomach and headaches. I feel like a new man since using it. I advise you to take it as soon as you get rundown, it makes you a new man."

Symtona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Symtona helps to relieve nervous excesses and it at the same time relieves any digestive disturbance, such as the indigestion or heartburn. Many times nervousness and dizziness or headaches are caused by a disturbed stomach. If your stomach is upset by worry or perhaps was upset by overeating and constipation and dyspepsia has quickly put you right again.

Symtona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Ontario Traffic Deaths Lowest Since War's End

TORONTO (CP) — Transport Minister Yaremko has an-nounced Ontario's traffic fatali-ties were lower in 1958 than in any year since the Second World War.

He said 3,140 persons were killed compared to 1,279 in 1957 and estimated the fatality rate at 6.6 per 100,000,000 miles com-pared to 7.7 in 1957.

He hoped for an even better record in 1959 with the drivers' demerit system going into effect Feb. 1. Also planned were an ex-tension of traffic engineering as-sistance for municipalities to el-iminate lack of uniformity in traf-fic bylaws, plus extension of the switch to civil servants in con-ducting driving tests.

"The conduct of more com-plete examinations has proved to be a major safety program which shared in achieving the reduction of fatalities in 1958.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Friday, January 16, 1959

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You must be sure in A.M. that your credit is good, your regular work properly planned for most efficient performance, any civic affairs in order. P.M. find a more modern method for success without sacrificing principles.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You arise wondering whether to carry on with regular dull-doldrum tasks or be off to fascinating new interests. Don't get provoked. Plan your time very intelligently so you can combine the two. Consult with real authorities in new fields.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Do not permit that hasty comrade to force you into any investments in A.M. before you are ready and willing to make them. This could lose you much. P.M. a wonderful person comes along who assists you to solve the dilemma.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Hassle between dynamic executive and unrelenting higher up could be detrimental to you if you don't steer clear of it. Keep working busily. P.M. now you know how to become more efficient and so get approval of an employer.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You are puzzled whether to carry on in the old stable way or try new systems, whether to stick with fellow workers or go along with the new bunch. So, be clever during A.M. P.M. go out for an evening's entertainment. Be happy-go-lucky.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Are tempted to be extravagant where amusements are concerned instead of economizing. P.M. by acting wisely instead, clan is favorably inclined toward you and gives the support that has been missing of late. Be cooperative.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 21) — Close tie endeavors to keep you from some important outside contact or interest. He diplomatic so that you lose none of the benefit at home. P.M. finally you are inspired how to get what you want.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Take care while in motion or on the road today. Guard your words, also. By evening the strain you have been under will have eased, particularly where financial worries are concerned. You know exactly how to solve your problems.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — It is all right to be all tired to have fun, but see that you do so inexpensively, thereby safeguarding your present security and getting the approval of supporters and everyone else who has power over your affairs.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — There is very little agreement between you and close ties on certain issues now, but this also has its merits. However, don't attempt to push your ideas down other persons' throats. P.M. fine for romance. Be kind.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Do not permit that private anxiety to keep you from benefiting from the good ideas and support which a partner is now in the mood to extend. P.M. is favorable for continued furthering of career as well as having fun with pals.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — A determined comrade is genius out of saving you from some financial pitfall, and while this may go against your grain, follow suggestions made. P.M. then is fine. Influential Bigwigs realize your worth and give backing and boost.

If your child is born today—The interesting child born today will during early youth be forced to encounter many a pithy problem which he or she will have to surmount. But this will be invaluable experience and life's greatest lessons will be earned early in life. Excellent chart for work where new ideas are to be put in operation, betterment of existing conditions are concerned, etc. Keep your progeny among interesting groups.

Castro Defies U.S. Critics Of Executions

American Policy Strictly One of Non-Intervention

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro has warned against any United States intervention to stop executions ordered by military courts for murder and torture during Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship.

"If the United States comes here, we will make trenches in the streets," the premier told the Havana Rotary Club Thursday. The state department said in Washington that American policy was "strictly one of non-intervention in Cuban domestic affairs."

Nuing some U.S. congressional protests to the executions, Assistant State Secretary Roy Rubottom said, "We are not going to intervene in what is essentially Cuba's affairs."

To avoid misunderstanding, the U.S. Navy cancelled previous plans for 3,000 U.S. Marines en route to manoeuvres near Puerto Rico to stop at the American navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The base is at the opposite end of the island from Havana.

HEARTY WELCOME GRINDOU

Castro earlier Thursday, in remarks to a group in his hotel lobby, said he and the U.S. Marines are sent to Cuba "200,000 strings will did. Grindou is the derogatory Juain American term for U.S. citizen, of whom there are 12,000 living in Cuba.

Castro later told the Rotary Club he had not realized this comment would be published but he stood by it.

The rebel chief's vision of U.S. troops landing in Cuba apparently followed demands by critics in the U.S. Congress that the United States do something to stop the executions being made. One of the loudest of these critics, Democratic Representative Wayne Hays of Ohio said Thursday he meant economic retaliation, not the sending of troops.

"We want good relations with the United States," Castro told the mission—no," Castro told the Rotary Club.

The execution of what the revolutionary regime calls war criminals will continue, Castro said, "cost what it costs." And he asserted all executions would be carried out within the law.

LEGALIZE SENTENCES

With the total of reported executions at 187, the provisional government's cabinet belatedly Thursday legalized the executions already carried out as well as those meted out in the future.

A government decree modified the provision of Cuba's 1940 constitution prohibiting capital punishment. Death sentences now may be given for the commanders of the armed forces of repressive corps of the Batista regime and auxiliary groups organized by them or their confidants for crimes specifically characterized those committed in defence" of the Batista regime. Death also was provided for traitors, "subversion of the institutional order" and aggression by the enemy in wartime.

In his refuge in the Dominican Republic, Batista called the executions "perverse attempts to justify (rebel) crimes."

STRIKE DEADLINE ADDS URGENCY TO WAGE TALKS

Chrysler Union Sets Tues. Walkout Date

WINDSOR (CP) — A strike deadline for next Tuesday has added urgency to a new round of contract talks expected today between the Chrysler Corporation of Canada and the United Auto Workers (CLC).

President Charles Brooks of Local 444 said Thursday night the union has set 3 p.m. EST Tuesday for a walkout.

Involved are 3,300 workers at the main plant here and 250 at Chatham. The union called for resumption of negotiations today.

The last strike at Chrysler here was in 1954 when a five-day walkout by 29 employee workers resulted in the layoff of 6,000 employees. The company was hit by a 122-day walkout in 1946.

The union has not released its wage demands, referring to them as "a substantial wage increase." It seeks a two-year agreement and increased pension and supplementary unemployment benefits.

Contracts recently signed with Ford and General Motors of Canada resulted in six-cent hourly wage boosts every 13 months in a three-year contract or 2½ per cent—whichever is larger.

SEEKS THREE-YEAR PACT

Chrysler, like other Canadian car companies, seeks a three-year contract. The old agreement expired Aug. 15.

The union wants increased unemployment benefits totalling 80 per cent of workers' wages. The old contract called for benefits of 65 per cent for the first two weeks and 60 per cent for the next 25 weeks.

The amounts include unemployment insurance with a limit on the amount paid by the company. Ford and GM contracts call for payments totalling 65 per cent for 26 weeks.

The union also seeks revision of work standards at Chrysler. It says the company has ordered production speedups which have caused pverwork. The company charged workers with deliberate slow-downs.

UAW negotiators also are meeting in Hamilton with representatives of Studebaker of Canada.

Just Rid of One Embarrassing Friend, Tories Get Another- -Randolph Churchill

LONDON (CP) — Randolph Churchill tossed his battered hat into the political arena and promptly made a new contribution to the troubles of the Conservative party organization of Bournemouth East.

Two years ago, the constituency party machine fell out with the sitting member of Parliament, Nigel Nicolson, because of his refusal to support Sir Anthony Eden's military intervention in Suez. His resignation was demanded and declined.

Unable to get Nicolson out, Bournemouth clamped a boycott on his activities at home. He was derided office space, banned from appearing at local party meetings and rejected in advance as his party's candidate for re-election.

But the Bournemouth Conservatives, who elected Nicolson by a handsome 18,000-vote majority in the 1955 general election, were unfortunate in their choice of his prospective successor. The shrewd, bluff, Major James Friend, turned out to be strongly sympathetic with the views of the extreme right-wing League of Empire Loyalists.

When loyalist hecklers disrupted the annual Conservative conference at Blackpool last October by interspersing Prime Minister Macmillan's address with shouts of "traitor," Friend's position became impossible. Last week he withdrew his candidacy. Nicolson quietly announced that he remained a candidate at the election.

Meanwhile Churchill, a strong Suez supporter, was hitting the headlines with a series of newspaper articles charging the government with incompetence in its handling of the 1956 crisis.

Randolph Churchill, a victim of the 1945 Labor landslide after five years at Westminster, has gravitated slowly offered his services to Bournemouth and presented the embattled constituency with an embarrassing choice.

After years of controversy, the weary Bournemouth Tories want nothing more than a respectable candidate who can be counted on to toe the party line. Churchill's rough-and-tumble years of public life as a journalist and politician offer little evidence that he is likely to fill the bill.

But the alternative is to slam the door in the face of the son of the most reverend Conservative of his generation, Sir Winston Churchill, whose decades of political unorthodoxy have long since been forgotten.

The redoubtable Randolph kept the ball rolling today by announcing that if the Conservatives wouldn't have him he would run in Bournemouth as an Independent.

"I would welcome anybody's support," he said. "If the local 'Bournemouth' association decide to support me, it will be very welcome—but they don't seem to be very good pickers, do they?

"They picked one candidate and found they did not like him, so they picked another and he chucked his hand in.

"I thought I would try to help them."

4 New Members Of Parliament Take Seats

OTTAWA (CP) — Four new members of Parliament, three men and a woman, took their seats in the Commons Thursday.

All four were elected in by-elections since the last session ended Sept. 6.

The woman is Mrs. Jean Casselman, elected Progressive Conservative member for Grenville-Dundas in succession to her late husband, A. C. Casselman, who had represented the Eastern Ontario constituency from 1935 until his death last May.

In the Commons, Mrs. Casselman joins her father, Hon. Earl Rowe (PC-Dufferin - Simcoe), dean of the House in years of service. Her seat is five rows directly behind her father's frontbench seat.

Wearing a slim navy blue wool dress, the 38-year-old Mrs. Casselman is escorted into the Commons by Mr. Diefenbaker and her father. She is the Commons' third woman member.

OTHER NEW MPs

Two other Conservative, Louis Fortin of Gaspe County — l'Islet, Que., and Joseph Slogan of Springhill, Man., occupied their seats for the first time.

Mr. Fortin was elected after Jean Lesage, new Liberal premier of northern affairs minister, resigned to become Quebec Liberal leader. Mr. Slogan succeeds Val Yzcula, Conservative, who died last August.

The fourth new member to take his seat was Paul Heljer, former Liberal associate defence minister, elected in Toronto Trinity following the death of E. R. Lockyer, Conservative. Mr. Heliker was seated in the second row near the desk of Opposition Leader Pearson.

Child Killed

OTTAWA (CP) — Six-year-old Ann Mary Marcil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morris, was killed Thursday when she was crushed under the wheels of an Ottawa Transportation Commission bus. Police said she had just gotten off the bus on her way home from school and somehow slipped beneath it.

As Sergeant, Pope Salutes Army Chaplain

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For a few seconds he was no longer Pope John XXIII. He was Sgt. Roncalli again.

A Vatican source today told this story about the new pontiff:

Several days ago he received Italian prelates attending a meeting of the Italian episcopate. One of those attending was Bishop Arrigo Pintonello, chief chaplain of the Italian Army, who wears the insignia of a general.

Pope John walked among the bishops, letting each one kiss his ring. When he came to Bishop Pintonello, the Pope snapped to attention. With a smile, he saluted and said:

"Sir, Sgt. Roncalli at your command."

As Rev. Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli, the Pope was a sergeant in the Italian Army Medical Corps.

Eight of 13 Trapped Ships Still in Ice

QUEBEC (CP) — Eight of the 13 ocean freighters trapped for a month in ice-clogged Montreal harbor were still in the upper St. Lawrence River early today but with the prospect of clear sailing to the Atlantic.

The icebreakers D'Iberville and Ernest Lapointe, which broke out Wednesday's convoy, were in the Trois-Rivieres section of the river. The Montcalm and the N. B. McLean were here. The powerful Labrador was stationed downriver from Quebec City but the transport department said pot expected she would have to aid the ocean-bound freighters.

While Crime Grows RCMP Faces Pressure to Pose for Tourists

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP says a general upward trend in crime is being experienced more than it can add men to the force.

And there is growing pressure for the force to assume the role as a tourist attraction.

The RCMP handled 283,469 investigations in the year ended last March 31, an over - all increase of 5.4 per cent, the annual report of Commissioner L. H. Nicholson, tabled today in the Commons.

"While the increases are not as sharp as last year, the upward trend persists," he said. The increases were "spread generally throughout the country and no major crime pattern present-ed itself other than a rise in the number of breaking, entering and theft cases."

The commissioner said the number of RCMP cases had increased by 10,000 in the last five years while the regular staff increase had been only 13.3 per cent.

Reporting on the "growing pressure to have the force as a tourist attraction," he said: "While it may be a compliment to realize that visitors to Canada are anxious to see men in red tunics mounted on horses, I feel that this tendency must be kept within reasonable bounds.

"If we go too far in meeting this demand it over-emphasizes parade and 'show' features at the expense of police work, which is and must remain our primary function. I am also convinced that morale would be affected if the permitted the uniform and reputation of the force to be capitalized on unreasonably in this respect."

Heavy Legislative Program Ranging From Winter Jobs To Dirty Books Is Outlined

Crop Insurance, Farm Credit, Aid to Have-Not Lands Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—A new round of formalities engage Parliament today before legislators dig into a heavy legislative program that ranges from "dirty" books to foreign aid.

The pomp and splitter of a formal opening behind it, the Commons hears addresses from mover and seconder of the traditional reply to the throne speech.

The Progressive Conservative government outlined its legislative plans in the throne speech read at the session opening Thursday by Governor-General Massey. It contained few surprises.

Besides legally defining obscenity, Parliament will be asked to furnish funds for winter works, national development projects, crop insurance, expanded farm credit, increased unemployment insurance benefits and more help to African and Asian democracies.

FREIGHT SUBSIDY

There has been speculation that a federal subsidy of some $30,000,000 may be part of the government's plan to "alleviate the discriminations" felt by the provinces' 13-per-cent share of federal personal income taxes, raised from 9 per cent a year ago as a temporary measure.

There was no indication the government plans another federal-provincial fiscal conference in the near future. The speech said only that the subject of federal - provincial fiscal relations should receive continued study by the existing federal - provincial economic or fiscal and economic matters. This committee is made up of senior civil servants working under direction of a committee consisting of federal finance minister and provincial treasurers.

EMERGENCY BOARD PROPOSED

Authorization for the setting up of a national energy board to examine and report on all aspects of energy resources will be sought. This, having particular bearing on the oil and gas industry, is also a recommendation of the Borden royal commission on energy.

An extension of the insurance maximum to seven years for fishermen may be involved in the proposal to increase the range and effectiveness of the federal Fisheries Insurance Act.

Mr. Massey probably was performing his last functions at an opening of Parliament. He is 71 and has been in office since 1952. He received 7½ years as governor-general.

The speech said Canadians look forward to the summer visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip for the opening of the St. Lawrence seaway. The Queen will visit all provinces and become the first sovereign to visit the Far North.

In the international field the government promised to work steadily and with goodwill in cooperation toward settlement of outstanding world issues.

DEFEASE SOVIET MOVE

The Soviet Union's abrogation of agreements on four-power control of Berlin is deplored. The speech expressed a belief that the freedom of West Berlin must be assured pending agreement on a free and united Germany.

The Canada - United States international agreement must be reached without delay to ensure outer space is used only for peaceful purposes for which full co - operation of Canada is promised.

Faith in NATO as a deterrent is expressed.

Throne Speech Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the speech from the throne read at the opening of parliament today:

New projects for national development will be placed before parliament.

Avro Plans to Test Flying Saucer Now Being Financed by U.S. Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—Any persons who think they see a flying saucer in the next few months may well be right.

Informants said Thursday Canada's flying saucer, a circular delta to take to the air for the first time in May or June.

"Flying saucer" is no misnomer, according to Dr. Buck Rozerski machine is round, about 18 feet in diameter and about two or three men.

Avro Aircraft Limited of Malton, Ont., Toronto, the company developing the unique vehicle, is not yet sure it will function.

Principles embodied in the secret project cannot be proven until flight trials are undertaken. If the machine does work, there is good possibility it will be mass-produced for the United States Army and perhaps for the Canadian forces, with U.S. money financing of the project when 600,000,

Canada withdrew after spending $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 on it.

The flying saucer is designed to take off and land vertically. It would be able to hover like a helicopter or dart off in any direction at subsonic speed.

The obvious use for the machine in the defence of America is it could skim over the ground, nip around hills and thereby escape radar. Maximum altitude would be about 10,000 feet.

Dr. Roy Dobson, chairman of A. V. Roe Limited, said in London last month that his company has under development in Canada an "aerocar" or flying jeep. This was the first reference to the project since 1955 when former Liberal Defence Production Minister C. D. Howe referred to the amount of money Canada had put into it.

He said at that time that the project, if carried through, would rest in the neighborhood of $100,-

Forty Workers Hinde and Dauch Leave Jobs

CHATHAM (CP) — Forty employees of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada Ltd. plant here left their jobs Thursday in what union officials described as a "lockout."

A company representative, who refused to give a statement, said the work stoppage was a "walk-out."

Harry Ford, international representative for the UAW-CIO, said the difficulty resulted from failure of the company to write conciliation board recommendations into a new contract.

Company and union will meet today in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Three Senators Appointed by Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker has strengthened his party's minority standing in the Senate by naming three new senators.

His announcement, made just after Thursday's formal opening of the new parliamentary session, brings to 39 the Progressive Conservative strength in the 102-seat upper chamber.

The new senators:

John Hnatyshyn, 51, Ukrainian-born lawyer in Saskatoon, a long-time supporter of the party in Saskatchewan who has known Mr. Diefenbaker for years.

John Alexander Buchanan, 71-year-old head of an Edmonton engineering and construction firm, who has had long experience in engineering and building in northern areas, and in the Northwest Territories.

John D. Higgins, 67, a lawyer in St. John's, Nfld., and former Opposition leader in the Newfoundland legislature.

SIX VACANCIES REMAIN

Their appointments cancel out remaining Senate vacancies for their provinces, and leave six vacancies: Three from Quebec, two from Nova Scotia and one from New Brunswick.

Conservative membership in the Senate is overshadowed by the 74-member Liberal majority. There are also two independent senators and one independent-Liberal.

Senator Hnatyshyn came to Canada from the Ukraine as a baby and grew up in Canora, Sask. He was an unsuccessful conservative candidate in the Yorkton federal constituency in 1935, 1940 and 1945.

His eldest son, Ray, also a lawyer, left his father's law firm last June to become secretary to Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader in the upper house.

Senator Buchanan, a native of Comber, Ont., was vice-president last year for northern Alberta of the Progressive Conservative Association.

Senator Higgins, Rhodes scholar, has practised law in St. John's since 1913.

Muncey Indian Killed in Crash

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ross Albert, 30-year-old Muncey resident, was killed and three others from the same district were injured Thursday night when a car driven by Albert skidded on a slippery road near Christina, about 18 miles west of here, and crashed head-on into a bridge abutment.

Treated at hospital were John Carroll, 38, for leg injuries; Ray Peters, 27, an injured right hip, and Linwood Nicholas, 27, an injured left leg.

Railway Union And Teamsters Settle Quarrel

OTTAWA (CP)—Plans for ending jurisdictional conflicts between two major transport unions were drafted at a conference here Thursday.

Officers of the Canadian Labor Congress met with those of the teamsters union and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, which have been growing at each other recently.

System Works Well if Volume Not Too High

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons' new simultaneous interpretation system works well, if users don't turn the volume on too high.

Every desk in the chamber has been equipped with a hearing aid, control switch and volume dial, enabling a member to listen to a speech in the language used, or to a simultaneous interpretation in either English or French.

Both languages are official in parliamentary debates.

Interpreters—eight work in relays—are stationed in booths in the two ends of the chamber's farthest removed from the Speaker's chair. The interpreters can observe the speakers through a glass window.

Their work on the first day of the session was accurate and swift to an experienced bilingual ear.

But if the volume on a neighbor's set is too high, the sound carries to a non-user.

The system is in addition to the Commons' sound amplifier system.

Accused Given 25 Years for $85 Holdup

TORONTO (CP) — William V. Eagles, 38, was sentenced Thursday to 25 years in penitentiary for the $85 holdup of a Toronto drug store last October and for shooting at a motorcycle policeman.

Two companions, Dean Pelton, 33, and Stuart Reade, 32, of Montreal, were also convicted of robbery. Pelton was also convicted of taking part in two gun battles with police following the robbery.

Eagles already was sentenced earlier to an 11-year term for the armed robbery of a hotel last fall.

An all-male county court jury deliberated four hours before returning the verdicts to Judge Robert Forsyth who said he will pass sentence on Reade today and on Pelton March 2.

During the shooting outside the east end drug store and in a nearby apartment building where the men fled, Pelton was hit by four bullets and constable Harold Mulvogue was felled with a slug in the stomach. Eagles was slightly wounded.

Bomarc Scores Hit at 87 Miles

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—A $1,000,000 Bomarc guided missile launched from a new centre today scored a direct hit on a jet drone flying 87 miles out over the Gulf of Mexico.

The success of the test mission was announced by the air force after the 47-foot interceptor missile roared off from a launching shelter at nearby Santa Rosa Island.

This was the first launching from the multi-million dollar centre.

It streaked off into an overcast sky, tailed by a fiery plume of rocket and ramjet exhaust, and arched over the jewel flight at a velocity 2½ times the speed of sound—approximately 1,700 miles an hour.

The launching was controlled by a special weapons system at Eglin main base, about 18 miles from the launching shelters.

Later tests will be controlled from a SAGE (semi-automatic ground environment) system centre under construction at Montgomery, Ala.

United Appeal Said Distinct Success by General Chairman At Annual Meeting of Assoc.

"A distinct success" stated Archie Lewis in reference to the Belleville United Appeal for 1958. Operating costs were below the expenditure anticipated and several other factors have contributed to the fact that all the agencies involved will receive more than they have ever collected in a single campaign of their own in the past. Actually, according to the campaign chairman's report, the agencies will receive 92 per cent of the amounts they asked for. Mr. Lewis felt that the results were most gratifying considering the short time which the campaign committee had to set up the 1958 campaign and the short working hours and unemployment in some of the local plants.

The budget was set at $85,000 for the campaign and $72,076 was collected, representing 85 per cent of the objective. The fact that the agencies received 92 per cent of their objective was due to the contribution of several local firms and individuals who, instead of donating such items as office location, heat and lighting, advertising and publicity gratis or else giving a reduced rate on the normal cost, Mr. Lewis expressed his thanks to all of these firms and people. Most work done on the appeal was by voluntary labor with only a few exceptions.

TREASURER REPORTS

The treasurer's report, given by Arnold Wolfenden, indicates that of the $72,076.39 pledged, $47,764.92 has been received, with a balance of $24,311.47 pending. Campaign expenses totalled $4,038.57, and together with capital expenditures and provision for uncollected pledges the net amount collected for the agencies amounts to $65,339.43. The participating agencies have already received their initial allocations which total $40,000.00, the undistributed revenue amounting to $25,339.43. This will come mostly from the payment of donations throughout the year.

Of the various groups contributing to the appeal the most remunerative by far was the newly tried payroll deduction scheme which brought in pledges amounting to $29,006.98. The other groups contributing to the campaign revenue were: nation-wide appeals, $11,405.00; personal names, $5,301.00; residential, $6,329.81; public service, $1,584.30; professional, $5,946.45; and other businesses, $12,442.66; for the total of $72,076.39.

A number of letters from the participating agencies were read by Secretary Ernie Gurnett. They expressed their appreciation of the success of the campaign.

NO REPLIES RECEIVED

Joe Demeza gave a report on the activities of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, the Salvation Army and the local division of the Canadian Cancer Society to participate in the 1959 appeal. To date no replies were forthcoming from any of these organizations to Mr. Demeza's committee.

The slate of executive directors for the new year were elected with no nominations being received other than those of the nominating committee. The executive are: Mrs. Jane Forrester, president; Mr. D. G. Burshaw, vice-president campaign; Mrs. Demeza, vice-president, agencies; Mr. Louis Maraskas, vice-president public relations; Don G. Williams, secretary; John Henderson, treasurer; Jack Vanover, budget committee chairman and Mr. J. C. R. Punchard, immediate past-president. Purely medical activity is at a minimum, no pills are dispensed, the examination room is used for vital and there isn't a needle in the room. There is no need to be illiterate. Most of these children are all too familiar with doctors and hospitals and have learned to be so. Accordingly, the clinic staff is concerned with helping the patients learn to be unafraid, and come to learn that doctors are not always people who hurt. The nicest compliment the doctor gets at a clinic is not a patient's thanks but a childish question as she is being lead out after an examination, "Aren't you glad we see the doctor?"

Next there is the nurse. In different clinics she wears different uniforms and comes from different agencies. The public health clinic nurse, like the rest of the clinic staff, seems a little unorthodox at times to novices. She does not take temperatures and pulses and is not concerned with chest x-rays. Joe Demeza gave a report on the campaign of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, the Salvation Army and the local division of the Canadian Cancer Society to participate in the 1959 appeal. To date no replies were forthcoming from any of these organizations but the latest letter from Mr. Demeza's committee.

The executive and directors for the new year were elected with no nominations being received other than those of the nominating committee. The executive are: Mrs. Jane Forrester, president; Mr. D. G. Burshaw, vice-president campaign; J. G. Dennis, vice-president agencies; Mr. Louis Murakiss, vice-president public relations; Don G. Williams, secretary; John Henderson, treasurer; Jack Vanover, budget committee chairman and Mr. J. C. R. Punchard, immediate past president. The post of campaign chairman is not yet filled.

Ten directors were elected for two-year terms. From the participating agencies Messrs. A. A. Wolfenden (Red Cross), George Whitter (Children's Aid), C. C. McGuire (YMCA), E. S. Fairman (CNIB) director and Archie Lewis (Red Cross). From the community at large the following were elected: Mrs. A. G. Lewis, Messrs. A. Campbell, E. G. Gurnett, L. A. Kells and Dr. J. Wirepholo.

EXPRESSES THANKS

Mrs. Jane Forrester thanked those present for her re-election and expressed confidence that the United Appeal will have a successful year with the fine co-operation of all who have participated. During her term of office as president, 1958, for 1959, Mrs. Forrester commented on the co-operation of the organization as a society of donors operating a co-operative system of collecting funds for philanthropic, charitable and benevolent purposes within the community. With the elimination of expense duplication and the use of voluntary labor it is the purpose of the society to give the participating agencies a greater annual remuneration.

The president also expressed her thanks to the many people and concerns who had given so much of their time and services to make the first Belleville United Appeal such a success.

Some general business was also carried out with the appointment of auditors and the changing of the dates of the fiscal year.

Crippled Children Clinics Employ Competent Personnel

By DR. W. JAMES S. MELVIN, FRCS
Assistant Professor of Surgery, Queens University, Kingston.

Dr. Melvin, author of today's instalment, is well known in the Belleville area by reason of his frequent visits to the Belleville General Hostial. This is the second article in a series on behalf of the Crippled Childrens Centre Building Fund, 92 King St., East Toronto 1.

The important thing about crippled children is that to the burden of being a child is added the burden of being crippled.

Like their more fortunate normal colleagues, who face the problems of developing and adjusting, of compromising and adapting into the strange and alien world of adults, the crippled child is confronted by a formidable task. Not to this is added defects and handicaps of greater than the normal weakness of an arm or a leg or muscular co-ordination; he faces emotional and psychological problems of enormous magnitude.

In recognition of this fact, and in an attempt to deal with these difficulties, there have grown up a series of special and apparently unorthodox clinics in this province. They are known as crippled children's clinics.

Judge by ordinary standards of medicine these clinics at first glance seem to involve an awful lot of people, consume a great deal of time and require a great deal of money, without producing anything too much in the line of results. The parent hospital in which the clinic must often be perplexed by the success of which other name keeps recurring. The "didnt we cure him last year" sort of attitude leads to disappointment. The plain fact is that unlike most of the normal most medical clinics, the crippled children's clinic is often not concerned with cure and even in some instances disability will persist.

THE ORGANIZATION

Who then is involved in this rather vague undertaking? When the large and mixed group of parents, patients and relatives appears on clinic days, who have they come to see? Or to put things in their proper light, who are the members of the clinic group who have gathered to see the children? Firstly, there is the doctor, usually an orthopaedic surgeon, who acts much as chairman of the meeting. The post of campaign chairman is not yet filled.

Ten directors were elected for two-year terms. From the participating agencies Messrs. A. Wolfenden (Red Cross), George Whitter (Children's Aid), C. McGuire (YMCA), E. S. Fairman (CNIB) director and Archie Lewis (Red Cross). From the community at large the following were elected: Mrs. A. G. Lewis, Messrs. A. Campbell, E. G. Gurnett, L. A. Kells and Dr. J. Wirepholo.

System Works Well if Volume Not Too High

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons' new simultaneous interpretation system works well, if users don't turn the volume on too high.

Every desk in the chamber has been equipped with a hearing aid, control switch and volume dial, enabling a member to listen to a speech in the language used, or to a simultaneous interpretation in either English or French.

Both languages are official in parliamentary debates.

Interpreters—eight work in relays—are stationed in booths in the two corners of the chamber farthest removed from the Speaker's chair. The interpreter can observe the speakers through glass windows.

Their work on the first day of the session was accurate and swift to an experienced bilingual ear.

But if the volume on a neighbor's set is too high, the sound carries to a non-user.

The system is in addition to the Commons' sound amplifier system.

Railway Union And Teamsters Settle Quarrel

OTTAWA (CP)—Plans for ending jurisdictional conflicts between two major transport unions were settled at a conference here Thursday.

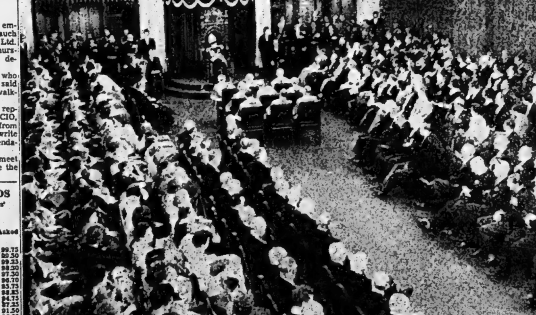
Officers of the Canadian Labor Congress met with those of the Teamsters union and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, which have been growing at each other recently.

Forty Workers, Hinde and Dauch Leave Jobs

CHATHAM (CP) — Forty employees of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company of Canada Ltd. plant here left their jobs Thursday in what union officials described as a "lockout."

A company representative, who refused to give a statement, said the word stoppage was a "walkout."

Harry Ford, international representative for the UAW-CIO, said the difficulty resulted from failure of the company to settle conciliation board recommendations into a new contract.



Company and union will meet today in an attempt to settle the dispute.

STYLES CHANGE

Remember the days when winter driving and chains went together like cheese and apple pie? There was nothing like chains to promote the feeling of confidence on roads piled high with drifts. But they could be a problem. When the driver reached the bare highway he was faced with a difficulty decision. Should he leave the chains on, enduring the bumpy ride and hoping that the chains would not cut his tires, that the bare road would not wear through a weak link and, if this happened, that the flailing and clattering link would not punch a hole in the fender? Or should he get down under the car, on the cold road, and take the chains off? Usually the verdict went to the former course. Besides taking the chains off was always the easy task of putting them on again - - and that could be a herculean job, as any motorist who had got stuck in a snowdrift and had then endeavored to drape the chilly chains over the tires knew full well.

Happily we've replaced chains and there is no question but what they are an improvement. We wonder, though, whether they would have been adequate in the days when chains were first devised, when drifts were deeper and plows were a rarity?

There are some other changes in winter styles, though, which hardly seem adequate. Those ear-muffs resembling earphones of an early-day radio may keep the ears themselves warm, but what about the rest of the head? Surely those old-style caps with the fur-lined ear-lugs were better - - or if one were really brave and did not care about one's appearance there were the toques, which could be rolled down to protect the back of the neck and much of the face.

Those old chains will rust in the garage, but if the Weather Man does not change his disposition toques and ear-lugged caps will be coming down from the attic one of these cold and frosty mornings.

Wonder whether the moths have left enough of them to serve their original purpose?

BELGIUM ACTS WISELY

Belgium's announced intention of guiding the Belgian Congo along the path to democracy, and toward the day when it will be capable of deciding its independence, is heartening.

Even more encouraging is the fact that there seems to be a realization among some Belgians that this decision has been too long delayed. It is worthy of note that the premier, in his six cabinet changes, instead of being used as an excuse to further delay action on charting the colony's path to freedom, have been cited as evidence that Belgium has been too slow in meeting the growing desire for eventual independence.

The power of a good example should never be underestimated. Since the end of the Second Great War, changes which a quarter of a century ago would have been regarded as unthinkable have occurred in the status of many colonial lands. We like to believe that Britain's action in granting independence to India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Burma have played a major role in these developments. It is true that in some lands, such as the Dutch East Indies, the breaking of the old colonial regime's power by the Japanese army created conditions favorable to the nationalists in those lands. But nothing like this occurred in Africa, where we have so recently witnessed the French, under the guidance of General de Gaulle, offering immediate independence to all colonies, except Algeria which the French consider part of France itself, and where only one colony, French Guinea, took advantage of the offer.

Now Belgium is bowing gracefully to the tide of change. More and more it seems that the only question over which there is likely to be disputes between the inhabitants of colonies and the colonial powers is in respect to the timing of the turning over of the reins of government.

It is to be hoped that the colonial powers will not be too tardy - - nor the nationalists too hasty.

HE WAS AN EXPERT

Only in the United States could a proposal such as that advanced at the University of Pennsylvania be considered. An unidentified group has requested permission to establish the "Al Capone Chair on Taxation" at that venerable institution. The professed purpose is to create an aura of respectability for a name that has been dragged through the mud. Old-timers will recall that Capone was a Chicago mobster who managed to defy every law of the land until he was eventually taken in for income tax evasion. They might suggest that it would be appropriate, if such a chair is established, that it should be electric. (London Free Press.)

A RESOLUTION

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Throughout this New Year I would be
In everything I do or plan,
In public, or where none may see,
A Man.

A bigger and a better man.

This resolution I would make:
To keep the flag I love in view,
And bravely toil for country's sake,
And leave all selfishness behind.

I would be patient in despair;
I would be brave and strong and true;
And live and bear my bit of care
As an American should do.

A Sense of Direction

By Arthur Rickerby in the Montreal Gazette

During the last general election campaign, National Liberal Leader Lester Pearson was frequently and severely occasioned, in having referred rather vaguely to the Liberal Party as "the party of the left." Mr. Pearson did not explain.

But it is known that somebrought not all, of Mr. Pearson's chief lieutenants and advisor, have urged for some time upon the party, if it is to regain office and power, must assume a left-of-centre position and campaign for economic, social and political reforms.

The party's philosophers worry that the public is at present little aware of the distinguished record of the St. Laurent, the party lost its zest for experiment and reform. Mr. St. Laurent's approach was, they suggest, a brilliant success as long as the party remained in office. But it never assumed Canadian Liberalism has, in decades, been the traditional left-wing opposition to a right-of-centre position which is always, rather than an asset.

Whether the Liberal Party is at this moment further to the right than are the Diefenbaker Conservatives is a matter of definition and opinion. The Liberal thinkers are horrified at the suggestion as regarded as a possibility. But it is certain that the Liberal Party was a tradition-bound Conservative compared to its great predecessor, Mackenzie King, who sold public utilities that many of his party greatly relished" and who, during a long political career, persuaded Canadians and others that in this respect, he was not guilty of exaggeration.

The same Liberal Party philosophers who believe that in the St. Laurent years it was too far to the right, are equally convinced that Prime Minister Diefenbaker is leading the non-Conservative Party to the left from an historic position on the right. Whether the Conservatives have yet reached and passed the point of advance such a change in direction, it's quite another for the practical politicians to decide, although the top of the rank-and-file, one to infer, is not disturbed.

Mr. Pearson himself is not a radical either by background or by temperament. He is not a Conservative as Mr. St. Laurent neither does he have the passion for reform which moved Mr. King.

Then, the Quebec Liberals have manifested a marked lack of nervousness about any trek to the left. Premier Duplessis and the Quebec Congress and a five-time CCF candidate, was invited to harangue the assembly on labor matters.

Mr. Dodge promptly challenged the Liberals it become, in fact, a "party of the left" or to face coming extinction. He had the impression, he said, that the Liberal hierarchy was becoming more with regaining power than with producing important

Mr K. Drops Old Companion

New York Times

It was not so long ago that the travelling sales duo of "B & K"—Bulganin and Khrushchev—suspended their political moves in Europe and Asia, to London, Geneva, Helsinki, Belgrade, New Delhi and Rangoon, but and many another city these two elderly gentlemen made appearances of friendship for all the world, proposed toasts for peace, friendship and good will everything else conceivable to convince the rest of us that the Soviet Union is a peace-loving country that wants in all the world.

These memories came spontaneously to mind when we read one of what Bulganin called in had "confessed" to all kinds of crimes at their meeting. Now we learn that this "confession" did not satisfy his "comrades." Khrushchev, the First Secretary, Premier of the Soviet Union is liar, a traitor and a double-crosser, various members of the Central Committee demanded that Bulganin name the three more heinous crimes. This old, sick man, wrote letters to President Eisenhower were at the centre of world attention only a year ago, is pathetically and even to be given the privilege of slipping peacefully into obscurity.

But the mystery of the Soviet Union's best citizens. The second, Mr. Malenkov, has been described officially as a deformer and intriguer who, among other crimes, arranged the downward frame-up known as the Leningrad affair. Now, the same sources charge, Mr. Bulganin is a traitor to the Soviet Union.

Two alternatives present themselves. Either these charges are true, in which case the Soviet Union has a monstrous system of government, indeed, to permit such evil men to come to power for so many years; or the charges are false, in which case we are witnesses to one of the most terrifying frame-ups in history.

Purely Politics

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As far as I can find out, there is no law that can be invoked to make a property owner pull down a public eyesore. The most that can be done is to have the health authorities declare the premises unfit for human habitation or a menace to the public.

Thus in cities, towns and the countryside, all manner of decayed old houses, warehouses, sheds, barns and rickety structures of every description continue to offend the eye. This is particularly true of new highways and thruways which, usually selecting routes that avoid the old established roads, cut across the backs of farms or go around the dilapidated edges of villages. Old tumbledown barns that have been out of sight of the former roads for fifty years now slant crew and drunken not fifty yards off the new noble four lane. The back doors of shabby little farm houses that formerly were, as you might say, on the main street of the railway tracks now open onto the transcontinental highway. Quite a few privies ornament the foreground.

And there isn't a thing that can be done about it.

Property is property. And maybe these eyesores are the expression of the dignity of the property.

An elderly rural gentleman of my acquaintance has a privy that modestly faced away from the highway. But then times have a great speedway. It has always been his custom, over seventy years, to face away from it. He still does.

"They've torn it at me," he says, "I wave at them."

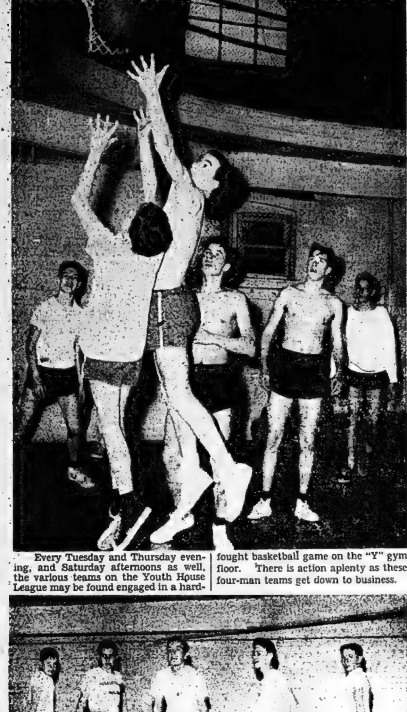
Professor's View of Noah

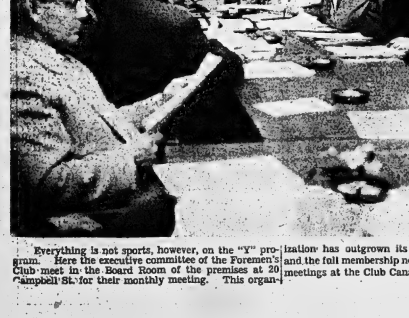


St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Prof. Sosby Sosby's deduction that Noah were a liar strikes us as just the sort of thing a professor would say. Noah is apt to go off on when he tries to interpret a piece of poetry. Within the Pre-Medical Journal, the eye specialist points out that Noah's eyes that are like the rays of the sun" in the Book of Genesis is an expert and not a poet concludes that the rays of the sun" means Noah's eyes were red.

When a romantic swain tells his inamorata she has eyes like stars, he doesn't necessarily mean they are white with twinkles of red and blue. When Alexander Pope wrote, "Then rose the lofty lightning from her eyes," he most certainly didn't mean the kind followed by thunder and rain, though we wouldn't want to bet what Prof. Sosby would say if we put that line to close retracer.

"Like the rays of the sun" is by no means the only example what the poetry trade calls a free image. As opposed to a fixed image, which is the same thing to everybody. It is one of those words which you may read whatever he comes equipped to read into it. To one person "Home, Sweet Home" means Alexander Pope wrote.



Everything Up At Local 'Y' Except Dues

Every Tuesday and Thursday evening, and Saturday afternoons as well, the various teams on the Youth House League may be found engaged in a hard-fought basketball game on the "Y" gym floor. There is action aplenty as these four-man teams get down to business.

Gymnastics are another part of the local YMCA's physical education program for Belleville youth. Here a gym class puts on a parallel bars display.

Everything is not sports, however, on the "Y" program. Here the executive committee of the Foremen's Club meet in the Board Room of the premises at 20 Campbell St. for their monthly meeting. This organization has outgrown its accommodation at the "Y" and the full membership now hold their regular monthly meetings at the Club Canara.

Roundabout . . .

By DOUG PHIPPEN

The week forthcoming is set aside as National YMCA Week and the local "Y" has quite a program, listed elsewhere on this page, arranged for Belleville residents. It will not matter as to what time or day one chooses to attend the "Y" we are sure you will find it very busy indeed.

In the course of collecting material for this feature page we visited 20 Campbell Street many times and many hours. At no time did we find things slow or inactive. Activities, both social and physical, are planned for everyone, no matter what their age, gender, religion, or occupation. And everywhere there is the evidence of life and vitality. From the junior boys' pushball games, the youths' basketball tilts, and the Hi-Y discussion groups, to the Y's Men's Thursday night dinner meetings there is evidence of great activity and hustle — both mental and physical.

Another thing will be quite apparent too, almost as soon as you get further into the building than the lobby. The building is old and overcrowded. The gym is quite inadequate for any modern sporting event—the pool hasn't sufficient shallow area to accommodate more than a handful of beginners—the locker room facilities and shower rooms are cramped and poorly located —water and heating pipes lead every whichway throughout the building—In short, the building is pretty old and weary and small. The facilities are of a past era and more space is desperately needed for the future.

The decision for a new building was made last year. Over a three-year period it is anticipated that a new building will be erected. The "Y" and all its members have quite a job cut out for them as have all the community's citizens in promoting this venture to a successful completion.

The coming week will be quite active with several highlights that one might find well worth attending. Sunday will be "YMCA Sunday" in most Belleville churches in recognition of the "Y's" close association with spiritual objectives. Monday night will mark the first admission of the public to the impressive Hi-Y Club induction ceremony. Wednesday night will be open house for all persons, especially parents of "Y" members. Friday will have the "Y-Aires Ball" in the gym. Saturday the "Y" members will put on an aquatic demonstration at the Albert College pool. The concluding event will be a Hi-Y Clubs' church service at Tabernacle United Church on Sunday, January 25th.

The Board of Directors of the YMCA have decided on a three-year campaign for a new site and building adequate to Belleville's needs. The coming week will give persons a chance to find out just how much the "Y" does and how urgently it requires new facilities.

A good week to all especially to there Y's Men who find leaky plumbing in the "Y" auditorium during their dinner meetings.

Rough Job Ahead for Local Y View of Long-Time Y Member

What of the Belleville YMCA and why have you been associated with it for most of your life? This was a question posed to Mr. Harry Ackerman, YMCA president in 1918-1928 inclusive. Mr. Ackerman has had a longer experience with the local YMCA than any other Belleville resident, and can remember when the organization occupied, but a few rooms over the present location of Lattimer's Drug Store, in 1892. Mr. Ackerman's reasons for "Y" work are because he is "interested in youth" and he feels it quite worthwhile "as a citizen of Belleville."

The present "Y" building on Campbell Street was built back in 1910 to serve a community of 7,000 to 8,000 persons. Mr. Ackerman feels that the building has done yeoman service for the past number of years but now there are too many "Y" activities going on to consider this building adequate for Belleville today. A lot of canvassing was required prior to 1910 to raise the funds necessary for the old building.

Today's "Y" will have a more difficult job of raising funds, Mr. Ackerman feels, because the individual merchants sparkplugged old "Y" with contributions. Today there are too many chain stores in the community replacing the large merchants of yesteryear. Although the local branch managers might be favorable to supporting a campaign for funds, their hands are tied by the head office which is not too interested in supporting the individual community's local appeals. The lack of the head office of any large industry in Belleville also makes it difficult to raise funds from local plants. What the proposed campaign will need is someone to take the lead in donating a large sum to the "Y" campaign to get it under way, believes the long-time member of the local "Y".

"I wish them luck," stated Mr. Ackerman. "They have a tough job ahead."

HAROLD ACKERMAN

Local Clubs Observe Y Week

Many local service clubs are celebrating National YMCA Week which opens Sunday, January 18th and closes on January 25th. Rotarians, Kinsmen, Kiwanians, Sales and Advertising Club members, Shriners and Lions Club members are all observing the annual cross-country recognition of the work of the YMCA in Canada.

This will be the 108th year that the "Y" has been active in the Dominion. Belleville's YMCA members and staff have arranged a week-long program to observe the occasion and the public is invited to attend many of these functions. A listing of the week's activities may be obtained at the "Y" on 20 Campbell street or by phoning Woodland 8-6059.

POETIC FAMILY

Oliver Goldsmith, the Nova Scotia poet who died in 1861, was a grandnephew of the English poet of the same name.

Not at all serious are these fellows at a recent dinner meeting of the Y's Men's Club. Honorary Life Member Gerald Hyde seems a bit perplexed, perhaps at one of Hugh Martin's (club president, at left) decisions on the levelling of fines on members present. Y's Man Bud Trill (second from right) also seems to have some comment on the situation while visitor Alderman Wishart (right) looks on with amusement.

What Is Your YMCA?

"Your YMCA is a bunch of kids with towels around their necks going to the "Y" pool on Saturday morning for the "Y" Swim Classes.

"It's a group of expectant mothers attending the Belleville Health Department's pre-natal classes under sponsorship of the Y's Menettes Club.

"It is a group of high school lads and girls talking service in a Hi-Y Club.

"It's a place where attendance has jumped 33 per cent in the past three years.

"It's a spot where something and everything is going on every day of the week except Sunday.

"It's a place where the youth and youngsters of the community can have fun together under adequate, trained and experienced people.

"It's an organization which is going to need the support of the members of this community, which it has been serving for the past 65 years, when its campaign for a new "Y" adequate to meet the needs of Belleville and her citizens gets underway.

"It's a place where each of you is invited to attend during the forthcoming International YMCA Week. The activities will be many and varied.

These are the many answers which one will receive from many different persons who either participate in or observe the activities of Belleville's (or most any other) YMCA. No matter where one goes there is usually a "Y" somewhere close by offering many varied activities for those who wish to make use of them. The "Y" has been in Canada for over 100 years — it was established in Montreal in 1851 and has been spreading ever since. The activities have varied considerably from those offered to the "Y" member of over a century ago, and the number of activities have greatly increased and are still doing so.

Basically, however, the "Y" has offered but one thing to any and ever person who wished to participate — a place where one can meet and make friends and join others in doing the things one likes to do, all in an atmosphere of goodwill, understanding and acceptance.

INTERNATIONAL

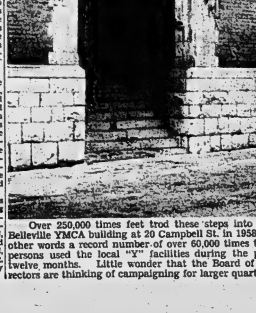
The symbol of the "Y" — the triangle, representing spirit, mind and body — is known and respected throughout the world today, except behind the "Iron Curtain." The organization is not always known or called the Young Men's Christian Association. But the meaning and the value of the organization's purpose is known — and understood — by millions of people in eighty countries of the world today.

The Belleville "Y" offers some forty-six activities, among other things, swim classes, business men's gym classes, discussion groups, fencing, handball, handicrafts, life saving and water safety courses, So-Ez stamp club, leadership training, ladies' keep-fit classes, and day camp for boys and girls.

Local 'Y' for All Not Just Boys

Although Belleville has only a YMCA there are many activities for both girls and women on the local "Y"'s program. Gym, swimming and keepfit classes are on the physical side of activities for the distaff side.

On the social agenda there is a girls' Hi-Y Club meeting every Tuesday evening at 7.00, and the So-Ed group for both young men and women meets every Wednesday evening.



Thursday evenings the entire "Y", with the exception of the auditorium which is used for the Y's Men's Club, is turned over to the fair sex. Starting at 4:15 in the afternoon with swim classes for the youngest girls and gym classes for junior girls, a comprehensive physical education program is planned through to 9:30 in the evening when the women's swimming class ends. The Y's Menettes, who sponsor the Health Department's weekly prenatal classes, meet the first Tuesday of every month.

There are many activities, of course, at which both men and women, boys and girls can participate in. Every Friday evening the whole family can join in the family swim session held from 7:30 to 8:30. There are also mixed gym classes and mixed swimming classes every week as well. Every Saturday the Ski Club conducts its sessions on the slopes around Oak Lake, providing the weather and snow are favorable.

So despite the name YMCA actually something is provided for everyone in the family at 20 Campbell Street.

TORCHLIGHT PROTEST

CROYDON, England (CP)—A torch l i g h t procession marched from the Grand Theatre to the town hall with a petition signed by 39,000 people, opposing plans to replace the Royal-od theatre with offices and shops.

Over 250,000 times feet trod these steps into the Belleville YMCA building at 20 Campbell St. in 1958. In other words a record number of over 60,000 times the persons used the local "Y" facilities during the past twelve months. Little wonder that the Board of Directors are thinking of campaigning for larger quarters.

Wedding

MCRAE — MUTTON

George St. United Church, Peterborough, Ontario, decorated with Yuletide greens and softly lighted Christmas trees, was a pretty setting for a wedding at high noon, when Muriel Edna, daughter of Mrs. Mutton and the late Mr. Mutton, of Bedford Mills, became the bride of the Rev. Frederick Hillis McRae, of Peterboro, Ontario. The Rev. Lorn W. Carlson, assisted by the bride's father, Mr. H. E. Mutton of Whitby, performed the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Charles E. Allen played the wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Ian Gamble, cousin of the bride, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Fred Mutton, of Brighton, the bride wore a sheath dress of princess blue brocade with a matching coat with a flimy floating side panel and three-quarter length sleeves. The portrait neckline was accented by hand-sewn iridescent sequins and pearls. The bride's veil fell hat with sequin trim and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and pink to mate roses. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Marion Mutton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a slim frock of mushroom pink silk crepe, worn over matching taffeta with deep satin cummerbund and short length sleeves. An applique cut Alencon lace, touched with iridescent sequins was worn over the bodice and sprayed down the front of the skirt. Her hat was in matching satin with sequin trim and she carried a hand-bouquet of white carnations, pink Demure roses, and purple pansies.

The bridegroom was attended by his son-in-law, Mr. Norman Dueck of Kitchener, as best groomsmen were: Mr. Leo Tobin, of Peterborough, and Mr. Delbert Carman of Madoc.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the tables were received by the bride's mother, attired in Dior blue brocade taffeta with matching accessories, and corsage of Bettermine roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's daughter, Mrs. Norman Ducette, attired in turquoise taffeta, with a corsage of pink butterfly roses.

For her wedding trip, the bride chose a two-piece printed silk with royal blue accents, a hat in royal blue velvet with soft feather trim; black persian lamb coat, and black accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from Ottawa; Vankleek Hill; Brockville; Kingston; Aurora; Kitchener; Bowmanville; Madoc, and Colborne.

Q.A. H-S Assoc. Hears Talk on A Child's Needs

The January meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was opened by a prayer read by Mrs. H. Stenson, the president.

The room count was won by Mrs. Fisher's Grade 6 class.

Mr. M. S. Hackett, the principal, extended a cordial welcome to all present, then introduced a well-known man, Mr. John Cousins, the newly-appointed inspector of public schools in Belleville.

Mr. Cousins' topic was entitled "Your Child's Needs and How You Can Help Him." In infancy and early school years a child needs to be given loving care which impresses kindness on him, and also the feeling of security.

Understanding a child's viewpoint is important to him and gives him a closeness to his parents that lasts through to when he is a teenager and feels free to approach his parents with his problems.

A child feels he is needed if he is given responsibility according to his age and ability and when he is praised for his task, he is given assurance he is a valued member of the family.

Mr. Cousins explained how the school continues to help the child to grow up by giving him discipline and by giving him an equal opportunity for success he sees his friends succeed with others.

Mr. Frank Benson expressed the feelings of everyone when thanking Mr. Cousins.

Refreshments were served by the convener, Mrs. A. Hobbs, assisted by mothers of Mrs. Grimm's Grade 3 class and Mrs. Shantz's Grade 4 class.

Abandons Singing Career, Concentrates on Psychotherapy

OTTAWA (CP)—It could never be said that Margarita Mayer plays "second fiddle" to her life she shares with her musician husband.

Berlin-born Mrs. Mayer is by profession a psychotherapist. She also has been heralded as a concert singer with lieder her specialty.

The wife of Hans Mayer, conductor of Ottawa's Philharmonic Orchestra some time ago abandoned her singing career to concentrate on psychotherapy.

Now living in Ottawa, she and her husband is a full-time job with therapy as part-time summer work.

TWO ADDRESSES

Residents of Ottawa for nearly two years after a two-year stay in Halifax, the Mayers have two addresses—New York in summer and Ottawa during the winter concert season.

While Mr. Mayer studies and prepares for his concert season from New York, Mrs. Mayer gets in some work there too.

She has patients—men, women, artists, businessmen, "people of every kind," who come to her as a relaxation therapist.

She said she hasn't carried her career to Ottawa because there just isn't time.

She explained her profession as a form of psychosomatic medicine; a therapy to help people with ailments traced back to nervous disorders.

Recently interviewed on Ottawa Philharmonic's concerts for high school students — she attends them, too — she doesn't knock rock 'n' roll.

"We had our crazy dances, too."

And often teen-agers have a better understanding of a contemporary symphonic music than their elders, she said.

ORDER, PLEASE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—There was a buzz of conversation in the Arkansas House of Representatives Wednesday that disturbed Speaker Gene Fleeman.

Fleeman banged down the gavel and declared: "I'm going to find out if you want an orderly House or not" and directed a roll call vote on the proposition. Ninety-four legislators voted to be orderly. Six abstained.

Urges Clothes Be Selected for Yr.-Round Wear

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — Designer Adele Simpson suggests that woman should choose their clothes for year-round wear.

To prove it can be done, the small but mighty Adele now has generally considered the best-known designer in the U.S., shows a collection of all-year-round-the-clock, round-the-calendar fashions that will be sold in stores this spring.

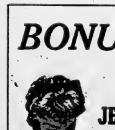
Outstanding in the group are costumes consisting of loose, full-length coats, often reversible and lined to match a slim silk dress. This costume is shown in both day and evening versions. But the outfit that is worn for day-time converts to the cocktail hour simply by removing or reversing the coat.

Like most of New York stylists, previewing their spring collections this week for the benefit of the fashion press, Mrs. Simpson restores the natural waistline in most of her designs, and like the others provides a "do-it-yourself" belt which may be adjusted high, low or in the middle, at the whim of the wearer. Wherever the belt may be placed, however, the clothes all are shaped to conform with the natural lines of the figure.

Simpson suits for spring usually have boxy jackets and slender skirts rounded at the hipline and tapered at the hemline.

An innovation in the spring lineup is the redingote dress, consisting of an unlined coat, usually of printed silk or pique, worn over a sleeved, sleeveless dress that can be worn alone for gala after-five occasions.

Woman Treed By Five Large Timber Wolves



CANDLE LAKE, Sask. (CP)— Mrs. Sophie Hayes spent a couple of hours perched in a tree while five timber wolves circled it on a trapline near this northern Saskatchewan settlement 75 miles northeast of Prince Albert.

Mrs. Hayes, wife of a trapper and resort owner here, told of the experience she had a few weeks ago—she is the mother of three daughters, all in Prince Albert. One is in high school another is a nurse in training and the third is employed.

Mrs. Hayes said it had been arranged for her to cover a trapline north of their cabin on the White Gull River, 35 miles from their home at Candle Lake, while her husband Walter attended an other line.

About six miles north of the camp she was suddenly confronted by five timber wolves. Not carrying a gun, she shouted and clapped her hands but the wolves came closer so she climbed into the tree.

After a desperate wait, she tore a piece from her blanket coat and set fire to it, dropping the burning cloth to the base of the tree. It forced the wolves away and she made her escape.

CORRECT TO COMMENT ON FOOD? HER HUSBAND SAYS "NO"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Sunday my husband and I went to mid-day dinner in the home of a couple who are dear friends of ours. The wife does all her own work and is a wonderful cook. This Sunday she made a dessert that was really a masterpiece, and I commented very enthusiastically about how delicious it was. My husband insists it's not considered proper to comment on the food being served. It seems such a rule, I think it's silly. What is your thought about this? — E.H.

I couldn't imagine a hostess, particularly if she's also the cook, whose heart and culinary pride aren't warmed by having a guest comment on how particularly delicious is some dish she has made. Your husband perhaps was brought up in yesterday's tradition, when it was indeed considered oh-so-incorrect to comment on any food served . . . but today with such a trifle interest in good foods and by so many hostesses with such enthusiasm accompanying straightforward appreciation of good food, such old-fashioned reticence, discriminating comments are accepted "conversation pieces."

THE ATTAL DECORATION FOR A SIMPLE CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is to be married, soon, a semi-formal wedding in church, a simple but not a small wedding. We want to do everything correctly, but of necessity we must watch carefully every item of expense. We thank you for answering several questions we have already sent you, and now have another. What floral decorations must we plan for this wedding in our Protestant church? Thank you again, for your help.

Mother

The only floral decorations you need provide for the church wedding are the altar decorations, usually a few white flowers, and I am quite sure you will find that your church provides altar vases or receptacles and that you are required to have you (or your florist) use these. It is important that you find out about this either from the clergyman or the sexton, who will also advise you about the type of flowers most suitable.

IT'S THE BRIDE WHO WRITES THIS SPECIAL THANK-YOU NOTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My bridegroom-to-be has an uncle who has always been very dear to him (he is his mother's only brother), and who has lived in England for several years. Tommy wrote him all about our wedding plans, and when he received the invitation he sent us (just received) a most handsome present. Since I have never met this uncle, I shouldn't my fiance be the one to write the thank-you note for the wedding present? —C.H.

No. Even if you have never met your fiance's uncle, you should write him the thank-you note for his kind thought and for the handsome present he sent. And here's a note that must be written with special care and grace to show your fiance's beloved uncle the you deserve the honor to become coming a member of his family.

HOW TO ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT — NO RING, NO ANNOUNCEMENT PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm engaged, but I've decided that instead of having an engagement ring and then a wedding band, I'd definitely prefer to have a diamond wedding band. I'm not a bit embarrassed about not having an engagement ring, and I see no reason to explain my wishes about it when we do tell our engagement publicly, which we haven't done yet, or do I want to have an engagement announcement party. But without an engagement ring and without an announcement party, just what can we do to announce our engagement? — Dorothy K.

No need to have an engagement ring to announce your engagement. And no need to have an engagement announcement party to announce your engagement. When you decide to make the announcements, all you need do it to tell your relatives and intimate friends, and write to those who live at a distance (in these notes you mention the date on which the announcement is to be made publicly, and ask that the date be kept a secret.) At the same time your fiance tells his relatives and close friends, and writes to those at a distance. It's as simple as that . . . and dignified. Then, if you wish . . . though it isn't necessary either . . . your parents may send a formal announcement of your engagement to the newspapers.

Wardrobe Wonders

By ALICE ALDEN

Separates are firmly ensconced as an important part of the wardrobe and we wonder how we ever managed without them. For one thing, separates cut down considerably on alteration costs. For another, they have join mix-and-match properties. From Paris come separates worked out at the designer's stage for color and texture, and created expressly for the American market. A knitted acetate and nylon tricony in rich, Parisian red, makes up into an overblouse and slim skirt. The deep curved neckline is underscored with a self band that comes out to tie in front.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. R. M. — I don't know what to do to pull him out of the doldrums .

Mrs. R. M. — I want to start out fresh.

Mrs. R. M. — I am the widowed mother of two daughters and a son, all married. Shortly after my husband died two years ago, my son's marriage blew up and he came to live with me.

I realize that Ray has been hit hard by this marriage failure, but I keep telling him he's got to pull himself up and start his life over. He is only 28 and he has a lot to look forward to. He's doing well at his job and plenty of girls are very interested in marrying him when the divorce becomes final.

Ray insists that he's a failure, and I don't know what to do to pull him out of the doldrums.

Now he wants to move to another city and start in all over again, but I don't want him to go alone and I would hate to split this city where all my friends and relatives live.

Ray, M. — I feel as though I'm an all-around mess right now. I should be tasting care of my children and myself, and all of that. Instead I'm a burden on her. She spends all her time and energy worrying about me and looking after me.

My marriage was such a mess that all of my friends got to know all the intimate details. It makes me sick to think of the things I've told myself when I was slobbering drunk because I was so miserable. Now I feel that I'd like to get away from it all — not see anyone I've ever known. Then maybe I can start out clean.

I don't see any reason why Mom should have to move away from here with me. I know how to take care of myself. I know she's worried about my drinking, but I think that if I make a fresh start I'll get over it.

The Council: It's too bad that Mrs. R.M.'s personal crisis and that of her son dovetailed so neatly in time.

At the very moment Mrs. R.M. found herself bereft, her only son was suddenly restored to her. Her main problems were solved. She wouldn't have to live alone and she was sorely needed. She threw herself into the old role of caring for her little boy with all the force she could muster.

This may have been medicine for the moment for Mrs. R.M., but it was poison to Ray. Like most of us, he has a tendency to both punish himself and pity himself for his mistakes. Overindulgence in such feelings is quite childish. It takes mature courage to pick oneself up, brush oneself off and move on after a mess. Ray's reaching for the consolations of the bottle is also a form of childishness. Immaturity is Ray's problem and he cannot solve it while the maternal bosom is always there, offering a false sense of comfort and security.

Ray's only security lies within himself. He should make an effort to understand his own failure and to correct them. He should not punish himself for them because he cannot make his life progress while he is engrossed in the emotion of pleasure of self-torture, followed by fear of self-pity.

We think that Ray has shown a spark of health in his desire to move out of his mother's home. If he has not yet had the nerve to admit to himself that mother love is what he's realling trying to get away from at the moment, he is safeguard against letting the drink habit take hold while he is alone. He should plan his every activities carefully and seek help of Term AA at any sign of things getting out of control.

FRIDAY

Steamed Haddock with Shrimp Sauce; Baked Squash; Green Peas (frozen); Assorted Fresh Fruits or Grapefruit Halves and Crackers and Cheese; Coffee.

Sticky-bottomed coffee cake; casserole of tomatoes with crunchy buttery toast squares. The third offering came from my sister Peady in Canada by mail—God I quote her words for word because she is a cook par excellence.

HOLIDAY COFFEE CAKE:

One-half cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 packages of granular yeast, 1 cup lukewarm milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup soft shortening (or 1-4 cup soft butter and shortening) 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour or bread flour; 1-2 cup soft butter, 3-4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 cup finely chopped almonds or walnuts or pecans (these are optional). Add the 1 teaspoon of sugar to the lukewarm water and sprinkle the granular yeast over the top, let stand 10 minutes, then stir in a large mixing bowl add the sugar and salt to the lukewarm milk. As soon as the yeast liquid is ready add it to the milk mixture, then beat in the soft shortening, then beat in the eggs. Mix half the flour in with a spoon, then add the remainder to make a soft kneadable dough, with the hands. Turn out on a floured board and knead for about 2 to 3 minutes; return to scraped-down bowl, cover and let rise in room temperature until more than doubled in bulk. Punch down dough, turn out on lightly floured board and roll out to a rectangle less than 1-inch thick and about 2 feet long by 1 foot wide. Spread this with the remaining butter, sprinkle it evenly with remaining sugar, cinnamon and nuts, roll it up tightly lengthwise. Cut in half lengthwise. Cut the remaining roll of dough into 1-inch slices and bake in greased muffin tins or on greased layer cake tin, pressed close together on sides up and down. Let rise until well puffed. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes, when done loosen from pan, but invert pan over, so that any butter or syrup will run over the buns. Serve warm. If any are leftover reheat wrapped in foil in warm oven.

TOMATO CASSEROLE:

To one 28-oz. can of tomatoes add 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1 1-6 teaspoon pepper. Fry 4 slices of stale white bread in 1-3 cup melted butter until crisp and gold but not brown. Cut each slice into 9 small squares. Gently mix these with the seasoned tomatoes in a medium-sized casserole and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until bubbly and golden-tinged. We served this with Danish trout; so less. MLS has them in their food counter.

PEADY'S ORANGE DESSERT:

In her own words in a letter from Canada: "I squeezed three large oranges, added a little sugar to the juice for a syrup. Then cooked the sections with out skin in the syrup (for three more oranges). Added a little cornstarch to thicken it a little and about 1 dozen red maraschinos.—When cool, this went into the lower part of a glass bowl. How she would get it to stay on top I haven't quite figured out.) On top I finished it with a delicious Spanish Cream mixture — very light and easy to make: Two cups milk, 1 tablespoon gelatine, 2 egg yolks, cooked together. Then 1 tablespoon rum added. Chilled. Beat the two egg whites with four tbls. sugar, chilled mixture and add a little almond flavoring."

That is all for today because I am going to take my grandsons out to "tea" at a field of German sheep with a black one among them.

TORONTO (CP) — Conditions ranging from fair to excellent are reported from 19 Ontario ski resorts in spite of mild weather, rain in some areas and medium snowfalls.

On the Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hialeah Park opens the "rich middle" of Florida's thoroughbred racing season today with 10 horses entered for the six-furlong Royal Poinciana Handicap.

The balmy field caused officials to split the feature, with 10 in the first division and nine in the second. Each division will carry $15,000 in added money.

Robert R. Dunlop's White Cachet, Irish-bred winner of his last six starts, probably will be favorite in the first division under 119 pounds.

Fred W. Hooper's Alhambra, under 123 pounds, heads the second division.

Boros, Maxwell Head Pack In Bing's Golden Golf Race

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Julius Boros and Billy Maxwell, who both know well the way to the pay window, led a packed field into today's second round of Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament.

Boros, former United States open champ, and Maxwell, former amateur king, caught fire with a string of birdies on the second nine holes of Thursday's opening round to shoot 69's.

That gave them a one-stroke advantage over U.S. open champion Tommy Bolt and young Johd McMullin. Nine others were deadlocked at 69—Art Wall, Dow Finsterwald, Howie Johnson, Bob Goalby, Arnold Palmer, Frank Stranahan, Bo Wininger, Doug Saunders and Paul O'Leary.

Except for Wall and Palmer, the other leaders played the Monterey Peninsula Country Club course, easier than the other two used in this tournament—Cypress Point and Pebble Beach.

Each golfer will play all three courses before Sunday's final in the 72-hole test.

$4,000 FOR TOP PAIR

Each of the 190 pros competing for the $4,000 top prize also is teamed with an amateur in a best-ball event with $2,000 awarding the pro on the winning team.

Al Balding of Toronto, playing at Peninsula, paced Canadian entrants with 37-36—71.

Gerry Magee of Toronto had a 35-37—72 and George Knudson of Toronto and veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver each had 74s. Knudson had 36-38 and Leonard 39-35.

Moe Normaks of Kitchener ran into plenty of trouble on the first nine and took a 42 but came back with an 18-hole total of 81. All but Balding played at Cypress Point.

Leonard and singer Gordon MacRae had a best-ball of 69 in the pro-amateur competition.

N.B.A. Accepts Robinson Word To Defend Title

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Boxing Association's executive committee says it has accepted Ray Robinson's assurance that he will defend his middleweight title no later than June of this year.

Robinson and Cus D'Amato, manager of heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, had been invited before the NBA executive committee to explain their plans for title defences.

Patterson will defend his title within a reasonable length of time against an NBA-rated challenger, D'Amato said.

Abe J. Greene, national chairman of the NBA, explained that the body's constitution does not say that a champion's title must be revoked if he does not defend every six months but it does say the title may be revoked, depending on the situation.

Robinson said he already has started negotiations for a title defence, presumably against Carmen Basilio.

Robinson said that because of the long lapse since his last fight with Basilio he most likely would require a couple tuneup bouts to regain his edge.

Ted Atkinson Top Jockey May Retire

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Atkinson, Toronto-born jockey rated one of the greatest riders of all time, may retire from the saddle.

A back ailment that has bothered the 42-year-old rider for several years forced Atkinson to cancel all his mounts Wednesday at Tropical Park in Miami. He left for New York by plane this afternoon to seek medical advice.

Atkinson, who retired all December at his home at Woodbury, Long Island, because of the back, attempted to make a go of it during the first half of January.

"It's no use trying on feeling like I do," said Atkinson, known to racing as "the professor" because of his scholarly manner of speech and his devotion to the classics.

"I'm not going to continue to ride in pain," he said, adding that he would make his health checked by Dr. Alexander Kaye, physician for the Jockey Guild.

Atkinson, born in Toronto in 1916, has ridden such top horses as Tom Fool, Count Fleet, Capot, One Hitter and Straight Deal.

In the fall of 1957 he was elected to the National Jockeys Hall of Fame at Pimlico.

Sedgman Wins Over Gonzales

MELBOURNE (AP) — Pancho Gonzales blew a match and his top Thursday night, losing 6-4, 9-7, 6-4 to Frank Sedgman in the final of the Victorian pro tennis championships.

The defeat was due in part to Gonzales' choice of a loosely-strung racket, but Pancho took it badly. He interrupted play once to hurl challenges at crowd members in the gallery of 7,000 and he refused to take part in the presentation ceremony.

Gonzales, anticipating there would be few on the hard-court, had his racket strung loosely. Instead, Melbourne's heat wave continued, there was no dew and Pancho couldn't pull off his shots well.

The victory gave Sedgman, the veteran Australian, pro, a clear edge over the American pro champion. In their last seven clashes Sedgman has won the major money on five occasions.

Pancho Segura took third place in the tournament by defeating Lew Hoad 6-3, 6-3.

Archie Moore Fighter of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Moore, the world light heavyweight boxing champion, received the Edward J. Neil Award Thursday night as fighter of the year for 1958. The award was presented by the Boxing Writers Association at the organization's annual dinner.

The award given to Moore was named in honor of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in 1938 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain.

Moore won national acclaim Dec. 10 when he got off the floor four times and finally knocked out Yvon Durelle in a Montreal bout that has been called one of the greatest fights in recent boxing history.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Ali Pike of Winnipeg Warriors said Thursday goalkeeper Al Rollins, recently purchased from the National Hockey League Chicago Black Hawks, will play against Vancouver Canucks in a Western Hockey League game here tonight. Rollins was bought by Warriors from the National Hockey League Club earlier this week.

Susan Hayward Still Prefers Life of Georgia Landowner'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Despite Susan Hayward's current success, she still prefers the life of a Georgia landowner to that of an actress.

Mrs. Eaton Chalkley of Carrollton, Ga., is here to make another movie, The Snow Birch, but she seems impatient to get back home for the spring planting.

This is the first of six pictures I still have to do for 20th Century-Fox," she explained. "The thought of having to do five more staggers me. I hope we can work something out so I don't have to."

The redhead from Brooklyn is not now with her electric performance in I Want to Live. It is making money and she owns 27½ per cent of it. It's the second profit-sharing deal she has made.

Robert Montgomery Jr. is the latest of famous second-generation names to try for an acting career. He has a one-line role in Say One For Me and is trying out for a contract at 20th. He's doing so without his pa's encouragement.

"My father advised me to try something else because acting is so precarious," says young Bob, who is 22, married and an army veteran. "But I think I can make it go of it."

Studio aides complained to Buddy Adler when George Stevens was 45 days over schedule with The Diary of Anne Frank. The studio boss remained unperturbed. There was nothing he could do, anyway: Stevens' contract forbade interference.

Now Adler is beaming. He says the picture is the greatest. And now Stevens has been given practically a blank cheque for the making of The Greatest Story Ever Told.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A few years ago a mayor of Belleville did a short-lived, fully-clothed Lady Godiva down the main stem of Kingston.

It was the result of a hockey-season bet in which the losing chief magistrate of either Kingston or Belleville was to ride a mag down the opposition's main street and afterwards extol its virtues to all and sundry and anybody else who cared to listen.

As the hockey fates would have it, Belleville lost out to Kingston—and the chief magistrate of the Moira metropolis started taking lessons. After the main-street steeplechase he ate his meals off the family piano for the following ten days.

The mayor of Belleville at the time was Jack Bolton and like the good sport he was, he rode the sway-backed charger down Roddenville's grocery and chain store boulevard, and afterwards told the town burghers of Kingston who packed the market square what a good hockey team they had and what a good town they lived in. A lot of them thought that lump in his cheek was a cud of tobacco.

Those were the halcyon days of good old senior "B" hockey when the-nasty pros did not invade the hal owed ranks of the alleged amateurs: Tony Parisi, Hub Macy, Vern Goyer and the Dumart brothers were household names in Belleville hockey and Johnny Carr-Harris and Kent Partis were earning peanuts tooting whistles for the OHA.

The hockey rivalry between Belleville and Kingston has always been keen, albeit the Limestone ladybucks had more reason to yelp with the exception of the past two seasons.

Now it seems that, like those senior "B" days some of the rivalry between hockey fans and players of the two cities has rubbed off on the city fathers.

The twenty-and-one good men and true, plus the chief magistrate who govern the city to the east are laboring under the impression that if their senior "A" Merchants cannot humble their rivals from the banks of the Moira, they can make Gerald Hyde and his board of city governors say "uncle" on a hockey surface.

So they issued a challenge to the Belleville civic popguns to meet them in broom-ball battle. The challenge was accepted and the two squads of civic cut-ups clash tonight in Memorial Arena prior to the McFarlands-Merchants senior tussle.

This was deemed the best time to hold the broom-bashing fracas as there would not be time between one game and the seconds to drag recumbent gladiators from the scene of civic battle and replace them with eager if not blood-thirsty broom wielders.

Alderman Bob Temple, who has had long-and varied experience coaching softball "Bobcat" how to shoot-a-puck unabash their combat claws, has been named the Casey Stengel of the Belleville Broomers. At the time of writing the master-mind of the Kingston tax-setters had not been ascertained.

However it was learned that the Kingston city fathers held an edge in manpower since their class, when all are present, boasts a membership of 21 plus the boss mayor. Belleville's board of management has fourteen plus the class president.

To offset this the Kingston "team" has agreed to allow their foemen from the Moira a working agreement with the Hastings County Home. Coach Temple had his scouts out last night looking over replacement prospects.

Nothing much is known, at such short notice of the broom-wielding abilities of either of the combatants. As for the art of wielding the overgrown whisks at curling bonspiels, it is doubtful if any of the contestants are familiar with the vagaries of the common or garden variety of broom. It has been suggested that much less coaching would be necessary if the regular broom weapons used in such clashes were replaced with vacuum cleaners.

... there it is. The "battle" gets under way sometime between 7.30 and 8.00 p.m., when the amateur-and broom-waving combatants will have at each with the boner of their respective efforts at stake. There will be no spectators and the rules committee has ordered that no spectator will be allowed more than two pillows with which to line the south side of the lap.

Simmons Looked Like Guy Who Sparked Club Last Year With Superlative Net Effort

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Professional athletes are a hardy breed. It's an occupation of ups and downs.

Typical is the case of Don Simmons, the slim goaltender for Boston Bruins who shut out Detroit Red Wings 3-0 in the National Hockey League's lone contest Thursday night.

The "us" for Don came in the Stanley Cup playoffs last year, when his agile work fired an underdog Boston team through two desperate contests.

Then came the "down" part for Don. The Bruins, hit by injuries and reports of dissension among personnel, couldn't put together a combination to win.

And some observers theorized that the club's netminding wasn't what it should be. To back it up they could point to statistics that showed Don with Simmons playing all but two games—gave up 135 goals in their first 43 outings, more than any other NHL club.

The critics last week became louder as the Bruins went winless in four games with Simmons giving up 14 goals. Two of the teammates fired only nine in that stint.

But Don, who turned 29 came back "up" again Thursday night and with the Bruins working their checking style of play to perfection climbed to a steadfast 20th place with Detroit in the standings.

Although the Red Wings outshot the Bruins 29-23, Boston took a 3-0 lead in the opening period and executed two more unadulterated tallies in the third period while Detroit's Pete Goegan was in the penalty box.

Johnny Bucyk, Don McKenney and defenseman Jim Morrison were the marksmen.

It was the third shutout of the season for Simmons.

Goegan was serving the first of two minor penalties in that 3rd period when McKenney beat Glenn-Terry Sawchuk with a 25-foot slap shot at 15:33.

At 15:33, with Goegan in the box again, Morrison pointed on a 50-foot screened shot. Gerry Toppazzini helped setup both tallies.

Bucyk's goal was the first in the first period, came on a rebound following shots by Fernie Flaman and Doug (Diesel) Mohns.

Bears Defeat American League All-Stars 5-1

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Hershey Bears refused to be dazzled by the brilliance of players on the American Hockey League all-star team here last night and walked away with an easy 5-1 victory.

Larry Zeitel, Bears' defenceman, scored in the first period. Bob Solinger and Ed Stankiewicz added goals in the second period. Mike Yanosik and Dunc Fisher scored in the final stanza.

Marcel Paille of Buffalo, who defended the all-star net in the first half of the game, yielded two goals. Gerry McNeil of Rochester replaced him in his half.

The all-stars now stand at 2-3-1 in the annual attraction against the rotating American Hockey League teams.

Cec Hoekstra of Rochester scored the all-stars from a shot-out when he scored in the final period. Hoekstra was an added starter after Gary Aldcorn of Cleveland had been scratched from the starting lineup.

The all-stars planned had another goal.

As the final belt of the game rounded, Bears goalie Bob Perreault stepped aside and Eddie Mazur of Cleveland blasted a shot into the net.

The official scorer said he had received no orders to allow the goal. No protests were filed.

Cubs Manager Says Braves Team to Beat

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Bob Schefling of Chicago Cubs envisions Milwaukee Braves as the team to beat in the National League.

But he predicts his Cubs will be first-division contenders this year.

Schefling, along with owner P. K. Wrigley and other Cub officials, held a press conference Thursday.

"Even without Red Schoendienst (ailing second baseman), the Braves have been pretty well down the line to win the pennant," Schefling said. "I always have been impressed with Del Rice and Felix Mantilla also is available as a replacement for Schoendienst.

"I don't know how much improvement other National League clubs have made, but I think we have the potential for a first-division finish."

The Cubs, a surprisingly hard-hitting club last season, finished in a fifth-place tie with St. Louis Cardinals, 20 games behind the Braves.

GOOD YOUNG PITCHERS

"I expect improvement in our pitching staff. Bob Anderson is the biggest group of promising young pitchers any one league club has had for quite a few seasons."

Schefling said he could not name a big four mound staff from among such pitchers as Don Drysdale, Dick Drott, Taylor Phillips, John Buzhardt, Glen Hobbie, Bob Anderson and Dave Hillman.

"You can't say, concerning this type of pitching staff, what each will do from year to year," said Schefling. "But they have had big league experience and show promise."

Bars, Band Outlast Boxing In Gentlemen's Club Debut

BOSTON (AP) — The broad-shouldered fellow crashed in casually wearing a tux, an Inverness cape and carrying a malacca walking cane.

Bad Willie Gray, a light-heavyweight boxer by profession, was the centre of attraction at the exclusive University Club.

Less than two hours later, all eyes were focused upon him. He was out cold on the canvass.

Bad Willie didn't last long in a main bout performance as boxing returned to the "gentleman's club" days Thursday night in a spring set up on the club's badminton court.

MARCIANO PROTEGE

Billy Ryan of Lowell, Mass., a protege of retired heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, listened to the cheers of some 650 persons. Ryan didn't want to fool around. He sparred briefly with Bad Willie, planted a left hook and sent across a terrific overhand right.

The referee counted out Gray at 2:44 of the first round of a scheduled 10-round match. Ryan retained his New England light-heavyweight title.

Despite the sudden ending, the night proved a big success—in terms of entertainment and money.

Bad Willie was the only one to show up in a tux. The orchestra members wore black ties.

STRANGERS AT RINGSIDE

Despite the lack of top hats and pearl-studded spats, the enthusiasm was the same displayed in the era of "gentleman's club" fights a year ago. Ringside seats were occupied by persons not known to veteran fight followers.

Chevies Whip Hull-Ottawa, Trappers Surprise Dutchmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Underdog clubs scored upsets in Ontario Senior Hockey Association action Thursday night.

North Bay Trappers, rearmed with the biggest surprise, dumping Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3 in OHA-Senior division action.

In the QHA Eastern Conference all Chevies polished off Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 4-2.

The lackplace Trappers, who have won only eight of their 30 games this season, rolled a Kitchener bid to move into first place over the idle Chatham Maroons who lead by a single point.

GET EARLY LEAD

Kitchener got off to an early 2-1 lead but the 1,296 North Bay fans saw Trappers come back swiftly to lead 3-2 before the end of the period and a ahead to stay. Goalie Mary Edwards was superb in the North Bay nets.

Stan Jones was the home town hero with two goals and singles were fired by Ches Kenzenny, Rene Pepin and Cleland Morrison. Kitchener goals went to Bill Saunders, Bill Wylie and Butch Martin.

Cornwall moved into the top place in the first period to help build up a 4-1 lead which broke the back of Hull's determination. Reg Grieg and Guy Henri got the other Cornwall markers.

Hull had a fourth line rookie lag through the tight defensive checking Cornwall brew at them in the second and third periods to protect its lead. Both clubs were slowed by fatigue in the hard play.

Ray Dumouchel and playing coach Connie Broden were the only Hull men to beat Pete Picquette in the Cornwall nets.

Grid Loops Do Prelim Work Prior to Main Bout Meeting

By AL VICKERY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western football clubs scrimmaged Thursday on the question of how much rich clubs should give the poor. The result: No decision.

Heads of major football leagues did a lot of ground work for their annual meeting Saturday as they completed the first of their two - day sessions before going into the second annual meeting of the Canadian Football League.

The Big Four and the WIFU ran through several minor exercises—labor relations in minor leagues, the commissioner and the league's relationship with the meat for today's session. All meetings are closed.

THE LEAGUE DEBATED

The only subject to get a definite airing was the question of gate equalization in the western circuit.

Saskatchewan Roughrider representatives on the gate equalization committee were after a new deal which would give visiting clubs 50 cents a ticket—over the present 35 cents.

British Columbia Lions wanted no part of it. They said they wouldn't go for anything higher than the present $20,000 limit for which they already are committed. During the 1958 season they paid out $18,000, most of which went to the Riders.

Riders, with the smallest park in the WIFU, say they are filling their stadium to 96 per cent capacity and still are financially pinch.

Some Western delegates feel the Riders should get a better deal because the Lions, who had a gross gate of $325,000 in 1958, had a take about $100,000, above any other club. Lions play Winnipeg Blue Bombers, whose gross gate was $420,000, both paid out the other three teams—Edmonton, Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos. The matter finally is left over for the annual meeting, likely in June or July.

OPEN GATE FOR REINSTATEMENT

Earlier the CFL at a preliminary meeting made a move which may open the way for British rugger players to compete for spots on Canada's pro teams without being classified as imports.

Delegates agreed that bona fide British subjects would not be considered imports. Only players holding Canadian citizenship papers now are regarded as non-imports.

Final decision will be made when the CFL meets during the weekend, said Jake Gaudaur of Toronto, Big Four president.

"It probably could go through," said Gaudaur, who last year explored the possibility of importing rugger players to Canada after viewing games in Britain.

Some delegates felt rugger players would not make much of a dent in the Canadian game because there is too big a difference in the two games.

Reporting on the CFL session, commissioner G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg said player contracts for the two leagues now would be registered with the office and not with the Canadian Rugby Union, which formerly controlled all Canadian football.

The CFL now runs its own affairs. The CRU controls only minor leagues such as juniors, intermediates and six-man football.

Halter also said the preliminary meeting had tentatively agreed clubs could submit any number of player contracts to his office up to Aug. 15, when the figure would be reduced to 50.

A further reduction to 42 would be made by Sept. 1, and by Sept. 15 it would be down to 35. This number would be retained until the end of the regular schedules when the clubs then could go back to the original unlimited registration.

City Councils Will Play Broom Ball

There will be an added attraction for hockey fans at Memorial Arena tonight.

Macs manager Dewey Benyes announced that a broom-ball game between representatives of Belleville and Kingston city councils will precede the Merchants-Macs tussle.

The game will get underway at approximately 8.40.

Alderman Bob Temple is in charge of Mayor Gerry Hyde's ball-chasing stalwarts. There were no details at writing of the Kingston council personnel.

Len Matthews 2-1 Favorite

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lightweight hopefuls Len Matthews of Philadelphia and Paulie Armstead of Los Angeles, battling to get into the title contention picture, meet tonight in a televised 10-round fight.

Matthews, 19, making his debut in California, is a 2-to-1 favorite. He is undefeated in 16 fights and has stopped 12 opponents.

Armstead, 21, a student at nearby Compton Junior College, is the California champion. He has won 22 matches, lost four and boxed one draw.

Writer Finds Out in Ring How It Feels Facing Champ

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Stillman's Gym can be a lonely place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The ring lamps are cold. The lunch stand is closed. No punching bag rat-a-tats in the balcony.

An extra bait light sits through the swinging doors. The nonpaid boxers are gone. The night shift hasn't arrived.

Lou Stillman, the proprietor, stood in the glasses near the ticket turnstile. The doors swung wide and in walked three young guys in mink.

"What are them games doing here?" asked Stillman. They stared straight ahead, fascinated. Soon there were three more. Half a dozen well-dressed men slammed a cab door and clomped up the wooden stairs. In 15 minutes the brigade men were full. About 200 in all. Literary people, television and stage people, society people.

Archie Moore, bundled in a blue overcoat, burst through the door and ducked into a hallway leading to the locker room. "Where's the champ back there," shouted Stillman to the crowd.

SCHOLARLY FIGHTER

The light-heavyweight champion of the world entered a cubbyhole dressing room where a lean, scholarly young man was sitting on a table in his socks.

"Hi," said Archie to George Plimpton, co-editor of the Paris Review, a literary quarterly. "Putting corn pads on the knuckles, huh? Some punching bag I used to do that when I was younger."

Plimpton grinned a greeting. He is writing a series of articles for Sports Illustrated on how it feels to face a champion. George has pitched to Willie Mays, played golf with Sam Snead, fought a bull in Spain and played hockey with Jacoby. Now he wanted to see how it felt to fight Archie Moore. (He should ask Tom Dureller.

"I'm going to demonstrate how easy it is to make you look good," Archie said. "Don't be afraid. Do the best you can."

Then Moore started to get it up. "What ever happened to that poor fellow I knocked out in Cleveland?" He asked his business manager. "My, these gloves sure are tight. He rattled a medicine cabinet on the paper-thin wall with two playful punches.

Then they were in the ring. Ezra Bowen, another writer, was referee and announcer.

"In this corner Archie Moore, the light - heavyweight champ, weight 175½—he says!" in this corner, George Plimpton, weight 176."

THE RED BADGE

There was no bell, so they started by the word "go". Plimpton immediately got into the spirit, swinging with a left jab and standing up straight. Moore missed by so much, Jabbed and slammed obviously punch to the middle of Plimpton's belly. Then at about the second, George's nose was red. A wide end-of-the third and last round, Plimpton's bleeding nose had stained Archie's shirt. Archie's left hook and straight right shook hands. "He might be able to do it if he was 21," said Archie. "That is the way I learned it at Harvard and Cambridge with a background in basketball background and no more pugilistic ambitions).

Sandy Saddler, former featherweight champ and old friend of Archie's, stuck his head in the door. "Where that blood come from Archie?", he asked.

"That is the way it is," said Plimpton with dignity and complete honesty.

Riders, Lions Benefit by C.F.L. Ruling

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders and British Columbia Lions benefitted Thursday by rulings passed at a preliminary meeting of the Canadian Football League.

Football commissioner G. Sydney Halter said Peter Joyce, 22-year-old University of Toronto fullback, is the property of Rough Riders of the Big Four and that Morgan Clarke, 23-year-old defensive end with Sarnia Golden Bears of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, is eligible to play for the Lions this year.

Halter ruled that Joyce, one of Nigbert stars in the Intercollegiate Union and signed by Rough Riders last year, is not subject to the college draft. Halter said the player had completed a four-year course in engineering at Royal Military College at Kingston, and is taking a one-year course for his degree at the University of Toronto.

Clarke, one of four other players of the ORFU champions, had been eligible for the Lions last November. Clarke played with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in 1957, but his class had not graduated when he was transferred to the Lions.

Halter said the 215 - pound player was subject to the draft but the meeting decided to let him go to the Lions, last-place club in the Western Interprovincial Football Union in 1958, for what the commissioner termed "special circumstances."

French Canadians Love 'Shiners'; Boston Fans Sue

BOSTON (CP)—Killer Kowalski, bad man of the wrestling ring, says he never restrains himself from retaliating when French-Canadian fans insult him. But he behaves when taunted by American spectators. They might sue.

"That's the difference between wrestling in French - Canadian towns and places like Boston," Kowalski said.

"Up there they are not so educated, and the most of 'em decide to go for me I don't hold back. The next guy he gets a black eye sandhe's very proud of it.

"He says to his friends, 'lookit d'st black eye. By gar sin' she a beauty! That Killer Kowalski give her to me las night. "I'm Boston they'd sue."

McMILLAN BACK

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roy McMillan, Cincinnati Shortstop, has signed his 1959 contract with the Redlegs. Although he slumped at bat last season, McMillan tied the major league record and set a National League record for the fewest errors in a season. Rinks led the National League shortstops in fielding with a .980 mark for the second consecutive season.

Letter To The Sports Editor

The following letter sent in by a McFarland fan appeared in a recent issue of the Toronto Daily Star. It speaks for itself.

Team Let Down

Sir: Again, Canada got ready to send a hockey team to Europe, the Belleville McFarlands, to defend the world amateur championship won by Whitby at Oslo last year. So, Canada gets behind the team with the usual fight the good fight, uphold the Canadian traditions, play the game for the game's sake, etc. Now this is great, and the players who are chosen hope to accomplish all this and a little more. They will not let Canada down. Yet, even before the team leaves, Canada let's them down. Just why is every Canadian hockey team that goes to Europe treated like an orphan or poor relation? I'm surprised these boys are not called on to go by raft. That is not really to be funny. The facts must make other countries feel that we are all wrong, why a championship team that's expected by everyone to win championships has to operate on a shoestring budget. Every year, when the team should leave Canada with the feeling that Canada is behind them, we stumble on the problem of financing. Some players have their own responsibilities and "obligations to meet, and we just don't picture these players quitting jobs, letting tickets, beating drums like some carnival show. Looking at it as a worthwhile venture, why doesn't the government sponsor the team? The RCAF has planes going overseas and why don't they could represent our country better as good-will ambassadors? If they can do it, so can Belleville McFarlands. Wake up, Canada. This is our team.

A. J. James,
Keele St.,
Toronto.

Court Tourney Starts Tonight

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—The world amateur basketball tournament gets under way tonight in three widely - scattered Chilean cities with the United States and Russia the pre-tournament favorites. Canada is among the 22 countries entered.

The U.S. opens against Argentina and Nationalist China meets the United Arab Republic in Concepcion. Brazil goes against Canada and Russia against Mexico in Temuco. Puerto Rico meets Bulgaria and the Philippines against Uruguay in Anto. Fagasta.

The eight Chilean team cuts automatically advances to the finals, to be held here Jan. 25 to 31.

Packer Players Pound Pavement To Sell Tickets

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—Kelowna Packers of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League stand a better-than-ever chance of being able financially to finish the season.

This is due largely to the hardship and willingness of Packer players, who have been pounding the pavement in the area for the last two days in a ticket blitz through which the club hopes to sell 1,000 nine-game tickets at $10 each.

Nearly 200 persons turned out to a public airing of the club's week Wednesday night.

Packers, who made a successful tour of Russia earlier this season, have been drawing an average of about 900 fans a game, about 500 below last year's average and well below the point of profitable operation. As a result, the club became a co-operative with players sharing what's ever profits were shown but getting no regular salary.

Manager Bob Giordano said "a booster club has been formed and "the TV people have promised a lot of free advertising time. He said 2,000 are expected at Saturday night's game here.

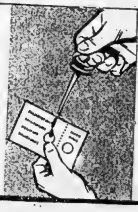
SHELL'S OILPRINT ENGINE TEST



...the new way to get the jump on engine trouble!

Developed by Shell Research... proved in Canadian commercial motor fleets! Shell's Oilprint Engine Test is now being brought to the public. Another exclusive service offered by your Shell Dealer.

And it costs you nothing!

LOOK WHAT 1 DROP OF OIL CAN TELL ABOUT YOUR CAR!

IS YOUR COOLING SYSTEM LEAKING? The Shell Oilprint Engine Test will indicate the presence of water or anti-freeze in your oil. This is important because even a few miles of driving with anti-freeze in the engine oil can cause sticky valve lifters or seize an engine.

ARE YOU WASTING FUEL? Oil from a car engine that's burning too rich a mixture, either from improper carburetor setting or too much choking, quickly becomes overloaded with carbon. A Shell analyst can detect this condition upon examination of your Shell Oilprint Engine Test card. Once you correct this condition you'll enjoy better mileage and more power.

SHELL'S OILPRINT ENGINE TEST TAKES THE GUESSWORK OUT OF OIL DRAIN PERIODS—A single Oilprint Test tells whether or not your oil needs changing at the time of the test. Tests at regular intervals will help tell you how many miles your car can be ran between oil changes.

PROVED IN CANADA'S COMMERCIAL FLEETS

Shell's Oilprint Analysis was originally developed as a method of cutting fleet maintenance costs . . . by helping them detect engine trouble before it got to serious proportions . . . by helping them determine safe engine drain periods. The method has been so successful over several years that it has now been streamlined and simplified so that it can be applied to passenger cars.

TAKES LESS OF YOUR TIME THAN AN OIL LEVEL CHECK

Your Shell station attendant can take an Oilprint Test at the same time he checks your oil level. He simply lets one drop of oil from your car's dipstick fall on a specially prepared card. The card with your oil sample is then sent in for analysis. The results will be ready for you in five days.

SHELL OILPRINT ENGINE TESTING STARTS TOMORROW

The sooner you get your first Shell Oilprint Engine Test, the sooner your car can start enjoying the benefits. Take a moment for your Shell Oilprint Test tomorrow! Shell Service Stations are conveniently located throughout the Belleville area. For your free test, check the list below and drive in to the Shell Station nearest you!

REMEMBER, YOUR SHELL OILPRINT ENGINE TEST IS FREE!

TWEED

Polish Speaker Addresses H.-S. Association

TWEED — On Wednesday evening the regular monthly meeting of the Tweed Consolidated School Home and School Association was held in the school with a splendid attendance of parents and teachers.

Mrs. Montgomery's class won the parent attendance banner this month.

Mr. Stanley Walters, president, was in the chair.

In the absence of the treasurer, the president read the financial statement. Referring to the business which was to be discussed at this meeting, Mrs. Allen gave a report of the results of the executive committee's inquiries into the question of the purchase of a record player for the school, which, it had been suggested at a previous meeting, might be purchased with funds in the association treasury.

After some discussion, it was decided that a hi-fi record player (with 30 records) be purchased.

The business of the evening being concluded, the guest speaker, Mr. Robert Lenczewski of Kingston, was introduced by Dr. A. G. Allen.

Dr. Allen spoke of the visitor as a widely travelled man of many experiences. He was born in Poland and lived there during the Nazi occupation. In 1939 he was building aircraft and at 17 years of age he had a pilot's licence.

CITIZENSHIP

In speaking to his audience Mr. Lenczewski stated that he wished to emphasize "Citizenship."

Referring to his own youth and life in the troubled countries of Europe, he realized what a wonderful thing citizenship in a free country could be.

It was while he was in England, where he joined the RAF, that he experienced the true meaning of freedom, giving little anecdotes of everyday happenings that aroused wonder in him, yet were taken so much for granted by the people who enjoyed that freedom as a matter of course.

Continuing, the speaker told of his trip from England to Argentine, where he had little difficulty in securing citizenship papers, but his ultimate goal had been to reach Canada.

During his sojourn in England he had read and learned a great deal about the way of life in that great new land which was a part of the British Commonwealth.

SECURES PASSPORT

Eventually he secured a passport to Canada and is now a Canadian citizen operating a sash and door factory in the city of Kingston.

Mr. Lenczewski urged Canadians to appreciate the privileges which were theirs.

He also reminded them of such precious possessions as freedom of speech, freedom to worship as they pleased, to travel the world over with the bulwark and prestige of a free government, which would ensure their safety and well-being at all times — which would care for them in any difficulty and help in their safe return to their homeland.

In his closing remarks, the speaker referred to the contribution to the economic and cultural life of Canada made by newcomers from the old countries. He told of the establishment of some 150 new businesses in Canada by Hungarians, presently employing over 4,000 people.

It was an interesting and enlightening address, appreciation of which was expressed by the president.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

The highlight at this point was a lovely birthday cake, celebrating the fifth year of the organization.

A letter from the Earlscourt Home for Children was read and members agreed to send Christmas gifts which had been sent. Other letters of thanks were read from shut-ins who had received Christmas cards.

During the business part of the meeting, it was decided to hold a pie social on January 30 and a chicken and biscuit dinner on February 23rd.

Readings were given by Mrs. Neelands — "What makes a Happy New Year?" and Mrs. H. McCoy, "The Village Ladies' Aid." Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe gave a piano selection.

An enjoyable part of the evening was when Life Membership certificates to the WA and WMS were presented. The presentations to the WA was to Mrs. J. Dawson, and for the WMS, to Mrs. Harold McCaul.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was spent with refreshments served by the hostess and the committee in charge.

Sunday School Lesson

Trying to Persuade God

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most interesting and understandable stories in the New Testament is the one concerning the two young men who wanted to take advantage of the fact that Jesus was their friend. It is a very ordinary experience of life that our friendships are levied upon by those who think it is to their advantage.

PROBLEM OF KINFOLK

There seems some good reason for believing that the two disciples, James and John, were Jesus' cousins. There is a persistent tradition to the effect that Mary and the young men's mother were sisters. This idea gains some support from the fact that the New Testament represents them as being just a little nearer to Jesus than the rest of the little band.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 18: "Jesus emphasizes the cost of greatness", Mark 10:32-45.

There is something very beautiful about the family relationship but it can very easily be imposed upon. There is a disposition on the part of many relatives to think that, being kinfolk, they ought to have an advantage. And in any deal involving cash or property it seldom happens that outs parties to the transaction can have an advantage. The kinfolk who are trying to forget about their personal obligations in favor of their personal responsibilities are not far from the Kingdom of God.

It is one of the depressing facts about the family of Jesus, as they are portrayed in the New Testament, that they seldom show up to advantage. Only Mary, the mother of Jesus, never disappoints us.

For excuses which will relieve us of our duties?

The question Jesus put to his cousins (if such they were) is a very serious one. "What do you want me to do for you?" It is such a common thing for us to pray for trifles.

How many times do we really pray for a clear definition of duty? Is it not easier to pray for any ordinary requirements pray for tough assignments? Yet is it not true that it is the difficulties of life that really contribute to our growth and maturity?

How many times do we pray for relief from pain? Yet we have encounter any magnificence that has not been purchased at the cost of pain.

We are quick to plead, of course, to pray for help in time of trouble, but even in the face of confusion, and for guidance in the midst of contradictions. But how many of our problems would cease to be problems if we were willing to face the facts with daring, and make up our mind on the basis of a clear sense of duty. Is it not true that on many occasions we pray for guidance, when actually we are asking for the wrong kind of guidance we already have?

SOME CANNOT BE GIVEN

There are many gifts in life that cannot be given, even by God. Certainly they could not be given to those, even to disciples who may have been cousins.

The violin teacher can give his pupils instruction, but he cannot give him skill. The chemistry professor can give his students formulas, but he cannot give him the willingness to persist in his search for facts. The coach can give his people assurance, but he cannot give them the courage could give his disciples hints, but he could not give them character.

There is very much easier to ask for victory than it is to deserve it; so much easier to ask for anything than to merit the favor of God; so much easier to ask for blessings than to submit to them when they come in the form of challenges.

CALL ROLL OF GREAT

If there be any question as to the, merit of Jesus' suggestion about those who are to be called great, then try calling the roll. Many of the prominent and the powerful will be omitted from the list for no better reason than that they have been prominent or powerful without being great. Hitler was known around the world for his ruthless power, but numerous or slick.

he will never be called great. Jesus never commanded a single soldier, but He will be called the greatest, even by those who do not accept Him as their Lord.

We are deceived often by the loud, the big, the many, and the clever. They seem to many times they fail so far short of greatness because they are nothing more than big, loud,

Castro Expects Firing Squads Will Shoot 450

205 Already Executed, Many Given Jail Terms

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro estimates 450 persons will die before the current wave of executions ends in Cuba.

Already 205 persons have been reported shot on charges of crimes against the people during the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista. Cuban prisons recently held an estimated 3,000 to 6,000 more for trial on similar charges but some have been released and others given jail terms.

Castro gave his estimate to a crowd of about 20,000 in front of the Presidential Palace Friday night. He called for a rally of 500,000 persons in Havana next Wednesday to signify approval of the executions.

FULL LYNCH MOB

The Cuban people generally have applauded the trials and executions. Police broke up 200 persons in front of a police station Friday demonstrating for lynching of one suspect.

The actions have aroused sharp criticism in the United States and other countries, however. Castro invited foreign journalists and diplomats to attend the trials to check their fairness.

Newspapers in Brazil, Peru, Ecuador, Argentina and Costa Rica have called for a halt of the bloodshed. The Uruguayan representative to the United National Organization of American States, President Manuel Urrutia to stop the killings. Other Latin American delegates at the UN were reported planning a similar appeal. U.S. Democratic Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon suggested in Washington that Castro invite UN observers to check the trial and execution methods.

APPOINT ENVOY

Meanwhile, the Cuban government named Havana lawyer Ernesto Dihigo as Cuban ambassador to the United States.

It was reported in Washington that Philip W. Bonsal, now U.S. ambassador to Bolivia, will be the new American envoy to Cuba. Cuban Foreign Minister Roberto Agramonte said Bonsal would be acceptable.

Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith, U.S. envoy to Cuba, ambassador to Cuba last week. The revolutionary regime had charged he had favored the Batista regime.

Board Assails Union Attitude On Conciliation

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiations were set to resume today between the United Auto Workers of America (UAC) and officials of Massey-Ferguson Limited in an effort to reach a contract agreement for 5,000 workers in Toronto, Brantford and Woodstock.

Shadowing the scheduled talks was a Massey-Ferguson conciliation board report criticizing "continued defiance" by the UAW of conciliation procedure and suggesting the Ontario labor department might investigate the situation.

The majority report made no recommendation on a 31-cent-an-hour wage increase and other benefits asked by the union, but said the company is in no position to grant a substantial increase.

The UAW bargaining team, which walked out of conciliation proceedings Dec. 10 when the company insisted on making full representation, has rejected the report. The farm implement company says it will negotiate on the basis of the report.

MEDIATION IMPOSSIBLE

Judge W. Lane of Picton, conciliation board chairman, and N. L. Mathews of Toronto, company representative, said the UAW's refusal to participate in board hearings rendered mediation impossible.

Labor Minister Daley Friday night deplored the union's action but questioned Judge Lan's suggestion the union may have violated the Ontario Labor Relations Act. He said he would study the situation.

The report said George Burt, UAW's Canadian director, has said in the past that conciliation procedure is a hinderance to speedy negotiations.

A minority report submitted by union representative Drummond Wren of Toronto said the differences in the company and union are so great they can be settled only through direct negotiations.

Today's Chuckle

"Not guilty of bigamy," said the judge. "You can go home."

"Thanks, Judge, which one?"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Cold weather firmly grips all of Ontario this morning. Temperatures are 20 to 30 below zero in northern sections, near zero in central sections, and five to 10 above in southern counties.

A severe storm in southern Quebec is causing brief snowwest winds over most of Ontario today as it moves northwestward after spreading up to a foot of new snow in the upper St. Lawrence River valley as well as several inches in Southern Ontario. Extensive drifting is expected today over most of Ontario but snow will be confined mainly to the snow belt near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

Qu Sunday the weather will continue cold with winds slowly diminish during the day.

Salesmen Refuse To Accept Offer Of 34 Cts. Pound

STRATFORD (CP) — Salesmen refused to accept an offer of 34 cents a pound from buyers for Canadian Chees Ex. of the Western Ontario Cheese Exchange. Only a small amount of cheese boarded at the exchange floor went unsold.

One observer on the Stratford board said he will not take the risk of storing cheese in his warehouse because for years cheese will be sold below his cost by a government agency and his may be ket ruined.

He said in 1957 cheese was stored for almost one year by the Ontario cheese producers's marketing board and then sold below the buyers' cost.

ONE OUT OF 52 SURVIVES CRASH OF AIRLINER

Plane Down at Sea At Argentine Resort

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — An Argentine airliner with 52 persons aboard crashed into the Atlantic Ocean Friday night off the seaside resort of Mal del Plata. One survived, was found.

Almost four hours after the vacation flight crashed, a man was found alive on the beach, his clothes burned or ripped off. All others on the twin-engine plane apparently perished. Three bodies were recovered in pre-dawn searches.

Searchers, who were hampered by stormy waters, said many of those who died were primarily were trapped inside and drowned.

Among the dead were Germany list were Eduardo Bruan Menendez, one of Argentina's most famous scientists, and Dr. Jose Mezzadra, another well - known scientist. There was no immediate confirmation that they actually had been aboard.

The plane belongs to Austral Airlines.

SUMMERTIME TRIP

The airliner was on a summertime vacation flight from Buenos Aires to Mar del Plata, 240 miles to the south, and then to Bahia Blanca, another 200 miles west. It was returning to Buenos Aires at Mar del Plata in windy and rainy weather when it smashed into the ocean about 150 yards from shore.

Hog Marketing Program Ready For Court Action

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's controversial hog marketing program is ready to vault again next month.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court Friday set Feb. 10 as the date for hearing an application by Toronto lawyer B. J. MacKinnon, representing Ontario producers opposed to the program.

The dissident producers claim there were irregularities in the July 25 plebiscite among the province's 52,000 hog producers, at which 68.2-per-cent approval was given the scheme which regulates commercial hog sales.

Mr. MacKinnon was refused leave to file additional affidavits Friday.

The dissidents seek an injunction prohibiting the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board from issuing licences for the program.

Complicating the case is an appeal Court decision which left under judicial review the ruling of Justice R. I. Ferguson that the board's marketing plan is invalid since it was instituted without a vote of producers.

The government's counsel, C. R. Magone, said the Appeal Court decision "was based on the foundation" of Mr. McKinnon's application. It is irrelevant now, he said, since the vote was properly carried out, he said, because it dealt with an invalid marketing program.

The Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board will continue operating under the original 1949 marketing scheme, he said. Mr. Magone, because it is essentially the same as the 1957 plan. The 1949 scheme will be valid because the until 1953 that legislation was passed making provision for marketing programs in plebiscites.

Mr. MacKinnon said this may be true "but I want the government to say there was no proper vote."

TAKES HIS MEDICINE LIKE A MAN

No coward, this three-day-old chick stands his ground as a laboratory technician spikes his drinking water with a new vaccine designed to immunize poultry against coccidiosis, a major disease problem in the poultry industry. Immunization is part of a coccidiosis control program announced in Minneapolis, Minn. Specialists say the system promises to "reduce drastically" poultry losses estimated at $39,000,000 in the U.S. and Canada.

Controversial 1958 Forecast Tabled by Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade department economists early last spring handed the government a confidential forecast that 1958 would see a decline in national production and a post-war peak in unemployment, and that the recession might last into 1959.

The report, which figured in a hot political fight at the last session of Parliament though it hadn't been made public, was tabled in the Commons Friday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Some of the main forecasts by the trade department appear to have painted a rosier picture than has since developed.

The report said it was doubtful that volume of national production would match the 1957 level. In fact, the volume remained unchanged.

It predicted that exports would fall by $186,000,000 below the 1957 figure of $4,936,000,000. Latest estimates indicate 1958 exports were unchanged from 1957.

But it correctly foresaw declines in business investment and imports.

Production of the trade department forecast, made in March and given to the government in April, appears likely to spark a renewal of last session's heated Commons debate.

Last session Liberal spokesmen said Finance minister Fleming had not heeded the forecast in drafting his June 17 budget speech, in which he said: "There are hopeful signs that we have reached the end of the recent decline".

That debate arose after the Toronto Star published what it said were excerpts from the forecast and said they gave a less rosy picture of the economy than did the budget speech. Its published excerpts contained the word parts of the report made public Friday. At the time, Finance Minister Churchill would neither confirm nor deny that The Star's quotes were from the report.

Last session Opposition Leader Pearson demanded that the report be made public then. Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised to publish it at the end of the session. Amid renewed opposition demands Friday, he requested Mr. Churchill to table it.

Trade department forecasts, prepared annually, had always been confidential until Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a Commons speech on Jan. 20 took parts of the 1957 report prepared for the former Liberal government. He claimed the Liberals had ignored economic warnings in the report and had done nothing to forestall the recession. His accusation was a major issue in the 1958 election campaign.

Finance ministers, in preparing budgets, are not only the trade department forecast but also those of the finance department and the Bank of Canada.

In his budget last June, Mr. Fleming predicted a rise in the gross national product to $32,000,000,000 in 1958 from $31,400,000,000 in 1957. Recently the bureau of statistics said that prediction was reached, with output volume remaining unchanged and prices rising by two per cent.

The trade department forecast estimated that the 1958 recession would be much greater than the mild economic setback in 1953-54. It predicted in the number of persons without jobs and seeking work would rise to an average of 400,000 for the year from the 1957 average of 254,000.

No final figure on the actual 1958 average is yet available. However, numbers of persons unemployed and seeking work recorded 590,000 last March—highest since the depression of the 1930s.

The forecast was accurate in its predictions of declines in business investment and in imports.

Recognition of Red China Sought in H. Winch's Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Recognition of Red China, a Canadian youth council and choice of a national flag and anthem are among proposals that Harold Winch, veteran Parliament would like to raise during the present session.

There were 43 such resolutions listed hopefully Friday in votes and proceedings of January — and they range from national lotteries to Canada's 100th birthday celebrations.

Mr. Winch is on the list and seemingly certain of a day's discussion. He is a resolution "that in the opinion of this House, the government should give consideration to the advisability of recognizing the government of the Chinese People's Republic".

It was framed by Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East.)

The question of recognizing Communist China has been one of continuing debate in the Liberal and Progressive Conservative governments. There has been no indication that such a step is likely to be taken at this time.

It has been taken for granted that Mr. Diefenbaker returned from his world tour with the latest word on Chinese reactions, isolationism once, feel

Another resolution, second on the list, is one that has the government consider establishing a Canadian sports council. Sponsor John Taylor (PC-Pictou-Colchester Burrard) feels the council, akin to the Canada Council for the Arts, should foster and encourage Canadian amateur sport.

Mr. Taylor is a former Canadian hockey great.

Third item off the mark will be Samuel Boulanger (L-Drummond-Arthabaska) who wants the government to consider agricultural and fisheries development bank providing money credit and capital for individuals.

There are lots more. They include various aids to education, public ownership of the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Company, making New York be considered with the Lawrence Seaway and traffic accidents.

GLOVES COME OFF WHEN MEMBERS START DEBATE

Indications Point To Lively Session

OTTAWA (CP)—The gloves come off now in Parliament as members delve into government policies and proposed legislation.

On Monday, Opposition Leader Pearson will lead off in the debate on the address-in-reply, probably moving a motion of non-confidence in the Progressive Conservative government. Prime Minister Diefenbaker and CCF House Leader Argue follow.

The last formalities were finished Friday. The afternoon sitting included the customary question period and only two speeches — the mover's speech and seconder of the traditional address-in-reply to the throne speech delivered at the opening of Parliament Thursday by Governor-General Massey.

The question period gave indications that it will be a lively session. The government was charged among other things with going back on its promise to end the dismissal of government employees for political partisanship.

FRASER FOR SPEECH

An unusual scene followed the maiden speech of Louis Fortin, 37-year-old Conservative member for Montmorency, Que., who made an eloquent plea for assistance to Canada's aged. The address in reply to the throne speech. Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Pearson, numerous other members clustered round this desk to congratulate him.

Warner Jorgenson (PC-Provencher), moved the address in reply. Mrs. Manitoba member warned of the danger of a food monopoly development from a trend towards production of livestock by farmers under contract to packing houses and feed dealers who finance the capital cost of production.

Mr. Argue accused the government of reversing its policy when it closed the sub post office operated by Toronto appointment Nicholas Monteredo after a complaint of political patronage by William Beech (PC-York South.)

Mr. Manfredo had complained that the appointment resulted from a letter he wrote a newspaper criticizing Mr. Beech's handling of labor. Postmaster-General Hamilton denied that and said he had not even known Mr. Manfredo had made on an MP's complaint.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if anything of the kind was on the world tour when the closing was announced he would have exercised his responsibility in ordering it.

Timely Message

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Pestrolman Thomas Quirk was astride his motorcycle waiting for a red light when his radio crackled.

The driver escaped but Quirk arrested a passenger for auto larceny.

Develop New Atomic Power Plant So Small It Tucks Into Handbag

WASHINGTON (AP) — An atomic device with no moving parts and small enough to be carried in a handbag may be the forerunner of the means of providing electricity to help man survive in space.

This was one result foreseen by the Atomic Energy Commission as "highly significant," announced Friday at the White House.

Col. Jack Armstrong, deputy chief of the AEC's aircraft reactor division, today predicted such batteryless power might also be used in the future to:

Mikoyan's Tour Reaches Climax At White House

If He Has Any Surprise Now Time to Spring It

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower met with Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan today for a discussion of East-West differences, including Berlin, the division of Germany and disarmament.

Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov and translator Oleg Troyanovsky accompanied Mikoyan to the White House.

Brig.-Gen. Andrew Goodpaster, White House staff secretary, was waiting outside, in sub-freezing weather, to receive Mikoyan. They shook hands and Mikoyan answered a brief query in "good morning" in English.

BRIEFED BY DULLES

Before the meeting with Mikoyan the president got a half hour briefing from State Secretary Dulles.

Dulles arrived at the White House as scores of uniformed policemen were deployed in the streets around the White House as a security precaution.

For Mikoyan the meeting was the climax of a two-week tour which has taken him around the United States making public and private speeches, selling the Soviet "peace" line and pleading for trade and better relations.

He brought new Soviet proposal from Premier Nikita Khrushchev, such as an outright disarmament conference, and held for a summit meeting of concessions on German issues, U.S. officials asserted before he came to submit it.

The president arranged for a briefing by State Secretary Dulles before the extraordinary White House meeting with Soviet No. 2 man.

Mikoyan spent most of Friday and last evening, except for a luncheon with the Senate foreign relations committee, in conference with Dulles and other state department officials.

FACE TO FACE

One of the main things Eisenhower wanted to find out from Mikoyan was whether the Soviet government is seriously interested in trying to reach agreements with the West on such major issues as the elimination of foreign troops and measures to bring the nuclear arms race under control. Officials earlier said the most that would be expected from Mikoyan's informal talks was that he would try to get behind each other's facial expressions to see what was really being thinking.'

Dulles and his aides succeeded in getting behind the 65-year - old Mikoyan's sometimes smiling, sometimes stern appearance in about five hours of meetings Friday, there was no official word of it.

But the Soviet visitor's luncheon companions in the senate had hardly broken up when many of the participants reported their impressions.

WITHDRAWAL IDEA

Democratic Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota said Mikoyan had said Russia would be willing to discuss withdrawal of its troops behind a line 500 miles east of the Elbe River in Germany if all other countries would discuss withdrawal of forces 500 miles to the west.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (Rep. Ind.) said that Mikoyan had appeared to be Khrushchev's first effort to impress upon the American people the economy of Russia and his attempt to convey the impression that Russia was not that strength if necessary."

Principal Quits After Students Charge Abuse

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP) A 66-year-old high school principal quit his job Friday, one week after 60 students staged a one-day strike demanding that he be fired for abusing them.

T. W. Becking, head of the Little Current High School and a former Presbyterian missionary in China, handed in his resignation 24 hours after he met with two education department officials and the school board of this Manitoulin Island community.

Mr. Becking refused to comment on his action.

"I have absolutely no comment to make," he said. "It was all settled that anything that would be said would be contained in the school board press release."

TAYLOR SILENT

Neither was there any comment from Education Minister Dunlop at Toronto. He said he has despatched the two officials to Little Current — L. Lakie of Toronto, assistant superintendent of secondary education, and Inspector A. McKague of Fort William.

The students stayed away from classes last Friday. They told Mr. Dunlop to "do something about Mr. Becking in a week or we'll go back on strike."

The school board statement, issued by secretary W. A. Sims, said Mr. Becking has asked the board for a contract release "as a result of the recent developments" in order to preserve his reputation in the teaching profession."

REPLY ELSEWHERE

The principal also asked for the release so "that he may apply for another position in the department added.

He also regretfully accepts his resignation.

"In the meantime, the board is making arrangements to have the position filled temporarily in order that classes may continue at the high school."

Before going to Little Current in 1957, Mr. Becking was a teacher on the staff of the R. H. King Collegiate Institute in Toronto suburb of Scarborough.

Replies to Question

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government is following closely events in the United States, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons Friday.

He was replying to Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, who asked the government if it has recognized the new regime of Fidel Castro, would send a note to the government of the United States reports" of continuing executions.

Reeve Long extended a welcome to the new member of council, Mr. Bernard O'Sullivan, and also expressed appreciation to the former Deputy Reeve Martin Doyle for service in council.

Plans were discussed of possible projects should the situation change. In the meantime Roads Superintendent Lorne Lazier has work available for the unemployed.

It is expected that $7,000 will be spent on road construction this year with $25,000 being tentatively allotted for maintenance work of roads and bridges. With the approval of the provincial department a new grader will be purchased this year.

Two of four Belleville young men charged at Cobourg following an attempted forced entry to a shoe store in that town have had charges against them dismissed.

In magistrate's court yesterday in Cobourg Rodney Sharpe, 186 St. Paul St., Belleville, and Thomas Delint, 46 Murray St., were acquitted of charges of attempted breaking and entry of the Reward Shoe Store in the Western centre.

Maurice Archer, also of Belleville, likewise charged with attempted breaking and entering, elected trial by higher court and was committed by the magistrate. Security bail of $6,000 was set.

A fourth Belleville man, Raymond Turcotte, charged with possession of burglary tools, and also on a liquor offence, had judgment reserved for one week.

Cobourg police told the court that Archer had been caught running away from the shoe store in the Cobourg shopping centre, while the other three men had been apprehended later.

Sharpe and Deline were given the benefit of the doubt by the magistrate and were acquitted

Despite Freezing Rain, Accidents Kept to Minimum

TRENTON — Accidents were few in Trenton during the freezing rain which fell Thursday night and Friday morning and turned the streets in town into a glaze of ice.

Although there came a few inches of snow yesterday and most the streets almost twice of numerous local complaints used extra precautions and keep the accident damage low.

However a few rear-end collisions did take place but as most traffic was slowed to a few miles per hour those vehicle operators who were unable to stop in time to avoid a collision with other cars did little damage.

All during last night the town graders, the loader and trucks were working to clear the downtown area of snow. Trucks were busy with sand scattered the streets for the morning traffic to get grit that gave the motorists the necessary traction to stop or start his vehicle and also helped to keep the main business district safe for the pedestrians.

Police forces have been extra busy this winter with know regard for the safety of their hand it is expected the town will bypass the money allotted for this purpose in the 1958 budget. More sand has been used already this winter than was allocated for the greatest part of 1958. The cold weather and snow storm which struck Trenton late, November has let up only a few days this month and a few days in December to make it the coldest and most persistent winter in some time for the town.

But although adults have presumably had a few complaints to make about it at times, the children are enjoying with all the delight winter activities have to offer them.

The sleet storm on Thursday night made sliding down hills quite the ideal pastime for the hill between St. Peter's School and Division Street has become a paradise for the youngsters and they slide down in anyway they please. This also goes for the slope of Mount Pleasant near the Dufferin School where children by "the hundreds" have used every piece of coasting known to them.

King and Queen of QSS 'Posture Week'

Helen Mikulicek and David Valcamp, Quinte Secondary School students, walked straight into the position of King and Queen of Posture yesterday afternoon.

This week has been "Posture Week" at QSS, sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Society under the energetic direction of Anna Calvert, president. The students were judged on posture throughout the week and any who gave a poor exhibition during school hours had their name tag and chance in the finals taken away from them. By the finals the field had been narrowed down to about 200-odd students.

A panel of judges, headed by Miss Thelma Hunter and Mr. Jack Sisson, heads of the girls' and boys' athletic departments, respectively, held the finals Friday afternoon. After considerable deliberation and the use of several extra tests the winners were selected.

Snapshots of the Red Cross at work provincially, nationally, and internationally were the theme of an interesting address given local branch members at the annual meeting held last night at St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Bridge St., by Mr. Frank Hull, of Toronto, honorary comptroller and member of the Red Cross national budget committee.

While stressing the international and national aspects of Red Cross, Mr. Hull, assistant general manager of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, outlined the provincial work of the world-wide humanitarian organization in peace-time.

Red Cross hospital visitors encouraging and assisting hospital-allied veterans in making good starts toward recovery by performing small acts of comfort; a housewife keeping an appointment with a veteran who is studying Arts and Crafts under her direction; a teacher leading a blind veteran junior Red Cross in helping less fortunate youngsters; classes in water safety given by a man who works all day; a nurse congratulating a blood donor at a Red Cross clinic while a few blocks away a transfusion saves the life of an accident victim.

"These activities and many others are the daily routine of Red Cross at work," Mr. Hull stated.

He explained that each and all linked together, "aim at community betterment, through immediate help to the individual through education that will help people to help themselves, and through promotion of citizenship that brings people of a community, the nation, and the world together in concern for one another."

In explaining the organizational set-up of the Canadian Red Cross and the operation of the local branch, Mr. Hull stated: "We are members of a great family, the Red Cross. The Red Cross touches the needs of mankind at many points, through the promotion of health, the prevention of disease, the mitigation of suffering."

PROGRAMS VARIED

The national peace time programs of the Red Cross are varied, he said. They range from pure nurseries to the national blood transfusion service.

"Red Cross continuously provides emergency relief — clothing, food, shelter — in victims in national disasters, such as Springhill . . . and in individual disasters such as an isolated farm house fire," the speaker said.

On an international scale, the Red Cross provides other services needed by the countries in which it operates. The Congo Branch of the Belgian Red Cross for example maintains leper clinics, while in Thailand the Red Cross provides anti-snake bite serum, the speaker reported.

"The list is long and the services many," Mr. Hull stated.

He emphasized, however, it is the individual branch which is the unit of the national and international chain. The Canadian Red Cross is one of some 85 national branches forming the League of Red Cross societies.

HUMANITARIAN ASSISTS

"The 'grass roots' of the Red Cross throughout the world are the volunteer workers," he said, in noting millions of people of all colors and creeds, in all strata of society, willingly give of their time, energy and means for the common cause.

He added it is "unfortunate" more people who support the work of Red Cross, the treasurer, monetary donations or contributions of time and work cannot be present when the final act of mercy is accomplished through International Red Cross.

This international humanitarian organization, which was organized 100 years ago by Swiss banker, Henri Dunant, will observe its 50th anniversary in Canada this year, the speaker noted.

Mr. Hull was introduced by Mr. Arnold Wolfenden, and thanked by Mr. G. R. Cameron.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Mr. A.S. Lewis, who then turned over the chair to the incoming president, Harold Winterbottom.

During the business portion of the meeting committee reports were given and a brief discussion was held.

A vote of thanks was tendered retiring president A.S. Lewis at the conclusion of the meeting.

During the meeting Homemaker pins were presented to two homemakers, Mrs. Margaret McCurdy, and Mrs. Pearl Drury. Mrs. Gladys Kellett, also awarded a pin for Red Cross service, was absent. The presentations were made by Mr. Frank Hull and Mr. A. S. Lewis.

233 Families Helped by Aid Of Homemakers

At the annual meeting of the local Red Cross Society held Friday night in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Mrs. Allen H. Ketcheson, chairman of the Homemaker Service, reported a total of 233 families have been helped and 1,502 children have been cared for during the past year.

The service, primarily available to families with children, is also available to the general public. The service is free where family circumstances are such that they are unable to pay.

Mrs. Ketcheson noted in future, under the new Homemakers and Nurses Services act passed last year, many older citizens may receive Homemaker service at the request and direction of a local Welfare agency.

She further noted the act, which puts government assistance to such organizations, resulted from a brief drawn up by a committee of which Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, supervisor of the Belleville Service, was a member.

Mrs. Ketcheson reported the 10 Homemakers Bay staff worked a total of 15,555 days and the supervisors put in a total of 1,817 visits during the year. Of these cases, 89 were maternity, and 78 were instances where the mother was ill. A total of 137 of the cases paid the full fee, while the remainder paid partial fee or made no payment.

Used clothing and baby clothes were distributed to 32 families, and 1,500 articles produced by a baby fou manufacturer was given to five families.

She also reported 11 Homemakers meetings were held ,nine of which were dinner meetings.

In her report Mr. Ketcheson quoted part of a letter received by Mrs. Ketcheson from Miss Robinson whom the Service assisted for two years and expressing appreciation for the assistance received.

Blood Donors Major Problem Of Red Cross

Lack of a sufficient number of blood donors to supply the branch quota is the major problem facing the local Red Cross Free Blood Donor Service.

In a report of the blood donor committee given Friday night at the annual meeting of the Belleville and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, committee chairman A. R. Cameron stated the committee has a panel of only approximately 1,000 donors.

"We should have approximately 1,500 donors on our panel to meet the quota of 1,500 bottles of blood," Mr. Cameron said.

In order to meet this deficit, Mr. Cameron stated a prospective residential, commercial and industrial campaign will be made in the next few months to enroll further donors.

Since volunteers are needed for this enrollment campaign and for the continuance of this Red Cross Service, a public meeting will be held January 28 at 8 p.m. in the YMCA auditorium. The meeting will be under the direction of the branch chairman.

In his report the committee chairman noted a total of 7,312 donors were processed at the 12 clinics conducted, the service has been in operation.

The first clinic plan B of the Belleville Red Cross Blood Donors' Service, came into operation last March 4 when the first clinic was held at Belleville General Hospital. The clinics were continued at the hospital on a weekly basis until July when a blood donor problem became so acute the local branch was forced to enlist the aid of Air Force donors at RCAF Station Trenton. Three clinics were held at the Station, one each in July, August and September.

Under this plan a total of 23 clinics, ranging in size from 50 to 60 donors, were held at BCH, excluding two emergency clinics held May 31st and June 29th for certain blood type. The hospital provided space for two beds, technical staff and storage and laboratory facilities for the clinics, while the local branch provided the donors and volunteer staff.

NO REPLACEMENT

Main advantage of the Service is that patients are not required to find replacement donors under plan B the hospital was granted a nominal service charge.

Plan A of the Red Cross Free Blood Donor Service came into operation at BGH on October 15. Under this plan the hospital requisitions its weekly supply of blood from the depot for this area and the service charge is covered by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Mrs. Ketcheson reported the Welfare and Relief Committee in co-operation with a church committee, secured housing, food for the family, and hospital care and X-rays for two children. A month later the husband secured employment and moved his family up north.

President Says Donor Service Big Achievement

The most outstanding achievement of the Belleville and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society during the past year has been inauguration of the Red Cross Blood Donor Service.

...Belleville General Hospital, members were told at the annual meeting last night by the president, A. S. Lewis.

In his annual report Mr. Lewis disclosed the cost to the local branch of instituting this service exceeded the budget by well over $1,000. This resulted to some extent in a smaller amount being remitted to the Ontario branch than in other years, he stated.

He noted the switch over from plan "B" to plan "A" on last October 15th. overstated the number of donors, but disclosed plans are underway to remedy this situation in the near future.

President Lewis further noted the local branch, faced with falling revenues from the last two financial campaigns, decided to join the newly formed Belleville United Appeal in lieu of holding a 1959 spring campaign for the city. A separate financial campaign for the district will be held as usual this coming March, he stated.

The local branch was again unable to interest Picton in holding a financial campaign, and for the first time had no assistance from Madoc or Huntington townships, Mr. Lewis stated.

He reported Marmora, formerly a member of the local branch, has now organized a branch of its own. Trenton, with some assistance from Belleville branch, is expected to re-establish its own branch this year.

In conclusion, Mr. Lewis thanked the officers and members of the executive committee, and particularly committee chairman and the treasurer, for their loyal support and assistance during his three-year term as president of the local branch.

CHILDREN'S AID HAS PROBLEM

Are today's adults scared of teen-agers? That could be one explanation for a problem facing the Hastings County Children's Aid Society — the difficulty of obtaining foster homes for older children. Babies are in great demand - - the Society has no difficulty in finding people who are eager to adopt them and assume the responsibility for their keep and upbringing during the long years stretching between them and adulthood. But nobody seems to want to assume the lesser responsibility of caring for older children.

Some may say that this is just a case of the heart ruling the head - - that every woman has a soft spot in her heart for a babe in arms and few men can say no to their wives.

There are others who will argue that it is the head which rules, that the baby can be brought up to travel the paths of righteousness but that the boy or girl who has reached the teen-age years can cast in a mold which will determine character for life.

Nobody can argue with the heart, but the head should be open to persuasion.

What is the truth about these teen-agers in the care of the Children's Aid Society. Would foster-parents find them hard to handle? The answer, we feel sure, is in the affirmative. They would prove hard to handle, as what teen-ager is not? But it is questionable whether they are any more difficult to guide than the average teen-ager. They are not in the care of the Children's Aid Society because of any bad behavior of their own, but because of the bad behavior of their parents, because their homes have not provided them with the care and supervision necessary for their upbringing. It is inevitable that this neglect should have an effect on their manners, their habits and their characters. But effects of the same causes vary. Weaknesses in the character of parents sometimes result in weaknesses in the character of the child - - but there are also cases where adversity breeds strength, where children grow wiser and kind because of their response to the burden of responsibilities which in normal homes would rest on older shoulders.

Providing a home for many of these children would prove an experience at least as rewarding as adopting a babe in arms. For older couples here is an opportunity to acquire ready-made a child whose development is already established in advancing years and in whose future progress they may well be able to take justifiable pride within a few short years.

CHINA PRODUCES FIRST AUTO

The other day we read in an automotive journal that China (Red, that is) had produced her first automobile, a large luxurious four-door conveyance. This strikes us as being a milestone which the western world might well mark. For centuries China was only to be considered as an agricultural nation, and a relatively poor one over the past couple of hundred years. There has always been one thing, however, in which China has not been poor - - manpower. If properly utilized, can do many things which modern machines cannot. We recall the appraisal which American engineers gave to the project of building the Burma Road back in 1940 or thereabouts. Two and one-half to three years, utilizing all the latest road-building equipment, was their estimate for the completion of such an effort. The Chinese could not wait that long, but needed the supplies right away. The road was completed in just months by hand labor. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese literally dug the road out of the mountains with their bare hands and the most primitive of tools.

Consider this historical fact with the contemporary piece of information that progress has been made, under the Communist regime, up to the point where an automobile, which, in China, is definitely a luxury item, has been produced. Coupling these two facts together we predict that China will be one of the major manufacturing and industrial nations in the second half of the twentieth century. The methods being employed by Red China's leaders are those which built the U.S.S.R. from a nation of serfs and farmers to one of the foremost scientific and industrial nations today in just a few decades. We feel the pupil will surpass the professor in this instance.

In view of the obvious facts it would seem most realistic and urgent that some of the leaders of the western democracies revise their current thoughts on how to handle those who are not of our ilk. It is most dangerous indeed to adopt the attitude that if the west ignores a nation it can amount to naught.

THE BEST

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I do not wish to do my best;
I do not wish to see the time
When I've no goal to seek with zest.

No higher steps for me to climb.

I do not wish to wake by day
And view the splendor of the sun

And think that I must go my way
Knowing that my best work is done..

But with some distant goal to gain.
Some high ideal worth striving for,
Still something noble to attain,
I may do better than before.

Teach School On Roof-Tops

Chilean News

Canada is not the only country where school accommodation is in short supply.

The Hong Kong area is even more acute in Hong Kong.

Due to the tremendous influx of refugees from the China mainland, and also due to the fact that there is a high birth rate, children and have many of them, the need is public of proper housing and school buildings is very acute.

Wherever one goes, construction work is in progress. Old schools, are adding new wings to them, new schools are being erected, and every Hong Kong University has new and modern structures added to its campus.

There is a real thirst for learning among the young people and the Chinese who have made a deal in Hong Kong are realizing out for the better things in life, education foremost. Many schools are holding two or three sessions a day to meet the most urgent need for schooling, and the Chinese teachers have little time for leisure.

The most astonishing developments are the roof - top schools. Where there is no room for "school" as we understand it cannot be properly applied. In order to meet the problem of hundreds, maybe thousands, of children, there some odd location — and also in an endeavor to keep them off the streets and out of mischief, numerous open-air classes have been organized on the roof-tops of some of the large settlement buildings.

No real school desks here or anything like them. Most often, many of the children either squat on the floor or use crude benches. But with infinite patience and devotion the teachers, mostly young women, are able to help out, tackle the task of imparting simple fundamentals to the children of a given city block.

Every effort is made to provide for these children who would not have an opportunity otherwise to learn anything.

Unemployed Seen as Asset

Hamilton Spectator

The economist of London which usually succeeds in efforts to be thought-provoking has come about a somewhat novel argument to support higher unemployment in the United Kingdom. The unemployed are a section of the labor force, it says, is a highly flexible part of the economy and should be properly recognized. It is a reserve of man-power, and the fact that is kept in idleness and not unnecessarily employed in payrolls helps to curb production costs and therefore prices. It aggregate incidentally this where employers lay off workers, they usually find it hard to pick the younger men who have long themselves in a position to give one month of high unemployment a year.

There is no real parallel between the unemployment that the Economist is discussing and that in Canada. Current figures in the United Kingdom are scarcely higher than the Canadian total and less than we can expect before the end of the winter. They constitute about 2½ per cent of the labor force and a large proportion have relative ease to new jobs. One could pick quite a few holes in the argument. But the idea of looking at it from some practical application here.

Unemployment is a symptom, not the disease. It is not a cure or palliative of government pump priming. Nor is it necessary for recent months when it gets out of hand. But the only cure lies in translating idle labor into production of commodities that are needed at prices which the world outside is ready to pay. To the extent that public spending has gone in this direction instead of to create jobs it can serve to retard rather than hasten recovery And with 1959 promising an increased demand for goods, production there is no time to lose.

Owners Grow Like Dogs

Montreal Star

By and large a doctor's judgment ought not to be questioned — certainly not by mere laymen. But, by the same token: That's perhaps another question.

A British medical mind has gone out on a limb — a limb in which he is professionally interested — in stating that a dog-owner needs to become like his dog — not the other way round.

There isn't sufficient information on hand to check this medical physician is, in addition to his healing qualities, a canine specialist or just a human watchdog. But let him speak for himself:

"The character of dogs, unlike humans, changes little as they grow older. Their basic nature is true to breed, and it is most interesting to watch a dog-owner or nature bring out characteristics to that of a dog because the dog's character cannot be influenced to any extent by the owner. Thus owners tend to grow like their dogs rather than the other way round."

This puts a different face on dog-lovers in our place, and there's therefore not much point in whining about it. So we do note as the British doctor contends, silent confidence and trust in him we do, deep down, we can learn from a terrier to fox-terrify, too often regarded today as an old-fashioned idea.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR BELIEVE INS

The salt of this earth is made up from those who believe in — you. Your life is extraordinarily important, you are a figure worth considering, you are a grand and magnificent being. Believe it here and there are those who see your possibilities and who will find you though the shadow of failure shut you totally away from your fellows. They will look for it's You Believe Ins that are responsible for all the successes.

So long as there are Your Believe Ins in life, your immortal success is safe.

Cleanliness is greater than genius. The most stupendous failure is nothing beside a pall Believe In. No matter where you go nor what you do, if your words deserve it, Your Believe Ins are sure to follow and cast a spell of magic power about you, like unto "troops of beautiful fairies, angels that minister grace to defend us from slumber" as Shakespeare has it.

Your Believe Ins are the inspirers of this unpretending little Talk.

No Easy Road To Spelling

Ottawa Citizen

There died in England recently Dr. Mont Follick, a prominent Labor member of parliament, a brilliant linguist and founder of a theosophical cheap of language schools. He was also an energetic campaigner for phonetic spelling — and it is in this capacity that he came most to public notice. For he couldn't interest his fellow parliamentarians in the reform — if indeed reform it is.

For phonetic spelling is not the only proposition offered by language doctors. Some would go much farther and introduce an entirely new alphabet. The most illustrious of this school was Bernard Shaw. Others would concentrate on the most notorious specimens, like "through" and "rough," or leave the rest of the language to the process of evolution. But all others prefer changes in pronunciation to those of spelling.

Philologists constantly warn against spelling as it is. For example, if all words with a double "o" sound are to be spelled the same as "good" or "stood" or "wood" or "brood" or "hood" or "rood" or "soot" or "foot" or "boot" or "loot" or "root" or "toot" or "hoot" or "coot" or "moot" or "snood" or "tood" or "wood" or "zoot" or "food" or "mood" or "r

By HORACE B. POWELL

A new England hymnist, Mrs. Mary A. Kidder, wrote the verses of this favorite devotional hymn nearly three-quarters of a century ago. It is still holding its place in many current gospel song collections along with two of her other songs, "We Shall Sleep, But Not Forever" and "How My Name Written There?"

Hymn books published at the turn of the century carried many of her religious songs. Ira D. Sankey, the evangelist—composer who supplied musical settings for some of these, estimated that she had written more than 1,000 pieces.

The College of Agriculture extension service of a leading southwestern United States university is using Mrs. Kidder's hymn, "Did You Think To Pray," as one of its club songs and reports an enthusiastic interest in it.

Mrs. Kidder was 86 when she was called home, one day in 1905, while living at Chelsea, Massachusetts. Her hymn of faith in immortality opens with this confident stanza:

"We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn!
From the deepest caves of ocean,
From the desert and the plain,
From the valley and the mountain,
Countless throngs shall rise again."

"DID YOU THINK TO PRAY?"

Ere you left your room this morning
Did you think to pray?
In the Name of Christ, our Savior,
Did you sue for loving favor
As a shield today?

When you met with great temptation
Did you think to pray?
By His dying love and merit
Did you claim the Holy Spirit
As your guide and stay?

When your heart was filled with anger
Did you think to pray?
Did you plead for grace, my brother,
That you might forgive another
Who had crossed your way?

When sore trials came upon you
Did you think to pray?
When your soul was bowed in sorrow
Balm of Gilead did you borrow
At the gates today?

Chorus:
O how praying rests the weary!
Prayer will change the night to day;
So, when life seems dark and dreary,
Don't forget to pray.

4. Unions and managements are both under investigation for corruption and unethical practices. What is the way Christian managers and union-leaders should go? Not what's right, but what's right?

These, says the Department, are only some of the problems Christians have to wrestle with every day as they try to be Christians in our undedicated economy.

To help local congregations to be aware of their responsibility in relating their faith to their daily work, the Department provides materials for sermons, study, and group discussions — all centred around the question of what the layman, not the clergyman, can do to make himself more effective as a Christian in his daily work environment.

ARBOR DAY IN ISRAEL

Saturday, Jan. 24 (— Today, known as Jewish Arbor Day, is a minor festival in the Jewish calendar. It is not much observed in these days anywhere except in Israel, although it goes back to the most primitive times. Originally it was no more than a nature festival, celebrating the beginnings of the new spring season, and the rabbis have been content to leave it that way without attempting to put either a historical or a religious interpretation upon it.

In English the day is called "New Year of the Trees." This is the time in Palestine when the rainy season ends and new buds appear. It was always a time of rejoicing.

In Israel today will be the day when in the new settlements children will plant young trees to help in the redevelopment of the land that has for 19 centuries been allowed to go to waste.

Outside Israel, Jews in all parts of the world will buy Jewish National Fund "tree certificates" to provide trees for the Israel children to plant.

Christian employers, landlords and friends affect low-income families and their returns for their daily work?

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Where Church Meets World

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Jan. 18 — "Let's face it. We are Christians, persons whom God has called through Jesus Christ to be His people at work in the world — Most of us have a job. In our work, whatever it is, the church meets the world through us." In other words, every Christian is a missionary to his office, store, or shop. This is a quotation from the literature for Church and Economic Life Week, prepared by the Department of Church and Economic Life of the U. S. National Council of Churches.

Each year during the week that begins on the third Sunday in January this Department steps to the forefront of Protestant life in America to point out to the individual Christian his daily ministry to the people among whom he earns his living. The Department's purpose, stated in so many words, is "to develop active and informed concern among church people for the application of Christian principles in economic life."

What this means — and there is no getting away from it — is that the Christian layman, much more than the clergyman, is the minister who relates the Gospel to daily life. He, not his clergyman, is the one who does or does not put Christian values into the big economic problems our culture has to deal with at this point in American history. The main problems, stated by the department, are:

1. Five million persons are at present unemployed in the United States. How can Christian decisions increase work opportunities for all workers?
2. Consumers are urged, by advertising to go into debt for goods they do not need — or, perhaps, even want. What is the responsibility of a Christian advertiser, as related to his stated belief in the importance and dignity of the person who is a customer?
3. In the midst of our national abundance, thousands of families are in critical poverty. How do the daily difficulties of

STORIES OF FAMOUS HYMNS

By HORACE B. POWELL

"DID YOU THINK TO PRAY?"

Ere you left your room this morning
Did you think to pray?
In the Name of Christ, our Savior,
Did you sue for loving favor
As a child today?

When you met with great temptation
Did you think to pray?
By His dying love and merit
Did you claim the Holy Spirit
As your guide and stay?

When your heart was filled with anger
Did you think to pray?
Did you plead for grace, my brother,
That you might forgive another
Who had striven your way?

When sore trials came upon you
Did you think to pray?
When your soul was bowed in sorrow
Balm of Gilead did you borrow
At the gates today?

Chorus:
O how praying rests the weary!
Prayer will change the night to day;
So, when life seems dark and dreary,
Don't forget to pray.

A new England hymnist, Mrs. Mary A. Kidder, wrote the verses of this favorite devotional hymn nearly three-quarters of a century ago. It is still holding its place in many current gospel song collections along with two of her other songs, "We Shall Sleep, But Not Forever" and "Is My Name Written There?"

Hymn books published at the turn of the century carried many of her religious songs. In D. Sankey, the evangelist-composer who supplied musical settings for some of these, estimated that she had written more than 1,000 pieces.

The College of Agriculture extension service, of a leading southwestern United States university is using Mrs. Kidder's hymn, "Did You Think To Pray," as one of its club songs and reports an enthusiastic interest in it.

Mrs. Kidder was 86 when she was called home, one day in 1905, while living at Chelsea, Massachusetts. Her hymn of faith in immortality opens with this confident stanza:

"We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn!
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn!
From the deepest caves of ocean,
From the desert and the plain,
From the valley and the mountain,
Countless throngs shall rise again."

Where Church Meets World

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, Jan. 18 — "Let's face it. We are Christians, persons whom God has called through Jesus Christ to be His people at work in the world — Most of us have a job. In our work, whatever it is, the church meets the world through us." In other words, every Christian is a missionary to his office, store, or shop. This is a quotation from the literature for Church and Economic Life Week, prepared by the Department of Church and Economic Life of the U. S. National Council of Churches.

Each year during the week that begins on the third Sunday in January this Department steps to the forefront of Protestant life in America to point out to the individual Christian his daily ministry to the people among whom he earns his living. The Department's purpose, stated in so many words, is "to develop active and informed concern among church people for the application of Christian principles in economic life."

What this means — and there is no getting away from it — is that the Christian layman, much more than the clergyman, is the minister who relates the Gospel to daily life. He, not his clergyman, is the one who does or does not put Christian values into the big economic problems our culture has to deal with at this point in American history. The main problems, stated by the department, are:

1. Five million persons are at present unemployed in the United States. How can Christian decisions increase work opportunities for all workers?
2. Consumers are urged, by advertising, to go into debt for goods they do not need — or, perhaps, even want. What is the responsibility of a Christian advertiser, as related to his stated belief in the importance and dignity of the person who is a customer?
3. In the midst of our national abundance, thousands of families are in critical poverty. How do the daily attitudes of Christian employers, landlords, and friends affect low-income families and their returns for their daily work?
4. Unions and management are both under investigation for corruption and unethical practices. What is the way Christian managers and union-leaders should go? Not who's right, but what's right?

These, says the Department, are only some of the problems Christians have to wrestle with every day as they try to be Christians in an undedicated economy.

To help local congregations to be aware of their responsibility in relating their faith to their daily work, the Department provides materials for sermons, study, and group discussions — all centred around the question of what the layman, not the clergyman, can do to make himself more effective as a Christian in his daily work environment.

ARBOR DAY IN ISRAEL

Saturday, Jan. 24 — Today, known as Jewish Arbor Day, is a minor festival in the Jewish calendar. It is not much observed in these days anywhere except in Israel, although it goes back to the most primitive times. Originally it was no more than a nature festival, celebrating the beginnings of the new spring season, and the rabbis have been content to leave it that way without attempting to put either a historical or a religious interpretation upon it.

In English the day is called "New Year of the Trees." This is the time in Palestine when the rainy season ends and new buds appear. It was always a time of rejoicing.

In Israel today will be the day when in the new settlements children will plant young trees to help in the redevelopment of the land that for 19 centuries been allowed to go to waste.

Outside Israel, Jews in all parts of the world will buy Jewish National Fund "tree certificates" to provide trees for the Israel children to plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Francis Clements are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in the Church of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Carrol Joan Poste, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Poste, of Stirling. Her bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clements, of Harold, Ontario.

CLEMENTS — POSTE

A lovely red and white double-ring wedding was solemnized recently at the Church of St. Margaret's - on - the - Hill, Belleville, when Carrol Joan Poste, of Stirling, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Poste became the bride of Ralph Francis Clements of Harold R.R. 1, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clements. The Reverend L. Arthur Page, rector of the church, officiated before a beautiful red and white background of carnations and chrysanthemums. White satin bows designated the guest pews and white candles adorned the altar.

Mrs. Grace Calvert, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the choir of nine boys, under the direction of Alf Evans, as they sang the 23rd Psalm during the processional to the altar for communion, and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Ray Poste, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of antique ivory brocade, fashioned with tightly fitted bodice with wide portrait neckline, and molded lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt was accented by a front panel falling from the bodice front bow, and at the back by a bustle effect. She wore a coronet of braided pearls and sequins, finger-tip veil of white illusion, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white hyacinths centred by a tiny, pink rose and lilly-of-the-valley sprays. The base was misted by white tulle and sprays of holly. Pale green candles in silver holders completed the nuptial appointment.

The bride's mother, wearing a rosewood-colored lace sheath, with lace overskirt and satin trim, long matching gloves, tiny hat with feathered trim, and a corsage of white feathered carnations, received the guests. Mrs. Poste was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, dressed in pale blue in sheath style, with satin fishtail back, matching picture hat, and glove and corsage of pink feathered carnations.

Miss Ernest Lucy, of Deseronto, uncle and godfather of the bride, was toastmaster. The toast to the bride was proposed by the pastor, the Reverend L. Arthur Page, and the bride's health was proposed by the groom, the Reverend L. Arthur Page, and the bride's response.

Those who served were former schoolmates of the bride, the Misses Betty Fisher, Belleville, Barbara McElraith, Carol Pringle, Lake Ontario, and Pauline Lally, of Belleville, and Beverley Wallace, of Stirling.

For the wedding trip to Watertown, Tupper Lake, Saranac Lake and Montreal, Miss Face Mountain and Montreal, the bride travelled in a white wool dress with fur trim, dress with mink collar, dark grey Persian lamb jacket, accessories, and corsage of red Sweetheart roses and white, feathered carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Clements will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Harold, Ontario.

Guests attended from Clintonville; Toronto; Deseronto; Dicaronto; Harold; Trenton and Belleville.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaids, crystal; to the junior bridesmaid and flower girl, pearl jewellery. The bridegroom's gift to his bride, hurricane lamps; to the groomsman, and ushers, tie bars and matching cuff links.

The bride was entertained previous to her marriage, by a crystal tea at the home of Mrs (Charles Fenton, of Belleville, by the staff of the Prince of Wales armoury, Stirling, by a community shower and presentation of cocktail shaker and lamp table at Scilem Hall; at a trousseau tea given by the bride's mother, Mrs. Ray Poste, Stirling, at a rehearsal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Gerrish, Belleville, with Mrs. Tom Clements as co-hostess, at a home-coming reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Harold, and at a charivari by the neighbors of the bride and bridegroom.

Marysville Couple Mark 50th Wedding Anniv.

Congratulatory messages from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, and from Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, as well as numerous greetings from a wide circle of friends, were received by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Whiteman of Marysville on their golden wedding anniversary being celebrated yesterday.

The couple were guests of honour at a turkey dinner staged by members of their immediate family at Ebenezer United Church where they have been members for 50 years.

The couple was married in the United Church parsonage at Robbin half a century ago by Rev. George McConnell. Mrs. Whiteman was the former Miss Margaret Henderson. Both were born in Tyendinaga township, where they still live.

They are now retired on the farm which they have operated since their marriage. A son James now operates the farm.

Over 100 friends called to offer congratulations during the "at home" held on the afternoon and evening of the anniversary.

The couple have four children: Miss Jessie Whiteman of Toronto, Mrs. Thomas Kimmitt (Ella) of Marlbank, Mrs. Lee English Organ of Waterdown, Ont., and their son James, on the family homestead. There are ten grandchildren.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Often you hear, "Oh, my train of thought has been broken." What is a train of thought? T and T is wondering if the falling snow outside has started a train of thought. Maybe it goes like this.

Outside the beautiful snow is coming down from the regions of outer space, or at least a long way up. Snow, beautiful snow. It can mean so many things to so many people and things. The land of snow, we are informed, is a reason, probably one of the main reasons, that the water level in Bon Echo, Quinte, in the Trent and Moira watersheds, in the wide vast St. Lawrence system and the Great Lakes is so low. Snow, lots of it, may raise the water level in the great new lake at Morrisburg to its proper depth. Snow may cause those some spectacular. Snow is a joy to the eye of the artist and photographer did. Difficult the feeding of wildlife. Snow is lovely to look at, but it can, when it comes as the grains of sands, ground airplanes, halt traffic and stop industries cold. Snow, the form fitting jacket of winter's wardrobe, is pure white and its black sides, yet possibly just two sides of the same coin.

Snow — where were we when we climbed aboard our train of thought? Oh yes, we are watching the snow fall and thinking how beautiful it is. Perhaps we have noticed in Belleville during the last few days, that double duty has also observed what we wish to draw to the attention of mothers, especially. You have no doubt noticed how the snowplow unavoidably leaves a ridge of snow at the edge of the street and along the curb.

Eventually the snow will be removed, but in the interim, this is a temptation to children. Dozens of them love to try to run along the edge of this snow ridge, balancing themselves and having glorious fun. Sometimes they slip and they are always fall in towards the sidewalk, but often out towards the roadway. One child running at a speed clip, slipped in front of the car a couple of days ago and we could so easily have run over a leg or, more seriously, the body. Thank goodness we were driving slowly. Fear of such trifles is not for children, we realize, but sometimes being forewarned helps. It is so much fun and it seems such a harmless thing that we are in danger of being called only fogies, but a child might be hurt because a driver simply couldn't stop in time. Probably only an old fogy would have to take such a long train ride of thoughts to get down to its simple conclusion. Please drive in a whistle-stop, we leave the thought while the snow continues to fall, meaning so many things to so many different people and things.

We hear a great deal about the training awards to Asian boys and girls through the Colombo Plan. It is rather interesting to learn that as of the middle of 1958 Australia led with 2,286 awards. Australia was followed by the United Kingdom with 2,015, Canada 940, India 218 and New Zealand 552. Australia's contribution impressed Prime Minister Diefenbaker on the recent tour so much that he was prompted to remark at Canberra: "One of the most striking impressions I gained in Asia was the way Australia's aid programme is gaining approval there. Much of this has come through Asian students visiting Australia for technological and technical training under the Colombo Plan. When I return to Canada I want to refer to the way that will Australia has built up in this way."

Prime Mr. Diefenbaker observed seemed to be a realistic appraisal of the value of Australia's outstanding support in the training scheme under the Colombo Plan.

Winter is the theme of our weekend thought as we turn to Whittier for appropriate words. Is one poem he has remarked us that it is because we have heaped high the farmers' variety heard of golden corn that autumn pours out her meat laden gifts".

And in another poem he writes: "The Night is mother of the Day, The Winter of the Spring, And even upon old Decay The gayest messes cling."

And so with the falling snow we close today's column looking out towards the green moss.

Here Are Tips to Help Hubby Dress as Fashionably as Wife

By Shirley and Bob Sloane

It is probably safe to assume that the only women who do not have a good idea of what clothes to take on a trip are those who never travel before they learned to read.

No segment of the reading public is so thoroughly bombarded with advice as women are by the fashion industry. Thick monthly magazines, yards of newspaper columns and alternate sponsors of the first portion of our program all serve to equip the average lady with the knowledge, if not the wherewithal, to dress right from Palm Springs to the Palisades.

Not so with men, and it shows. You can usually spot a woman tourist — by the way her husband dresses. From headache band-to pointed toe shoes, though she may be a farm wife, she often can't be told from a New York model. He, on the other hand, will usually appear to be returning from either a journey or from the golf course.

It's something of an American tradition that men don't care much what they wear. But when a man comes home from a journey, their wives are blaming in.

Boys, it's not as hard as you think. Here are a few simple tips that will move you towards your wife's class practically overnight.

You can forget about strictly formal clothes, even if the spouse chooses a floor length gown, which few women do except for slatternly invitations, and you wouldn't be there anyway. White tie and tails today generally are reserved for weddings and high society balls.

DRESS UP A BIT

Tuxedos — or, in warm climates, white or pastel dinner jackets regularly worn by men are worn on cruises some evenings at the better New York restaurants and night clubs.

The biggest mistake men make in the tropics after 6 p.m. It is the wearing of brown, which makes you doesn't look right in the dark. A blue or gray suit, black shoes, and a white shirt are correct dress for the evening — will gain you appropriately in any surroundings or company.

Sport jackets are for sporting occasions only — golf, tennis, a game, or most anything you do during the day, with the possible exception, if you want to be a stickler, of scooting around Miami Beach in one. Which, however, better wear a solid color shirt with a sport coat.

Sport clothes come in such a vast hair-letting-down variety that it's hard to say what suggest any rules here except, perhaps, to wear a solid shirt with a patterned coat and either a patterned or solid shirt with a patterned jacket. A solid sport jacket should never both be patterned and or striped.

Striped or plaid-checked sport shirts are right only with solid color ties (knits are often more elaborate shirts and all pull-over type shirts should be worn without ties. As it is not called for if no jacket is worn, or if the jacket is of a more elaborate styling, such as Florida's popular cabanera fashion.

CORRECT ACCESSORIES

Shoes should be as casual as the clothes: sandals, loafers and the like are appropriate with resort wear. Laced shoes rarely look right with an outfit that doesn't call for a tie, and the more dressy styles, such as moccasins, are usually best avoided with sports clothes.

Bermuda shorts are a matter on which each man must search his soul. But if you find it in you, never wear them with anklet socks. A glance in a full length mirror will tell you why better than a thousand words. Either wear knee-length hose or one of the slip-on type shoes, mostly seen in fabrics, that are considered to be worn without socks. Don't blanch; the gals do it, don't they? Well, maybe their legs do look better.

Beach wear, ski wear, and resort hats of all kinds offer an ideal outlet for the most inhibited dresser, coming in outlandish styles as they do but being worn under circumstances in which nobody gives a hang.

Avondale H-S Assoc. Discusses Annexation

A large group of parents and interested citizens attended the January meeting of the Avondale Home and School Association to participate in discussion of the problems of annexation as they affect the Avondale area.

Mrs. Spence Wonnacott, the president presided at the meeting.

The first speaker, Alderman Jack Ellis, was introduced by Mr. Byron Harder. Mr. Ellis outlined the problems of the Belleville city council which have resulted from annexation, and suggested the probable solution of these problems.

Mr. L. K. Wills, the superintendent of public schools for Belleville, was introduced by Mr. K. M. Bird. Mr. Wills dealt with the new problems of the Public School Board and spoke of the inevitable changes and adjustments in the school program which will be necessitated by the rapid growth of the city.

The number of questions directed toward the two speakers during the discussion period indicated the keen interest of the association in the affairs of the community.

The appreciation of the Association was expressed to the speakers by Mrs. E. A. Ineson.

Mrs. Kenneth Bird presided at the piano for the opening and closing ceremonies.

Going Not Matter of Money

By Alma Mason

Today I heard a man say, "I wish I could do the kind things John does for folk. He is always digging deeply in his pocket to help those less fortunate than he.

How commendable, John. Your generosity should be praised, but let us take a look at the man so full of approbation for his lives.

I thought of Emerson's phrase, "He lives from a great depth of being." Persons suffering from the effects of twisted judgment and misdirected living have learned to lean trustingly on the quiet strength of this man.

Folks whose days are a maze of perplexities and who are propelled through the weeks and months like whirling dervishes draw from his cool, deep well of moral fibre. Lacking the support of inner steadiness and contentment, they find in him a solid prop in times of confusion and grief.

Often, his wise counsel has been the oil on the waters of a dangerous family controversy.

How wonderful to possess traits of character such as his. He trusts all human beings to the utmost. He believes the highest and best of all with whom he daily comes in contacts. He draws on his unending resources of understanding sympathy whenever needed.

He walks the earth lowly and patient. I have heard this man say many times, "I have no special talent. I must have been forgotten when such gifts were passed out."

How very wrong he is. He has the divine talent of forgiveness. He has the ability to forget and chain into subjection grudges, petty jealousy, bogus ambitions.

He has been endowed with humble, contrite heart, a generous wealth of courtesy, a magnetism of soul which reaches out and encompasses and draws to him all types of people.

He has the "peace of God which passes all understanding."

This man does not bestow gifts of money on his friends as John is able to do. Christ did not do that for another, but He said, "My peace I leave with you."

He gave us His life and His sacrificed death. A poor carpenter, he labored among the common folk, bringing into their hearts and clarity the lives of the lonely, the misunderstood, the scorned and the downcast.

This man does not think he has earned the title of "Christian." He does not think his life work important. We who know and love him are convinced he walks humbly with his hand in the hand of God; quietly distributing his particular priceless gifts:—serenity in confusion, love and faith and cheer when the storms of life gather and break on the lonely and forlorn and the helpless. Music to stir the multitude?

Universal power of pen?

These were bade from your open hands!

What gracious gifts were given then?

No special gifts, you say, are yours;
No brilliant life of beauty;
You merely trudge the common path;
You patiently walk with duty.

But what about your grateful heart?
The generous love you scattered?
How can you think these gifts are small,
Sordid or selfish or tattered?

You were endowed with faith in men,
With love to spread near and far;
You cannot see your precious gifts,
For you stand so close to God's star.

Larry J. — I've made a terrible mess, and I'm trying to straighten out. I only need the help of the girl I love — she doesn't want to give it to me.

Betty and I were engaged to be married, but I got into trouble with another girl. I had to break the engagement and marry Lee. Now after a year of married life, Lee tells me that she's pretty sure the baby isn't even mine. We fight all the time and we actually hate each other.

I never can stop loving Betty and I told her so at the time I broke the engagement. I can't stand the life I'm living and I can't believe that at the age of 23 I have to just go ahead and take my punishment. Life should be so beautiful. Betty would be just say yes.

Betty S. — I really don't know what to do. I feel like making Larry suffer the way he has made me suffer, but I may use cutting off my nose to spite my face. I certainly was in love with him once and I'm not sure I'm cured.

Larry has pointed out one thing I've always felt guilty about. We used to do some heavy petting when we were going together, but I refused to go all the way. It may have been my fault that he was driven to this other girl.

I was his sot hard by what Larry did that for many months

Second Glance

"The ability called art embraces all making and the ability and ecstasy called love takes things is common to men."—Eric Gill in "The Cassell Miscellany."

* * *

Have you a hobby? Yes? How did you come by it?

By design or by chance such as Eva Chafe came by flag painting; a field of art so painstaking that in all Canada, Mrs. Walter Chafe, of Carrying Place, is the only specialist in the method used by her, that we've been able to discover. Not only is it quite a record, but a distinction in itself. How did this come about?

Way very first job was a sort of Girl Friday desk clerk in a Montreal Commercial Art Studio," relates Mrs. Chafe, an attractive, young, dark-haired woman in reply to our inquiry, "and though I had little formal training in art, the work in the studio developed me to such an extent, I was allowed to work on designs for textiles.

"At that time, during World War II, as a tribute to all the various regiments of Canada that passed through the city via Windsor Station, there was a demand for just one flag of each regiment and I was displayed in a facade of regimental flags.

"Since it would cost a fortune to have flags of each printed in quantity, it was suggested that one of each regiment be handpainted. Along with several others, I was assigned this work. It proved to be interesting and exacting work and something to be seen in its entirety while being created.

WHICH PLANNING

"I did only a few, however, for I am married and my husband was in the service. Although it was decided, since I had plenty of time here, that this enjoyable work might be continued as a small order enterprise in a room or two of our home. To do so took nearly a year and a half of planning and experimenting before we obtained the special silk required, the right dyes and the special Russian sable brushes. I needed the special table stretcher, not to mention the dryer which had to be especially built. Finally all was in readiness to proceed. We sent out information that we would paint any flag, be it national, religious or military—and I was really busy for a while with orders.

"To give an idea of the concentrated work and skill involved, here is the manner used by Mrs. Chafe: Since a flag is always twice the length of any given width, the silk white line strike on the frame until it is tight as a drum. Then trace the design of the flag on the silk with a T-square and a kingsize lead pencil filled with rubberized cement liquid which will protect the colors from running. Lines take as much time to do than stars or intricate crests. Applying the dyes with a special Russian sable brush quickly so as not to cause streaks. With luck this takes an hour. However, if flying drops occur due to a flicking from a slight draft, it takes from a quarter to half an hour to eradicate the spot made. This needs great care, otherwise the work may be ruined. To set the paint, it must be rolled in white unprinted newspaper and put in the oven for an hour at a heat which must be thoroughly and well mixed to obtain the natural warmth of air. All of which takes several hours or so.

Mrs. Chafe's flags have unrivalled over the length and breadth of Canada, be it the United Nations, Greek, St. Andrew's, St. George, Quebec, Nova Scotia (the only province which a flag) Papal State, Canada, Jack. A Christian flag ultimately reached White Cove, Newfoundland, after long team. So successful did her hobby become, she was obliged to set it aside because of its toll of nerve strain and time, and pick up other interests in painting, oil-on-canvas painting and boating for the time being.

REWARDING HOBBY

But it has proven itself a most rewarding hobby, embracing a wide scope of knowledge and skill and something more. For example, the two R.C.A.F. flags used for the dipping of the colors performed at the impressive ceremony at the Trenton Air Base during the Royal Visit of 1954, were exquisite, but what's quite a thrill," Mrs. Chafe admits, "is to see one of my flags on the reflection, one is enriched thereby. Quite a rewarding hobby for a hobby, Brave Eva Chafe.

Before departing, she little grandson is going to be ringbearer at the wedding," a friend was being told, "and he says to me: 'I'll give the ring to Big Eve, when I pass by you down the aisle, Auntie.'" Can you imagine? The value of him — only five years old."

were served an da social time enjoyed.

Don Ford thanked the members of the executive for a fine evening.

Any married couples wishing to join the club would be most welcome. Meetings are held the second and fourth Wednesday of the month.

THANK-YOU NOTES WRITTEN ON INFORMALS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received a wonderful supply of informals for Christmas with my name and address engraved on them. I'm thrilled to have so many uses for them, but I'm wondering if it is correct to use them for other than a social occasion or not? — Lorna.

Yes, unless what you are thanking for naturally demands a letter of some length.

ENGRAVING ON THE INSIDE OF GROOM'S WEDDING RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct form for the engraving inside my groom's wedding ring? — M.S.

Your groom's wedding ring is a present from you, and the engraving should be simple and chaste. For example, "R.S. to A.L. June 6, 1959." Dates are often written: 6-4-59.) Sometimes too, when there is room, a phrase or quotation that has a special significance to the couple is added before the initials and wedding date.

DON'T TAKE GIFTS TO HOTEL FOR DISPLAY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter-in-law is to take place in a large private suite of a hotel here. Should the wedding gifts be taken to the hotel suite to be displayed? — M.L.

No.

The Bible Today

Not much more than 150 years ago Bibles were rare and costly as to be quite beyond the reach of the poor, and even the general public. Religion had not quite awakened to a sense of the responsibility of giving the word of life to nations beyond the pale of Christendom. Out of this spiritual quickening which gave birth to the great missionary movements of the early 19th century came the British and Foreign Bible Society. It was a time when men's hearts failed them for fear, when trade very poor, the country on the brink of ruin, in fact the most inauspicious of all times to begin a new movement. How significant that the movement should turn out to be the century of unparalleled progress.

Since its founding the Bible Society has maintained its objective of "A Bible for every man, in his own tongue, at a price he can afford to pay," and to-day, at times to begin a new movement, it has followed physical, moral and spiritual sunlight among the nations.

A Lift for Living

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Godliness to Improve Goodness

All around us are decent, high-minded, honorable persons who seem to be living without the support of religion. They do not accept or make any conscious account of God. They never go to church except perhaps to the wedding or funeral of a friend, and then it is a social amenity rather than a religious ceremony. Yet they are kindly, generous and helpful and robust thing of life.

In some ways such persons seem more admirable than the average churchman because they make no pretense of piety. They profess no religious affiliation; and virtues which peep out from under the cover of unpretending persons have an added charm. Their goodness disclaims itself and thus gains double effectiveness. They show a charitable tolerance toward the moral shortcomings of others. They stand up for the underdogs in a pinch. In short, they show good sportsmanship in the face of loftiness and are the hallmarks of gentlemen.

What more could be avowed and active relationship with God add to the inner quality of their living and to their outward usefulness? You may recognize the famous text quoted by the Second Epistle of Peter: "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness."

DIVINE HELP

But why this list? Why do we need to bring God into the business of creative living? Can we not be good without religion? Can we not be righteous without calling in divine help? Can we not be good without calling on godliness? Perhaps you say that these persons who make no show of religion are quite as godly as the churchgoers, for godliness means the possession of godlike qualities. But the word used in Peter's epistle means "god-likeness" rather than "god-likeness." This early Christian leader is bidding his readers turn their faces godward and cultivate a personal relationship.

Because godliness begins in turning our faces godward in quality. We do not have to be as part of our animal nature. It is one of the essential distinctions

St. Michael's CWL Sponsors Dessert Meet

A large crowd gathered for the dessert meeting at St. Michael's High School, Monday evening. The hall was loaded with goodies full of calories, which disappeared like magic.

Three study clubs were reported starting soon which will be carried on during the Lenten season.

Mrs. H. Brown suggested that special prayers be said for China by one member spending one whole day for the mission church. Mrs. Daley, Oak Street, took the names and this was agreed to.

Mrs. Gallagher spoke on the Queen of Apostleship and the next month. A special committee of five will look after arrangements. Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. J. Sheridan, Mrs. D. Whalen, Mrs. D. O'Connor, and Mrs. J. Gallagher.

Mrs. Logan congratulated Mrs. Burley on her new position as president of the Hospital Auxiliary, who in turn asked everyone to join and help in the work.

Mrs. Ackerman asked that letters keep coming into the TV station for Zero 1960 films.

Mrs. Gallagher won a sweater which was raffled off.

The president read a pathetic letter from a woman at South Bay, Ontario, asking help for a destitute family. The members decided to give needed food and clothing. Anyone wishing to donate, please leave at St. Michael's Convent or at Mrs. Boyd's, 36 Oak St., by Saturday. This is a case of need and those even wearing sizes 12-14-16.

The Golden Jubilee Bursaries were reported on and thanked, a league for donations. Mrs. E. Bowers has been appointed secretary and Mrs. G. O'Brien, social convener of the local association. Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Cochrane and committee looked after refreshments.

German Dishes For Venturesome Cooks

by Mary Moore

In a little German Konditorei — which is a sort of tea-coffe--shop — but where an old German lady and men) I ordered drank eyes-so-foamy looking beer — Schramm and I ordered coffee and one order of Sel Strudel and one order of Honey Cakes. The Apfel Strudel was nothing to write home about — I won't. The Honey Cakes are — so I tracked down and made up the following recipe. I should save it for Christmas baking next winter but by then the idea will be stale and by then we'll have just a happy memory.

GERMAN HONEY CAKES:

This is a lightly spiced and delicate variation of this traditional Christmas cookie. Blanch 1-2 cup almonds. Cut and mix with 1-3 cup chopped candied peel. To 2 cups sifted flour add 1-2 teaspoon each

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

SATURDAY

cloves and cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon allspice. Dissolve 1-2 teaspoon carbonated ammonia (bought at drug store) in 2 tablespoons brandy. Bring to boiling 2 cups honey and cool slightly then add 1-2 part of the flour mixture. Beat in one at a time, 2 eggs, the brandy mixture, almonds and citron, then remaining flour. Chill overnight. This chilling is important. Drop from a greased spoon, well apart, on a greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until barely tinged gold. When cool ice with plain lemon butter icing.

NOTE:

Honey is a little bit unpredictable. If the honey dough is not real stiff like chilled pie pastry, would be, you may add a little more flour before baking them. But do not unless your honey is very thin, and if so it may toughen the finished cookie.

PORK HOCKS WITH SAUERKRAUT:

This may sound like very ordinary fare to you but it you have pushed back the stroller over the three-quarters of a mile of cobblestone roads with pint-sized Germs, traffic brushing your skirts, and bought hocks from a strictly German-speaking female butcher, and all got home safely and un-clubbed, you too would think it was important enough to pass on.

In a large casserole I put 3 washed, unskinned pork hocks

ANNUAL MEETING

CITY OF BELLEVILLE PROCLAMATION "Y.M.C.A. WEEK"

JANUARY 18th to 25th

This is National Y.M.C.A. Week. This week, millions of men and boys in Canada and elsewhere with more than 1900 Y.M.C.A.'s throughout North American are celebrating a worthwhile job truly well done.

Since 1844, the Y.M.C.A. has been a pioneer in the cause of brotherhood and development of our Youth — the spirit and mind of Youth as well as physical well being. The 'Y' has become a unique and vital part of virtually every North American community, including our own.

In Belleville, the 'Y' has served our Youth since 1893. For sixty-six years it has done its job well. There is hardly a person in this city who has not at some time or another used its facilities and benefited by it.

During this observance of National Y.M.C.A. Week, I am sure that all of us will join in paying tribute to the Belleville 'Y' for its many contributions to our community, and wish it continued success in its urgently needed endeavors.

By virtue of the authority invested in me, as mayor of the City of Belleville, I, Gerald B. Hyde, call upon all citizens to assist in the observation of Y.M.C.A. Week in Belleville.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE PROCLAMATION "Do It Now" CAMPAIGN

Whereas there is a regular falling-off in construction employment during the winter months of January, February and March, and,

Whereas there are many construction, alteration and repair jobs which can be readily performed during these months, and,

Whereas many of the skilled tradesmen currently unemployed would welcome the opportunity of performing this work at this time, and,

Whereas by providing work for tradesmen in their slow period of the year, you would be helping not only the tradesman but your city, your country and yourself,

Therefore, I, Gerald B. Hyde, Mayor of the City of Belleville, hereby call upon all citizens to support to the limit of their ability the Government-sponsored "DO IT NOW" CAMPAIGN.

Your Car

Extra Car Care Needed During Winter Months

By EUGENE MILMOE

Good car care calls for special precautions, and some become especially important in winter. For example, minor holes or cracks in the muffler, exhaust or tail pipe may be ignored . . . yet, when windows are closed tight against frigid blasts, you know exhaust gas seepage can turn the car interior into a lethal chamber.

Keeping the gas tank nearly full is another neglected winter rule. This is a practice which can spare you much grief. It minimizes condensation, which is usually the real cause of frozen fuel lines when temperatures plummet.

Guarding our appearance also calls for extra attention in winter. The finish, including chrome parts, should be kept well waxed with wax and further protected against salt and corrosion damage by frequent cold water washings.

From H. C.: "I have a 1958 automatic transmission model, and when I shift into reverse, the engine races and the transmission appears to be slipping. Is this a simple or serious trouble?".

(A) That can't be determined until you have a qualified mechanic troubleshoot transmission performance, not only in reverse but in other gear ranges as well.

P. M. writes: "My '53 car starts when I first try it but after going a short distance it stops, and I have quite a time getting it started again. Could the automatic choke cause this?"

(A) Yes. If the choke valve doesn't open all the way, or opens too slowly, it could flood the engine with an overrich mixture.

N. E. asks: "After running economically for three years, my '56 convertible has suddenly become very oil hungry. Would this indicate valve or piston ring trouble — or both? Total mileage to date is 24,730 miles."

(A) Check first for leakage — this is usually the reason for a sudden and substantial increase in oil consumption.

From W. P.: "After going awhile, my engine gets good and hot and so does the radiator water . . . but I can't get much warmth from the heater. What is wrong?"

(A) Here again, you will probably need a mechanic because it's not that simple to pinpoint the cause. It might be clogged heater cores, hose kinks, a defective temperature control or some other condition.

BROOKDALE FARM FORUM

6th SIDNEY — Ten members met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Frost on Monday evening to continue the discussion on "Vertical Integration." The specific topic was "Who Writes the Contract?"

Quite a number of farmers in the neighborhood have contracts with the canning factory—peas and corn. Usually the returns are from fair to good. Last year some of the corn was frozen and several growers lost their crops. This may have been due to circumstances, but it is generally conceded that the late date of planting was the main cause for disaster.

There are a few hogs grown for contract too.

It is believed that contract farming has been responsible for the lowering of prices and flooding of the hog market.

In this area farmers are still marking time and hoping for good results from the commodities under contract.

for a confident father

The youngster with the broom is making a clean path for the curling stone. Maybe he doesn't realize it yet, but his father is guiding him through life on a path as direct and as smooth. Life insurance is a way to meet the future and a way to save. By insuring his son now, this father is encouraging thrift, building an attitude of mind.

Many people who plan their life insurance programme through The Mutual Life of Canada, take out policies at low cost on the lives of their children: policies the children take over when they start earning. It's a good idea. An idea worth discussing with your Mutual Life of Canada representative — soon.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS LEGGAT

CHRIST CHURCH CUBS

The 2nd Belleville Cub Pack under the leadership of Akela M. Kemp sets an example of Scouting that deserves recognition and respect.

At Christmas, instead of giving each other gifts, these young Scouts sent a package to Indian children at Hesert, consisting of 42 gifts. In addition to this they presented a basket of Christmas Cheer for the needy in the parish. They also have a Rainy Day Fund — when a reasonable amount is collected it is handed to the church wardens to use as they see fit. The most recent donation was $21.

Congratulations to you, Akela Kemp, and your faithful ACM's and all your Wolf Cub Scouts for proving that Cubs are Good Scouts.

14th LIONS CLUB

This group has undergone a complete reorganization and is now well on the way to becoming one of the most active groups in the district. Mrs. Elliott is the Akela, assisted by Mrs. Mabel Lucas (Baloo) and Mrs. Schammerhorn (Rocksahiw). Last month eight new Cubs were invested, Paul Nobles, Kipton Hawley, Jim Howe, Broderick Stanley, Leslie Hudgins, Glen Dafoe and Douglas Moore. An investiture was conducted by D.C.M. Mac McClelland, confirming the appointment of Mrs. Lucas as A.C.M. One of the Cubs' good turns was to donate $5. to the Springhill Disaster Fund.

A Boy Scout Troop has been formed with Arthur Steenburg as Scoutmaster. Scouter Steenburg is a trained leader, having attended Gilwell and taken several other courses in Scout training.

The Lions Club is justy proud of its Scouts and Cubs. We will hear more of this group. Its leaders are enthusiastic and efficient and are putting a lot of work and effort into Scouting.

ANNUAL SOCIAL EVENING

All leaders are requested to keep Monday, February 23rd, free to attend this annual get-together. Details will be published later.

Douk Migration Plan Exploited Mounties State

OTTAWA (CP) — The propaganda effect of the proposed Doukhobor migration back to Russia has been "exploited to the full by a small group of leaders" says the annual RCMP report tabled Friday in the Commons "The project, with its many public meetings, delegations and fund - raising campaigns has caused deep dissensions which have divided families and, in some cases, husband and wife," says the report for the year ended last March 31.

The trek back to Russia was proposed by leaders of the Sons of Freedom sect of the Doukhobors and remains indefinite despite numerous meetings with British Columbia and federal governmeat authorities. The Soviet has made no public invitation to the Sons of Freedom to return although B.C. and Ottawa have promised assistance provided the Doukhobors renounce their Canadian citizenship.

TERRORIST CAMPAIGN

The RCMP report also covers numerous acts of terrorism in the B.C. interior, long troubled by bombings and other attacks attributed to the radical Doukhobor sect.

It says that "almost without exception" Sons of Freedom children have been happy and well cared for in the special government school for them at New Denver, B.C. They were lodged there in an attempt to bypass parental opposition to the children going to public schools. Truant children were apprehended.

REBEL ATTACK

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Regardless of what happened in Memorial Arena last night between the McFarlands and the Kingston Merchants, that tussle tonight between the Ikemen and the Whitby Dunlops has all the earmarks of a puck battle of the century.

Not only did the McFarlands whip the Dunlops 8-2 in that Tuesday night hockey battle, but they stung them where it hurt the most, their pride.

For the world champions are not accustomed to any team, be they Allan Cup champions or not, handing them a 6-2 shellacking and making them like it. Besides the Blairmen's record received a jolt. They have dropped three of their last four starts.

Both the Whitby sports editor and Mr. Blair admitted the defeat was the worst suffered by the Dunnies this season. But at the same time both uttered solemn warning as to what will happen when the Ikemen and Dunnies clash tonight in Whitby. Grim-faced Harry Sinden told his boss "we will be all-out Saturday night to get that one back."

After the two misconducts and game misconduct penalties handed out to Whitby by Referee Vern Goyer last Tuesday and in view of the vehemence of the protests put up by the Whitby team, this corner fully expected a columnar blast from M'sieu Blair.

But all he said was: "Many of the Whitby fans who made the trip to Belleville were very disappointed with the refereeing of Goyer. He handed out penalties to the Dunnies left and right, including a pair of misconducts and a game misconduct. Seems the Dunnies are in the bad books of Goyer."

That is an unnatural meekness for the little guy with the wandering forelock. And it augurs no good for our side come whistle-tooting time tonight in Whitby.

Mr. Blair and coach Sid Smith, et al, are not in an amiable frame of mind. The good folk of Whitby are not accustomed to having their beloved Dunnies on the short end of the score three times in four outings, so there could be "blood on the moon" up Dalaway this evening.

Despite the fact the McFarlands have been looking up at the Dunnies ever since the circuit was started, they have a much more impressive record than the Blairmen from November 18 in.

Prior to that time the Dunnies had an unbeaten record in twelve starts, winning eleven and tying one, that one with the Macs. Pete Keenan, off to a bad start, compiled four wins, eight losses and one tie.

Then the Macs hit their stride. They slapped a 9-2 defeat on the Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and followed it up with a 9-2 shellacking of the Kingston Merchants. Then in their most brilliant feat of the season, that for they proceeded the unbeaten Dunlops with their first setback of the season, winning 5-3 in a sensational home game.

From that time, in short, the Macs record has been 12 wins, three ties and four defeats in 24 games played while the Dunlops over the same period of time won 24, lost seven and tied two in 33 matches.

Prior to last night, the Hildebranders have gnawed steadily at the gap separating them from the Dunnies in top position. Up to that time they were but two points in arrears. However, the McFarlands with eight games left to play in their 48-game schedule can scarcely emerge with top-standing honors since the Dunlops have 16 games left, including tonight's tussle in their fifty-game card.

Belleville fans will see the McFarlands in home-ice action but three more times before they take off for the great adventure. The Hull-Ottawa Canadiens are here once, and the Cornwall Cherries twice before the curtain falls in Memorial Arena.

Including tonight's game they have five tussles remaining on foreign ice. They meet the Dunlops twice, Cornwall, Kingston and Hull before schedule end.

After the Macs leave for overseas, the remaining four clubs will battle it out for the next month, completing their fifty-game schedules. The league finishes schedule operations on March 1st, then all four clubs enter the circuit playoffs.

The team finishing atop the standing at schedule completion has its choice of opponents in the semifinals playoffs. Assuming the Dunlops finish on the perch, and that is a pretty safe prediction, it is likely they will select Kingston as their first-round foemen, unless the Merchants sneak out into a marked threat. We mention that merely because of the geographical positions of the two clubs — and saving in travel.

Art Wall Tops Second Phase Bing Crosby's Golf Funfest

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf funfest swung into its third phase today with Jean Art Wall Jr. four strokes in front of the pack, thanks to a booming driver and a putter that wouldn't miss.

Wall, fresh from Miami, Fla., ripped up the Monterey peninsula course, one of three in use for this 72-hole event, with a seven-under-par 65 and a two-day total of 134.

An hour late, flamboyant Jimmy Demaret, who hasn't played a tournament since last July, took some of the glitter off Wall's round with a brilliant 33-32—65 over the same course.
